'Proves Alcoholism Can Work'

Sargent Visits, Cites Success Of Faxon House Detoxification Center

By PAUL FELDMAN

Governor Francis W. Sargent visited Faxon House, Quincy's Alcoholism Detoxification Center, last week, congratulating city officials on its success, saying, "This center proves that the new alcoholism policy can work."

The new alcohol law, which went into effect Monday, states that alcoholism is no longer a crime but an illness. It stipulates that police can no longer arrest public drunks but instead must send them home or to detoxification centers.

Faxon House has been open since August 1972, admitting over 800 patients of whom 75 percent have recovered from alcoholism according to Norman Forde of Quincy, Chairman of the State Advisory Council on Alcoholism, who also spoke at the press conference.

The Quincy Center, which is located on the grounds of the Quincy City Hospital, uses medical treatment to "dry out" patients and then counsels alcoholics on rehabilitation. Patients stay at the House for up to five days before re-entering society or going to long-term therapy centers such as the Long Island Hospital. The house works hand in hand with Alcoholics Anonymous and other non-government programs to continue therapy for those that go back home.

In his remarks to the press, the Governor said that over 300,000 people in the state have the disease of alcoholism. "And what people don't realize," he added, "is that it's not merely a problem of the poor guy on skid row. It goes right across our society to people with jobs and families."

"By opening more detoxification centers like the Faxon House, we will help our citizens, not punish them," said the Governor.

Also appearing at the conference along with Sargent and Forde were Mayor Walter Hannon, Detoxification Center Director Richard Adler, Police Chief Francis X. Finn, Secretary of Human Services Peter Goldmark and Director of Division of Alcoholism Dr. Edward Blacker.

Chief Finn said that he was happy with the new law. "I grew up in juvenile division police work and the reason for many juvenile problems were family crises due to alcoholic problems."

Chief Finn has drawn up a synopsis of the new alcohol law and guidelines for its implementation which he has distributed to Quincy's police officers.

The Quincy Police policy states that "if a person is found to be 'incapacitated' not involved in any crime, not in an unconscious state, the officer shall contact the dispatcher relative to whether the Quincy Detoxification Unit can pick up and service the party."

If treatment space is available, the person will be taken to the Faxon House, and if there is no room, the person will be held in the police station in "protective custody." Those held in "protective custody" will be searched by the police and can be held up to 12 hours.

In a question and answer session, the Governor was asked whether drunken drivers could be arrested unless police actually see them commit a driving offense. Sargent replied that "it is a problem that surely was not intended but there are two bills now in the legislature that should stop any inequities."

Including the Faxon House, there are now 12 detoxification centers in the state. Chairman Forde admitted that the small number is a problem but countered that "what we need are funds. We live in an age where the dollar is our guide. We asked the legislature for $4.7 million but they sent us only $3.2 million. So we are 180 beds short of our 500 bed goal."

According to Forde's figures, with 500 beds in the state, at a turnover rate of three days per bed, the centers could handle 60,000 patients a year. There are 60,000 annual drunkenness arrests in Massachusetts.

The Quincy center holds 20 beds. But with more government funds, it could expand considerably. Faxon House serves nine communities including Quincy.

Rehabilitated patients of the Faxon House Center attended a press conference. A middle-aged lady, who wished to remain unidentified, called the Quincy center "terrific." She said "the counseling was the best part. There was always someone to talk to. I learned about myself and this is what helped me recover."

Also at the conference was Frank Martinson, a Quincy resident in his 70's who was once a patient but now works at the center.

New 6 or 8-Ward Plan?

Redistricting Suit Controversy Brings Strong GOP Reply

By TOM HENSHAW

The Quincy City Council met Tuesday night to discuss "all phases" of the redistricting suit amid increasing time pressure to redistrict the city quickly or elect all nine City Councillors on an at-large basis in November.

The suit, which contends that the current six-ward lines are drawn in violation of the "one man, one vote" principle of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, must be answered within 20 days of service.

It was filed June 22 by a group of citizens headed by Douglas A. Randall, chairman of the Ward 6 Republican Committee, and served on city officials June 29, which places the deadline approximately on July 19.

Two specific topics that were to have been taken up by the City Council Tuesday night were an eight-ward plan formulated by City Clerk John Gillis and a six-ward plan that was in the process of being worked out.

Meanwhile, charges and countercharges swirled about the fringes of the controversy, threatening to turn it into a partisan fight between Republicans and Democrats over a non-partisan election.

Republican State Committeeman Roy A. Lawson of Wollaston demanded an apology from Council President Arthur H. Tobin for his charge that the filing of the suit is a "Republican conspiracy".

"The real conspiracy," said Lawson, "apparently lies within Mr. Tobin's master plan to turn the city elections into partisan politics."

Tobin was not available for comment.

Two days before the suit was filed, Tobin called it a "Republican conspiracy" and threatened to "muster the Democratic forces of the city and come up with nine candidates that could win city wide," including former Mayor James R. McIntyre.

Lawson called Tobin's threat "an obvious and thinly disguised scheme to capitalize on the vast numbers of his party's designation, most of whom have come here to escape the vicious political escapades in city [Boston] partisan politics.

"Council President Tobin, in over a year, has failed to seriously put before the Council a workable plan for reapportionment and considering he 'controls' the Council, I firmly believe that it was intentional.

"Now he is trying to place the blame on and castigate the Republican party.

"I personally believe the suit is proper. Whether or not it is 'timely' or that it may cost a variety of candidates additional campaign funds can be laid directly on the shoulders of Mr. Tobin, where it belongs.

"This suit has been brought by a group of concerned Quincy citizens and has not been given sanction by any regularly organized group or function of the Republican party.

"Mr. Tobin, you owe us, and in the name of the Republican party, I demand of you, a public apology."

Harold Ward I Candidate

McCormick Won't Run For Mayor

One new candidate has entered the city election picture and another potential candidate took himself out of the race for mayor.

The new candidate is Paul D. Harold of 31 Riverside Ave., running for City Council from Ward 1.

Meanwhile, James F. McCormick, former vice chairman of the School Committee and unsuccessful candidate for mayor two years ago, announced that he is not going to run again - at least not this year.

Said McCormick:

"To the many voters of Quincy who have expressed interest in my possible candidacy for the office of Mayor of Quincy, I would like to thank them and say that I will not be seeking this high office this year.

"However, I will continue my interest in affairs of the city and when possible offer whatever help I can to the city."

Nevertheless, there are still 32 with an announced interest in public office this year.

The full list of candidates to date includes:

Mayor - George H. Manuelian, Daniel S. Coughlin Jr., George A. Trubiano.

City Council:

Ward 1 - Richard P. Ward, Robert Denvir, Ronald Greenwald, Raymond G. Viens, Leo J. Kelly, Paul D. Harold. Incumbent Edward S. Graham is not seeking re-election.

Ward 2 - Clifford H. Marshall, the incumbent seeking re-election.

Ward 3 - Ronald L. Halter, Peter P. Gacicia, Patrick J. Faherty. Incumbent is Theophilus McLelland III.

Ward 5 - John J. Lydon Jr., Warren A. Powers, Michael J. Peatridge, Ronald T. Johnson, Stephen I. Marini. Incumbent William D. Delahunt is not seeking re-election.

Ward 6 - Dennis Harrington, James J. Vey, J. Vincent Smyth, the incumbent seeking re-election.

At Large - Carl W. Anderson, Adeline Pompeo, Thomas F. Brownell. Incumbents are Arthur H. Tobin, John J. Quinn, Joseph LaRaia.

School Committee - Bryant L. Carter Jr., Pasquale S. DeStefano, Philip Matthews, Frank Anselmo, an incumbent seeking re-election.

Medicare Medical Insurance Premium Increase Delayed

The monthly premium for Medicare Medical Insurance scheduled to be increased in July to $6.30 has been delayed in keeping with President Nixon's 60-day price freeze policy, according to Frank Culkin, Social Security District Manager, in Quincy.

"The higher amount will continue to be charged until the premium record for each beneficiary can be corrected," Culkin said. "Refunds in full will be made at a later date. This also applies to Railroad Retirement Beneficiaries and Civil Service Annuitants who pay premiums for medical insurance under Medicare."

Medicare medical insurance helps pay for doctor bills and many other medical expenses of almost everyone 65 or over and disabled people under 65 who have been eligible for monthly social security disability payments for two years or more.

MBTA Installing More Guard Fencing On Dimmock St.

The MBTA announces it is installing an additional four feet of fencing on the Dimmock St. side of the Quincy Center Station.

The action was taken as a result of a request from the City of Quincy to provide additional safeguards in the area of the third rail near the Quincy Center Station.

The work will cost between $4,000 and $5,000 and is expected to take approximately two weeks to complete.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY 'Honest, Doc, I need glasses'

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

My oculist is not the sort of man you'd expect him to be. He coaches on eye tests.

"Listen," I said to him, as I sat forward on a tiny stool in his office squinting at an eye chart, "I can't see that bottom line at all. It's just a blur."

He pushed the stool, which was on casters, a bit nearer the chart. I blinked and peered.

"E, F, B?" I asked.

"Try P, B, C," he whispered.

"Why should I?" I said irritably. "What good will cheating here do me when I'm trying to read the price tags at Saks?"

He smiled indulgently.

"I'm telling you, doctor," I continued, "I need glasses. I've lied to myself for two years, but I'm sick of reading 'Lad, A Dog' just because the print is big."

He threw back his head and laughed. "Getting to be that age, eh?" he said. Apparently, advancing age and impending blindness were sources of merriment to him.

"Look," I said, grabbing his starched lapel, "give me a pair of glasses or I'll go the 5 and 10 and buy a pair for 49 cents that will ruin my eyes. Think of your Hippocratic oath."

Finally, he opened a tiny drawer filled with sample lenses and grudgingly slipped a few into a pair of empty frames he had affixed to my nose. With the fourth set the bottom line suddenly jumped out and I read it.

"Doctor!" I exclaimed, "I can see!"

But his sense of the dramatic was flawed. Clearly, he had not seen Bette Davis in "Dark Victory." Where was his merriment now?

Dourly, he scribbled a prescription for the optometrist and looked at me gravely.

"Now when you get these glasses," he said, "don't wear them all the time."

"I won't," I lied. "Honest. Injun."

And, in a way, I've kept my promise. I never wear them unless I'm looking at something. And if I want to read "Lad, A Dog" I always take them off.

- Communists Want More POWs
- Burning The Taxpayers
- Pollution Windfall

WASHINGTON — I have seen secret intelligence reports which claim the Communists have made it their number one priority to capture American prisoners in Cambodia and Laos.

Besides American pilots, the Communists would also like to capture American advisers on the ground. According to the intelligence reports, an estimated 300 American advisers are guiding the Meo, Lao and Thai guerrillas operating behind Communist lines in Laos.

Their remote mountain camps are supplied by two CIA airlines, Air America and Continental, which employ another 500 American crewmen. The Air Force also operates nearly 200 bombing missions daily over Cambodia.

The secret intelligence reports warn that the Communists are making an extra effort to shoot down American planes and capture American guerrilla leaders.

Their aim, apparently, is to compile another prisoner of war list to use for bargaining purposes. Before the end of the summer, the sensitive POW issue may be raised all over again.

Burning The Taxpayers: The taxpayers are being charged by the U.S. Forest Service's policies on renting aircraft to fight forest fires.

The government spends more than $3 million a year just to have 80 helicopters and 60 World War II vintage bombers "stand by" in case of fire. The planes are leased from private companies to carry chemicals when a blaze breaks out. Once they take off, the cost goes up.

Meanwhile, the armed services have more than enough planes at the ready which could do the same job for only a fraction of the cost. With America out of the Vietnam War, helicopters are in particularly heavy supply.

The taxpayers, nevertheless, are still asked to pay out millions to the private contractors who actually offer little in the way of service. Near Reno, Nevada, for example, the Lear/Avia company gets $43,000 a year just to guarantee that one of its "Bell Jet Ranger" choppers will be available to the Forest Service for two hours a day during the 10-month-long forest fire season. A second helicopter is on stand-by.

But the Forest Service, behind its spokespersons of bureaucratic inefficiency, just keeps paying out the taxpayers' dollars.

Pollution Windfall: The Nixon Administration is trying to give some of the worst industrial polluters in the country a million dollar windfall and stick the taxpayers with the bill.

The beneficiary of the million is the National Industrial Pollution Control Council. It is the front for about 60 corporate bigwigs, who constitute an all-star cast of polluters. The council was established to advise the government on environmental issues.

Senator Lee Metcalf of Montana has been charged, however, that the council's real purpose is to enhance the corporate images, create an illusion of action and impede government officials who are really trying to enforce the antipollution laws.

The council gets free offices and a staff of 13 from the government. Last year, it also got $323,000 from the Treasury. Now the White House wants to up the tab to more than a million dollars.

A week ago, Michigan Rep. John Dingell managed to knock out the appropriation on a point of order. But the corporation lobbyists are working in the back rooms to have the money put back during secret meetings of the Senate and House conference committee.

It is worth noting that the Commerce Department has killed a request to put public and environmental representatives on the council's board.

Off The Shelves: The Pentagon is asking for $35 billion for new weapons next year. But some of the weapons are the same ones Congress stopped the Pentagon from building two years ago, because of outrageous cost overruns.

For example, there is the "Main Battle Tank." The tank was conceived in 1964 and billed by the Army as the best tank on earth. After spending nearly $235 million, however, the Congress forced the Pentagon to drop the tank in 1971, because it had become too expensive and too complex.

Yet, in 1973, here it is again in the Pentagon budget — this time called the XM-1, and once again being proclaimed the best.

Then there is the Cheyenne helicopter. It was designed to be an antitank weapon which could double as an air support for ground troops. But after six years and $40 million, the project was shelved last year.

This didn't discourage the Pentagon brass hats. They just dusted it off, gave it a jazzy new name and pushed it in front of the Congress again. Now, it's called the "Advanced Attack Helicopter," but the name change isn't likely to save the taxpayers any money.

The new tank and helicopter, most likely, will join the Pentagon's cost overrun hall of fame with the F-111, the C-5A and the B-70 bomber.

Historical Society To Hold Tea At Adams Birthplaces

Quincy Historical Society will hold its Annual Tea and Open House at the Adams Birthplaces Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m.

This traditional event has been held for many years on the Sunday nearest the birthday of John Quincy Adams.

In recognition of the joint operation of the historic red farmhouses on Franklin St., by the Historical Society and the City of Quincy, city officials and their wives are specially invited to this event. Invitations have also been sent to the presidents of neighboring historical societies.

Due to the great growth of the Society during the past year, this will be the first tea for many members. The tea will therefore serve as an occasion of welcome for these new members by the older members.

Miss Vera Call is in charge of the arrangements for the tea assisted as is customary by the lady members of the Society's Board of Curators and the wives of the men on the Board.

The Birthplaces have been open to the public as historic shrines since 1897. They have been owned by the City of Quincy since 1940 when they were deeded to the City by the Adams family. Quincy Historical Society owns the contents of the houses, and has operated the John Quincy Adams Birthplace since 1897 and the John Adams Birthplace since 1950.

Everyone Should Be Proud Of Our Flag

Ed. Note: Carol Carpenter of 13 Central Ave., won top prize in the recent Houghs Neck American Legion Post's flag essay contest.

By CAROL CARPENTER
Great Hill School

I'm proud of my flag and I'm proud to be a citizen of the United States.

I think everyone should be proud of their flag. Many people have great respect for their flag, but others don't. Every nation has a flag and should be proud of it. People who wear the flag as part of their clothing, to me, have no respect for their country.

Thousands of years ago hunters and Indians began carrying signs or flags so both friends and enemies would know who they were. Men could tell by the signs whether the person was friend or foe. These first flags were not made of cloth. They were made of animal skins or bird feathers that were on the end of a pole.

People began using standards in battle. A standard is a pole with a metal image of something on it. Each part of the army had its own standard. While the Europeans were still carrying standards, East Indians and Chinese were carrying cloth flags. Cloth flags may have been used in the Orient as early as 1100 BC.

Flags of red and white stripes were a symbol of bravery and freedom before our country became independent. The Pilgrims brought a flag of red and white stripes with them when they came to America.

On June 14, 1777, it was decreed that our flag, "Be 13 stripes alternate red and white: that the Union be 13 stars, white in a field of blue, representing a new constellation."

John Quincy Adams wrote that the people who helped write the constitution hoped our country might be a symbol of peace in the world. They hoped the stars in the flag would be like the stars in the Constellation Lyre, named for the Lyre, a symbol of harmony and peace.

Whenever another star joined the United States another star was added to the flag. The 13 stripes on the flag stand for the 13 original colonies that formed our nation. They stand for freedom and courage and they always will.

Public Law 829 tells civilians how to display the flag of the United States of America. It also tells you how to use the flag of the United States of America. The flag should only be displayed between sun rise and sunset. It should be raised quickly and lowered slowly. It should not be displayed in bad weather.

When the American Flag is hung across the street, the flags blue field must be North or East.

The flag should never be used as a drape or cover except at a funeral. No object should ever be placed on the flag. It should never touch the floor or ground.

An old flag must be destroyed by burning it.

Attorney General

Q - Recently I borrowed money to purchase a washing machine. The appliance store recommended a lending company to me. Two weeks after the machine was delivered to my house it broke down. Is the lending company in any way responsible for the quality of the product?

A - Yes, under Mass. law when a connection exists between a seller and a company lending money or credit, the buyer can expect a store and the lending company to accept the same responsibility for product performance. If the product is unsatisfactory, the buyer may complain to the seller and also advise the lender that the product is faulty.

Q - Certain advertisers offer "unconditional guarantees" others offer "lifetime guarantees". What do these types of guarantees provide?

A - When a product is advertised "guaranteed for life" or "lifetime guarantee", the meaning of lifetime must be defined. Is it for the product's lifetime? or the owner's lifetime? "Unconditionally guaranteed" will be considered a promise that the product will be refunded if the buyer finds the product defective in any way. Any product advertised simply "guaranteed" will be considered fully unconditionally guaranteed.

Q - Recently I received a letter from a company stating that I had been selected to receive a special prize. I found out yesterday that nearly everyone in my neighborhood had received similar news from the same company. Is this a gimmick?

A - Yes, this is an apparently successful gimmick because it is used frequently in selling many products and services. These products or services may be useful but the "specially selected" approach indicates that you should be cautious; the company may use other tricks.

QCAO Fund Drive For Camperships

The Quincy Community Action Organization Inc., is holding a fund drive to provide camperships for low-income youngsters this summer.

Due to a lack of federal funds for the first time in many years, it is critical that money be raised before the June 30 deadline.

The non-profit organization screens and selects youngsters from the ages of six to 12, chooses the camps to send these youngsters to, and determines the degree to which the family of the youngster will share the financial burden. The screening committee is made up of residents of low-income neighborhoods.

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'Suicide Not Your Way Out'

When the burdens of life seem to pile up higher than one can handle some people consider taking their lives as a way out. We have no statistics on how many people "consider" self destruction ... we do know that 22,630 actually do ... three times as many men as women. Nor do we know how many automobile accidents (so reported) leading to death were deliberate on the part of the driver.

Men with financial commitments beyond their reach may consider suicide when the pressures and demands can't be met. Women who feel trapped in their own homes and have lost hope of being loved as they need to be loved consider taking their own lives. Even young people in college consider ... and do take their lives. These feelings of self-destruction are not uncommon ... and one station in life provides no immunity.

The principle cause of suicidal thoughts and suicide is DEPRESSION. Many people are suffering from this illness and don't realize what's wrong with them. So they go on and on without care or correction of the condition. Shame prevents some people from getting help. Electric shock therapy is rapidly being displaced by the use of lithium under a doctor's direction ... which recognizes depression as a chemical problem rather than some deep psychiatric mystery.

What then shall one do when feeling that he/she can go no further in life ... saying "What's the use ... nobody cares." I make the following suggestions ...

First ... Seek PROFESSIONAL HELP ... a well trained and seasoned person with whom you can identify ... with whom you can feel comfortable to tell your true gut feelings about life as you are living it ... your fears ... your guilt ... your unmet needs. Be honest with your doctor so he can be with you.

Second ... Seek the SUPPORT OF FRIENDS. Most of the people who read these lines don't have as their greatest concern the Watergate Coverup ... nor inflation ... nor the summit meetings. Your greatest concern in life is human needs ... human relationship. You're making it ... or you're not making it with another person that you want to be close to. If you're making it you feel accepted ... if not you feel rejected. Jesus cried out from his cross ... "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Being forsaken ... rejected leads many to consider suicide. So ... reach out to friends. THERAPY GROUPS are especially valuable for people who feel alone ... because the spirit in the group is one of care and friendship. Don't just endure loneliness.

Thirdly ... MAKE A PLAN for yourself ... a practical program. Include work ... recreation ... friendships. Deal directly with the concerns which trouble you most. Make it possible for you to GROW ... to become more of a person than you are. Thus ... you encourage yourself ... because you increasingly love yourself.

Suicide is not your best way out.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK Can Married Woman Register Under Maiden Name?

Several women have called the League of Women Voters Voter Information phone asking if they may register to vote under their maiden name even if they are married. The Voter Information phone checked with the Elections Division and found that they may not use their maiden name.

State law now says that you must register to vote using your legal name - which is your married name if you are married, or even divorced unless the court has granted you the right to revert to your previous surname. No change in this law is expected this year.

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters Voter Information phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

Letter Box Survival, Inc. Thanks All Who Made Flea Market A Success

Editor, Quincy Sun:

On behalf of the staff and participants at Survival Inc., I would like to sincerely thank all those persons who helped make our flea market at the Quincy Parking Garage on May 20 such a success. The thought of so many persons coming forward to help is one which is translated into a warm feeling for us who are trying to help troubled persons, as well as those troubled persons themselves, coming to Survival to seek help.

Numerous people worked very hard over the last month to insure every detail of the market was perfect. A number of merchants donated goods and services to the market. The City officials responsible for approval of all the market activities were most helpful. In fact, though many people who bought goods at the market did not find that "real" bargain they may have been after, I would have to say flea market went off "without a hitch".

To list all those who helped would be too lengthy. Suffice it to say, Survival is a better program because of all your efforts, and for that, Survival thanks you all.

PERSONAL

Stay put on job awhile

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I graduated from college two years ago and have had four different jobs. So far, I haven't been too enthusiastic about any position I have had. I am now out of work and have discovered that my job record is against me. What can I do?

Unemployed

Dear Unemployed:

You've been playing "musical chairs" with your jobs. When you go on the next interview, aim to project an efficient image. Be able to tell your prospective employer why you want to work for his company. Present a neat, well-groomed appearance. Answer all questions briefly and allow the interviewer to set the conversational direction.

If you've been able to obtain four jobs in two years, I am certain you can locate another. When you do, stay put long enough to erase your job-changing image. Good luck.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I do not agree with the advice which you gave a lady about ironing her husband's wash and wear shirts. This woman works; so if he wants his shirts ironed, he should iron them himself. It is about time that her husband learned to think of someone other than himself for a change.

You really seem to have a "thing" about husbands. In my opinion your advice would be much more effective if you resisted your urge to flatter men and made an effort to be realistic.

Carol

Dear Carol:

What is unrealistic about a wife spending 15 minutes to make her husband happy? Or vice versa?

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

What can I do about my in-laws? I have been married for six months and have spent almost every weekend with "the family." My weekends seem to consist of cooking dinner for two uninvited guests — my father-in-law and my mother-in-law. They arrive unannounced and uninvited about noon and stay until 9:00 or 9:30 p.m.

My husband cannot understand my panic about this miserable arrangement. I work and do not intend to tolerate this inconvenience any longer. How can I make my husband realize this problem? I like my in-laws and do not want to cause waves.

Sick of Entertaining

Dear Sick:

Tell your husband you are tired of playing "Guess Who Is Coming to Dinner," and that if he doesn't handle the problem — you will. If you must, tell your in-laws that you won't come to their home uninvited and unannounced if they won't come to yours.

SUMMER SHINE -- Dynamic colors with high intensity shine create "sun glisteners," cosmetics formulated to reflect the sun.

Georg Moore was giving makeup lessons on how to be beautiful in 12 easy steps — give or take a few.

"I'm going to put at least five layers of cosmetics on your skin — but when I'm through you won't feel a thing," said Moore, makeup director, western division, for Germaine Monteil Cosmetics Corp.

With that he dug into an assortment of jars, tubes, bottles and falcons, explaining that the trend in cosmetics for summer is toward sheer, lightweight, "whipped" creams that blend in color and moisturize at the same time.

Moore calls them "sun glisteners." The colors are vibrant with high intensity shine to reflect the sun.

"The secret is to use everything sparingly and to blend well so that you get full coverage without wasting make-up."

He begins with a cleanser containing vitamins A, D and E and wheat germ oil. Moore, for one, said he is against using vitamin E straight out of the capsule on the skin.

"My observations — just from watching the returns — are that some women are allergic to it full-strength, and it can cause a rash." The makeup director smooths on the cleanser with sweeping strokes then takes it off with a warm terry cloth towel.

"Don't use tissues," he advised. "Remember, they're made from wood pulp. The harshness can break capillaries."

Next comes cream toner, something new in place of the usual liquid toners; then a filmy layer of "line smoothing

Layer four — "instant pore minimizer." Use it only where pores are enlarged, it helps reduce them, said Moore.

Step five is a thin film of something called "Bio-miracle Lotion," with a government seal on the bottle. "That's because it contains biotene, the active ingredient which penetrates the seven layers of skin to firm the first and newest layer," Moore explained.

Step six and seven are moisturizer — just a smidgen's worth — and "moisture makeup," almost as frothy as beaten egg whites.

Already Moore has exceeded his "five" layers, but there is no heaviness, no pancake texture and no greasiness.

He continues with what he calls "instant health," a "souffle" cheek accent. "Use it to frame the eyes, keep the color up on the cheekbone, not down," he advised.

"The moisture content helps moisturize the cheeks which tend to be dry in summer."

Step nine is optional — powder to "set" the look, but the makeup director likes the wet glisten better for summer.

Steps 10-11 are eye play. Three tones of blue eye shadow, optional eyeliner and a light extension of the brow with a soft brown brush-on powder.

And the final touch — lipstick, a bright, semi-transparent red.

Thirty minutes and 12 layers later Moore has produced a natural, glistening look that is amazingly light despite the assortment of products. Moral: it's the quality not quantity that counts in a smooth made-up look.

RIGHTS 'N' WRONGS

What should guest do?

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin: My 14-year-old son has been invited to spend three weeks with friends who live in California. I've given him some guidelines on what it takes to be a good house guest but he calls me square. Will you tell him? He reads your column each week in the Joliet Herald News — Square Mom

Dear Square Mom: I assume that your California friends have teen-agers in their home. Your son should assume the same duties as the children in the home. Thus he would help with the yard work, washing and polishing the car, caring for the pool, carrying out the rubbish, etc. Of course he would leave the bathroom clean and picked up, he'd make his bed and take care of his own clothes. The mother of the household would appreciate a hand with clearing the table, stacking or emptying the dishwasher or bringing groceries in from the car. The nitty gritty of being a good house guest boils down to being appreciative. Your son should always appear happy about the things his hosts have planned. He should never complain or criticize. And tell your son not to forget the thank you letter which should be sent to hostess but should mention her husband and the rest of the family.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Now is the time to complete small, detailed, unexciting tasks at work to make way for new projects coming up soon. Be reflective about the past and evaluate actions. Think carefully and cautiously before using savings.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — You appear to be operating in a "glass house" and everyone knows what you're doing. Good time to seek publicity — wrong time to be indiscreet. Short journeys are emphasized. Study, mental interests favored.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Deadline pressure on many projects appears trying. Work quietly in the background and keep cool. Health matters are important — watch diet, get plenty of rest. Seemingly eccentric proposal may have merit.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Lots of activity around you, though enjoyed, sparks desire for solitude and relaxation. Listen patiently and be a sounding board for children with strong opinions. Take special care of welfare of house pets.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Go over projects previously shelved. You can unearth something of value. Concentrate on real estate interests — evaluate the market. Get professional help with transactions. Cultural entertainment appeals to you now.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Friendship and money don't mix well just now. Keep plans under your hat and build foundations in secret. Resist urge to go on a spending spree which you'll later regret. Now is the time for a tight budget.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Highly active week when your prestige can get a boost. Prominent people aid you in club, community affairs. Balance personal accounts and budget for needed items. Be considerate of mate or friend who is pressured.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — You can make real progress in career now by contacting important people — showing enthusiasm and energy. Rely on intuition. Do not go into debt for purchases now. Be practical and curb extravagant impulses.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Not the time to put on a front. Let your accomplishments speak for themselves and soft pedal ambition. Make decisions carefully by using sharp reasoning powers. A romantic mood prevails now.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Take time out to be a good neighbor or friend to someone in need, possibly a relative. Allow extra time for delivery of mail order purchases. Be cooperative with operation changes started at work.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Challenges in the work area require inventive and ingenious handling. Some unexpected events appear probable. Accept responsibility for your actions. Reputation will suffer from an indiscreet romantic affair.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Many subtle changes are occurring in your life-style. Money matters, things of value, savings and spending are all in high focus. Be patient. Don't force the future to unfold too rapidly. Use your heightened intuition.

Sweaters will be big

By BETH MOHR
Copley News Service

Sweaters for fall and winter will be big — in popularity and proportion. In heavy knits and long lengths, a number will be belted and some will have patch pockets to add to the bulk.

The knits will have a feeling of depth. Striped, cable and fisherman patterns will be among leading textures. Color will add to the theme of sturdy warmth in tweedy mixtures.

Most sweaters will be topped by deep shawl or wide square collars. Fur collars, joined to tweed color blends, will give many the look and versatility of jackets.

The belts, to be chosen frequently, will be set-in, buckled or tied. Unbelted styles will be in straight, boxy lines or modified tent silhouettes.

Most luxurious will be the long evening sweaters trimmed with shawl collars of such downy furs as fox and lynx. They will opt for solid colors rather than tweeds.

CONGRATULATIONS - Christopher F. Kennedy [left] of Barham Ave., North Quincy, Dean of Students at Northeastern University received a chair and certificate from Northeastern President Asa S. Knowles for 25 years of service to the University as Mrs. Kennedy looks on. The presentation was made at the annual Twenty-Five Year Associates luncheon recently held at Northeastern's Warren Center in Ashland.

Christopher Kennedy Honored By Northeastern

Christopher F. Kennedy of 27 Barham Ave., North Quincy, dean of students at Northeastern University, recently received a chair and certificate from Northeastern President Asa S. Knowles in appreciation for 25 years of service to the University.

Dean Kennedy received his bachelor of arts degree from Harvard University in 1946 and his master's degree in education from Boston State College in 1947.

He joined the faculty at Northeastern in 1948 as an instructor of mathematics and in 1952 became assistant professor of mathematics. He was appointed an associate professor of mathematics and dean of freshmen in 1957. In 1967, he became associate dean of students and in 1969 dean of students.

Prior to going to Northeastern, Dean Kennedy was a teacher of mathematics at Boston Latin School for one year.

He is a member of the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators and is feature editor of the Association's Journal. Dean Kennedy is a member of the Division of Research of the National Association of Program Development, the Quincy Parent-Teacher Council, the Educational Development Committee of the Quincy Public School System, and chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Newman Preparatory School.

Dean Kennedy's publications include an article published by Keating and Joyce in 1969, "Commuting to an Urban Institution."

The father of eight children, he is married to the former Mary T. Devine.

Joe Buccini : From Nuclear Submarines To Making Tasty Subs

By PAUL FELDMAN

From inspecting nuclear submarines to making meatball submarines is the career range of Joe Buccini, proprietor of Mister Sub at 64 Billings Rd in North Quincy.

Joe, a Quincy High graduate, worked for 10 years as an engineering assistant in non-destructive testing at General Dynamics. He spent much of his time inspecting the welding in nuclear subs, earning the title of Nuclear Test Examiner.

"But the outlook there wasn't too good and with seven children to support, I decided to go into a self-owned business", Joe says.

He opened Mr. Sub a year ago.

The restaurant is a real family operation. Joe is assisted primarily by his wife, Gail. And his mother cooks the store specialty, eggplant parmigiana, from an old Italian recipe.

The shop is beautifully decorated and much of the credit goes to Gail. She painted the attractive seven-foot murals and made the lovely floral baskets. The walls are wood panelled and there are handsome tables to eat at. A seven-foot mirror and attractive blue rug also add to the comfortable atmosphere. The furnishings are part of Joe's attempt to "upgrade the quality of submarine sandwich shops".

"Our main asset is speed. Our store is layed out for quick service to go along with our quality food."

Joe has lived in Quincy all his life and presently resides in South Quincy. His seven children are between the ages of four and 19.

NQBPA Hears Koch, Honors Letter Carrier

The annual dinner meeting of the North Quincy Business and Professional Association was held recently at Walsh's Restaurant, 9 Billings Rd.

Guest speaker was Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board. He spoke on The Past, Present and Future of North Quincy.

The Association honored Postal carrier James McGuinness at the meeting for his "years of dedicated service to the community". McGuinness has retired after more than 25 years with the Postal Department.

The officers of the Business Association, now serving two year terms, are:

Andrew I. Walsh, president; John Horrigan, vice president; Joseph Doran, treasurer and Harold Glickman, Gino Manini and Vito Barresi, board of directors.

Flaherty Family Has 3 College Graduates

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Flaherty of 107 Shawmut St., West Quincy, have three college graduates in their family this spring.

John F. Flaherty, 32, Edward M. Flaherty, 22, and Wanling Catherine Sun Flaherty, 20, were all graduated from local colleges.

John received his Bachelor of Science degree in Industrial Technology from Northeastern University. He is a graduate of Quincy High School and Wentworth Institute with an associate degree in Electronics Engineering. Married to the former Joanne Gallagher, they have two children, Mary Kate age 8 and John Jr. age 5. John works for New England Telephone as a Dial Service Manager in Hyannis.

Edward and his wife Wanling graduated together from Lowell Institute of Technology. Edward received a B.S. degree in Plastics Technology and Wanling a B.S. degree with high honors in Mathematics. Edward is a graduate of Quincy High School. Wanling is a native of Japan.

The couple have one son, Ethan, 22 months old. Edward has accepted a position in Plastics Engineering with Texas Instruments and the couple will reside in Sherman, Texas.

Brownell Requests Court Action On Sewerage

A court injunction to end the dumping of raw sewerage in Quincy Bay has been requested by Rep. Thomas Brownell.

Brownell, in a letter to Attorney General Robert Quinn, appealed for direct state intervention to find the source of the sewage. "There is no doubt in my mind that our Water Pollution Control Laws are being blatantly violated."

Residents from Bayside Rd in Quantum have complained recently of increasing accumulation of sewerage from the Nut Island treatment plant and other sources.

Lt. David Rowell Cited For Academic Achievement

Quincy Police Lt. David F. Rowell, a freshman at Suffolk University, has been cited for high academic achievement in the evening division of the college of liberal arts and sciences.

A graduate of North Quincy High School, Rowell is a sociology major at Suffolk. He is a past president of the Norfolk County Narcotic Enforcement Officers Association and a member of the Board of Directors of the Norfolk County Narcotic Enforcement Officers Association.

Rowell is a lieutenant detective in charge of the special services unit of the Quincy Police Department.

Debra Mattar Graduates From Gibbs

Miss Debra Ellen Mattar, daughter of Mrs. Ellen Mattar of 152 Barham Ave., North Quincy, has graduated from Katharine Gibbs School in Boston, where she completed the one-year secretarial course.

Graduation ceremonies for the Katharine Gibbs Class of '73 were held at Kresge Auditorium of M.I.T. Miss Jacquelyn Low, Vice President for Advertising at Cabot, Cabot & Forbes, was the Commencement speaker.

THE ALCOHOLISM PROBLEM

According to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, chronic alcoholism is now our fourth most serious public health problem. It is outranked by diseases of the heart and blood vessels, cancer, and mental illness.

It is estimated that there are 6,500,000 alcoholics in the United States. Business and industry lose around two billion dollars a year because of absenteeism, lowered productivity, and accidents attributable to alcoholism.

In California, a study found that premature death comes to alcoholics about two and a half times as often as to the general population. A number of investigators have concluded that at least half of all fatal automobile accidents are caused by drunk drivers. This would come to a figure of about 25,000 people killed annually on the highways from alcohol.

Art Association Will Exhibit At Sidewalk Bazaar

The Quincy Art Association will mark its 8th anniversary with an exhibit at the Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar July 19-20.

The exhibit and sale will be on display at 1432 Hancock St. The premises have been donated by the South Shore National Bank.

According to Mrs. Eleanor V. McCarthy of Squantum, chairman, the display will consist of approximately 50 pieces of art work, including oils, acrylics, woodcuts, collages and tiles. The exhibit will include a few abstracts while the majority of the work will be in the traditional form. The sales from the small tiles will be donated to the Woodward School Scholarship Fund.

William J. D'Attilio, President of the Association, is initiating a membership drive during the exhibit. Membership is available to both amateur and professional artists throughout the South Shore area and students through senior citizens are welcome. Membership applications will be available at the Show.

The Quincy Art Association meets each month and features professional demonstrators. It also makes available to its members an open work shop at the Paglierani Art Studio.

The association recently exhibited at the City Hall Parking Lot and their many other exhibits include the Mayor's Office, Thomas Crane Library Gallery, South Shore Plaza, Brockton Art Center and local cinemas and banks.

2 From Quincy Receive Rochester Degrees

Two Quincy youths were among more than 2,300 undergraduates and graduate students awarded degrees recently at the 123rd commencement exercises at the

11 New Locations For Operation ID Engravers

Eleven new locations where Quincy residents can borrow engraving equipment at no cost as part of the anti-theft "Operation Identification" have been announced by the Quincy Police Department.

The electric engravers are used to imprint social security numbers on valuables, making them less susceptible to theft. The locations are:

Fred Tolman Insurance Agency, 117 Washington St.; Richard D. Chase and Co., Inc., 1372 Hancock St.; Whalen Real Estate, 1 Elm Ave., Wollaston;

Arthur H. Swan Real Estate, 507 Hancock St., Wollaston; Effy's Variety Store, 203 East Squantum St., North Quincy; President's Real Estate, 44 Billings Rd., Norfolk Downs; Riley and Rielly Insurance, 380 Sea St., Adam's Shore; Adams Shore Library, Sea St.; Mrs. Margaret Hagerty, 5 Bittern Rd., Adam's Shore; Mr. Peter Gacicia, 20 Stanley Circle, South Quincy; Thomson Real Estate, 106 Franklin St., South Quincy.

For further information, contact the Quincy Police Department at 479-1212, Extension 378.

3 Quincy Residents Receive Wentworth Technology Degrees

Three Quincy residents were among 135 seniors receiving bachelor of science degrees recently at the second commencement of the Wentworth College of Technology at Hynes Civic Auditorium.

They are Peter E. Lannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lannon of 836 Sea St.; John M. O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Robbins of 151 Monroe Rd.; and Stephen P. Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shaw of 53 Mears Ave.

Their degrees were in engineering technology.

Wentworth College of Technology, founded in 1970, is a sister institution of Wentworth Institute.

Denvir Requests Germantown Polling Place Change

A change in the polling place for Precinct 9 in Ward 1 [Germantown], has been requested by Robert F. Denvir, candidate for the City Council from Ward 1.

In a letter to City Clerk John Gillis, Denvir suggested the new senior housing development at 73 Bicknell St., would be the logical place to have the polling place.

Pointing out its easy accessibility to all residents of the area, Denvir also commented that "this would be a very considerate gesture for the city to make to its elderly citizens who are among the most conscientious in exercising their franchise to vote".

Denvir also said that this would relieve the school facilities in Germantown which are tied up necessarily two days of every year for elections.

MONEY TALKS

Allowance Seldom Success As A Salary

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Hallowbrook
8-4 Wednesdays 9-7:30 Thursdays

A New York University professor of education concludes, after a three-year study of 8- and 11-year-olds, that an allowance is seldom a success as a salary or as a means of achieving cooperation. "Good behavior, good grades, or a helpful attitude cannot realistically be tied in with money," writes Judith Ehre Krames after analyzing attitudes of youngsters and their parents concerning allowance patterns.

Among the 8-year-olds, 85% received small allowances regularly and were seldom required to do chores. Most of the 11-year-olds got regular and more strictly maintained allowances that almost always involved doing chores. Children admitted in theory that they should share responsibilities; in practice, however, they tended to resent these obligations—the older the child, the more articulate his resentment.

Parents said they give allowances to help the child learn the value of money, to enable him to buy things for himself, and to help him become independent. Only a few said, "To pay him for doing chores." On the other hand, a vast majority of parents insisted on a direct relationship between the children's missions accomplished and the money received. Many parents doubted, however, that this teaches children to cooperate or helps them learn the value of money.

The development of a child's spirit of cooperation and his sense of responsibility to his family is a matter that, apparently, is poorly related to money incentives.

Dr. Krames thinks that age 8 is soon enough to start a regular allowance. It is our opinion that in some families, particularly those with older children, the younger ones may display an earlier need to handle money. By five or six, some children reflect a wish to buy little things—whatever five or ten cents a week may purchase.

In these early expenditures, the youngster is given an opportunity to face up to problems of choice. He must weigh and consider before making his decision. Lots of mistakes will be made before a child knows how to handle money wisely, and it is just as well that these mistakes involve items like toy soldiers and bubble gum—and not living-room and bedroom suites.

It takes patience and love on the part of parents, who realize how hard it is to hang on to the money they earn, to see their children making foolish purchases. The 8-year-old who proudly presents her parents on their wedding anniversary with a cheap, gaudy piece of statuary for which she has saved will be warmly appreciated—though her gift may be painful to look at.

Even the young friend who borrows a dime or quarter from a child and neglects to return it is contributing to the child's education with respect to the care and handling of money.

Brett Asks MDC Police Step Up Wollaston Beach Patrols

A call for more frequent police patrols of Wollaston Beach has been voiced by Rep. Joseph E. Brett in a letter to the MDC.

Brett wrote, in a letter to Captain Peter D. Bille, MDC Police Old Colony Division, that he is "being bombarded with complaints from neighbors along Quincy Shore Dr. about the amount of drinking and the disposal of containers and other refuse which is going on along Wollaston Beach."

He said that more police, especially during evening hours "might serve as a deterrent to the current practices."

SUSAN PARKER

Susan Parker Receives NU Degree

Susan E. Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Henry Parker of 90 Oakland Ave., Wollaston has been awarded a bachelor of arts degree in history from the College of Liberal Arts at Northeastern University.

A Dean's List student and active in numerous university affairs, Miss Parker was selected for the 1972-1973 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges".

During her cooperative education work experience, Miss Parker taught three grade levels of history at Quincy High School and also served as assistant to the Dean of Girls there. The five-year cooperative education program at Northeastern is comprised of alternating periods of classroom study and full-time work related to the student's major field of study.

A member of the Academy, the College of Liberal Arts honor society, Miss Parker did original research in Afro-American History, indexing the first black newspaper which will be published when completed.

In addition to her academic achievements, Miss Parker was also selected "Winter 'Rival Queen" in her junior year and is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority, serving as secretary for two years.

Active in student affairs, she was a three-year member of the Student Council, corresponding secretary of the student body, and executive officer of her class.

Miss Parker was a member of numerous service committees including the Student Council Education Reform Committee, Student Lawyer Program Committee, Women's Committee, Woman of the Year Committee, and Partners in Academic Life Awards Committee.

She will be attending Northeastern's Graduate School of Law in the fall.

● Track

North Relay Team Best

North Quincy's winter track team tied for the Greater Boston League championship and featured one of the outstanding relay teams in the state.

The quartet set a number of records and this spring, although Bob Gentry's final Raider team had only a mediocre record, the relay team continued to shine and add another record to its list.

"Thanks to four seniors, this season's relay team was the finest in the school's history," Assistant Coach Lou Tozzi said. "Starting during the winter, upon entering the new Greater Boston League indoors, North consistently produced record breaking performances."

The winter quartet consisted of seniors Lee Watkins, Bob McCormack, Jack Pomerole and anchor man Jack Reynolds.

In the third annual state Coaches Meet last winter at Northeastern, the quartet placed second in the open competition, losing by just 3/10 of a second to powerful Rindge Tech.

North would certainly have won if it wasn't for a bad handoff which nearly resulted in a drop of the baton.

Following this meet the boys enjoyed an unbeaten season in GBL competition at the Medford cage. They established a record of 2:47.2, two seconds faster than any other effort during the season.

The boys also set many individual records, Watkins doing the 50-yard dash in 5.8, a school record, McCormack the 1000-yard run in 2:25, a league record, and a 4:42 mile, another league mark; Reynolds six-feet for a record in the high jump, 6.1 in the high hurdles and 34.3 in the 300-yard run, also school records. Pomerole did not set any individual records but won every dual meet except one. Also, Reynolds and McCormack were GBL individual champions and Watkins and Pomerole third place finishers in the all-league meet.

Spring records continued within the reach of the quartet until Reynolds suffered a pulled hamstring, Pomerole a foot injury and Watkins decided to play baseball, being team captain.

The boys did not participate again until the final dual meet of the season in which Watkins did the 100 in 10.5, Pomerole the 220 in 23.8, McCormack the half mile in 2:04 and Reynolds the 440 in 52.9.

The team had not been together as a unit for three months but entered the state class meet and almost unbelievably placed third in Class A. Reynolds also returned to defend his 180-yard low hurdles championship but could do only 20.8.

Next was the all-state meet at White Stadium and the quartet again broke the school record with a sparkling 1:33.8, good for seventh place in the state.

"I feel this was the most remarkable feat of the year since the boys could only practice for one week at night after work and again injuries hurt us," Tozzi said. "Coach Gentry and I feel this was the finest relay team on the South Shore and one of the top three in the state. All things considered, what these boys accomplished was remarkable."

At the recent all-sports banquet the four relay men and Tozzi presented a trophy to Gentry, who has retired after 22 years.

Heavy Rains Foul Up Legion Schedule

The heavy rains of last week threw a monkey wrench into the American Legion baseball schedules with all Morrisette and Quincy games washed out.

Morrisette, defending District 6 champion seeking its 19th district title, is 4-1 and right on the heels of Weymouth [5-0 and only winner over Morrisette].

Coach Ray Cattaneo's inexperienced pitching corps, which has done such a fine job, will be severely tested later on when the replays of rained out games start piling up.

Morrisette was scheduled to play at Milton Monday and host Weymouth in the big one Tuesday night. Friday the champs will entertain Randolph at 8 under the Adams Field lights, and next Monday will meet Quincy, also under the Adams Field lights.

Connie Carozzi's Quincy team has found the going rough and was 0-4 going into Tuesday waters. There are 30 lesser prizes.

● St. John's Little League Cards Win Playoffs

By PUTNAM BORDEN

The Cardinals, National League champs, defeated the White Sox, American League titlists, in two straight games to quickly wrap up the St. John's Little League playoffs.

The Cardinals won the opener, 6-1, as they staged a four-run rally in the fifth inning, sparked by Jim Belmonte's timely hit, after being held in check for four innings by Jeff Connerty.

The second game was no contest as the Cardinals romped, 14-2. They clinched the decision in the early innings thanks to the hitting of Ed Tinney, Jeff McGrail, Belmonte and Danny Flannery. The winners scored 12 runs in the first two innings.

Mike O'Donnell came in from the outfield to catch for the White Sox and turned in an outstanding job.

The season ended with the annual all-star game in which the National Leaguers coasted, 14-0, over the American Leaguers as they scored four runs in the first, eight in the fifth and two in the seventh.

Playing for the National League stars were McGrail, Tinney and Belmonte of the Cardinals; Jeff Marcel, Gary Young and Bob Ciardi of the Braves; Bill Dracchio, Bill Chiavaroli and Jimmy Mullarky of the Cubs; Ron Prezioso, Joe Murphy and Greg McDonald of the Dodgers; Mike Fantasia, Kevin Gallo and John Roche of the Giants.

The American League stars included Connerty, Oriel Perreault and Mike O'Donnell of The White Sox; Charles Thorley, Joe Weeks and Rich Ryan of the Tigers; Danny Killilea, Jimmy MacKenzie and Joe Breen of the Red Sox; Shawn Gillis, Bob Dunn and Johnny Norton of the Yankees; John Morris, Rich McGilvray and Scott Riley of the Angels.

Awards went to Tinney, outstanding pitcher; Roche and Prezioso, best hitters; Breen, outstanding fielder, and Gallo and Morris, best all-around players.

Dave King Homer Gives Keohane's Upset Win

Dave King belted a homer in the sixth and last inning Sunday to give Keohane's an upset 2-1 victory over league-leading Gino's in Quincy Junior League play.

Keohane's went ahead in the second with a run on two throwing errors but Gino's tied it up in the fifth on a walk, a fielder's choice and a single.

Andy Carrera was the winning pitcher for Keohane's.

The heavy rains of last week washed out the Quincy Softball League games and it was hoped to resume inter-league play this week.

The league which has 20 teams comprising 400 players, is providing plenty of action four nights a week at Rotary Field and Welcome Young Park.

Going into this week's games Wells Grille led the National League East with a 12-1 record, Barry's Ship Haven had a slim lead over Alumni Cafe in the National League West with a 9-2 mark to 8-3 for Alumni; Marcel Corp. led the American League East with 9-1 and A & T Movers had a big lead in the American League West with a 10-0 record.

Tonight [Thursday] Alumni plays McInnis Corp. at 6:30 and Howard Johnson meets Jonathan's at 7:45 at Welcome Young, while County Line faces A & T Movers at 6:30, Hofbrau plays Barry's Deli at 7:45 and St. Catherine's takes on Pagies at 9 at Rotary.

31 City Playgrounds To Open Thursday

The Quincy Recreation Department announces that its 31 playgrounds will open July 5, 1973 for an eight-week period.

Recreation Director William F. Ryan said each playground will be staffed with two leaders from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Each playground will offer a wide range of activities, including leagues of baseball, basketball, softball, trips, family evenings, special events, games and other sports.

In addition to the regular staff leaders, playground specialists will visit each area on a regular weekly schedule offering instruction in golf, archery, tennis, nature study, arts and crafts, music, drama and dance. City-wide tournaments, performances and exhibits climax each of these activities.

Playground registration is offered at the following locations:

Ward 1 - Faxon Field behind the Voc-Tech, Whitwell, Baker, Bayside, Harborview, LaBreaque, Quarterdeck, Snug Harbor, Heron Rd and Perkins.

Ward 2 - Elm St., Fore River, Pollard and Pond St.

Ward 3 - Faxon Park, Bradford, Columbia and Kincaide.

Ward 4 - Shea Rink [Curry Field] and O'Rourke.

Ward 5 - Forbes Hill, Stoney Brae, Wollaston, Mass Fields, Beechwood, Knoll and Merrymount Park located on Fenno St.

Ward 6 - Myles Standish, Atlantic, Montclair, Squantum and Welcome Young on Sagamore St.

Playground leaders underwent a two-day training institute Monday and Tuesday at the Quincy Vocational Technical School and Faxon Field in preparation for the 1973 summer playground season.

Leaders, under the direction of Mr. Charles L. Alongi Jr., Assistant Director of Recreation and Institute Director, participated in sessions dealing with first-aid, playground safety, arts and crafts, music, drama, tennis, archery, golf, nature study, officiating, group dynamics, leadership, training, tournament and league organization, games and relays in addition to other important sessions.

Babe Ruth A.L. All-Stars Defeat Hyde Park, 11-7

The Quincy Babe Ruth League's American League

all-stars survived the first round of the district playoffs Sunday and yesterday [Wednesday] were to play either Roxbury or the North End.

The Quincy club defeated Hyde Park, 11-7, at Hyde Park on Sunday to advance.

Quincy's National League all-stars were not as fortunate as they dropped a 2-0 decision to Weymouth, despite Mike Kelly's two-hit pitching. Kelly struck out 10 and walked only two, both of whom scored on errors.

Quincy had five hits, one each by Dave Perdios, Mark DeLuca, Rich Lucier, Mike Holleran and Steve Martielli.

● Quincy Youth Hockey Quincy Squire Majors Down Hingham 6-3

The Quincy Squire Majors downed Hingham, 6-3, in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league contest with Robbie Zanardelli collecting a pair of goals and Mike Doherty a goal and an assist.

Tommy Doherty, Johnny Toland and Chuckie Marshall also scored goals with assists going to Mike Quigg, John Carthy, Joey Rathgeb, Bobby Beiers and Tommy Heffernan.

Despite fine goaltending by Tommy Corliss and Andrew Shannon, the Quincy Squire Minors bowed to Hyde Park, 3-1. Kevin Chase had the lone Quincy goal, unassisted.

Both Squire teams are in action tomorrow night [Friday] with the Majors meeting Scituate at 9:05 p.m. and the Minors playing Columbia at 7:55 p.m., both on Rink C, Hingham Arena.

Quincy Mite Majors Bomb Bridgewater, 11-6

Dave Allen had the three-goal hat-trick as the Quincy Mite Majors bombed Bridgewater, 11-6, in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game at Hingham Arena.

The Quincy Mite Minors bowed to Hingham, 8-1, with Scott Messina getting the goal assisted by Billy Hughes and Danny Kelly.

The Majors contest was a scorers' delight.

Dwayne Wilcox and Paul Egan had two goals and three assists apiece; Bobby Lynch had two goals and an assist; Chuckie Duffy had a goal and an assist.

Rick Reardon also had a goal and Tommy Murphy, Jack Gabriel and Kevin Tunney drew assists.

Craig, Reinhardt Pace Pee Wee Minors In Romp

Robbie Craig and Dickie Reinhardt were the big scoring guns with two goals each as the Quincy Pee Wee Minors walloped the Scituate Whalers, 7-1, in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

Craig also had two assists.

Freddie Palmer, George Mackey and Scott Richardson got the other goals while Mark Messina and Richardson had two assists and Robbie McHugh, Mike McSweeney, Mike Barry, Tommy Mullin and Paul McGrath one each.

McGrath Scores To Give Bantam Majors 1-0 Win

Mike McGrath tucked a pass from John Cooney into the net with a minute and a half to play [June 29] to give the Quincy Bantam Majors a 1-0 victory over Hyde Park in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

Jeff Nord chalked up the shutout for Quincy, which was winning its second game in a row after an opening loss.

The two Quincy teams in the league, the Majors and the Minors, play each other Monday [July 9] at 7:15 p.m. on Rink A, Hingham Arena.

Sailing Program Underway

The Quincy Recreation Department's award winning Boating and Sailing Program will get underway Thursday.

Joseph E. Burke, Chairman of the Park-Recreation Board said instructional classes will be offered 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Mondays through Fridays for youths who have passed a qualifying swim test and are between the ages of 8 and 16.

Classes on Rowing and Sailing from beginner to advanced levels will continue for an eight week period during July and August.

The program emphasis continues to be on the importance of safe boating and the need of people of all ages to acquire and refine basic skills in this increasingly popular pastime. The Red Cross approved course deals with boat nomenclature, knot tying, rowing, launching; and docking.

6 Employees Retire At Quincy Post Office

Six Quincy Post Office workers, a supervisor, four clerks and a carrier, retired Saturday under a program that makes it advantageous for employees with 30 years service to take retirement.

They are:

Aldo O. Napolitano of Canton, a veteran of 34 years in the Postal Service who became Quincy supervisor in 1967.

Gilbert L. Woodworth of 132 Phillips St., Wollaston, who was window clerk in the Wollaston branch for 23 years before becoming Wholesale Stamp Clerk in Quincy four years ago.

Milton Dunstan of Hanson, a postal service employee for about 43 years, most recently as Distribution and Dispatcher of Mails in Quincy.

Joseph M. Meyer of Milton, who has been associated with the Quincy Post Office for 30 years, lately as Distribution and Postage-Due Clerk.

Joseph Odermatt of 111 Darrow St., Quincy, a Postal Service worker for 31 years, the last 20 in Quincy.

William McWhinnie of 141 Willow St., Wollaston, who worked in the Foreign Section of the GPO for 13 years before coming to Quincy as a carrier 17 years ago.

Awards Presented At Central

Dana Cetin and Meredith Stone recently were given the American Legion Scholastic Awards as the boy and girl at Central Junior High School who have been outstanding in scholarship, courage, honor and service to the school.

The awards were presented by Robert Eng of the Quincy Legion Post at the school's final assembly for ninth graders.

The Principal's Awards for outstanding contributions to the school went to Kevin Bradley, Andrew Catino, Charles Clarke, Glenn David, Stephen Gutro, Dominic Ignagni, Paul Kellner, Anthony Poole, David Ray, Marion Rideout, Carolyn Vincent and Francis Yee.

Thomas Neary won the Citizenship Award, instituted eight years ago by John Walsh, principal of North Quincy High School in recognition of a student's work as part of his or her annual Step into Society.

A professional of ninth grade students, marshalled by Mario Casali and Joseph Ryan, brought the school year to a close.

Martha Colby, the student body president, conducted the proceedings, which included selections by the Madrigal Singers, the Chapel Choir and the band under the direction of Mrs. Catherine Carnabucci and Bernard Goldstein.

Control Study Bill In Congress

A Public Works appropriations bill that includes $121,000 in federal funds for the Quincy Coastal Streams Flood Control has been sent to the floor of Congress.

The Fiscal Year 1974 Public Works appropriations legislation was approved by the House Appropriations Committee last week.

The allotment is designed to continue a study on the advisability of improvements for flood control and allied purposes on Furnace Brook, Hayward Creek and Town Brook, as well as all coastal streams within the City of Quincy.

According to Congressmen James A. Burke, the action is another step in implementing a full-scale flood control project in Quincy.

Mrs. Nelson Saphir To Run For Mayor

A woman will challenge Mayor Walter Hannon in his re-election bid.

Mrs. Nelson R. Saphir of 921 East Squantum St., North Quincy, was expected to officially announce her candidacy at a press conference Wednesday afternoon.

There had been long speculation that she would step into the political ring.

Mrs. Saphir is a former member of the Quincy Conservation Commission and currently heads S.O. S. [Save Our Shores] conservation organization. She has been active in a number of civic endeavors.

Her husband is an internist and a member of the Quincy City Hospital staff.

Two other candidates—including another woman—have also entered the political picture.

Mrs. Helen M. McDonnell of 249 Newbury St., second cousin to former City Councillors Thomas and George McDonald and third cousin to another ex-Councillor, George B.

May Be Too Late

New 6-Ward Plan Would Shift Number Of Voting Precincts

By TOM HENSHAW

The City of Quincy, faced with a court fight over its ward alignments, has a new six-ward redistricting plan under study, put together by City Councillor John J. Quinn.

The Quinn Plan was due to be taken up last night [Wednesday] by the City Council's Redistricting Committee, headed by Quinn, who envisioned final passage by the Council next Monday or Tuesday.

But City Solicitor Richard J. McCormick said it probably can't be done.

"I doubt if the city can, under state law, pass a plan at this late date," he said. "Even if the plan does not require a charter change, the state still tells the city the time it can do it."

Quincy is being sued to redistrict its wards under the "one man, one vote" principle of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution or elect all nine of its City Councillors on an at-large basis in November.

The city must answer the suit by about July 19.

Quinn's redistricting plan would retain the current six ward setup in keeping with the city's Plan A Charter. But it would correct the current imbalance by shifting nine of the city's 39 precincts into different wards.

"Figuring the population of Quincy at 89,598," said Quinn, "the ideal ward would have 14,933 people."

"Under this plan the largest ward would have 16,084 people and the smallest would have 13,314 people. That's well within the 16.4 per cent difference permitted by the Supreme Court.

"Also the smallest ward [a new Ward 3 including a large part of the old Ward 1 and a section of old Ward 4] has the highest potential for expansion with new apartment buildings going up within its boundaries."

"The plan also retains the present precinct lines so that people will not be confused by changes in polling places. The voting booth may have a different label but it would be in the same place."

Under Quinn's proposal, the voters of Quincy would be notified of the new ward boundaries by publication of maps in local newspapers.

Quinn said that once his committee approves his redistricting plan he feels confident that it would be accepted by the City Council, possibly at a special meeting early next week.

The Redistricting Committee is made up of Quinn, Councillor Edward S. Graham of Ward 1, Councillor William D. Delahunt of Ward 5, City Solicitor

Cmdr Stratton Wants To Return To Quincy And Teach School

By PAUL FELDMAN

"After two more years in the Navy, I would like to come back to Quincy and teach school," says ex-POW Navy Cmdr. Richard Stratton.

He made the disclosure in a July 4 interview with the Quincy Sun.

"My hometown was the root of whatever strength I had to resist the enemy and stay alive" he said after marching with local dignitaries in the annual Squantum and Merrymount Independence Day Parades.

Cmdr. Stratton, a graduate of the Quincy School system, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stratton of 54

Bowdoin St., North Quincy. He was in Quincy for the first time since being released.

"I'm not having any problems readjusting," Stratton said. "We knew what was going on in America through our secret communications system. We pumped the new prisoners dry, about what was happening at home. And since I've been back, my wife has been outstanding. She has held the family together."

Stratton and his wife, Alice, have three boys.

Stratton appeared to be in strong physical health and was extremely enthusiastic and outgoing at the two parades. His arm-waving and hand-shaking put the local politicians to shame. After marching the parade routes, he greeted well-wishers and participated in flag-raising ceremonies. He even signed autographs for both youngsters and adults.

In response to a question about charges being dropped against eight former POW's who may have cooperated with the North Vietnamese, Stratton said:

"All our American soldiers in Vietnam were 100 per cent true Americans. I am very happy for the boys and their dependents. We must give them the benefit of the doubt

Babies Can Now Be With Mothers Most Of Day At Quincy Hospital

Quincy City Hospital has begun a modified rooming-in program in its maternity ward under which a newborn baby is permitted to remain in its mother's room for all or part of the day.

The plan, started Monday, permits the infant to be in the mother's room from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., except during visiting hours, 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. The father is not considered a visitor.

The purpose of the program is to give parents an opportunity to share experiences as a family unit and give them confidence in their abilities to care for the baby when they leave the hospital.

because the North Vietnamese never treated two prisoners the same.

"This shows that justice is done in America through our process of judicial review."

Recalling his more than six years in a North Vietnamese prison, Stratton said, "I was beaten and tortured and even Jane Fonda can't deny that my scars aren't from an airplane crash."

However, while he still calls both, 'friends of North Vietnam', Stratton made a distinction between Jane Fonda and George McGovern. Of the Democratic Presidential nominee he said: "He prolonged the war but it is his duty and his right as a candidate to speak. I don't think he helped me but I'll fight for his right to say what he did through the system." Stratton called the North Vietnamese "impulsive liars. They distort everything. There is no more than a grain of truth in any of their statements."

Stratton, who had been absent from Quincy for almost a decade said his homecoming gave him a pleasant surprise.

"When I left, Quincy was stagnant. But now there is a 'go ahead attitude' here. I'm happy to see such a good change in the community."

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY Empty nest isn't suffering

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

"I am suffering," said my neighbor, "from the empty nest syndrome."

"Yeah?" I said, drawing nearer for a closer look at her, "What's that?"

"It's when all your kids have gone and you feel useless and unneeded."

She went on to tell me she had discovered her malady one day while sitting out on her patio in the sun reading a magazine. In the magazine was an article about middle-aged women and how useless they feel when they are no longer needed to wipe noses and be sure the dog is let out on time.

"Not until I read that article," she said, "did I realize how miserable I was. I had two kids in college and I'd been spending my days reading, shopping and going out to lunch with stimulating friends. Can you imagine? I did all those things when I should have been in bed resting my syndrome."

"Are you kidding?" I croaked. "Your syndrome will take care of itself. You don't know when you're well off."

She rose on one middle-aged elbow and gave me a long look.

"Ya' mean it?" she said. "Hell, yes," I said. "Just because you don't have a kid around the house who can count to a thousand and then ask if you want to hear it backwards — that doesn't mean you can't find joy elsewhere. You can compensate for those unforgettable mornings when you got up at six-thirty to pour bowls of sugar puffs and pack lunches of peanut butter sandwiches."

"Although those tender moments are gone forever, you could force yourself to stay in bed and read the editorials. You could get up when you want and take a bubble bath. It might be hard at first, but try."

She brightened somewhat and blinked back a tear.

"Then I'm not washed up?" she said.

"Stop talking like a detergent commercial," I told her, "and start identifying with the one that says 'You've only just begun.' Now's your chance to start calling your husband by his first name again instead of referring to him as your father."

She smiled. I think she was trying to remember it.

"Bill," she said softly. "His name is Bill."

I think she's going to pull through.

WASHINGTON — The new relationship between the Soviet Union and the United States is not as rosy as the official statements proclaim.

Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev put it this way: "To live at peace, we must trust each other. And to trust each other, we must know each other better." But back in Moscow, Brezhnev isn't the sole spokesman of Soviet policy.

The defense minister, Marshal Andrei Grechko, is the leader of a more hostile, more militaristic faction. This faction still talks about the incompatibility of Communism and capitalism.

More than a year ago, Grechko led the opposition to the first summit meeting. He tried to block the invitation to President Nixon to come to Moscow.

He lost the showdown inside the Kremlin. Yet he remained so powerful that he wasn't purged but promoted. He was made a member of the ruling politburo, where he has continued to hue to a hard line.

Americans who met Grechko in Moscow found him friendly but formidable. He had a hearty personality but a sinister sense of humor.

During the reception at the Moscow airport, for example, he called the attention of President Nixon to the Soviet Honor Guard standing stiffly at attention in front of the big jets. Then, with a guttural laugh, he suggested that the big engines, if they should be turned on, would suck the soldiers through the jet burners and chew them to pieces.

Only Grechko thought it was funny. But what Grechko thinks, according to intelligence reports, is important in the Kremlin.

Mitchell's Line: The next star of the Senate Watergate hearings will be former Attorney General John Mitchell.

At one point in the Watergate cover-up, according to White House sources, he was supposed to be the scapegoat. The White House odd couple, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, wanted to blame Mitchell and his deputy, Jeb Magruder, for the Watergate scandal.

Ehrlichman even suggested that Mitchell should plead mental instability. Ehrlichman pointed out that Mitchell had been under severe strain worrying about his wife Martha and his legal problems. Mitchell had spoken to President Nixon, for example, about his troubles with Martha.

When Mitchell gets his turn on the witness stand, however, he intends to turn the tables on Haldeman and Ehrlichman. We have obtained a copy of the confidential summary of what Mitchell has told the Senate investigators.

In the language of the investigators, Mitchell said his "advice was sought throughout concerning the formation of the Committee to Re-Elect the President but Haldeman was the man at the White House closest to the political scene."

Mitchell will admit, according to the summary, that he "went along" with paying off the Watergate defendants "rather than risk having other activities exposed before the election." Mitchell knew, for example, that Watergate ring leaders G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt had burglarized the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Mitchell felt that "payments should be made so as not to further embarrass the campaign."

Richly Rewarding: Some of the Watergate cash has been traced back to William Liedtke, the president of Pennzoil. All told, he stuffed $700,000 in cash and negotiable securities into a suitcase in Houston. The suitcase was flown to Washington in a Pennzoil plane and delivered in the dark of night to President Nixon's campaign headquarters. No receipt was asked and none was given.

Pennzoil happens to own United Gas Pipeline and other gas-producing affiliates, which are regulated by the Federal Power Commission. Senate investigators have learned that Liedtke, the Pennzoil president, actually interviewed Rush Moody Jr. and offered him the job of federal power commissioner. Then, in July 1971, President Nixon appointed Moody, believe it or not, after the Pennzoil president had approved him.

Inside the Federal Power Commission, Moody has just authorized a report which would set the stage for gas price increases more than 70 per cent. In effect, Moody's proposal would deregulate natural gas. The benefits for Pennzoil would be far greater than the $700,000 that Liedtke collected for the Nixon campaign. It looks suspiciously as if the Nixon Administration is rewarding campaign contributors with government favors.

Waving Booze Rule: The Watergate revelations haven't deterred the bureaucrats. They haven't let the grim news interfere with their normal festivities. At the General Services Administration, for example, employees are preparing a five-hour marathon of eating and drinking to celebrate the appointment of Arthur Sampson as their new boss. Sampson, however, isn't new; he has been the acting chief for a year.

GSA officials, meanwhile, should have little trouble toasting their new boss with booze even though it is against government regulations to serve alcohol in a government building. The official who can waive the anti-booze rule is — who else — Arthur Sampson.

HN Post Wins 2nd Place State Honors For Service

Houghs Neck Legion Post has won second place honors in Massachusetts for community service for 1972-73.

The Post will receive a permanent plaque, a banner, and will be second in the parade at the State Convention in Springfield, July 14.

Taking part in the parade will be Ernest Deveau, chairman of community service for both Houghs Neck Post and Norfolk County; Mary Timcoe, historian, who prepared the community service record of accomplishments; and Commander Willard J. Timcoe.

The community service books were judged by members of the State Community Service Committee which met recently at the Houghs Neck Post where they were guests at a luncheon served by women Legion members.

First member in the competition

Sunbeams

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Two bonnets are in Quincy's political ring and, hooray for the girls. Things may liven up after all.

Mrs. Nelson R. Saphir of East Squantum St. is running for Mayor and Mrs. Helen M. [McDonald] McDonnell of Newbury Ave., is a candidate for city council at-large.

Mrs. Saphir will try to do what no woman has ever done since Quincy became a city in 1888.

And Mrs. McDonnell will try to become only the second woman in Quincy's history to be elected to the City Council. The only one: Mrs. Edna B. Austin who retired undefeated in 1959 after 15 years distinguished service to the city.

So far no male big-name has felt like squaring off against Mayor Walter Hannon who after a shaky start has really come on strong and would be a tough man for anyone to unseat this year. [The tax rate drop didn't hurt, either].

How the two girls make out only time will tell. But at least they'll keep the boys on their toes.

Especially when you have to remember that there are more registered women voters in Quincy than there are men voters.

THE GRANITE RAILWAY incline-Quincy's historic mess-has been entered in the National Register of Historic Places. It would be better listed under "Places Not Worth Looking At".

The railway, built in 1826 to haul Quincy granite for the Bunker Hill Monument is considered the first commercial "railroad" in the U.S.

But the site has long been a disgrace. The tracks rusted away and overgrown with weeds and brush.

Late City Historian William Edwards used to say: "I'm ashamed to bring tourists up there."

It's too bad. It could be a nice spot to intercept tourists on their way to the Plymouth Rock and the Cape.

But the way it looks today, it's better forgotten. It should hide from tourists.

THUMBING through the 1971 annual City Report, came across a photo of John Volpe cutting the ribbon at the opening of the Wollaston MBTA station. And among the smiling faces looking on: former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell. What a difference a couple of years make.

SUDDEN THOUGHT: If motorcycles didn't make the noise they do, how many guys riding them now would still ride them? And if every car on the road made as much noise as a motorcycle does, you could probably "hear" Earth on Mars.

SPEAKING of cars, the ALA offers several tips on conserving gasoline. One of the easiest: Don't drive at top speeds on highways. If the speed limit is 60 miles per hour, slow down to 50. Your gas mileage will increase by better than 10 percent.

MOST PEOPLE WHO like to pick blueberries have to travel a distance to do it. But not William O'Connell, former executive vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce. Bill just steps out into his Putnam St., Quincy yard. And there they are-cultivated bushes loaded with luscious berries.

DROPOUT: Adeline Pompeo has decided not to run for councillor at-large "because of illness". She says she might give it a try two years hence. She has nomination papers out now, but says she will not file them.

LONG DISTANCE telephone calling seems to be replacing letter writing and personal visits, according to an A.T. & T. survey that found:

The percentage of those surveyed who wrote letters decreased from 79 percent in 1962 to 67 percent in 1972. During the same period, calls to out-of-town relatives increased from 59 to 63 percent. [If postal rates keep going up it'll soon be cheaper to phone than write].

WHILE VISITING HOME last week, ex-POW Cmdr. Richard Stratton confided to Quincy Sun newsmen Paul Feldman he would like to return in a couple of years and become a school teacher in Quincy. Coincidentally, he and School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon were classmates at North Quincy High School back in the late 1940's.

They renewed acquaintance during the visit.

JACK SILVERSTEIN, the North Quincy druggist, author, jogger, etc., wonders if you heard about the man who is so short he's always complaining that he's the last one to know when it's raining.

Atty. Vincent Banks Notary Public

Atty. Vincent M. Banks, 1025 Hancock St., Quincy, has announced State Secretary John F. X. Davoren. The term will expire in seven years.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Q - I recently ordered a new car. Last week the dealer called me and said that in order for me to get my car I will have to pay an additional $200. At the time I ordered the car I signed a contract. When the salesman called me, he told me that it was just an "order". What should I do?

A - This is a sales tactic known as "bushing". The purpose is to keep the customer tied to the market and unable to shop around. Any person who finds himself being "bushed" should walk out of the dealership and refuse to do further business.

Q - Recently I purchased a freezer-the salesman explained to me that I would save one-third off regular retail food prices by signing up for his food package deal. I found out yesterday that I could have bought the same freezer for much less. In addition the food is a disappointment. Is this a common situation?

A - Yes. Consumers should remember that meat can be bought in bulk from meat companies that do not require their customers to buy a freezer. Families that buy from these companies can save on their food budget and still ensure some control over the quality of the meat. Any consumers interested in subscribing to a food freezer plan should check into other prices and other means of bulk food buying before signing a contract.

Q - Recently I was looking at "motor home" campers. The dealer used a sales pitch which I had not heard before in relation to transportation vehicles. He told me that the camper would be a "good investment" since I could rent it and in that way get my money back, as well as receive additional income. Is this common for this type of situation?

A - Recently we have received complaints from people who have bought campers on this basis and then have been unable to rent them. In certain cases a vehicle could not have been used until certain repairs had been made. The Consumer Protection Division urges consumers that even honest dealers cannot guarantee the rental of a camper.

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'If Only'

"If wishes were horses beggars could ride." "If only" ... is a very simple solution to what usually is a complex problem.

For instance ... a man's business fails. He says ... "IF ONLY I had had more customers." Sounds like a reasonable conclusion ... but it says nothing about what he did or didn't do to get more customers ... nothing about his competition ... his over-head ... his management of the business. "If only ..."

Again ... Jack has a drink problem which is destroying his marriage. (It usually does). Jane, his wife kept saying ... "IF ONLY Jack would stop drinking, everything would be all right." But he hasn't. "If only ..."

"IF ONLY her mother had stayed in Arizona instead of returning with us to Boston" ... said Robert. "Just couldn't seem to keep her out of our lives ... she really ruined our marriage." "If only ..."

There's not very much logic in "if only" conclusions. They're like the wishes which don't turn into horses. They leave the beggars without a ride. The "If only" world is fairyland ... the make believe world.

Most people indulge themselves in some degree of "if only" fantasies. Some of this is good ... healthy and normal. Some such dreams have been converted into reality.

But ... there are other ways to cope with "if only" situations. One is just to ACCEPT THE SITUATION ... without giving it the "if only" treatment. Just accept the alcoholic husband ... the dominating wife ... the boy on drugs ... the poor housekeeping which many men abhor ... the lazy woman who can't get up in the mornings ... the always tired wife who has to go to bed early ... the silence of one or the other partner ... Just accept these conditions without murmur or complaint. Just count that if you endure you'll "get your reward in heaven". Not many people are willing to settle for this in their "if only" situations that they want changed.

I think a better solution is to NEGOTIATE WITH YOUR PARTNER ... talk through the feelings on both sides ... state clearly your position ... what you can accept and what you can't. State your reasons. For example ... TAKE HOUSEKEEPING. If a husband is continually bugged by shoddy conditions ... clutter and disorder, let him gently but firmly talk with his wife, stating his feelings. Listen to her reasons for the clutter. Maybe she needs shelves or space. Maybe she's trying to get a message across to the family that each member must do his/her part. Let the dialogue run until a solution is reached. That works better than dreamy "if only" solutions. Rather than the "make believe" world, this solution calls for action.

There are relationships which have deteriorated to the point of no return. Neither the "if only" wishes ... nor the efforts at dialogue any longer will work. Some people are ... or become incompatible. They may both be very fine people individually ... but just can't yield enough of their attitudes ... habits ... ways to live with this particular person. Often this is very painful to each party ... may be disturbing to each partner and the children. Wisdom may dictate that they start new lives ... individually ... using what they've learned from each other ... even to remaining friends. This is better than continuing an "if only" kind of life.

Redistricting:

'Better Late Than Never'

Editor, Quincy Sun:

By openly discussing redistricting, at last the Quincy City Council has begun to realize some responsibility to its electorate. Tho' late, better late than never.

Six years ago, over 300 voters signed a petition. A nucleus of that group [Wollaston Hill Rezoning Committee] filled the Council Chambers time after time. They were disregarded as a "mere handful of people" by their Ward 5 representative.

The building permit which they'd opposed was finally granted surreptitiously on a New Year's Eve afternoon in a Boston Court. A monstrous building now stands as a monument to money-grubbing greed. Three hundred people had no worth. Apathy is not at fault. Rather, it's the tyranny of a ruling clique of incompetent public servants. Once entrenched, they use executive sessions, or unanimity without discussion, to cloak their actions. Thus public participation for the common good is effectively discouraged.

Government exists for the people, not for the promotion of politicians. Citizenship is the responsibility of each adult American. It has been shirked, but the example set by our leaders on every level, by both parties, is deplorable.

Each one of us is guilty for not recognizing that peace, honor and justice are indivisible entities. They cannot be bought, nor extended on platitudinous platforms for grabs. Responsible steps in citizenship must be taken regularly, starting from home, to county, to state and to nation.

Thank you, Douglas Randall, for showing the way.

Today's Women

FITZGERALD FACES - Bold eyes, skinny brows, a black beauty mark burgeoning on the cheek. Red lips in full focus, soft waves, ivory skin, a turbaned head...these are the Fitzgerald Faces, fashioned after heroines of F. Scott Fitzgerald's books and revived for women of the '70s who want some of the '20s "Great Gatsby" romance in their own lives, a bit of Daisy Buchanan in their souls. All the looks here interpreted by Charles Revson of Revlon.

THINK PRETTY

Fitzgerald years come of age

By PEGGY WALKER
Copley News Service

Those were the days when Cole Porter began the Be-guine, Valentino made abduction sheik, Jean Harlow turned platinum into gold — and even Christmas spirits were prohibited.

The days when Clara Bow was the bee's knees and rolled down stockings were the cat's meow. Sob sisters jerked tears out of newspaper readers, lovers "necked" and everybody made whoopee.

The Jazz Age. The Twenties. Hemingway wrote about Spain. Dorothy Parker ad libbed ("Three be the things I shall never obtain: envy, content or sufficient champagne") and a young romantic named F. Scott Fitzgerald wrote of "Flappers and Philosophers."

He wrote still more. "The Beautiful and the Damned," "Tender is the Night," and perhaps his most famous, "The Great Gatsby."

All parts and pieces of those times, Fitzgerald's golden years and his golden girl — Zelda Sayre of Montgomery, Ala.

We hear about the Gatsby fashion influence, country club clothes, the tennis look, flapper influences right out of the 20s. And to go with the trend, the Fitzgerald feminine face. Twenties beauty revised for the '70s.

It's here, a happy reminder of those flirtatious, romantic, feminine Fitzgerald heroines. And the beauty experts tell us how to write our own chapter in the Fitzgerald-20s escapade.

It's time to drift backward in time, beauty-wise, said Charles Revson.

"This spring I've created a look right out of F. Scott Fitzgerald because we all need romance in our lives. I want to help launch the comeback of femininity."

Revson sees the girls of spring, '73, strolling in pale floats of dresses, wearing white by day and night, swinging long ropes of pearls, bobbing their hair again.

The idea is to look like those fabled Fitzgerald women, "warm and soft and almost pastoral ... fresh faces like rose petals ... sculptured by warm blushes."

There's Daisy Buchanan of "The Great Gatsby," with "big eyes and a bright, passionate mouth."

Rosalind Connage of "This Side of Paradise," coolly beautiful and beautifully cool.

Pick your heroine, pick your look. Carry a torch, impress some Big Cheese. You could become the sheba (a sexy young woman) of your crowd.

And maybe it could all lead to a little whoopee — that's what the jazz age was all about — Fun.

PERSONAL

time to cut off checks

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

In most respects my wife is great, but we do have one problem. She is constantly writing checks and fails to enter the amount in the checkbook. When I ask her how much the check was, she'll say, "Oh, about $14." We had a joint checking account and I was always trying to second-guess the balance.

After having several checks bounce, I took her name off the joint account and gave her a checking account of her own. I'm sure you've guessed the result — more short checks. I'm a CPA and this is driving me wild. What can I do?

Dear R. L.:

Take the checkbook until your wife decides to take a memory course!

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I am taller than my boyfriend, but this was never a problem until now. I am about two inches taller than he is and have always worn shoes with very low heels. However, styles do change; and I have purchased a pair of the new platform shoes. You know, the kind with the inch sole and the higher heel.

We were invited to a party last week and I bought a new dress to go with the new shoes. Clarence (not his real name) took one look at the shoes and told me he would not go to the party with me if I wore those monstrosities. I informed him that I intended to wear the shoes and that was that! Well, I did wear them but Clarence was unhappy and ruined our evening. Who was right? Our relationship hasn't been the same since. Mary

Dear Mary:

Looks as though you will have to choose between a boyfriend and a pair of shoes. There shouldn't be much of a contest.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I met Marge in high school and we started dating during our senior year. We both attended the same college and when I was a junior we were married. Marge had decided college wasn't for her and had started to work so we didn't have any financial problems. Our problem is that Marge is the worst housekeeper in the United States.

I am now employed and am ashamed to invite anyone to our apartment. Marge never has the dishes washed or the beds made. Our living room looks like a disaster area after a flood. Marge does not work now and I feel it is her duty to keep the apartment clean and neat. When she was employed, I could understand her untidy habits. She didn't have time. But, now, she still doesn't have time. What can I do? I'm tired of cleaning the apartment and washing the dishes! Otherwise, we get along great.

No Cleaning Lady

Dear No:

Hand Marge the mop and tell her to get with it. If your relationship is good, I'm sure she will see the point.

If you have a question, write: Pat and Marilyn Davis, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

By GINA
Copley News Service

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Honor and success in career. Give adequate thought and attention to domestic area, personal experiences. Think carefully before changing residence on impulse. Channel energy to relationships with mate.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Accept responsibility, routine duties, without self-pity. Resist urge to escape and cut through obstacles or confusion. You may be overly sensitive to treatment by others — don't be too thin skinned.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — You are extremely intuitive regarding other's motives. Keep this knowledge to yourself and play a background role. Good time for study or taking up a hobby. Join organizations — make yourself useful.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — You can accomplish much by working quietly and efficiently. Be realistic and straight-forward in partnership affairs, relationships about delays on long range projects.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Curb impatience and work steadily on routine matters. Channel energy to finding outside interests. Visit ailing friends to bring cheer. This is a good time for a vacation, if possible. Personal fulfillment accentuated.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — If taking a vacation, seek seclusion and quiet instead of action places. Inspiration runs high regarding writing, publishing, communications. Ignore gossip. Check up on bills owed and pay now. Lend no money.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Approach all real estate dealings cautiously. Deal with responsible agents only. Get various bids for any proposed property improvements. Entertain away from home — possibly a dinner party in a restaurant.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Relax and become aware of the needs of others. Annoying delays, snags in communications, require patience. Don't show annoyance. Redecorating home environment is favored now. Romance is highlighted.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Concern with budget means not going on a spending spree. Keep track of all purchases. Good time to take a refresher course of study or learn a new craft or hobby. Entertain at home on weekend.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Determination and drive brings you victoriously through a challenging period. A short journey or out-of-town guests, a possibility. Make an effort to communicate with mate — reach an understanding.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Be realistic and keep up forward momentum. Study to keep up in your field. Pay close attention to business affairs. Control temper, impulse, in domestic life. Use logic.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Use your sensitivity to evaluate situation with friends, hopes and wishes. Perhaps something has run its course. A possible setback could eventually be in your favor. Evaluate behind the scenes action.

Fashions follow pattern

By JOYCE ROARK

History repeats itself, or so it seems. But what about clothing?

Bikinis were popular beach wear for women in ancient Greece. Dyed hair and wigs were common among Greek women after the Persian wars. At this same time, foundation garments were worn for figure control and support. Trousers for men date back to medieval times. T shirts were worn then too.

Some styles are characteristic of certain periods. For example, in 10th Century England, men often had hair and beards dyed blue.

Many influences reflect clothing styles. Political and religious beliefs affected clothing more than some people realize. People in England during the rule of Cromwell wore a style that is referred to as Puritan. While only the fanatics wore very sober clothing, the grayed tones of colors were in vogue. All the frills and trims were very simple in design or they were eliminated entirely.

At the same time in France, Louis XIV was ruling. Fashions for men became more frilly and ornate, until about 1700 when fashions settled down to a more conservative style. For example, petticoat breeches were replaced by full knickerbockers (better known later as knickers).

Down through history clothing styles have been changing. During the 1800s women were completely covered from neck to foot. Around 1900, women started to become active in cycling and other sports. The result was the raising of the hemline. The sight of a woman's ankles really excited men.

Those short dresses of the '20s weren't really short. They were mid-calf but for their time they were short and at first risqué.

Styles have continued to change but their newness is only relative to the period in time. For example, the empire waist style of the '50s was a makeover of the fashions worn in France in the late 1700s. The leg-of-mutton sleeve that is so popular today is a revised look of the 1890s. The topless look isn't new either. The Egyptians and Mycenaeans wore them back around 1500 B.C.

Fashion trends were summed up by James Laver when he wrote, "The same costume will be:

"Indecent ... 10 years before its time
"Shameless ... 5 years before its time
"Outre (daring) ... 1 year before its time
"Smart ... —
"Dowdy ... 1 year after its time
"Hideous ... 10 years after its time
"Ridiculous ... 20 years after its time
"Amusing ... 30 years after its time
"Quaint ... 50 years after its time
"Charming ... 70 years after its time
"Romantic ... 100 years after its time
"Beautiful ... 150 years after its time."

UNINTENTIONAL AEROSOL BOMBS

Aerosol cans are a great convenience but also a potential hazard. When you read the warning about keeping it away from heat, take it seriously, or you're liable to have an uncontrollable missile on your hands.

Empty cans still contain some gas that expands when heated and can rip the container apart. One woman who threw an empty aerosol can on a trash fire was killed when the resulting explosion hurled a sharp piece of metal, cutting her jugular vein.

To dispose of aerosol cans, give the valve one last squeeze to be sure that all the pressure is relieved, then put the can in the trash. Aerosol cans still being used should never be set on stoves or near other hot places. This includes the trunk or back seat of a car. They have been known to explode from the sun's heat and shoot right through the window or shell of the car.

Business Profiles

Gino Marini Stresses Quality

By PAUL FELDMAN

"Quality is the word that stands out in both the work of Fashion Quality Cleaners and the life of its owner, Gino Marini.

Gino opened his dry cleaning shop, located at 67 Billings Rd., more than 20 years ago.

"I stress quality in my work," he says. "At Fashion Quality Cleaners, we look for stains and remove them before we clean the clothes. You just can't throw clothes into a coin dry cleaning machine and expect the stains to come out."

Gino has been a member of the International Fabric Institute's, National Institute of Drycleaning since 1962 and is also a member of the Cleaning Plant Association.

Gino has led a 'quality' life too.

After graduating high school in Pleasantville, New York, he moved to Quincy in 1941. He served in the Army during World War II.

After the war, Gino worked as a tombstone designer. "But the granite business was dying," he says, and he soon opened the dry cleaning shop.

Gino strongly believes in being involved in civic associations. He has been the Vice Chairman of the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers for a year and a half, and is currently the President of the John Quincy Adams Club and is a member of Advisory Board of the North Quincy Businessman and Professional Association.

GINO MARINI, owner of Fashion Quality Cleaners, 67 Billings Rd., stresses quality in whatever he does.

As for hobbies, Gino says, "I love to play golf. I try to go a couple of times a week but that's not often enough. The business and the hospital keep me busy."

He has a seven handicap. Gino and his wife Marie have lived in Montclair for the past eight years. They have two children. Their son, Roger, has just graduated with a degree in Electrical Engineering from Northeastern University. He will work for a firm in Virginia. Their daughter, Darlene, 16, helps out at the shop after school and during summer vacations.

Smyth Seeks Traffic Lights At Hunt-Hancock Sts.

Ward 6 Councillor, J. Vincent Smyth, has asked the Massachusetts DPW to install traffic lights immediately at the junction of Hunt St. and Hancock St., North Quincy.

The intersection, directly across from the MBTA station, has been without pedestrian lights since the new Hancock St.

Bridge was built.

Smyth, in a letter to Commissioner Bruce Campbell, urged that the lights, which are to be installed under the federally sponsored TOPICS program, be in operation before school commences in September.

In Ward 6 July 16-19

Operation Pride will be conducted in Ward 6 July 16 through 19 from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Old furniture and other large articles normally not collected in the weekly rubbish pickups, will be hauled away during this period.

In connection with the drive, Councilor J. Vincent Smyth has asked pastors of all North Quincy churches to make note of the drive in their church bulletin or to announce it from the pulpit this Sunday.

Letters have gone out to:

Rev. William Heinrich, First Church of Squantum; Rt. Rev. Mark H. Keohane, Star of the Sea Church; Rev. Douglas M. MacIntosh, Memorial Congregational Church; Rt. Rev. Richard J. Ilawko, Sacred Heart Church; Rev. Robert E. Bosdorf, Atlantic United Methodist Church and Rev. Gary C. Santmire, Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd.

Robert Novack Receives Degree

Robert L. Novack, son of Mrs. Elizabeth L. Novack of Quincy, received a Doctor of Philosophy [Ph.D.] degree at the graduation of Boston University's Graduate School of Arts and Sciences [GRS].

Novack began his graduate work at GRS in 1965. His thesis topic was, "The Role of Solid MoO3 as a Radical Scavenger in the Mercury [3P1] Photosensitized Decomposition of Ammonia."

Novack earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in chemistry, and his Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics from Eastern Nazarene College of Quincy in 1959. In 1962, he received a Master of Arts degree in chemistry from Brandeis University in Waltham.

Bicycle Engraving Program

To Be Held On July 16-17

Due to a recent rash of bicycle thefts in Wollaston, the Planning and Research Office of the Quincy Police Department will conduct a bicycle engraving program. It will be held at the Massachusetts Field School, Rawson Rd., Wollaston between 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday, July 16-17.

The program will be open to all residents of Quincy, regardless of age or neighborhood, but will be held at this location because more than 60 bicycle thefts have occurred in this area in the last three weeks.

If you wish to participate, you must bring the following with you for the engraving:

Your bicycle.
Your Social Security number [or a parents].

Treasure Island Swimming, Lifesaving Classes Suspended

The Park-Recreation Board has temporarily suspended swimming and lifesaving classes at the Treasure Island area opposite Caddy Park, along Wollaston Beach.

"The on-going construction projects adjacent to the area have brought about potentially hazardous conditions for pedestrians, motorists and those using bicycles to cross the Greenburg Bridge over Black's Creek and it makes sense to us to move our classes from that section of the beach up to the end of Fenno St. until the construction is completed", said Chairman Joseph E. Burke.

Recreation Director William Ryan noted that many of the participants belong to the Merrymount Association which conducts a swimming program at its own private beach under the supervision of lifeguard Mark Sandler. "Non-members of the association may go to the Fenno St. swim station or any of the other 12 areas offering lessons to Beginners through Senior life saving," Ryan said.

Red Cross Certificates are issued to those who successfully complete any of the various courses.

SPECIAL AWARD - Brian McCusker received the William Delahunt Award for Best Effort from Rep. Councillor William Delahunt who is also a former director of the Junior All Stars Bowling League.

Granite Railway Listed In Register Of Historic Places

The Granite Railway Incline in West Quincy is now officially a historic place.

The site was entered recently in the National Register of Historic Places which are of such significance in American History that they are maintained by the National Park Service.

The Granite Railway Incline is the site of the first railroad in the United States, built in 1826 to haul granite from Pine Hill Quarry three miles to the Neponset River for shipment to build the Bunker Hill Monument.

About 130 feet is all that remains of the original right of way.

W. Quincy Man Receives N.J. Historical Grant

Eugene R. Sheridan of 138 Willard St., West Quincy was one of 21 recipients to receive assistance in 1972 under the New Jersey Historical Commission's Annual Grant-In-Aid Program for Research in New Jersey History. The $6,000 in grants ranged from $100 to $400.

Eligibility required that applicants be engaged "in an original research project pertaining to any aspect of the history of New Jersey, its counties or local communities".

She Shoppe Opens At 691 Adams St.

Turtlenecks, plaid suits and pleated skirts with blazers are what is in fashion for women this fall, and they are all available from Sizes 3 to 22½ at the brand-new She Shoppe at 691 Adams St., Lakin Square.

The She Shoppe is a women's specialty shop owned by Leonard Minichiello and managed by his wife, Noreen, and her sister Carol, both former Quincy residents.

Noreen is the former Noreen Marie DaRu, a graduate of Quincy High School and the Carol Nash Modeling School and a former staff member of the Quincy Sun. She resides at 38 Blanche St., in Dorchester.

Her sister, Mrs. Carol DaRu Scibetta, graduated from Randolph High School and has two children, Dawn, 6, and Derek, 3. She lives at 39 Grafton St. in Brockton.

The new shop will sell all types of women's apparel - dresses, long dresses, suits, skirts, pant suits, blouses, coordinates, slacks and blazers. "You name it, and we've got it" says Mrs. Minichiello.

A thatched roof and cylindrical dressing room are highlights of the handsomely decorated shop. The motif is a striking gold and green.

The grand opening of the She Shoppe will be from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. The shop will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. the next week.

South Shore Wholesale Tire Co. Moves Into New, Larger Quarters

It started a scant six years ago in a small store on Harvard Street in Montclair.

The other day Donald C. Delaney moved his South Shore Wholesale Tire Company to its largest and most impressive quarters yet, at 706 Adams St. in Lakin Square near the Quincy-Milton line.

And Delaney, father of five children who lives in Marshfield, can also point to branch offices in Weymouth, Stoughton and Hyannis and franchised dealers in Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

The new Quincy headquarters is housed in a building of 7,500 square feet with parking space for more than 50 cars on a lot encompassing 26,000 square feet.

DONALD C. DELANEY

The company will still be managed by John Previti, who started small and thought big himself.

He began in North Easton selling tires to his friends; then founded his own tire company operating out of his two-car garage at home.

John's Tire Company merged with South Shore in 1968 and Previti has been general manager of the combined company ever since.

Retirement Usually A Traumatic Experience

By PUTNAM S. BORDEN
Executive Director
Quincy Council On Aging

There's no question that for many, retirement is a traumatic experience, an abrupt entry into a totally different life style.

When the individual reaches the final day, particularly if retirement is compulsory, he or she, frequently feels, regardless of how the termination procedure is handled, that society is saying, "We no longer want or need you."

In addition to the shock of realization encountered by many, most retirees have little or no information as to what retirement is all about. Personal planning has been minimal, rarely going beyond a pleasure trip or a visit with children in other parts of the country.

Retirement information is usually in the form of verbal instructions about social security and company benefits, occasionally accompanied by some printed handouts. This oftentimes happens on the final day of work. The individual is turned out onto the street, ill prepared for the future.

I have been quite concerned for sometime, about the many people who awaken on day one of retirement and suddenly ask themselves, "what am I going to do?" They need to know just what it is they can and will be doing to ensure that retirement years are truly "golden" years and not merely fools gold.

Well, maybe here in Quincy there is something we can do which will be valuable to the individual and to the community as a whole. I believe a program of pre-retirement information must be started to help our older workers prepare themselves for effective retirement living.

To accomplish this, I have initiated discussions with the staff of the Quincy Junior College, exploring the possibility of setting up such a program, under the joint sponsorship of the Junior College and the Council on Aging.

This program would, hopefully, begin imparting vital information to older participants, well before the actual date of retirement. It would provide an opportunity to receive important information, to think about it and to develop plans for its use so that when actual retirement arrives, the individual would be knowledgeable and prepared to make the adjustment.

In this proposed program, the employers of the community would be offered the opportunity to enroll their pre-retirement employees and participants would be given information on subjects of importance such as:

Effective Use of Leisure Time, Health Care, Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, etc. Work Opportunities After Retirement, Taxation, Financial Management, Insurance, Community Services, and Housing for the Elderly.

Sessions would be conducted by businessmen, public officials and professional people who had appropriate expertise in these fields at a convenient location within the City.

The program would be designed to ensure that at completion, the individual participant would be well equipped to continue as a functioning member of the community after retirement.

Penn's Hill Seniors Enjoy Covered Dish Luncheon

The Penn's Hill Senior Citizens met recently at First United Presbyterian Church, 270 Franklin St., South Quincy.

A covered dish luncheon was served at 12:30 p.m. by Mrs. James McKay and her committee.

Slides of a recent bus trip to Gloucester, were shown by President Douglas McDonald.

The meetings have been suspended for the summer months, and will resume Sept. 11.

Medicare, age pose dilemma

By JOHN T. WATTS
Copley News Service

Dear John: I will be 65 soon. I want to keep on working after I am 65, but I do want Medicare benefits after 65, both A and B. I am a professional man, self-employed.

I telephoned the Social Security office today about this. I was advised that I should accept approximately $2,400 for last year. In effect it appears this would put me in the category of one who elected to receive his Social Security at age 62 and that by doing this I would receive reduced benefits the rest of my life.

I was told that if I elected to forgo the $2,400 and to wait until I am 65, it would take me about nine years to catch up to where I would be if I took the $2,400 now.

I am single and have never been married. What do you advise? — John J. Snyder

Dear John J.: If you want to keep on working after 65, what is your problem? You certainly expect to live more than nine years, so why not wait and take the 65-year rate, if you decided to retire.

I am sure the statistics you were given are accurate, but after all each individual is different. You are not deciding for an "average" person, you are deciding for you. If you feel you can live past the statistical nine years, take the 65-year rate.

Dear John: I am writing about my mother-in-law who is 83 years old. She lives alone on a farm and three of her children live nearby.

Is there anywhere she can get legal advice free? I have heard of the Legal Aid Society but do not know what it is.

My father-in-law passed away three years ago. He left a will which states that after payment of debts and funeral expenses, he bequeathed to his wife all the rest for the term of her natural life. Upon her death it was to be sold and the cash distributed share and share alike among all the children.

The house and barn are falling down around her. Her only income is about $60 a month Social Security and food coupons which she helps pay for. The farm is so run down there is no way she can make any income from it.

Is there any way she can sell all or part of it and take the money for her own use? There are four of the children who help, but the others are sitting around like vultures waiting for their share.

One son is executor but is not capable of managing his own money and property, so he has been a deterrent to his mother.

She just does not know what to do or which way to turn. We send her money regularly, and help when we are there. We spend our vacation with her each year. I think if she could dispose of her property, she would spend the winters with us — or maybe the whole year. — Mrs. G.S.

Dear Mrs. G.S.: This is too complicated a question to try to answer here. When you get wills and a bunch of heirs involved you have trouble.

I know you said she can't afford a lawyer, but maybe somebody better. It is just possible the farm could be leased on a long-term lease arrangement, and thus circumvent the will. But someone should talk to an attorney about that. It is possible to contact the Legal Aid Society in larger communities by making inquiries at the chamber of commerce or possibly finding it in the phone book.

Letters may be sent to Mostly for Seniors, the Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Volume of mail prohibits individual answers.

Tickets For Seniors Picnic

The Tuds Win Hough PTA Award

The Tuds, one of four teams from the Atherton Hough School competing in the Quincy Recreation Department's all-sports winter program, has been presented the Atherton Hough PTA Award Monday as the champion of the school.

The Tuds earned 310 points, barely beating out the Outlaws with 308½. The Jets and the Bombers trailed the leaders.

Points were awarded for competition in softball, basketball, street hockey, floor hockey, bombardment, track, wrestling and physical fitness.

Special points were given for attendance and players of the week.

The program, which reaches more than 80 per cent of the boys at the school, was supervised by Bill Hebert, Dan Smith, Bill Walker and Paul Begoli, with the assistance of Junior Leaders Bruce Patten, Paul Squatrito, Arthur Davis and Bill Dalton.

Members of the award-winning Tuds included:

Grade 6 - Mike Allen, Capt. Jackie Congdon, Joe Craig, Dan DeCoste, Tom Donovan and Jon Hamel.

Grade 4 - John Baylis, Eddie Campbell, Paul DeAngelo, Steve Doyle and Jackie Magee.

Grade 2 - Steve Baylis, Mike Boudreau, Mike Boussy, Mike Davis, Darrin DeCoston, Scott Freeman, Ricky Miller and Tom Daly.

Summer Staff Undergoes Intensive Training

The summer staff of the Quincy Recreation Department was recently put through an intensive training program.

Red Cross trained girls who will conduct the city's 12 swim stations, were given a two-day instruction program at the Dawes Memorial Building on Quincy Shore Drive, under the direction of Water Safety Supervisor, Julie Doherty.

Leaders of the city's 33 playgrounds underwent their indoctrination at the Vocational Technical Gymnasium. Assistant Director of Recreation, Charles Alongi Jr., directed the all-day seminars which stressed safety, organization, as well as instruction from program specialists and supervisors.

Boating and Sailing Supervisor Joseph Daly and his instructors prepared the fleet of small row and sailboats for the eight week instruction program at the Black's Creek Boathouse.

Water skiers prepared the department's 16-foot fiberglassed boat for the Summer Water Ski Program under the direction of Barry Welch.

Volunteers to help retarded youngsters at the Happy Acres Day Camp held a three day training program under the leadership of Camp Director Earl Vermillion.

QUINCY SUN Sports Section

Swim Program Starts

The Quincy Recreation Department's Instructional Swimming Program has started under the direction of Miss Julie Doherty, who represented New England in the 1964 Olympic Try-outs as a member of the Quincy Swim Team.

Water Ski Program Opens

The Quincy Recreation Department's instructional Water Ski Program got underway Monday.

Those interested in taking lessons must have in their possession a valid Life Saving Certificate, or pass a qualifying swim test at one of the city's 13 swimming stations, and then be enrolled in a Life Saving course.

Recreation Director William F. Ryan, said the Water Ski Program offers instruction from beginner to expert on all aspects of water skiing and includes dry land instructions on skiing safety.

Registration will be concluded today [Thursday] at Baker Beach from 8 a.m. to noon and Friday at Avalon Beach from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Kiwanis Edges Sears, 5-4

Kiwanis went an extra inning to edge Sears, 5-4, in the seventh inning in the Quincy Junior Baseball League.

Bob Ceurvels was the winning pitcher and Bill Sullivan the loser, both in relief.

Don Perdios pitched six innings for Kiwanis and trailed, 4-0, although giving up only six hits and walking none. He helped his team's cause with a three-run homer off Sears starter Bill Deitsch, who then gave up singles to Bob Nolan, Gary Stack, Ceurvels, Bill O'Connell and Mike Martin. Lou Aitavale hit what looked like a home run but it was ruled a ground rule double.

Hitters for Sears were Mark Messina, Jim Deitsch and Rich Travers.

Dee Dee's exploded for nine runs in the sixth inning to hand A & T Movers their first Quincy Softball League loss of the season, 18-16.

Lingoes In AAU Bout At Lynn

Quincy's Bobby Lingoes, New England 126-pound AAU champion, will be among the amateur boxers to take part in the first of a series of weekly outdoor AAU bouts Monday at 8:30 p.m. at the Carlton House Hotel in Lynn.

Al Clemente is handling the entries for the sponsoring Pioneer A.C. and the veteran fight handler expects to hold open and novice competition in all classes from 106 pounds to the heavyweights.

The 29-hit barrage was led by Bear Bryan and Greg King, each with four hits. A & T's Ken McPhee hit two titanic home runs, one of which is believed to be longest ball ever hit to straight-away center field at Welcome Young Park.

Dee Dee's, however, lost its steam temporarily as it was defeated by Marcel Corp., 7-4. Marcel also picked up a win at the expense of Paige's, 13-8, to increase its American League East lead.

Bill Jennings, Marcel's steadiest offensive player, had three hits, including a home run. Marcel pulled off an unusual but "heads up" double play. As a routine fly ball was caught by left fielder Joe Pettiti, a Paige's baserunner, who had gone half way to second, was nipped returning to first as cutoff man Bob Arria relayed the return throw from the outfield.

Alumni Cafe raced past Howard Johnson's, 22-3, with Jerry Peak's two hits and Sonny Robinson's home run leading the attack and Tom Buckley pitching another strong game.

St. Catherine also hit hard to wallop Johnson's, 12-1, as the losers collected only four hits. Jerry McCall went three for three and scored three runs. Joe Boyd, Steve Doyle and Tom Walsh had two hits apiece and Chuck Condos and George McCall had home runs.

B & B Health Spa topped Jonathan's, 9-4, pounding out 14 hits. B & B player-coach George Berard used all 15 players and everyone had at least one hit. Bill O'Meara and Harry Daniels hit homers.

Barry's Ship Haven continued to play exceptional defense as it beat McInnis Corp., 9-4. Red Ferrand and Dave Breen combined for an artistic, rally-ending double play while John Babson and Bernie Giammalvo powered home runs and Babson also added a triple.

● Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee Majors Win 2, Drop 1

Quincy Pee Wee Majors had a busy couple of weeks in the Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league, winning two games and losing one.

They beat Hyde Park, 3-2, with Ed Kane, Bobby Hayes and Johnny Mullin getting the goals and Mullin, Bud Gorman and Mac McGilvary the assists.

Bridgewater was beaten, 4-3, on goals by Kane, Kevin McGrath, Leo Doyle and Tommy Brennan. Kane, Brennan and McGilvary drew assists.

Columbia tripped the Majors,

5-2, despite a goal and an assist by Brennan, a goal by Hayes and an assist by Bill Oakes.

The Pee Wee Minors lost to Abington in a wild scoring fest, 8-7, as Mike Panico collected the three goal hat trick plus an assist.

Scott Richardson had a pair of goals and Dickie Reinhardt had three assists.

Single goals were netted by Robbie Craig and Mike O'Brien and assists were credited to Mark Messina, Freddie Palmer, Sean Dennis and Paul McGrath.

Boussy, Zanardelli Spark Squirt Majors, 5-2

Mark Boussy and Robbie Zanardelli had two goals each to spark the Quincy Squirt Majors to a 5-2 victory over the Scituate Whalers in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game last week.

Joey Rathgeb had a goal and two assists, Mike Doherty had two assists and Danny Flynn one assist for Quincy.

Paul Reinhardt played a fine game in the Quincy nets.

The Quincy Squirt Minors bowed to Columbia, 6-3, despite the efforts of Kevin Chase, who figured in all the scoring with a goal and two assists.

Kevin Craig and Paul McCabe also had goals and Mark Tenney was credited with an assist.

Richardson Blanks Hingham For Quincy Mite Majors, 5-0

Goalie Todd Richardson racked up the shutout as the Quincy Mite Majors blanked Hingham, 5-0, in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game last week.

Quincy goals were scored by Tommy Murphy, Dwayne Wilcox, Joe Harte, Bob Lynch and Paul Egan.

Murphy, Wilcox and Lynch also had assists as did Rick Readon, Kevin Tenney and Dave Allen.

Tommy Schofield, Mike McArdle, Paul Ryan, Larry Costello, Bill Campbell and Mike Conlan were outstanding on defense.

DEMPESEY WINS

Jack Dempsey won the heavyweight boxing championship at Toledo, Ohio, by knocking out titleholder Jess Willard on July 4, 1919.

COLLEGE GAME

On July 1, 1859, the first intercollegiate baseball game was played between Amherst and Williams at Pittsfield, Mass., Amherst winning 66 to 32.

Salvatore Lombardo

Pro-Am Guest Partner.

Salvatore Lombardo of Quincy was a guest partner in the Pro-Am that kicked-off the annual sectional championship of the New England Professional Golfer's Assn. at the par 72 Ferncroft Country Club course in Ferncroft Village, Danvers.

Bantam Majors Bomb Minors, 8-1

Quincy Bantam Majors romped to their fourth victory in a row Monday with an 8-1 win over Quincy Bantam Minors as Rick Dannar collected a pair of goals in the Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league contest.

The Majors, now sporting a 4-1 record, took a 5-0 lead on goals by John Cooney, Dannar, Mike McGrath, Dave Previte and Billy Doherty before Jim Triglia netted the lone Minors marker, assisted by Dave Lewis.

Paul Higgins, Dannar again, and Mark Paolucci rounded out the Majors' scoring.

Assists were credited to Dannar, Cooney, Previte, Paolucci, McGrath, John Andrews, Rick Carnali, Mike Marks and Tim McLean.

In an earlier game, the Majors edged Columbia, 5-4, as Previte had a goal and two assists and Cooney and Brian Watts each had a goal and an assist.

Dannar and John Mitchell got the other goals with assists awarded to Rick Carnali and Mike Wilson.

The Minors bowed to Stoughton, 4-2, with David Lewis and Jackie Campbell getting the goals and Mark Neville, John Kelly and John Norton getting the assists.

The Majors will be seeking win number five Monday [July 16] against Weymouth at 8:35 p.m. on Rink C, Hingham Arena; the Minors go against Hingham the same night at 7:25 p.m., also on Rink C.

ENC Coaches To Conduct Crusader Basketball-Soccer Camp

Jim Smith, athletic director and highly successful basketball coach at Eastern Nazarene College, and Neil Nicoll, ENC soccer coach, will operate the Crusader Basketball and Soccer Camp at Long Lake Acres Camp, Long Lake, Me., from Aug. 26 to Sept. 1.

Any boy 12 to 16 can attend the camp, which will be staffed by college athletes.

There will be guest instructors and a full program for both advanced and beginning basketball and soccer players. Transportation will be provided from Quincy.

"It is our feeling that there is a need today for boys to receive a resident camping experience where they can learn and develop sports skills in their area of interest at a cost within the family budget," Smith said. "It is our purpose to provide this type of camp using a well-trained, competent staff."

The camp has complete facilities for basketball and soccer and there is a full swimming and boating area.

The camp day will start at 7:30 a.m. with breakfast. At 8:30 there will be a program of basketball skills under Smith's direction and soccer skills under Nicoll's direction. Swimming will follow at 10:30 with lunch at 11:45 and a period of relaxation from 12:15 to 1 p.m. Basketball and soccer clinics will be held at 1 with swimming and boating at 3, dinner at 5, basketball and soccer games at 7 and the day will end at 9:30 around the campfire.

"We feel we will have the perfect camp for a boy," Smith added. "We will have several fine guest instructors for both sports and each boy will receive a Crusader T-Shirt."

● Legion Baseball

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy Legion baseball team, on a hot streak since George French took over the coaching reins from Connie Carlozzi, just about ended Morrisette's hopes of a 19th Zone 6 championship Monday night when it upset the defending champs, 3-1, under the lights at Adams Field.

The loss dropped Morrisette's record to 7-3. Weymouth, with a 9-0 mark including two wins over Morrisette, looms as the new zone titlist. The win was the fourth in a row for Quincy and boosted its record to 5-5.

As Morrisette plays Weymouth only once more, it will take a couple of upsets by other teams to give Morrisette a chance at the crown.

Quincy's Bob Pierce and Morrisette's Bobby Lane gave up only three hits apiece Monday but Quincy scored once in the first with Pierce having the RBI and added two in the second on a bases loaded single by Frank DiSalvo.

Morrisette's only run came in the fourth on an error, a walk and Mark Dwyer's single.

Quincy had a 1-5 mark, with only a win over Hingham, when Carlozzi retired. Since French, who had been the team's manager, took over Quincy is 4-0 with wins over Hingham again, Milton, Randolph and Morrisette. The wins over Hingham and Milton were successive shutouts.

Last Sunday night Quincy had made it three in a row with a 7-3 decision over Randolph in a replay of a rained-out game at Adams Field.

Incidentally, work kept French from Monday's game and Guido Pettinelli coached Quincy to its big win.

Last Friday night Morrisette breezed past Randolph, 8-0, behind young Tim Clifford's five-hit pitching. The 15-year old right-hander, who struck out eight and walked only two, ran his record to 5-0. In 36 innings he allowed only seven earned runs.

Morrisette also had only five hits, two by Lee Watkins and one each by Bob Benn, Jim Driscoll and John Warren, but received eight walks.

Earlier in the week Morrisette edged Braintree, 6-5, in three extra innings when it scored three runs in the 10th and barely held on as Braintree came back in its half for two runs.

Bob Lane was the winner in relief of Mark Dwyer. Dave Nelson had a double and two singles, Driscoll a triple and two singles, Watkins a double and single, Benn, Artie Boyle and Warren a single apiece.

In its previous game Weymouth handed Morrisette's title chances a severe blow when it won, 4-0, as Vin Hillyer, who had held the defending champs to three hits in their first meeting, hurled a one-hitter.

The lone Morrisette hit was Nelson's single. Weymouth scored all its runs off Lane in the third inning.

The previous night Morrisette, showing no bad effects from the long layoff due to the heavy rains, had defeated Milton, 8-3, as Clifford pitched a three-hitter and Morrisette collected eight, a double and single by Boyle, a double by Mike Conroy and singles by Watkins, Benn, Nelson, Driscoll and Dwyer.

Meanwhile, Quincy last Friday nipped Milton, 1-0, behind Bob Morton's one-hit pitching as French made it two shutouts in a row [Quincy had blanked Hingham, 7-0, in its previous game] in his coaching debut.

● Junior Farm League

National Leaguers Defeat American

The Quincy Junior Farm League held its annual all-star games and picnic Sunday at Faxon Field and the National Leaguers won both games.

In the opener the National 8 and 9-year olds rolled over the American Leaguers, 10-0, as three pitchers held the losers to one hit.

Tom McNeice of the Giants went the first two innings, followed by John Leone of the Cubs for two and Pat King of the Braves for the last two, giving up the lone hit.

The top batters for the Nationals were Jack Brown with a single and double, King, Paul Reinhardt, Mike Hussey and Earl Servant.

The game was close for three innings but the Nationals erupted for eight runs in the fourth with doubles by Reinhardt and Hussey the big blows. Each team made some sparkling defensive plays.

The 10-year old game was dominated by the pitching as the Nationals squeezed by, 2-1, coming from behind to win it.

Dan Walsh had the longest hit for the winners, a double that hit the fence in center field on one bounce. Tom Canavan had a triple, Bob Bolster two singles and Tom McHugh a single.

For The American Leaguers Tom DiCarli had two singles as did Mike Melroy. The fielding gem was a running, diving catch by Mike Barry in center field. He turned it into a double play and saved the day as there were two men on base.

Winning pitcher was Ronnie Horn of the Pirates and the loser Sean Martin of the Red Sox.

The all-star teams:

American League 10-year olds: Bob McHugh, Steve Rullis and Mark Whalen, Orioles; Dean Coletti, Mike Doherty and Mike Panico, Tigers; Anthony Twohig, Tom Hennessy and Paul Mallory, Indians; Michael Cronin, Steve Delorey and Sean Martin, Red Sox; William DeCarli, David Mucey and Rick Penzo, Yankees. Jim McHugh of the Orioles is manager, assisted by George MacLean of the Red Sox.

National League 10-year olds: Peter Cappola, Rich Hallberg and Rich Reinhardt, Giants; Tom McHugh, Tom Canavan and Bob Bolster, Dodgers; Dan Walsh, Glenn Segalla and Chris Loeb, Braves; Robert Sullivan, Michael Barry and Paul Chamberlain, Cubs; Eddie Powers, Steve Kamb and Ronnie Horn, Pirates; Carl Widman of the Cubs is manager, assisted by Howard Black of the Pirates.

American League 8 and 9-year olds: Kyle Morton, Dan Mullaney and Kevan Whalen, Orioles; Vinny Whelan, Kevin Duff and Mike Marshall, Tigers; Mike Sullivan, Bob Mallaney, and Dan Masters, Indians; Brian Deitch, Thomas Corliss, and Chuck Goldman, Red Sox; Jim Austin, Tom Hefferman and Lloyd Light, Yankees. Dick O'Brien of the Tigers is manager, assisted by Lloyd Light of the Yankees.

National League 8 and 9-year olds: Mike McNeice, Mike Hussey and Paul Reinhardt, Giants; James Mullin, Paul Murphy and Earl Servant, Dodgers; Jack Brown, Pat King and Mike Sandomanti, Braves; John Leone, Eric Green and Tom Richards, Cubs; Tim Back, Danny Dunn and Kevin Chase, Pirates. Ron Ricciardi of the Braves is manager, assisted by Pete Cappola of the Giants.

The final Standings:

Survival's Redirection Residence Expected To Be Ready Soon

Survival's Redirection Residence, the drug treatment program's in-patient facility located at 1230 Hancock St., Quincy is nearing completion of renovation work and expects to accept residents shortly.

The "House" a facility which will provide a protective environment for 20 to 25 drug-addicted persons in which they can rebuild their lives, is asking for community support to help provide certain necessities required in running such an operation.

John Biggio, Director of the Redirection Residence, is asking for support from South Shore residents in the form of canned goods, sheets, pillow cases, towels, soap and toilet articles, fans and air conditioners, rugs and books. These materials are essential in making the residence more of a "home" wherein young persons will live and work while receiving therapy and training in an effort to prepare them for re-entry, drug-free, into the community.

Anyone who can help provide these materials for the program is asked to contact John Biggio at Survival at 773-6618.

On The Screen By Vincent Puleo

Billy DeWolfe Cape Bound

"LIVE AND LET DIE" is the 8th 007 story to reach the screen, and in its own way very possibly one of the most exciting, adventurous episodes to make the cinema scene. The ROGER MOORE starrer has the high living, highly-effective James Bond taking on the world of black magic, voodoo and forecasting the future, while at the same time investigating an international drug operation headed by the changeable Dr. Kananga [YAPHE KOTTO], a villain whom even "Goldfinger" pales by comparison...

Co-starring JANE SEYMOUR as Dr. Kananga's telepathic girlfriend "Solitaire", GLORIA HENDRY as "Mrs. Bond" and GEOFFREY HOLDER as voodoo leader Baron Samedi, "LIVE AND LET DIE" was filmed on location amidst the intrigue and glamour of Jamaica, New Orleans, London and New York... And James Bond enthusiasts won't be the least disappointed with ROGER MOORE in the lead role. A different Bond yes, but nonetheless as convincingly charismatic as his predecessor SEAN CONNERY... "LIVE AND LET DIE" - worth the price of admission, and then some...

"SUPER FLY T.N.T." has the distinction of being the first film ever allowed to be shot in the West African nation of Senegal... And regards the same picture, the even, fast-paced script was penned by ALEX HALEY, the distinguished author whose "THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF MALCOLM X" sold over 5,000,000 copies. "SUPER FLY T.N.T." is HALEY's first screenplay, but definitely not his last. A screenwriter to watch...

Another new face is that of songwriter PAUL WILLIAMS who makes his acting debut in "BATTLE FOR THE PLANET OF THE APES". WILLIAMS is the author of the hit song, "We've Only Just Begun", and many others, including four which brought him gold records... French character actor ADRIEN CAYLA-LEGRAND is what you'd have to call "a spitting image". He plays the role of CHARLES DE GAULLE to such pinpoint perfection in "THE DAY OF THE JACKAL", his resemblance to the late French leader so remarkable, he didn't even need makeup...

For drama at its finest, very few films released thus far during this cinema year have it over "A DOLL'S HOUSE". The IBSEN drama, although written in Victorian times, tells the very modern story of a woman who breaks out of the mold in which society and her husband have placed her. In addition to being an individual story, it is also a statement on the status of women today...

And CLAIRE BLOOM in the role of Nora gives the finest performance of her long, and illustrious career. She's unbelievably good... Miss BLOOM's career goes back to the late forties when she was acting in London Shakespearean productions with then up and coming actors PAUL SCOFIELD and RICHARD BURTON... It was during the 18-month run of the London stage production "RING AROUND THE MOON" that CHARLIE CHAPLIN heard of her, tested her and gave her the coveted role in his film "LIMELIGHT" which made her an international star...

What's happened to KITTY WINN? Two years ago she was on the threshold of big things when she won the Best Actress Award at the Cannes Film Festival for "PANIC IN NEEDLE PARK"... Quincy's BILLY DEWOLFE is Cape bound for a vacation in August... DORIS DAY is mulling plans to cut a rock album... Harvard alumni BOOKER BRADSHAW, now appearing in "COFFEY", has an impressive track record already in a fledgling career. He has performed with HELEN HAYES, has been in thirty odd TV shows, featured in "MIDNIGHT COWBOY", co-starred in the features "THE STRAWBERRY STATEMENT", "TIME", and "SKULLDUGGERY", and has written and sold three screenplays to television production companies...

Cinematographer VILMOS SZIGMOND's "touch" is best typified rightly by a haunting softness in which sharp characterizations nevertheless come strongly through. His camera is his right arm -- it can weave through the scenery or place itself rigidly in front of the main character... A director of photography, in modern jargon, is not actually the one who handles the camera; there is a separate "camera operator" for that. Rather a cinematographer like SZIGMOND lights the scene properly for mood, to make sure the camera is covering the right object, and to work with the director...

Though one of the most under-rated actors in the business today, ROBERT MITCHUM continues along as one of its finer craftsmen. He literally steals the "show" in his latest release "THE FRIENDS OF EDDIE COYLE". MITCHUM is highly effective as the small time Boston hood Eddie Coyle, and has the role mastered to a T right down to his Boston-area accent...

And if you don't see one film this year, make sure it isn't the poorly made remake of "TRADER HORN". An absolute sham. The wildlife and stampede sequences are "lifted" from the earlier version [1931]... The picture was shot on locale in Southern California and the cardboard perils show through most unconvincingly... On the other side of the ledger "DILLINGER", with WARREN OATES, BEN JOHNSON, MICHELLE PHILLIPS and CLORIS LEACHMAN, is a motion picture comparable to "BONNIE AND CLYDE" in quality. One of the better made in the historical, crime genre mold...

An actress to keep your eye on is ANN WEDGEWORTH - a comer as she so demonstrated as "Frenchy" in "SCARECROW"...

New 6-Ward Plan Would Shift Number Of Precincts

McCormick and City Clerk John Gillis.

Only the three councillors are voting members of the committee and neither Graham nor Delahunt is seeking reelection.

Once City Council approval is obtained, said Quinn, all that remains would be to show the plan to the group of citizens who filed the suit in Federal Court and induce them to withdraw the suit.

But McCormick has his doubts if that's all.

"We feel that this election should be conducted under the current ward setup," he said. "It would be too cumbersome to change now.

"Many candidates have entered the race based on the current wards. The city has printed many of the materials for the election. It would cost both the candidates and the city a lot of money to change."

But the alternative is to run all candidates for City Council at large, which would cost them even more money.

Here is the way the city wards would line up if the Quinn Plan is successful:

WARD 1, the largest of the current wards with 21,119 people stretching from the tip of Hough's Neck through Merrymount and Quincy Center to Quarry Street in West Quincy, loses three precincts [1, 2 and 6], retains Hough's Neck and Merrymount and is cut off at Quincy High School, just short of Quincy Center.

WARD 2, one of the smallest of the current wards encompassing Quincy Point, picks up Precinct 2 of Ward 1 [Quincy Center north to Furnace Brook Parkway] and Precinct 1 of Ward 3 [a large part of South Quincy east of Franklin Street].

WARD 3, the smallest of all the current wards covering essentially South Quincy, loses Precinct 1 but adds Precincts 1 and 6 of Ward 1 [Quincy Center west of the MBTA and railroad tracks and continuing on to Quarry Street] and Precinct 2 of Ward 4 [South Quincy west to Common Street].

WARD 4, another of the small wards covering West Quincy including part of the Blue Hills Reservation, loses Precinct 2 but adds Precincts 6 and 8 of Ward 5 [Wollaston west of Highland Avenue] and Precincts 3 and 8 of Ward 6 [the Montclair area].

WARD 5, the second largest ward including virtually all of Wollaston, loses Precincts 5 and 8 but otherwise remains the same.

WARD 6, another biggy encompassing Squantum, North Quincy and Montclair, loses the Montclair precincts 3 and 8 but otherwise retains its boundaries.

Paul Harold To Seek Ward 1 Seat

Paul D. Harold of 31 Riverside Ave., Adams Shore, will announce tonight [Thursday] his candidacy for city council from Ward 1.

The announcement will be made at a campaign kick-off cruise of Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay, attended by friends and supporters.

In a pre-release statement, Harold said, "Good intentions are no longer enough for our city councillors. Growing urbanization and the need to plan for the future as our city continues to grow are going to require the utmost in communications between councillors and the people they are sworn to represent.

"Problems we have faced thus far and the apparent long range solutions that will be needed in such areas as mass transit, coastal improvements and housing, illustrate the need for more effective representation and better communications between the citizens of Quincy and the city government. As a city councillor I will keep close communications with the people of the neighborhoods in Ward 1 and give the time, enthusiasm and degree of professionalism necessary to fulfill the position of ward councillor."

A graduate of Suffolk University Law School, Harold received a degree in Government from the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, where he was on the Dean's List.

• Old Ward Lineup

Quincy's old wards were badly out of balance with as many as 21,119 people and 11,447 voters in Ward 1 and as few as 8,861 people and 4,675 voters in Ward 3.

Under the Quinn Plan, a shift of nine of the city's 39 precincts would bring the same six wards more nearly in line in both population and voters.

The following chart shows how the old wards and precincts line up and designates the precincts that would be shifted into new wards under the Quinn Plan.

• New Ward Lineup

Quincy's proposed new wards, under the Quinn Plan, would be almost equally divided with Ward 5 [16,084 people] and Ward 4 [9,124 voters] the largest and the relatively underdeveloped

Ward 3 the smallest [13,314 people, 7,057 voters].

The following is a chart of the new wards with a listing of the precincts that would be shifted to bring the wards in balance.

New Ward	Old Ward - Precinct	Population	Voters

3 Days Of Good Fun, Buys

Sidewalk Bazaar Biggest Yet

By TOM HENSHAW

There's a little something for everyone under the sun and the stars in Quincy Center today [Thursday] through Saturday.

It's the fourth annual Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar, a three-day pot pourri of nostalgia and fun climaxing in the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Pageant on Saturday.

More than 100 stores will take part in what promises to be the biggest and best bazaar of them all, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

For the very young there is a brand new attraction, a Kiddy Karnival at Parkway behind Gilchrist's.

For the elderly there is a barber shop quartet and antique autos in which to relive memories of days gone by.

And for everyone there is:

- Band concerts.
- A strolling minstrel.
- Square dancing.
- A zoomobile.
- A dance performance.
- A karate demonstration.
- Fire engine rides.
- A banjo band.

Miss Quincy Bay Race Week, who will reign during Race Week in mid-August, is to be chosen

Band Concerts, Banjo, Barbershop, Minstrel Music

Old fashioned music, the kind grandpa used to love, will be featured at downtown Quincy's fourth annual Sidewalk Bazaar Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

A strolling minstrel, Mabel

Biagini, will wander through the square today [Thursday] and Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. She will move up and down Hancock St., Cottage Ave., Chestnut St. and the Parkway, playing her accordion.

A barbershop quartet, the Brockton Harmonizers, will sing between 7 p.m. and 11 p.m.

[Cont'd on Page 8]

Antique autos from 1908 to 1947 will be on display Saturday at the Sidewalk Bazaar.

A wide variety of classic cars will be exhibited on Hancock St. between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

During the day owners will start their engines and cruise down Hancock St., the Parkway, Granite St., Chestnut St., Cottage Ave., Revere Rd, School St., Elm St., and Washington St.

Exhibitors are members of the Old Colony Model T Club.

Mayor Declares July 19-21 'Sidewalk Bazaar Days'

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has declared July 19-20-21 Sidewalk Bazaar Days in Quincy and urged residents to give business help "toward continued strength and success.

Following is the text of the proclamation:

WHEREAS, The American standard of living is recognized as the highest in the world and is due, in great part, to the abundance and high quality of the products of our competitive enterprise system and their forthright identification by trademarks submitted for the free choice of the consuming public, and

WHEREAS, American tradition of independent enterprise is as old as our society itself and from humble beginnings small business has grown into one of the principal economic forces in this, the world's greatest industrial nation, and

WHEREAS, If downtown Quincy retailers are to realize their full potential in the years ahead, they need and deserve wholehearted support from the citizens in the business community as a whole as well as the strong encouragement it already receives from national organizations and the local government, and

WHEREAS, Quincy Square retailers are joining this week with various civic and business groups in providing the citizens of Quincy and the South Shore unsurpassed retailing opportunities; and encourage all citizens and public organizations to join with me during this week in paying tribute to the accomplishments of small business in helping it toward continued strength and success.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Walter J. Hannon, Mayor of the City of Quincy, do hereby proclaim July 19-20 and 21, 1973, as

23 To Compete For 'Miss Quincy Bay Race Week'

Twenty-three attractive South Shore girls—including two sisters—will compete for the title of Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Saturday afternoon as the climax to the three-day Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar.

The winner and four runners-up will share in prizes than $1,000 worth of prizes donated by member stores of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and sponsor of the three-day event.

In addition, every contestant will receive a gift.

The top winner will also have the honor of reigning over Quincy Bay Race Week Aug. 15-19.

The selection will be made at a 4 p.m. pageant on a portable boardwalk on Hancock St. in front of the Hancock Bank.

Henry Bosworth of The Quincy Sun and Kenneth P. Fallon Jr., of WJDA are co-chairmen. Mr. Fallon will also be emcee.

The new Miss Quincy Bay Race Week will be crowned by last year's winner, Regina Smith of Milton.

As an added attraction, there will be three drawings for $175 in savings bonds during the pageant. Shoppers may obtain the free coupons at participating stores on Saturday only.

Music for the pageant will be provided by Baron Hugo and his orchestra. He will entertain starting at 3:15 p.m.

Contestants in the pageant will be judged in evening gowns and swim suit competition and for poise, personality and overall beauty. The five finalists will also be judged for their response to a question.

The pageant contestants are:

- Cheryl Acker, 16, Bates Ave., Quincy.
- Cathy Beston, 20, Ruggles St., Quincy.
- Donna Burke, 18, Joseph St., Quincy.
- Maureen Chiminello, 17, Chick St., Quincy.

- Janice Cook, 17, Bradford St., Quincy.

- Emilie DiTullio, 18, Stanley Circle, Quincy.

- Lois Halzel, 18, Houston Ave., Milton.

- Pauline Keefe, 16, Elmwood Park, Quincy.

- Patricia Kelley, 18, Whitwell St., Quincy.

- Debra King, 17, Geraldine Lane, Braintree.

- Debbie Lee, 17, Houghton Rd., Milton.

- Janice Nesbitt, 16, River St., North Weymouth.

- Karen Perrault, 19, Judson St., Braintree.

- Maria Peterson, 16, Off Hill St., Weymouth.

- Debbie Quintiliani, 16, Cranch St., Quincy.

- Susan Ray, 17, Butler Rd., Quincy.

- Otilie Riley, 17, Billings St., North Quincy.

- Dale Robertson, 16, Washington St., Milton.

- Donna Robertson, 17, Washington St., Milton.

- Ellen Ryan, 17, Fisher Rd., South Weymouth.

- Jean Taylor, 18, Bunker Hill Lane, Quincy.

- Barbara Tayne, 17, Newton Ave., Braintree.

- Valerie Voegtlin, 16, Monroe Rd., Quincy.

- Judges will be:

- Quincy School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

- Carol Nashe, owner Carol Nashe Model Agency and Model and Charm School.

- Richard J. Koch, executive secretary Quincy Park-Recreation Board.

- Virginia Pritchette, Miss Quincy Bay Race Week of 1970.

- Wesley Watson, president Quincy Bay Race Week Association.

The more than $1,000 in prizes include:

- $300 in savings bonds from the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

- A $200 scholarship from

- Carol Nashe Career Model & Charm School.

- A wrist watch from Rogers Jewelry.

- An Elura wig from South Shore Beauty Supply Co.

- Two $25 savings bonds from Hancock Bank.

- Five gift certificates from Marvel Beauty Shop.

- Three gift certificates from Remick's of Quincy.

- A dress ensemble from Sears Roebuck.

- A tennis suit from Colman's Sporting Goods Store.

- A gift certificate from South Shore Television & Appliance.

- Gift certificates from Bell Shop, Cumming's, Gilchrist's.

- A ladie's tote bag from Jason's Luggage and Music Shop.

- Three one-year gift subscriptions to The Quincy Sun.

- A perfume pen set from The Patriot Ledger.

The top winner will also receive a bouquet of red roses from Clifford's Flower Shop and will wear a double-tier queen's crown of seed pearls and rhinestones donated by Lynn's Card & Gift Shoppe. The crown, a rotating one, to be worn also by future winners, is now on display at the store.

But the winner will get to keep a handsome trophy being presented by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

The pageant committee includes:

- Leslie Briefley, Hancock Bank; Raymond Cunningham, representing the Quincy Bay Race Week Association; Remo DeNicola, South Shore Television and Appliance; Paul Hurley Jr., Hurley Insurance; Florence Kerrigan, Baskin-Robbins; Roberta Meade, Roberta's Fashion Shoppe; Ruth Miller, Marvel Beauty Shop and Terry Pulito, Colpitts Travel Center.

REGINA SMITH
Miss Quincy Bay Race Week, 1972

Regina Smith Has Fond Memories

By PAUL FELDMAN

"I have enjoyed being Miss Quincy Bay Race Week and am glad that I entered the contest" says Regina Smith of Harbor View Rd in Milton.

Regina, the reigning Race Week Queen, will crown her successor Saturday afternoon at a pageant in front of the Hancock Bank as the climax of the fourth annual Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar.

"During the race week, I went to dinners and dances at Quincy's yacht clubs and I participated in the boat parade in the Bay. I met a lot of nice people and enjoyed all of these events," says the 19-year old attractive blond.

Regina also attended dinners at the Quincy Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs and was invited to a dinner with Governor Sargent.

Recalling her victory in last year's contest, she says: "It was the first time I had ever entered a beauty contest. I was a little chicken about entering but finally decided it was worth a try. I couldn't believe I won it. It was just too much."

Among the prizes Regina won were $300 in bonds and scholarship money and a gold ring, a wig, a dress ensemble, a ladies tote bag, a bouquet of roses and gift certificates from Quincy Square businesses sponsoring the Downtown Sidewalk Bazaar.

Regina, a graduate of Fontbonne Academy in Milton, is a junior majoring in finance and accounting at B.C.'s School of Management.

Among her interests are math, skating, skiing and sewing. She makes "the majority of her own clothes" including the green halter she wore while winning the Race Week Pageant last year.

This summer, Regina is working as an office clerk for the telephone company in Roslindale.

Crown On Display At Lynn's

The crown that will adorn the pretty head of the winner of Saturday's Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Pageant is on display in the window of Lynn's Card and Gift Shop on Hancock St.

The double-tier crown of seed pearls and rhinestones, made by Vogue of New York, was donated by Mrs. Ethelyn Sacchetti, proprietor of Lynn's, as a permanent feature of the beauty contest.

$175 In Bonds To Be Awarded Saturday

There will be a special $175 reason for coming into Quincy this Saturday.

Savings bonds totalling that amount will be awarded as prizes by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association which is sponsoring the fourth annual Sidewalk Bazaar.

Some 20,000 coupons will be available Saturday only, at QCBPA member stores. Shoppers merely have to fill one out.

The bonds—$100, $50,

$25—will be awarded at a drawing to be held during the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Pageant.

The pageant, to be held on a portable boardwalk in front of the Hancock Bank, will start at 4 p.m.

There's going to be a lot to look at during Quincy Center Business and Professional Association's annual Sidewalk Bazaar. But, while you're looking around, step right up to our Quincy Square office, folks, and right before your very eyes, we'll show you a savings account that can turn your money into anything you want it turned into. We guarantee it'll hold a lot of interest for you. With new, higher rates. We're here to help. And we do.

We're going to be a tough act to follow.

MORE THAN 4,000 Indian headbands will be distributed to youngsters in downtown Quincy during the Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar. Here, pretty Diane Sabatini, of High School Ave., Quincy, tries headband on April Kilty, 3½, of Warwick St., Wollaston, as her mother smiles approvingly.

from a field of 23 beauties on Saturday in front of the Hancock Bank.

During the beauty pageant there will also be a drawing for savings bonds valued at $100, $50 and $25 for which 20,000 coupons will be distributed to shoppers on Saturday only.

And, of course, the traditional carnival atmosphere and decor will prevail in downtown Quincy during the three-day festival.

Banners and pennants will fly in the streets of the entire area and merchandise will be displayed on special tables and racks set up on the sidewalks.

Merchants will wear straw hats and vests to help recreate the mood of the "good old days".

There may even be a handlebar mustache or two in the crowd.

Baron Hugo To Play At Miss Quincy Race Week Pageant

By PAUL FELDMAN

"A Pretty Girl Is Like A Melody", "Ain't She Sweet" and "Embraceable You", are among the old-time sounds that will grace the streets of Quincy Square when Baron Hugo and his band play at the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Pageant Saturday, July 21.

Baron Hugo, a native of Quincy has entertained thousands of people for over 50 years with his music. In the heyday of the big band sound, Baron Hugo's orchestra was the house band at the Totem Pole Ballroom at Norembeqa Park. He shared the stage with such idols as Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey.

"My orchestra was the biggest house band in the country," he recalls. "Roy Gill, owner of the Totem Pole, wanted an orchestra as good as any name band. Musicians from across the country came to play in my band. They had steady work and were not always on the road, away from their families."

Hugo's arranger, Don Costa, now works for Frank Sinatra and Tony Bennett. Other musicians that played with the Baron include Vahey Tackvorian of the Tommy Dorsey orchestra and Russell Stanger, now the conductor of the Norfolk Virginia Symphony Orchestra.

Baron Hugo, now a resident of Milton, grew up near Brewer's Corner, West Quincy. He began playing music while attending the Hancock and Willard schools. Before starting his own orchestra, Hugo played with many local bands in Quincy.

"I got started in 1923 at the Malmati Hall in South Quincy. I also played at the old Wisteria Bungalow where the Hancock parking area is now, Electa Hall where the Quincy Savings Bank now stands and Taylor's Ballroom in Hough's Neck, which is now a roller skating rink."

Later in his career, Baron Hugo performed frequently at the RKO Keith Theatre in Boston and the Boston Belle boat between Boston and Provincetown. When the New England Patriots were formed, Baron Hugo and his band entertained the football faithful at Brave's Field.

At the Beauty Pageant this Saturday, Baron and his band will entertain from 3 to 6 p.m. on the 'portable boardwalk' in front of the Hancock Bank. The Pageant itself will take place at 4 p.m.

"We'll bring back a lot of memories," Baron says. "We'll play a little of everything. Some songs for the pretty girls, some community sing-a-longs like "Four Leaf Clover" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart", some Glenn Miller style - whatever the folks want to hear."

Come Square Dance With Gingham Swingers, Dick Springer

The Gingham Swingers and Dick Springer will bring square dancing to Quincy Thursday and Friday nights with performances at the Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar.

The Gingham Swingers of South Weymouth will show up 100 strong for an exhibition Friday night from 7 to midnight in front of City Hall.

And Dick Springer of Hull will call the steps at a square dance Thursday from 7 to 11 p.m. in front of City Hall.

The Gingham Swingers list more than 300 members from around the South Shore with Arnie Kanash as their caller. They entertained at last year's Sidewalk Bazaar.

Springer is past secretary of the Old Colony Callers Association and in his five years of calling has performed throughout New England and New York at such places as the New England Square Dance Conventions, Foxboro Hospital, the Prudential Center, and the last three Quincy Sidewalk Bazaars.

GOOD BUYS AND good fun brought crowds into Quincy last year for Sidewalk Bazaar. This scene along Hancock St. will be duplicated Thursday, Friday and Saturday during fourth annual bazaar.

Dance, Karate Demonstrations By Young World Performers

Dance and Karate demonstrations by the Young World Performers and the Bay State Karate School, divisions of Young World of 233 Parkingway, Quincy, will be two highlights of the downtown Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar.

The Young World Performers, a group of dance students from the age of 3 and up, will perform on Cottage Ave. Thursday from 2 to 4 p.m., Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

They will demonstrate basic features of the Young World

Dance program that includes tap dancing, ballet, basic acrobatics and personality singing.

The karate exhibition, Friday at 8:30 to 9 p.m., will demonstrate how the ancient Chinese art develops self-defense, physical fitness and self confidence.

Young World, established in 1962 by Paul Boyajian, has a professional staff of more than 30 people. It is the only exclusively child-oriented school on the South Shore personally supervised by a full time director.

Moonwalk At Kiddie Karnival

A Kiddie Karnival will be one of the features of the Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar Friday from noon to 10 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. It will be held behind Gilchrist's in the Parkingway.

Rides will include the "space swing" and the "moonwalk".

Games, prizes and a free drawing for jumbo stuffed animals at 8 p.m. on Friday and 4 p.m. on Saturday, are other parts of the festivities.

Entry blanks for the drawing will be available at all stores participating in the bazaar.

Capt. Henry Cassani Named Commanding Officer At S. Weymouth

Capt. Henry L. Cassani, formerly of Quincy, will become the new Commanding Officer of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station Aug. 2.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Cassani of 28 Churchill Rd., Quincy.

Mr. Cassani is vice-president of President Chevrolet of Quincy.

Capt. Cassani is the brother of Mrs. Edward T. Lewis Jr. of Saugus.

Captain Cassani, who is currently serving as Executive Officer of the Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi, Texas, has been in the Navy since 1948 when he enlisted and served as a hospitalman at the now defunct Naval Air Station in Squantum.

Captain Cassani is married to the former Florence Radford of Pensacola, Fla. They have seven children.

He will succeed Captain Gerald C. Canaan who will become commander of the Oceanographic System Atlantic at Norfolk, Va.

Captain Cassani was born in Braintree and is a 1948 graduate of Quincy High School. He entered Tufts University in June, 1948, and enlisted in the Navy in September of the same year. He was assigned to the now defunct Naval Air Station at Squantum as a hospitalman.

In 1950, he reported for

flight training at Pensacola, Fla., and received his commission in 1952 after advanced flight training at Corpus Christi. He then returned to Pensacola for helicopter training.

The captain's long aviation career has included the positions of first commanding officer of Helicopter Combat Support Squadron Three (HC-3) and Air Officer of the USS Boxer. He received his Master of Science degree from the Naval Postgraduate School in 1970 and served two years in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations prior to reporting to NAS Corpus Christi as Executive Officer.

Anthony Porcaro Elected S. Quincy Assn. President

Anthony J. Porcaro of 17 Richie Rd., has been elected president of the South Quincy Civic Association.

Porcaro, father of three, is married to the former Paula Wayland and is employed as a Programmer Analyst by the Howard D. Johnson Co.

He pledged his efforts to continuing the fight against location of an MBTA station in South Quincy and to work with residents and local officials to improve the area's quality of living.

Active in community affairs, he is also president of the Adams School PTA and St. John's Little League. He is a member of Quincy Council Knights of Columbus.

Porcaro, a graduate of Canton High School, holds an Associates Degree in Business Management from Northeastern University and is currently a candidate for a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration at that institution.

Russell Rand Wins Citizenship Contest Prize

Russell Rand, a June graduate of Quincy High School, has won first prize in the 1973 Citizenship Contest sponsored by the New England Cultural Organization.

The first prize award consists of a $375 credit towards an educational tour of Europe next year.

• New Ward Lineup

Quincy's new eight-ward plan passed by the City Council creates almost equally balanced wards ranging from 12,134 people in Ward 2, the largest, to 10,025 in Ward 5, the smallest.

The following is a chart of the new wards with a listing of the precincts that would be shifted to bring the wards in balance.

• Old Ward Lineup

Quincy's old six-ward alignment was badly out of balance with as many as 21,119 people in Ward 1 and as few as 8,861 people in Ward 3.

Under the eight-ward setup passed by the City Council, Tuesday, six of the city's 39 precincts would be exchanged among existing wards and 10 would be taken to create two new wards.

Old Ward	Precinct	Population	New Ward	Old Ward	Precinct	Population	New Ward

Court Takes Suit Under Advisement

8- Ward Plan Would Mean Referendum Sept. 18, Primary Nov. 6, Final Dec. 4

By TOM HENSHAW

The redistricting cloud that has hung over the Quincy city elections for the past month may have been swept away Tuesday when the City Council voted to divide the city into eight nearly equal wards.

The move was a step toward satisfying the complaints of a group of citizens who sued to halt the fall election of City Councilors by wards on grounds the unbalanced six-ward setup violated "one man, one vote" provisions of the U.S. Constitution.

A few hours after the City Council approved the eight-ward plan, Federal Judge Andrew Caffery took the redistricting suit under advisement, directing the city of Quincy, to report Tuesday on progress made toward legislative approval of the referendum.

The City Council action, taken at a special morning session, did this:

• Created two new wards - Ward 7, including the upper Wollaston and Montclair sections of old Wards 5 and 6, and Ward 8, encompassing the Wollaston Beach and Merrymount sections of old Wards 1 and 5.

• Asked the State Legislature for permission to hold a special referendum on the eight-ward plan on Sept. 18, move the preliminary city election forward to Nov. 6 and the final city election up to Dec. 4.

Under the eight-ward plan, which was accomplished without changing precinct lines, Ward 2

[Quincy Point] will be the largest ward with 12,134 people and Ward 5 [Central Wollaston] will be the smallest with 10,025.

Under the old six-ward setup, which has been unchanged since Quincy became a city in 1888, Ward 1 [Hough's Neck to Quincy Center] had 21,119 people and Ward 3 [South Quincy] had only 8,861.

The U.S. Supreme Court in one of its frequent interpretations of the "one man, one vote" principle ruled recently that a 16.4 population variance in voting districts meets the constitutional test.

The eight-ward plan means that Quincy would have an 11-member City Council, one from each of the wards and three chosen at-large.

Adding two members to the Council, said Councillor John J. Quinn, "will reflect a closeness to the people on the part of the Council that has not been in effect in Quincy in a number of years."

The eight-ward setup was laid out by a committee of councillors headed by Quinn and including Councillors Edward S. Graham of Ward 1 and William D. Delahunt of Ward 5, neither of whom is seeking re-election.

Quinn said it was accomplished by the committee "at a couple of informal work sessions."

It was approved unanimously by the full committee in a 15-minute meeting Tuesday morning. Ten minutes later the full Council took it up and it zipped through unanimously [8-0 with Councillor Joseph LaRaia absent] in 14 minutes.

The resolution asking the State Legislature to approve the shift in voting dates was offered as an amendment by Councillor Delahunt. The referendum is necessary because the eight-ward setup involves a city charter change.

Delahunt said that since elections already were scheduled for Sept. 18 and Nov. 6, holding the referendum Sept. 18 and the preliminary election Nov. 6 would result in "less chaos and administrative confusion."

Dec. 4 was selected for the final election date, he said, "because it's the first Tuesday in December and people are accustomed to voting on Tuesday."

City Clerk John Gillis said the added election would cost the city somewhere between $7,500 and $15,000.

Tuna And Taxes

'A Job To Be Done, Problems To Be Solved'

By JOANNE PELTON

"There is a job to be done and problems to be solved," says Mrs. Grace E. [McIntire] Saphir. And, she'd like to tackle them both as the first woman mayor in Quincy's history.

Mrs. Saphir, an attractive 57, formally announced her candidacy at a press conference last week at the Carlton House.

Later, during an interview with the Quincy Sun, she was asked what she thought about the $1.10 drop in this year's tax rate.

"I couldn't even buy a can of tuna fish with that," she replied. "The rate should have gone down $14.90."

During the conference she stressed:

"The people should have an awareness of what is happening to our city and environment. The voters have lost contact with City Hall. Now is the time to stop this practice of no public accountability.

"We can have good government, invite good business and have proper growth responsible to the citizens, as well as sound environmental practices if our people are informed where their tax dollars go."

Mrs. Saphir, lifelong Quincy resident, lives at 921 East Squantum St., North Quincy. Her husband is Dr. Nelson R. Saphir, specialist in internal medicine and physician-in-chief at Quincy City Hospital. They have no children.

Mrs. Saphir is a graduate of Quincy High School class of 1933 and graduated from Rumford, Maine, Community Hospital School of Nursing in 1936. She also attended Simmons College and Boston University. She was a head nurse at New England Medical Center until retiring and was executive director at Pratt Diagnostic Clinic where she helped design and lay out plans for the clinic.

Mrs. Saphir is an active member of numerous organizations, including various ecological and conservation groups. She was the past president of Seaside Gardeners, member of the Squantum Women's Club, member of the Quincy Federation of Women's Clubs, past co-chairman of Conservation and Gardens of Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Saphir was appointed the first woman chairman of the Quincy Conservation Commission, by former Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa in 1965. After serving the commission for four years she resigned to found Save the Shores Inc., [S.O.S.] a non-partisan, non-profit but taxable organization which lobbies to preserve and clean up Boston Harbor as a national park for America's bicentennial. She has been president of S.O.S. for four years. She is also an advisory board member of the New England Offshore Mining Environmental Study, a member of the Neponset Conservation Association, and she is on the board of directors of the Massachusetts Association of Conservation Commission and associate member of the Massachusetts Conservation Council.

She is also past president of the South Shore Toastmasters Club, former executive director International Ladies Garment Union Clinic, Boston, past president of Norfolk South District Medical Society Auxiliary, member of the Tufts Medical Faculty Wives Club, Quincy Doctor's Wives Club, member of the 200 Club for Medical Research, member of the Quincy City Hospital Auxiliary, member of the Quincy Citizens Association, and member of the Quincy Historical Society.

During her press conference, she said:

"I seek the office of mayor of the City of Quincy because this city should not be allowed to drift away from the voices of the people. The voters have lost contact with City Hall. Now is the time to stop this practice of no public accountability.

"We can have good government, invite good business and have proper growth responsive to the citizens as well as sound environmental practices if our people are informed as to where their tax dollars go."

"It is my belief that fairness to all, the homeowner, the elderly, the young, the student, and business can bring happiness and contentment again to this city. If we invite good clean business, treat it well it will be patronized so that mass exodus of our citizens and the loss of good business will cease.

"I seek the office of mayor to balance the scales so that we can have confidence and contentment within our city with good government.

"I shall not give you all the answers now, but I intend to through any media available and keep you informed with full explanations as to where we are going economically and still maintain sound ecological practices.

"So let us think of sincerity and fairness to citizens and business alike, lets work together and give the citizens a voice in City Hall.

"The old saying that you cannot fight City Hall is taboo. We can and will, in order to protect our constitutional rights and restore sound responsive government to Quincy. It is a challenge and one we are eager to accept and win."

Councillors Most Concerned Lose Little

Three of the four Quincy City Councilors most personally concerned apparently have little to lose under the new eight-ward setup.

Councillors Albert P. Barilaro, Clifford H. Marshall and J. Vincent Smyth retain much of their old ward strength.

All three are candidates for re-election.

The fourth councillor, Theophilus McLelland III, keeps most but loses a lot and adds an unknown quantity to his ward.

He is not yet an announced candidate for re-election.

Barilaro, who lives at 65 Grove St. in Ward 4, Precinct 4, retains all four precincts of his old ward and adds Precinct 3 of Ward 3.

Marshall, who resides at 64 Edison St. in Ward 2, Precinct 3, keeps all four precincts of his old ward and adds Precinct 1 of Ward 3.

Smyth, who makes his home at 184 Landsdowne St. in Ward 6, Precinct 5, keeps four of his old ward's eight precincts and loses the other four.

McLelland, who lives at 37 Pembroke St. in Ward 3, Precinct 5, retains three of the five precincts in his old ward, loses the other two and adds Precincts 1, 2 and 6 of Ward 1.

The two other ward members of the City Council, Edward S. Graham and William D. Delahunt, are not seeking re-election.

The at-large councillors, Arthur H. Tobin, John J. Quinn and Joseph LaRaia, are not affected by the eight-ward plan.

Governor Holds Reception For Quincy Students On Registration Bill

Governor Francis Sargent signed into law July 2 Senate Bill 1546, an act providing for voter registration sessions in high schools and vocational schools and drafted by Ronald P. Iacobucci a student at Quincy High School.

Governor Sargent held a reception Wednesday at the State House for Quincy High School Social Studies Students who lobbied for the legislation.

The new law permits students who are not registered voters to petition local registrars of voters to appear at high schools and vocational schools across the state to conduct a voter registration session.

The legislation developed from a social studies project that encouraged student voters to petition City Clerk John Gillis to register students in the high school.

Gillis held three registration sessions, swearing in 35 students the first time, 76 students the second time, and 212 students at the last session in May.

The legislation was filed by Senator Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy]. Iacobucci was assisted in drafting the legislation by Robert Cerasoli, Legislative Assistant to Senator Tobin.

The new law will facilitate the mobilization of the youth vote across the state. Credit belongs to Senator Tobin, who played a significant role in the progress of Senate Bill 1546.

Senator Tobin supported the bill in the Senate and fought for its passage when others desired to see it killed. Representatives Clifford Marshall, Thomas Brownell, and William Delahunt who safeguarded the interests of Senate Bill 1546 while in the House, and its moving sponsors who put their education to practical use by writing it and lobbying for it every step of the way.

- Pentagon Wants Bombing Continued
- Double Dipping In Taxpayers Pockets
- Lack Of Proof In POW Case

WASHINGTON — Some Pentagon generals are looking for ways to continue the bombing of Cambodia beyond the August 15 deadline.

Air Force brass hats are doing their utmost to persuade the South Vietnamese to take up the bombing when U.S. bombers are finally withdrawn. The Air Force believes that the continued shower of explosives on jungles and rice paddies is essential to prevent a Communist takeover.

The South Vietnamese, however, are as opposed to the suggestion as the congressional doves. The South Vietnamese believe they need all their air power to defend their own country.

In an effort to change General Thieu's mind, the generals are now looking for ways around the Paris peace agreements, so more planes and more bombs can be handed over to the Saigon government.

All of this would seem to fly in the face of Henry Kissinger's efforts to bring Prince Sihanouk back from Peking and put him in power in Cambodia as head of a coalition government. But intelligence reports suggest that Sihanouk is merely a figurehead and has no real power to negotiate a peace agreement.

It looks as if President Nixon, in his effort to bring peace to Vietnam, has heightened the war in Cambodia.

Chou's No: President Nixon is eager to have Chou En-lai visit him in Washington. Previously, Chou has turned down Nixon's invitations, explaining he could never come to the United States as long as Chiang Kai-shek's government has an embassy in Washington. But newspapers have speculated that the Chinese premier will now accept a White House invitation.

The latest word from CIA sources, however, suggests that Chou is more determined than ever to stay away.

When I knew Chou in Chungking during World War II, he had a surprisingly shrewd grasp of American politics. He is an exceedingly sophisticated man and it is highly unlikely that his understanding would have diminished during the last three decades.

Chou must be aware how badly Nixon has been weakened by the Watergate scandal. It would be out of character for the wily Chou to venture into an American political hornet's nest at this time.

The secret CIA reports indicate that Chou is not eager for a White House dinner, when he knows it may leave him hungry an hour later.

Lack of Proof: The Pentagon's dismissal of court martial charges against former American prisoners of war was not based solely on a willingness to forgive and forget. Investigators have determined that there was no hard evidence to back up the charges.

The two men who brought the charges, Col. Theodore Guy and Rear Adm. James Stockdale, are reported to be bitter about the dismissal, but willing to follow the military code of obedience. Stockdale has protested privately to the Pentagon that the dismissal makes him "look bad."

Guy and Stockdale charged that the men received special treatment, including food, beer, cigarettes, peanuts and tours of Hanoi in return for making antiwar statements and giving information against their fellow prisoners.

The men say they made the antiwar statements because they — like hundreds of other Americans — honestly opposed the war. But they vigorously deny ever giving information that would hurt their fellow prisoners.

Colonel Guy said his charges could be backed up by 12 witnesses. Pentagon investigators learned, however, that the witnesses could offer only hearsay testimony. It was widely whispered, but never proven, that the men rattled on the other prisoners.

So far as the Pentagon could find, the charged POWs were merely the victims of old soldier stories.

Military Might: Two Democratic congressmen, John Moss of California and Michael Harrington of Massachusetts, want to take a hard look at the influence of the military academies on American life. They feel that the military aristocracy, particularly graduates of West Point, are influencing government policy.

From the first days of our Republic, our forefathers have been suspicious of military influence. No less a folk hero than Davy Crockett warned against the growing power of West Point.

Now, however, military men with close personal ties to the top men in the Pentagon hold top policy positions in the civilian branches of government. General Alexander Haig has taken over as President Nixon's chief of staff. Major General John Dunn is deputy chief of staff for Vice President Spiro Agnew.

And hundreds of other retired military men are scattered through the federal government. They are called "double dippers" and draw military pensions and civilian salaries at the same time from the taxpayers.

It may be difficult, however, for Congress to look at the controversy objectively. The Constitution specifically states that "no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office." Yet dozens of congressmen hold military commissions.

Once, a Kansas senator named James Henry Lane was ejected from Congress for accepting a reserve brigadier's commission in the Union Army. Now reserve officers fit on the congressional committees that have jurisdiction over the Armed Forces.

A lot of people feel that patriotism is definitely out of style and anyone who doesn't think so is a square.

And with still more Watergate scandal oozing to the surface in Washington like an over-filled septic tank, maybe the cynics have a pretty strong argument.

But when a former POW like Comdr. Richard Stratton comes home and relates a little incident about imprisonment in Vietnam, it kind of restores your faith.

Stratton confided that where he was confined, prisoners made a small American flag and each day one of the prisoners became its custodian. It was passed from one to another. They could have been shot if caught with it.

The flag helped get them through their ordeal.

THE DEATH LAST week of actor Robert Ryan brought back, for this writer, memories of Adlai Stevenson's campaign for the Presidency in 1952.

I was aboard Stevenson's campaign train as it traveled from Boston to Rhode Island. On board were Ryan, Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall—all staunch supporters.

The train stopped in Quincy. Before Stevenson spoke, then City Councillor David Crowley had the honor of introducing him. Crowley introduced "the next Democratic president of the U.S."

Of course, Crowley was wrong. But, ironically, standing on the platform that day WAS the next Democratic president of the U.S. A young Congressman named John F. Kennedy.

COUNCILLOR William Delahunt who is giving up his Ward 5 seat, looks like a sure bet to run for council at-large. Regardless of whether there is an open at-large slot or not. An official announcement is expected shortly.

MEANWHILE, speculation is still mounting that Council President Arthur Tobin will bow out as a council candidate. [But a few still wouldn't be surprised to see him toss his hat into the Mayoralty ring as an 11th hour surprise.]

AND, at this writing, it appears that Joseph LaRaia has abandoned thoughts of running for mayor this year and will seek re-election to his at-large seat instead.

MAX ZIDES of Hum 'N Strum fame read the story of Mrs. Grace Saphir's candidacy for mayor in The Sun last week and that sent him down memory lane.

Recalls that he, Dr. Nelson Saphir [Mrs. Saphir's husband] and the latter's brother, Ollie, played together as teenagers in Bob Emery's Big Brother Orchestra. That was back in the late 1920's.

"We were pretty good, too," said Max.

They got together on Emery's TV show a few years ago for a reunion.

The girls sped to her house while all the other girls stood patiently on the seawall waiting. They got back in time for the photo. As soon as the camera clicked, it started pouring again. The photo is on Page 1 of today's Sun.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Q - Recently I attempted to obtain credit for a major purchase—however, I was refused. Am I entitled to review my credit report?

A - Yes. Massachusetts law provides that consumers who have been denied credit have the right to review their credit reports upon request. The person who refuses credit must give the name and address of the credit bureau which supplied the unfavorable report.

Q - While going over my credit report after having been refused credit, I discovered that my dossier contained erroneous information. What recourse do I have?

A - If a consumer learns that he has been refused credit due to erroneous information, he may ask the credit bureau to reinvestigate his credit report. If after the reinvestigation, the information is found to be inaccurate the agency must delete the information from the files. If the dispute remains unresolved, the consumer may file a brief statement describing the problem. The agency must record in any future reports that certain information is disputed. After deletion the agency must notify any person designated by the consumer who within two years has received a credit report containing the inaccuracies for employment purposes or within six months for any other purpose.

Q - Does everyone have a credit rating?

A - No. Everyone does not have a credit rating. A person gets a credit rating when he files an application for credit and lists the people with whom he does business.

A Tiny Place

Just a tiny place to live in,
Under the old oak tree,
From the outside looking in,
That's all it seems to be.
But if you should knock upon the door,

You soon would be welcomed in,

At once, you'd feel the kindness

That warms the air within.
You'd know the needs you may have,

Would be handled with special care,

For that's the kind of people,
You'll find are living there.

Before you go you'd want to know,

What made this place a home,
With so much love-it overflows,

Beneath it's shingled dome.

The kindly couple would say to you,

With bright and smiling faces,
"We simply did it all with

Our Dear Lord's good graces.
For first to HIM we gave our place,

So many years ago;
And with his love that fills each room -

It just had to grow and grow.

'SWAPPING PARTNERS'

A reader writes a sad letter ... "What shall I do since my husband keeps pressuring me for wife swapping with his best friend, I like his friend ... but I don't want to go to bed with him. I want sexual relationship only with my husband. His friend's wife and I are friends ... she seems half way willing ... so I feel a lot of pressure on me. What will be the result if I do?"

Wife swapping ... is happening in every town ... and nearly always results in hurt to someone. The term "wife swapping" indicates by whom the arrangements are usually made ... the husbands. If the arrangements were usually made by wives I suppose this game would be called "husband swapping". The implication, therefore, is in itself degrading to women ... as though they are objects to be swapped.

Why is this form of relationship occurring ... many people say with more and more frequency. One reason is that people become BORED WITH THE MARRIAGE. This is particularly true if the marriage was based on sex and little else. Sex isn't enough to make a marriage work. It won't work without it ... but conversation ... companionship ... working ... playing ... suffering together so bring two people together so that they want to feel the warmth of each other's bodies and personalities. If that's missing ... sex becomes a bore ... "ho-hum what else is new" attitude.

On the other hand ... some couples have never really developed their sexual relationship. It remains a "teen-age" male satisfaction experience ... over and over again ... with decreasing reward for both ... particularly the wife. Swapping partners may be an effort to find new satisfactions ... which would be present within the marriage if each knew what to do. There still remains much ignorance about sex. Ignorance in one circumstance doesn't get removed simply by changing partners. Variety in sex is most rewarding in marriage if you know how.

So many of our religious commitments have gone by the way that the idea of marriage sanctity is not the commitment it once was. I hear both women and men say from time to time ... "I don't care if he/she has an affair just so he/she doesn't let me know about it." This seems to me to be an ostrich attitude. We go back to that all important factor in marriage ... COMMUNICATION. If there is a disagreement about the dissatisfaction about the sexual relationship it should be openly discussed ... and dealt with by the partners or if need-be with professional help. To try to solve a poor sexual relationship by swapping wives probably does not address itself to the problem.

Wife swapping often leads to two divorces ... distressed children ... and remarriage which may not bring the desired new happiness. There are many commitments that must be made to make a marriage a happy relationship. Sex is one of them ... only one.

To my reader I say ... be what you want to be ... be true to yourself ... try to talk through with your husband to find the meaning of his request. Maybe he's trying to tell you something in this way. Wife swapping is not usually recommended in either the best psychological nor theological circles.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

'Anyone Trying To Change Incumbents First Rule?'

"Is anybody doing anything to change the rule that incumbents always come first on the ballot?" asked a caller to the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone.

The VIP Phone reported that there have been court cases challenging this practice and legislation is currently being considered to change the incumbent-first rule.

Eight bills relating to the order of names on the ballot were filed and heard by the Election Laws Committee which recommended further study. This order goes through Joint Rules to the House and Senate and if passed, the Legislative Research Council will investigate possibilities such as the following:

● Ballot names listed alphabetically without regard to incumbency.

● Ballot names in random order determined by drawing of lots.

● Ballots printed in as many lots as required so each candidate for each office shall appear first and in each other position the same number of times.

● Present system.

The Council will report and further legislation may come up this year - or next year for sure. So look for action by the next statewide election.

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters' Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP Phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

St. John's Church Family Outing To Begin Centennial Observance

St. John's Church, Quincy, will open its centennial observance Sunday Aug. 19 with a family outing and picnic at Faxon Park for all present and former parishioners.

The all day outing is the first in a series of special social and spiritual activities being planned to commemorate the founding of the church and parish more than one hundred years ago.

There is no charge for the outing. Faxon Park will be open at 9 a.m. and special games, contests, competition and events will commence at 1 p.m.

There will be a band concert by the Morrisette Legion Post band beginning at 4 p.m.

Awards and prizes will be given to the winners of the various events.

All men of the parish who are interested in assisting in planning the outing are invited to attend the next meeting of the planning committee to be held July 30 at 8 p.m. in the Parish Hall.

Serving on the committee are: Rev. Joseph Connolly, James Fostello, James Fostello, Anthony Constantino, Anthony Quintilliani and John Noonan.

Survival, Inc. Receives $30,801 Grant From State

Survival, Inc., Quincy's drug treatment center, has been awarded a grant of $30,801 from the Division of Drug Rehabilitation of the State Department of Mental Health.

Executive Director Robert F. Hassey said the grant will be used to supplement other funding sources and will help to pay many of the agency's operating expenses.

Hassey also announced that Survival's in-patient Redirection Residence at 1230 Hancock St. will be open "in a matter of days". Eventually it will house 20 to 25 addicted young persons.

It has already accepted some participants on an out-patient basis. They are now doing maintenance and repair chores at the Residence and moving in furniture that has been stored at other places around the city.

Hassey said that Supporters of Survival, an auxiliary group that provides the agency's fund-raising and publicity, is being reorganized. The Supporters recently held a successful fund-raising flea market.

Community Vacation Church School July 23-Aug. 3

The Community Vacation Church School sponsored by the Wollaston Baptist, Congregational and Methodist Churches will be held July 23 through Aug. 3 at the Wollaston Congregational Church, Winthrop Ave., Wollaston.

Classes will be held 9:30 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday. Children age 4 through grade 6 are welcome.

Prior registration is not necessary.

'Creation Day Camp' Opens At Chrysostom's July 23

"Creation Day Camp", a non-denominational camp, open to all children entering grades 1 through 6, will begin at St. Chrysostom's Church, 1 Linden St., Wollaston, July 23.

The two-week camp will meet mornings, 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. "Exploring Our City" is the theme of this year's camp. The heritage of Quincy, past, present and future will be conveyed through field trips supplemented by song, crafts, games, stories and puppet shows. Tours will include the Quincy Historic Trail, City Hall and other important sites.

Further information may be obtained at the Church office or by calling 472-0737.

Petitions For Probe Of Mental Institutions

Parishioners of the Boston Church of Scientology will be in Quincy Friday and Saturday circulating a petition asking Gov. Francis W. Sargent for an immediate investigation of state and private mental institutions. "We are aware of a general public outrage concerning abuses in mental hospitals," says Rev. William Bromfield of the church's Committee on Public Health and Safety.

"This petition will give the public the opportunity to voice their concern to someone who can do something about the problem.

"There have been numerous exposes of mental health abuses over the past year but this is merely the tip of the iceberg. A full government investigation will reveal the whole iceberg."

Sir Thomas More Competition July 28

$3.4 Million In Federal Aid

Community Programs For Troubled Youth Can Function Fully

By PAUL FELDMAN

The full 1973 fiscal year appropriation of $3.4 million in federal aid has been received by the Mass. Department of Youth Services and community-based programs for troubled youths can function fully according to Commissioner Joseph Leavey, speaking at a press conference at City Hall Tuesday.

Leavey, who appeared in Quincy to explain changes in and announce future goals of the troubled department he took over in January, said:

"We intend to act largely as a supervisory agency overseeing the operations of numerous private service organizations. We will still maintain detention facilities and certain longer term residential programs. But we never again intend to become mere custodians for troubled youths."

The new system of the private supervision of youths who are referred to the Youth Services Department by the courts, is carried out through foster home settings and small, community based homes run by non-profit organizations.

"We intend to seek out citizens groups in local communities who will make a budget, buy a home, and go out and set it up properly," said the commissioner.

According to Quincy Youth Commission Coordinator William Connolly who attended the conference, Quincy now has one true state-board affiliated and funded center, the Donner House at 776 Hancock St. Donner House is run by the Protestant Social Service Bureau.

Connolly, appointed by the Mayor to the new position in February, coordinates all Quincy youth services not handled by the Recreation Department. He said that he is working with the State Youth Services Board, setting up foster homes in Quincy through various churches. He also said that he is attempting to set up a group home for problem girls, a priority according to Leavey.

Leavey said, "Society has too long taken the position that because female delinquency is generally not harmful to others, then little money should be spent rehabilitating women. We reject this premise out of hand."

The other major goal of the State Department's program is to provide adequate intensive care units.

"At certain times, some kids are so self-destructive they won't take anyone's help so we still need some close settings. But we won't lock them and leave them," said Leavey.

He called for small 10 to 20 unit treatment oriented centers to replace the overcrowded Roslindale unit.

A number of Quincy residents voiced their concerns to Leavey at the conference. Harry Roemer of the Quincy Taxpayers Association asked whether or not some troubled children aren't "making fools" of the people trying to help them by running away from the unlocked community facilities.

Leavey replied that there are still locked detention facilities at Roslindale when needed but "the great majority of kids won't run from the new centers if the program is good."

Jeffrey Isaacson, Director of the Southwest Community Center, asked whether there are any plans for youth advisory councils on the state and local Youth Boards.

While Leavey said that there are no such plans at the state level, Connolly promised that the Quincy Youth Commission will attempt to create a youth council in the near future.

In 1970, there was a daily average of 507 youths incarcerated in institutions. Now, institutions hold a daily average of only 22 young people. In the same period, the average group home population has risen from 125 youngsters to 770.

African, Indian cuisine blend in U.S. style

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Copley News Service

The cooking of America is a wonderful blend of cuisines from all over the world. For those who dare to be adventurous, there is fun aplenty in cooking.

Among the cuisines which are popular in this country are those of India and Africa.

The recipes featured today are a sampling of recipes from those areas.

They are Chicken, Moroccan Style, and South Indian Chicken Curry.

CHICKEN, MOROCCAN STYLE

- 1 (2½ to 3 lb.) chicken, cut into 8 pieces
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- ¼ cup freeze-dried shallots
- ½ teaspoon instant minced garlic
- 7 tablespoons water, divided
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- ¾ teaspoon oregano leaves
- 2 tablespoons parsley flakes

Sprinkle chicken with salt and black pepper. In a large skillet place 2 tablespoons of the butter and the oil; heat until butter is melted. Add the chicken and brown well on all sides. Meanwhile, rehydrate shallots and garlic in 3 tablespoons of the water for 10 minutes. Remove chicken from skillet; set aside. Add shallots and garlic; saute 3 minutes. Add remaining 4 tablespoons water, lemon juice, lemon peel and oregano. Return chicken to skillet. Cover and simmer 30 to 40 minutes or until chicken is tender. Remove chicken to serving platter. Add parsley and remaining 2 tablespoons butter to sauce. Pour over chicken and serve immediately with cooked rice, if desired.

Yield: 4 portions.

SOUTH INDIAN CHICKEN CURRY

- 2 (2½ to 3 lb. each) chickens, cut into 8 pieces
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ cup salad oil
- ¼ cup celery flakes
- 3 tablespoons instant

- minced onion
- 1 two-thirds cups water, divided
- 4 teaspoons curry powder
- ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes

Sprinkle chicken with salt. In a Dutch oven or large heavy saucepan heat oil. Add chicken, a few pieces at a time, and brown well on all sides. Meanwhile, rehydrate celery flakes and minced onion in one-third cup of the water for 10 minutes. Remove chicken; set aside. Add celery, onion, curry powder and ginger; saute 3 minutes. Stir in flour and cook 2 minutes. Stir in remaining 1 one-third cups water and bouillon cubes. Bring to boiling point, stirring constantly. Return chicken to Dutch oven; reduce heat; cover and simmer 30 to 40 minutes or until chicken is tender. Serve with cooked rice, if desired.

Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

Father's affair a worry

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I am completely crushed. I've just discovered that my father is having an affair with one of the women in his office. My father is 57 and looks 45. I understand that this woman is about 30, has been married three times, and wants a meal ticket.

I've seen this gold digger; and, to me, she looks cheap and older than 30. Don't give me the line that my mother let herself go because she hasn't. She has a good figure, entertains beautifully, and is liked by friends, family, and even in-laws. You can't beat that.

What I want to know is: Should I tell my mother what I know?

Crushed

Dear Crushed:

Don't tell your mother what you know. TELL YOUR FATHER.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have what I consider a serious problem. I lack friends. I am 18 and have always made good grades and consider myself better looking than the average girl. I have a good figure and pretty long hair. I can carry on an interesting conversation and am not the least bit self-conscious. What is wrong?

Bette

Dear Bette:

Count the 1's in your letter. That is one thing that is wrong. Stop thinking about yourself long enough to become interested in others. Perhaps this will make finding a bit easier.

To Jenny in Canada:

From the mail I receive I would say that 30 per cent of the teen-agers going steady would like to break up. There are as many reasons for breaking up as there are for going together. Probably your boyfriend just got tired of being with one person. At your age, you should date a variety of boys so that you will recognize "Mr. Right" when he does come along.

For The Week Of July 22 To 28

By GINA
Copley News Service

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Concern yourself with "big things" and disregard trivial issues and petty annoyances. Use inspirational ability now to solve important problems. Tighten budget if necessary. Consult experts on real estate.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — If caught up in a conflict or indecisive frame of mind, delay important decisions if possible. Matters will be clearer shortly. Be cautious about speculation. Work now to lay plans — sign papers later.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Curb restless desire for change. Patient, future perspectives will pay off. Others notice your stable patterns now. After recent storms, things appear all quiet on the domestic front. Possible residence change.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Give consideration to payment schedules if purchasing major items. A position of honor or prestige may be offered. Communication from someone at a distance or out of the past is likely now. Make contacts.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — You may be required to show your work results. Make sure all is in order. Stay on top of professional projects. Good time to redecorate home surroundings. Small discussion groups can give personal insight.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Relax now and recoup energies. Improve personal appearance. Utilize charm to improve public relations. Let your optimism show. Continue working on projects already launched. Improve health with diet.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Get out and about with friends. Join in community recreational functions. Possibility of renewing old friendships. Develop intuitive faculties through reading, meditation and research into psychic realms.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Be alert to moves by competitors. Pay attention to mate or partnership matters. Seek competent legal advice before signing papers. Be intuitively aware of motives behind friendly gestures.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Make the most of creative juices. Show confidence and appreciation of efforts of employees or coworkers. Take a serious attitude with partners or mate with problems. Accept offer of public appearance.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Fight boredom and tend to business. Change your pace by enjoying activities with children, summer-time pleasures. Romantic attraction to a different kind of person is possible. Be discreet.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — You begin a new phase now. Don't cling to past ideas — old concepts. Go inside yourself for important decisions. Use talent and vision. Give time and attention to children. Don't be overly strict.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — You can mend the breach with those friends or relatives who are estranged. Achieve a more solid base now through help and advice of older or established people. Financial situation eases soon.

THE SUN IS NOW IN LEO. A desire to be center stage, front, characterizes the Leo personality. Extremely warm and generous, they can inspire others to follow their example. Excessive pride and need for praise can make them prey to the flatterer.

Pants lose some flare

By BETH MOHR
Copley News Service

Pants will lose some of their flare, though none of their popularity, for fall and winter. "Tubular" and "straight" are the words used most often to describe silhouettes of pants in new collections being introduced by New York Designers.

Materials can take part of the credit for determining the new pants looks. Suede, tweed, corduroy and velvet are some of the favorites. All of them respond to the tailoring of neat straight lines. That means that many of the pinch-pleated waistlines of the last few seasons have been smoothed out, too.

The more clean-cut lines also provide an attractive balance for the bulkiness of new toppers. Short and long sweaters are in heavy yarns and a number of deep textures, including the interesting designs of fisherman's sweater patterns. Large square and shawl collars add to the heavy theme.

Many jackets are long or blouson, providing the same roomy look at the top.

Some flared pants will remain, to go with the cashmere sweaters and cardigans that turn up season after season as fashion lovers women refuse to put aside.

There's A Bit Of Rome At Balducci's Sub, Pizza Shop

By PAUL FELDMAN

Sculptures, murals, pillars...are you in Rome? No, it's Balducci's Sub and Pizza Shop at the corner of Billings Rd and Hancock St.

Balducci's, remodelled seven months ago, is one of the most immaculate submarine sandwich shops in existence. Elegance and cleanliness are features that stand out in this large shop decorated in a blue and white Roman motif.

Ken Balducci, the owner, grew up in South Quincy and now resides in West Quincy. A former football star, he graduated from both Quincy High School and American International College, where he received a B.S. degree in Accounting and Business Administration.

Ken and his wife Mary, who have been married for five years, have one child, Joel, age 4.

Ken's main hobby is collecting records. He has almost a thousand albums and his favorite artist is Frank Sinatra. "But I like all kinds of music, except rock, depending on the mood," he says.

Ken would not listen to his records on anything but the best equipment and he owns both KLH and Lear systems. Recently, he discovered a classic 1914 Victrola at an antique shop and he has fixed it up so it plays as good as new.

Ken has been in the sandwich business for nine years. "My brother Noel is my right hand man and we have over 12 employees including the regulars, Dot and Rose."

Balducci's was remodelled by

Donny Aikens who has put similar new-looks into Montilio's in Quincy Square and Maria's in Braintree. Aikens personally painted the authentic, wall-length Roman mural in Balducci's.

Balducci has a large and distinct variety of sandwiches and pizza's. Besides the standards, Balducci makes cheeseburger, knockwurst, and lobster salad subs. "We have a good variety and remember, there's more meat than pickles in my sandwiches."

His pizza specialties, which he makes from 4:30 p.m. to closing time at 11 p.m., are kielbasa [polish sausage] and linguica [portuguese sausage]. "We stress a variety in pizza and these meats are even tastier than the sausage and pepperoni that we also carry."

STUTTERING AND NERVOUS TENSION

Stuttering is a frustrating problem. Speech is dependent on a highly complex mechanism that can easily be disturbed by nervous tension and self-consciousness.

Some medical experts speak of the "stutter type" of child. Such a child may show symptoms of inborn nervousness. He often suffers from nightmares, bites his nails and may have difficulty in meeting people.

The stutterer is too much concerned with what others are thinking of him. His real problem is not the ability to talk. His trouble is that he is afraid he will not measure up properly to what others expect of him.

Stutterers are usually able to talk without difficulty when alone. In many cases, the more worried the parents become over the child's speech, the worse he will stutter.

MONEY TALKS

Child's Use of Money Reflects His Character

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Hallowbrook
8-6 weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Discerning parents will acquire insights into the character and personality of their youngsters as they observe how they spend the sums allotted to them. Johnny scrupulously hoards every penny in his piggy bank. Susie spends every dime and quarter treating acquaintances to ice cream cones and candy bars. Each child must be shown what thrift and generosity mean through the small amounts that are placed regularly in his care.

As the youngsters grow, so should their allowances, matching their age, abilities, and regular financial needs. A large portion of the allowance will involve required expenses—milk, bus fares, etc.—but there will always be "spending money" for use as desired.

One of the problems parents face is convincing each child that his allowance is fair. Within the family, gradations in age make differences in allowance logical to youngsters. Outside the family, however, it is not so easy to persuade Jimmy that he should not receive as much weekly as his playmate of comparable age does.

And, while the earning capacity of the family may affect the amount involved, it is usually not sizeable enough to be the principal factor. Far more important to the child is the awareness that what he receives is what is best for him in the judgment of his parents. To give more would do more harm than good to his education in the use of money.

As the children grow older and their sense of values develops, they can be brought into the more responsible phases of the family's financial life. Senior high school students who handle effectively the funds for school supplies, items of clothing (except major purchases like a suit or a winter coat) as well as lesser expenses, can be depended upon to exercise right judgments in the short years ahead when they will be in college or self-supporting.

Inclusion of minor toy repairs like replaced bicycle spokes in what the allowance should cover develops the child's capacity to budget for such needs—and, incidentally, may teach him to be more attentive to the care and preservation of his possessions.

We have heard some parents speak boastfully that their financial problems and other details of household operation have been spared from their children. They would show more consideration for their offspring if they would acquaint them gradually with the economic facts of life as they relate to their own familiar homes. Too many young people fresh out of high school nowadays are embarking upon marital careers without the slightest notion of the financial obligations they face.

Sam Mele Has Eye For Talent

By TOM SULLIVAN
Quincy Sun Writer

When Quincy's Sam Mele speaks, people listen.

Mele, former major league player, coach and manager (he piloted the Twins to the pennant in 1965), a keen judge of baseball talent, is a special assignment scout with the Red Sox but his duties entail much more than just scouting players.

He is a special instructor who works with the players on the various Sox farm clubs and he played a major role in Dwight Evans' quick rise to the Red Sox where he is one of their finest outfielders.

Mele, one of the most popular members of the Sox organization, a few years back at a Quincy Kiwanis luncheon, called the shot on Ben Oglivie, now a Sox outfielder.

When asked who he thought was the most promising Sox minor league player, Sam didn't hesitate to say "Ben Oglivie", and predicted he would be up with the Sox shortly. Ben joined the team the following year.

The next year at the Kiwanis luncheon Sam picked pitcher Steve Barr as one of the more promising minor leaguers and said he would be up with the parent club in short order. Although not yet with the Sox, (he had arm trouble) Barr is an outstanding minor league hurler.

Last year Evans was having his troubles hitting with Louisville but after Mele worked with him, he came alive and was named the International League's Most Valuable Player.

Evans came up near the end of the season and, despite the close American League Eastern Division race which saw the Sox lose out by half a game to Detroit, Eddie Kasko kept

SAM MELE

Dwight in the outfield. He is one of the finest defensive outfielders on the Sox squad and, although not hitting for average, has contributed some big hits.

"Sam Mele is an excellent baseball man and one of the most valuable men in our system," the late Neil Mahoney, then director of player procurement and scouting for the Sox, told me last summer.

Neil explained that Sam was not only a top scout but was invaluable to the Sox working as a batting instructor for the Sox minor league clubs. He makes the rounds of all the Boston farm clubs working with the hitters.

Sam is also credited with having much to do with the improved batting of first baseman Cecil Cooper, having a fine year with Pawtucket. He also spotted some flaws in Cooper's fielding which he straightened out.

Mele recently was on special duty with Boston's Winston-Salem club and has been working hard with Jack Baker, a big first baseman who has power to burn but has a tendency, according to Sam, to pull the ball, reducing his average and which, Mele feels, is totally unnecessary.

"He has the power to hit the ball out of any park in the country but he is off the ball too much," Sam said. "He's big and strong and has the power. They see the way he swings and throw him outside and he has been having his troubles. He is 6-5 and hits a lot of home runs. He has proved he can do it in the spring but when the season starts he gets into this bad habit and we have to fix it."

Although Baker is almost a stranger to the Red Sox front office, Mele, who several times straightened out Harmon Killebrew's batting problems when he was Twins manager and coach, thinks the big first baseman may have it.

So, Sox fans should keep Baker's name in mind. Because Sam Mele has proven often he knows what he is talking about when he speaks of a potential big leaguer.

Incidentally, Sam's son, Steve, who graduated last month from Abp. Williams High School, has been accepted at Dartmouth.

A fine baseball and basketball player like his dad [Sam] was a standout in basketball at New York University during the 1940's. Sam wants him to pursue a baseball career. His high school basketball coach, Chuck Chevalier, however, feels Steve would have a better chance in basketball.

"Steve was a remarkable player for me and I think he has a rosy future in basketball," Chuck said.

• Legion Baseball Morrisette Hopes Dim, Quincy Edged

Although the Morrisette Legion baseball team is enjoying another good season, prospects are not bright for a 19th Zone 6 championship.

When Morrisette defeated Hingham last week, it brought the defending champions' record to 8-3 with seven games left, including three rain-out games still to be replayed.

Despite that record, Morrisette's chances of another title are slim with Weymouth, which won both games with Morrisette, owning a 10-0 mark following last week's win over Quincy.

Quincy just about ended Morrisette's hopes by winning 3-1, and in its following game just missed helping Morrisette out when it lost a big lead and was edged by Weymouth.

Morrisette has only one game left with Weymouth Friday night and even if it wins, two other teams must upset Weymouth.

Last night [Wednesday] Morrisette hosted Milton. Friday it plays the big one at Weymouth while Quincy is home to Randolph at 8 p.m. under the lights at Adams Field. Monday Morrisette is at Randolph and Quincy faces Milton under the Adams Field lights and next Wednesday Quincy and Morrisette play at 8 at Adams.

Last Friday Morrisette kept its flickering hopes alive with a 4-1 win over Hingham but Quincy just missed its fifth win in a row and a boost for Morrisette when it lost a 6-1 lead and was nipped by unbeaten Weymouth, 8-7.

Morrisette received a fine pitching performance from Mark Dwyer, who was extremely rough with men on base. He gave up 10 hits and two walks but only run scored.

Dennis Maguire, Artie Boyle, Jim Driscoll and Jim McKinnon had two hits each and Lee Watkins one for Morrisette.

Quincy appeared well on its way to its fifth win in a row and in the process handing Weymouth its first loss. It picked up two runs in the third, two in the fourth and one in the sixth for a 5-1 lead. It added a run in the top of the seventh but Weymouth bounced back in the bottom half for five runs to tie the score and send the game into overtime.

Quincy regained the lead in the top of the eighth when Frank DiSalvo and Jim McCabe doubled but Weymouth scored twice in the bottom half for the win. The two winning runs were driven in by Vin Hillyer, the team's top pitcher who played first base in that game.

Mele, Morton and Dave Sten pitched for Quincy with Sten the loser.

A&T Defeats Alumni Cafe

A sacrifice fly by Bob Wertz produced the winning run in the seventh inning as the A & T Movers won a 17-16 slugfest from the Alumni Cafe to remain atop the Quincy Softball League's American League West division.

Charles McDonald went three for three, including a home run, and Frank Casey pounded out a pair of triples while also going three for three for the Movers.

Beau's Place gained slightly on the leaders by winning two games, including a 14-4 walloping of St. Catherine as Tom Moreno and Lenny Cinque hit two homers each and Bob Carroll and Ken Falco belted one round tripper apiece.

Dave Page went three for three and Jerry McCall hit two doubles for St. Catherine.

City's Recreation Program Underway

The Quincy Recreation Department's 1973 Summer Recreation Program is underway under the guidance of Recreation Director William F. Ryan, who will be completing his 18th summer at the helm of the many and varied programs which are a product of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board.

The unpaid board which serves as the policy making and governing group for the operation of the Recreation Department as well as the Park Department and the Forestry Division meets bi-monthly on the first and third Mondays of each month, as well as at hearing and visitations to sites and programs which are under their jurisdiction.

Joseph E. Burke is chairman of the Board, Theodore DeCristofaro vice chairman and Miss Katherine G. McCoy, secretary. Daniel G. Raymond is Mayor Hannon's appointee from the School Committee. Gerald A. Coletta Jr. and Burke are elected by the City Council. William J. Mitchell and Joseph F. Brophy complete the seven member Board.

Charles L. Alongi Jr., Assistant Recreation Director and Lionel H. Buckley, Supervisor General along with District Supervisors Brian Buckley, Frank Brillo, Paul Bregoli, Edwin Miller, Bernard Nolan and Charles West see to it the various playground programs are implemented.

In addition to the regular programs, specialists visit playgrounds on a regular basis bringing unique skills and expertise to the city's youth. They include: Robert Sullivan, archery specialist; Mrs. Dale

Alongi, Miss Mary-Ellen Grazioso and Miss Elizabeth Hanratty, arts & crafts specialists; Bradford Buckley and John Donovan, golf specialists; Miss Maureen Kelly and David Simpson, nature specialists and Kevin McGinley, tennis specialist.

Joseph Daly, boating and sailing supervisor, and instructors Michael O'Malley, Michael Morrissey, Carl Persson, Cheryl Smith, Thomas Sweeney, Michael Durkin and Stephen Kenny provide classes for both youth and adults at the Boathouse located at Black's Creek.

Barry Welch, water ski supervisor, and instructors Lee Davis, David Merrill and David Moran offer water skiing lessons at 14 locations.

Earl Vermillion, Day Camp Director and counselors John Osgood, Michael Martin, Michael Kenny, Deborah Larkin, Marie Lenard, Liz Mahoney, Jean Ricciuti, Dorothy Tehan, Windy Lepsky and Anne Smith provide Quincy's exceptional children with summer camp experiences at Happy Acres Day Camp in Merrymount Park.

Miss Julie Doherty, water safety supervisor, oversees the city's beaches and swim stations, insuring that her instructors provide quality lessons to non-swimmers through senior life saving candidates. Instructors include: Miss Mary Foy at the Adams Shore Beach, Miss Susan Ray and Miss Sherree Tripp at Avalon Beach, Miss Gail Senter, Baker Beach, Miss Theresa Phelan, Edgewater Beach; Miss Patricia Ready and Miss Nancy Lang, Bayfield Beach; Miss Nancy Ellis and Miss Debbie Sprague, Elm Street Beach; Miss Kathy McKenna and Miss Diane Dunn, Fermo Street Beach; Miss Lois MacLean, Mound Street Beach; Miss Frances Strazulla, Nickerson Beach; Miss Carole Sorenson, Orchard Beach; Miss Karen Murphy, Perry Beach; Miss Margaret Ryan, Rock Island Beach and Miss Roseanne Fantuechio, Snug Harbor Beach.

● Quincy Youth Hockey Sullivan's Hat Trick Paces Pee Wee Majors

Danny Sullivan's three-goal hat trick paced the Quincy Pee Wee Majors to an 8-2 victory over the Quincy Pee Wee Minors last week in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

Nine other players figured in the Majors scoring with Eddie Kane getting a goal and two assists, Mike Edwards, Bobby Hayes and Danny Cronin a goal and an assist each and Tommy Brennan two assists.

Kevin McGrath got the eighth goal with single assists credited to Brian Norton, Lennie Micelli and Brian McGilvary.

Scott Richardson and Freddie Palmer got the Minors' goals, assisted by Mike McSweeney, Mark Messina, Robbie McLugh and Dickie Reinhardt.

Quincy Mite Majors Wallop Scituate 16-3

Kevin Tenney and Dwayne Wilcox contributed two goals each as the Quincy Mite Majors walloped Scituate, 6-3, in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game last week.

Tommy Murphy and Chuckie Duffy had the other goals with two assists going to Rick Reardon and singles to Murphy, Chris Harrington, Bobby Lynch and Joe Harte.

The Quincy Mite Minors bowed to Columbia, 6-3, despite the goal scoring efforts of Scott Messina, David Edgins and Bobby McCabe, each of whom found the net once.

Assists were credited to John O'Connor, Chris Hurley, Brian Chase, Dennis Cronin, Billy Hughes and Danny Kelley.

Beniers Scores 2 As Squirt Majors Wins, 7-0

Bobby Beniers had two goals and Robbie Zanardelli and Chuckie Marshall a goal and two assists each as the Quincy Squirt Majors blanked the Quincy Squirt Minors 7-0, in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game last week. Tony Chiochio, Mark Boussey and Joey Rathgeb got the other goals with two assists racked up by Mike Doherty and a single by Mike Quigg.

Lingoes Wins Decision

Bobby Lingoes of Quincy, NEAAU boxing champ in the 132 pound class, decisioned Hartford Duane of Lowell in three rounds, at Rockingham Park recently.

Bouts are held at the Salem, N.H., race track after the races are over.

BOATING STUDY

A grant of $50,000 from the U.S. Coast Guard will enable the Red Cross to study such things as who the boating public is and what kinds of safety material it responds to, and may lead to new approaches to boating safety education. —

ALL-STAR GAME

On July 6, 1933, All-Star baseball was played for the first time in Chicago, the American League defeating the National League, 4 to 2.

Bad Day For Bantam Teams

Both Quincy Bantam teams went down to defeat in Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league games Monday [July 16].

The Majors lost their second game of the season, 4-2, to Weymouth as Mike McGrath and Tommy Cahill got the goals and Brian Watts and Rick Carnali were credited with assists.

The winless Minors bowed for the fifth straight time, 7-3, to Hingham as Jim Triglia got a goal and an assist, Johnny Kelley and Jack Campbell had a goal apiece and Dave Lewis collected an assist.

The Majors meet Hingham Monday [July 23] at 8:25 p.m. and the Minors take on Columbia at 7:15 p.m., both on Rink A, Hingham Arena.

4 North Players Picked For Agganis All-Star Game

Four North Quincy High football players will be joining Coach Ralph Frazier on the South squad which will play the North team in the annual Harry Agganis All-Star Football Classic Aug. 17 under the lights at Manning Bowl in Lynn.

Frazier and Watertown Coach John Barbaty will be assistants to South head coach Jim O'Connor of Catholic Memorial.

North's representatives in the game, started back in 1956 and which uses the proceeds for scholarship aid to college-bound student-athletes, will be Wayne Bell, Burt Bray, Bobby Morton and Steve Fransoso.

Bell, incidentally, will receive a $500 Agganis scholarship toward his tuition at Middlebury College, part of the more than $12,000 in scholarships expected to be awarded this year.

Quincy and North Quincy players have fared well in this annual game through the years and the Raiders' quartet is expected to follow suit.

The North squad will be coached by Stan Bondelevitch of Swampscott, assisted by Art Adamopoulos of Peabody and Joe Carven of Haverhill.

The two head coaches were the opposing coaches in last December's Division 2 "Super Bowl" game won by Swampscott, 28-21.

The South squad will begin 12 days of practice on Aug. 1 at Boston College's Alumni Stadium.

Ticket information can be obtained by contacting the game's director, Dr. Elmo F. Benedetto, Box 454, Lynn.

"Our kids are really enthused about playing," Frazier said. "They will be playing before close to 15,000 people and they are going into the game with the idea of really fighting for a starting job. They'd like very much to make a good showing."

Granite City Wins Police Widen Lead

Burger King met defeat for the first time this year, at the hands of Granite City Electric, but continued to lead the Quincy Babe Ruth League's American League by a wide margin after last week's games.

The Police Boys Club won three games to widen its lead in the National League to two and a half games over the Hancock Bank.

Friday, July 6

Paul Messina threw a five-hitter and Mike Murphy and Lou Fishman had two hits each as the Police whipped Granite City Electric, 7-3. Mike Kelly doubled for Granite City.

Morrisette 10, Elks 6.

Monday, July 9

Lou Fishman limited Schultz-Doyle-Stoddard to four hits as the Police pounded out a 13-4 victory. Jack Powers, Paul Messina and Fishman each had two hits while Dave Perdios had a pair for SDS.

Douglas MacArthur Film Role Up For Grabs

Now that MARILYN CHAMBERS is no longer 99.44% Ivory Snow pure, she's become MARILYN CHAMBERS INC. a runaway $$$ corporation... If the PROCTOR & GAMBLE people hadn't blown the lid on their Box Top cover girl [after all how many people really "look" at the face on the Ivory Snow box????] the picture she stars in "BEHIND THE GREEN DOOR" would have never gotten off the $$$ launching pad... Initially it made a slight dent in the N.M.C. porno market. However, once the bigwigs at PROCTOR & GAMBLE blew the whistle on Miss CHAMBERS and said no, no, to her not so 99.44% pure screen capers, well, like wham-o, "GREEN DOOR" makes an economic run to daylight... Out of sight as they say...

ART and JIM MITCHELL, producers and distributors of the hit, runaway, hardcore porno sizzler, are representing CHAMBERS, INC. for all future films, records, personal appearances, and in the works, a book on her life... MARILYN is doing A-OK by "BEHIND THE GREEN DOOR". Her 3 1/2% of the distribution cut is earning her at the clip of $2,250 per month. At this writing [tomorrow a new porno starlet may appear] MARILY CHAMBERS and "DEEP THROAT'S" LINDA LOVEFACE are the reigning prima dona's of the porno flick scene...

America's going ape! Less than a month on the road and already "BATTLE FOR THE PLANET OF THE APES" has zipped over the $3 million mark... For a happy looksee down memory lane, go and see the ultimate in nostalgia trips, "LET THE GOOD TIMES ROLL". This Rockumentary brilliantly captures the duck tail flair of the American 50's, its Rock stars, mores, youth, culture and the national mood of the period... CHUCK BERRY, LITTLE RICHARD, FATS DOMINO, BO DIDDLEY, they're all there on celluloid to see, listen to, and just plain enjoy...

Producer FRANK MCARTHUR ["PATTON"] insists that the DOUGLAS MacARTHUR film role is still up for grabs. Contrary to false rumor JOHN WAYNE is not a leading contender for the role, just "one of several names being tossed about by columnists"... DONALD SUTHERLAND and JENNIFER O'NEILL are co-starred in the crime caper, and what shows promise of being one of the summer sizzlers, "LADY ICE"...

In case you're wondering about TV actor CLU GULAGER, he's now appearing in an important role in "McQ". "McQ", presently being shot on locale in the Northwest, is GULAGER's first motion picture in God only knows how long... Wouldn't it be smart of some television producer to talk RED SKELTON out of retirement. SKELTON's unique brand of humor is sorely missed...

Two individuals one would never find at the same cocktail party are WNEW-TV newsmen [N.Y.C.] GABE PRESSMAN and former newscaster CHET HUNTLEY. Speaking at a TV Academy luncheon in New York recently, PRESSMAN accused HUNTLEY of lack of integrity, honesty and objectivity... "Watergate is a symbol of corruption, and it has horrified many people in this country. But if morality is important to us [newscasters], we should first examine our own house and see the example we set for the American people," PRESSMAN said...

PRESSMAN continues, ... "I'm thinking especially of a former colleague of mine CHET HUNTLEY, who through the medium became a force in American life-a symbol of cool objectivity and commercial detachment. He's traded on the fact that because of all his years in the profession, people think he's honest and fair. And so HUNTLEY "hustles" a product [American Airlines] on network television. What he's done is debase the profession [newscasting] by becoming a professional huckster"...

"JESUS CHRIST SUPERSTAR" combines the best of both cinema worlds, at once being an aware modern statement of faith, and at the same time being a joyous musical celebration... For the curious, director PETER BOGDANOVICH is battling 1,000 as a maker of hits. His unbroken string of four motion pictures are "TARGETS", "THE LAST PICTURE SHOW", "WHAT'S UP DOC?" and "PAPER MOON"...

Durango, Mexico has 1880 atmosphere, or why else would a succession of movie companies build Old West sets there. And the Mexican government knows the "atmosphere" lure of Durango... The State of Durango has decreed that sets built there [over a dozen] must be left intact as an attraction to further troupes... TV's most famous second banana ED McMAHON does one bang-up impressive job in the JIM BROWN topbiller "SLAUGHTER'S BIG RIP-OFF"

Firefighters To Hold Tag Day For Muscular Dystrophy Saturday

Quincy Firefighters will hold a "Tag Day To Defeat Dystrophy" Saturday July 21, starting at 9 a.m. and continuing all day.

An antique fire engine will be on display, and the firefighters will be accepting donations in the Quincy Center area. They will also be collecting in front of Supermarkets.

The entire proceeds will be given to Muscular Dystrophy Associations, Norfolk-Plymouth Chapter, for the support of their patient service and research programs.

A check will be presented by members of Quincy Firefighters' Local 792 on the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon carried locally on WKBG-TV, Channel 56, in Boston.

Chairman of the Tag Day is James Donovan, President of Local 792.

6% Hospital Rate Increase Found 'Reasonable'

A City Council committee has found that a 6 per cent increase in room rates requested by Quincy City Hospital is reasonable and even insufficient to meet the hospital's 1973-74 fiscal year obligations.

The committee, headed by Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, discovered that the increase would bring in nearly $200,000, not enough to close the gaps in the nearly $19 million budget.

The remainder of the anticipated receipts are expected to come from outstanding obligations of the state and other third parties and an increase in admissions.

The committee reported that the six per cent increase was a minimal request and did not exceed similar action taken in the past.

Harold Hosts Meeting Of Young Democrats Board

Paul D. Harold of 31 Riverside Ave., Adams Shore, president of the Massachusetts Young Democrats, hosted a meeting of the Executive Board of the New England Conference of Young Democratic Clubs, in Boston Sunday.

A member of the Executive Board, Harold was one of the organizers of the New England Conference last spring.

Purpose of the meeting was to organize the delegates from New England who are going to the national convention of the Young Democrats in Louisville, Ky., next month. As acting chairman of the Massachusetts delegation to the convention, Harold called upon the other New England states to join with Massachusetts and Maine in forming a voting bloc from this region.

Harold said, "For too long the national Young Democrats has been dominated by the clubs from the south and mid-west. If New England is ever going to play a part in the national Young Democrats organization, we must arrive in Louisville united."

Massachusetts will have 12 votes at the convention. The New England states will have a combined vote of 82 delegates.

Regional Solid Waste Study Committee Meets Tonight

The Norfolk County Regional Solid Waste Study Committee will meet tonight [Thursday] at 7:30 p.m.

It will be held in the second-floor courtroom of the Superior Courthouse in Dedham. The meeting will be open to the public and municipal officials are invited to attend.

The Committee, organized by Commissioner George B. McDonald, of Quincy, has been actively pursuing working solutions to the increasingly difficult problem of solid waste disposal.

It was initiated over three years ago, by the Commissioners, when it became apparent, they said, that a satisfactory solution could be provided only through a large-scale regional approach.

Norfolk is the only county in the Commonwealth to undertake such a program offering a practical solid waste management plan to its municipalities, early next year.

$127,167 New Wiring
During June

Two hundred permits were issued in June by the Quincy Department of Wire Inspection for wiring costing an estimated $127,167.

Major wiring projects were a new two-family apartment building at 182-184 Safford St., a new six-apartment building at 31 Sixth Ave., and a new 19-apartment condominium at 62 South St.

The Department made 205 inspections and found 14 defects during the month.

Fees for the permits totaled $1,320.

Latest On 8-Ward Plan

Referendum, Primary Final Election Dates Set

By PAUL FELDMAN

Sept. 6, Nov. 6 and Dec. 4 should be the dates for Quincy voters to remember this year.

The Quincy City Council was expected, Tuesday night, to unanimously approve a plan to hold the referendum vote on the 8-ward redistricting plan on Sept. 6.

The primary election would be then held Nov. 6 and the final election Dec. 4.

Previously, the Council had selected Sept. 18 as the date for the referendum but according to Council President Arthur Tobin, the new date is necessary to "protect the constitutional rights of all candidates in the election."

Tobin said that state law dictates specific time periods between elections and adequate time for filing papers and calling for recounts. "Working backwards from the final election date of Dec. 4, we have decided that a referendum date of Sept. 6 would not be cutting it too close," he said.

Also expected to be adopted at the Tuesday night meeting were full election plans for the fall, including descriptions of the new wards and any rules involving the handling of nomination papers.

At a special council meeting Monday night, Tobin said he expected no judicial problems for the 8-ward plan. Federal Judge Andrew Caffery now has the redistricting case under advisement.

Atty. Douglas Randall who brought the redistricting case to court in June has said he is not against an 8-ward set-up but argued in court that a charter commission is needed to make the change.

However, City Solicitor Richard McCormick retorted that section 8 of the State Constitution allows the legislature to pass redistricting measures without need of a charter commission. According to Tobin, there are 23 individual cases purporting this stand in the last ten years.

"Thus I feel that Judge Caffery took the case under advisement so the legislature would have time to act, which they have now done in our favor," said Senator Tobin.

Voting in the referendum, as well as in future elections will be held at the same polling places as in the past. Since precincts are being transferred and not divided up by the new plan, voters will continue to vote at their usual polling place whether or not the plan passes.

Some city councillors expressed fear before the Monday meeting that the referendum may be rejected soundly by the electorate due to the misunderstanding that voting would be held at different polling places in the future.

The Monday night meeting had been originally called to discuss and approve election dates and plans. However, the vote was postponed one night according to Senator Tobin "so there would be no rush tonight and no mistakes would be made that would hurt the constitutional rights of any candidate."

WHITE HOUSE HORROR STORIES

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

The man of 50 adjusts a little

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

How does one give a birthday party for a 50-year-old man? Very carefully. Because a man turning 50 is like a woman turning 30: in delicate psychological condition.

When a man reaches his 30th birthday there is hardly a pause in the day's occupations — he is simply considered no longer a boy but, rather, a dashing sophisticate. That image can be worn for the next 10 years until he turns 40, at which time he does pause in the day's occupations to consider.

But, having considered, he dashes on secure in the knowledge that though he is 40 he can still identify with the men in vodka ads with gray-streaked hair who sit in expensive wing chairs and look wise.

But 50. It's an age when his son may ask such a shattering question as: "Tell me, dad, how was it in your day?" Not that the kid is interested, but he has a few minutes to spare and considers such a question part of his developing human awareness.

Fifty is an age when a man looks in the mirror and there's nobody there but him. It's when he goes in for a physical and comes out with a prescription in his hand. It's when he recognizes all the songs Lawrence Welk plays even though he still laughs at them.

It's knowing when people talk about "the war" they mean Vietnam, not the one in 1943.

So, when one gives a birthday party for a man turning 50 it should, most of all, be honest. There is no time for flattery or adolescent attempts at human awareness.

A few good friends who share the same prescription; golf score or memory for Snoopy Lanson tunes. A simple, low cholesterol dinner. Then, of course, a birthday cake with candles. Not 50 candles, just a few. Enough to remind a man he's having a birthday.

And if the birthday boy doesn't blow them out don't urge him — a man of 50 knows the importance of taking his time.

- Peace In The Middle East ?
- It's The Same Old Army
- Nixon Unmoved On Watergate

WASHINGTON — Secret intelligence reports claim that the shah of Iran and King Hussein of Jordan are working together to bring peace to the Middle East. The two leaders reportedly have been in close touch since Hussein's recent stay at the shah's summer palace on the Caspian Sea.

They have agreed, according to the Central Intelligence Agency, upon a secret plan for settling the Middle East crisis. Both the shah and the king have good relations with the United States. They hope to use their influence with Washington to get a message to Israel.

The message is this: King Hussein is ready to sign a peace agreement with Israel, which could break the Arab-Israeli deadlock. But the Israelis must give Hussein enough concessions to make peace possible. Without some reasonable concessions, Hussein argues, he could not sign a pact with Israel. He would be repudiated by his own people if he did. But favorable peace terms, Hussein contends, would persuade the Arabs that they can deal with Israel.

The CIA predicts that the shah will take the secret plan to Washington this month to push on President Nixon. The least the President must demand, the shah will say, is that Israel return some of Jordan's rights in East Jerusalem.

The shah will have a big ace up his sleeve. The critical gasoline shortage has left the United States dependent, as never before, on the oil-rich Arab countries.

Nixon Unmoved: Friends who have been in touch with President Nixon since his illness believe the Watergate strain helped to send him to the hospital. But they report he has not been budged by the damning testimony before the Senate.

The President still insists to his friends that he didn't know about the Watergate coverup until he began his own investigation in mid-March. He also swears he has not been coordinating his Watergate strategy with his two former trusted aides, Bob Halperman and John Ehrlichman.

The President's greatest concern, he tells friends gravely, is that Watergate is diverting him from the real priorities of the presidency. He depicts the world as a diplomatic crossroads, which could determine whether there will be peace or war in the decade ahead. The nation is also torn by economic strains, which could determine whether there will be prosperity or depression.

These tremendous problems, stresses the President, require his full attention. He has been able, he says, to keep the Watergate charges on the back burner and give first priority to developing peace and prosperity. But the public clamor for him to speak out on Watergate, he complains, is beginning to distract him from his duties.

It's President Nixon's style to concentrate deeply upon a problem before he makes a move. He cannot, therefore, engage in daily Watergate maneuvers without devoting more time to the problem than he thinks is justified.

Selling 'New Army': The Pentagon is trying desperately to sell young Americans on the "new army." Advertisements promise that the new army has "equipment you can't wait to get your hands on." Magazine stories are laced with pictures of GIs sleeping in private rooms decorated with fluorescent posters.

Reports from GIs all over the world, however, indicate the new army hasn't changed its old practices. Here are some examples:

- At a top-secret Army base near Woodbridge, Va., GIs were pressed into service as bush beaters to drive deer out of the woods for the brass hats who liked to hunt.

- At Fort Lee, Va., dozens of officers and men were assigned by their commanding officer to be boy scout counselors for the summer.

- At Fort Meade, Md., a company commander wanted to meet his quota for a blood drive. So he gave three-day passes and excused from clean-up duties all men who donated a pint of blood. Those who refused had to answer to him.

- At Fort Belvoir, Va., soldiers complained that brewing coffee each morning for their commanders was demeaning. The general in charge immediately initiated the great coffee inquiry. Meetings were held and memos were written. Questionnaires went out to post personnel asking whether they objected to making coffee for others.

When my reporter inquired, he was given the solemn explanation that the general believes "in getting to the bottom of things — even if that means coffee pots."

Fuel for Thought: Fuel experts and the Department of Transportation have concluded that the only way to prevent a continuing gasoline shortage is for the United States to switch over from large to small cars.

A five per cent gas shortage is expected this summer. The experts expect it to get worse next summer. By 1975, it should reach the crisis stage.

President Nixon has suggested that motorists hold down their speed and that commuters form car pools. If half the motorists in the country held their highway speed below 50 miles an hour, it would reduce gasoline consumption less than three per cent. If half of all commuters pooled their automobiles, the fuel savings would be less than three per cent.

But the Transportation Department experts claim that a small-car owner gets 10 more miles to the gallon and saves around $630 a year over the standard-car owner. They have agreed in their confidential discussions, therefore, that it will take a conversion from large to small autos to end the gas shortage in this country.

Human companionship satisfies. But something more is needed for real living — something called spiritual fellowship. Try to find a few people with whom you can think and talk and pray about the deeper things of life. It will be a real growth experience.

City Councillor John Quinn who would have been a formidable challenger for Mayor Walter Hannon this fall apparently has his political sights trained on another target instead.

Quinn, dean of the council in point of service, reportedly is warming up for a bid for county commissioner.

Quinn would be after the seat being vacated by Quincy's George McDonald who has already officially announced his candidacy for sheriff in 1974.

And, of course, McDonald's announcement puts him and Councillor-Rep. Clifford Marshall on a fast collision course.

Meanwhile, Atty. Jeffrey LaPointe of South Quincy, is already campaigning for Marshall's State House seat. And, planning his strategy from the apartment once occupied by Amelio Della Chiesa. Never a dull moment in politics.

SPEAKING of Della Chiesa, Quincy's former long-time mayor and state representative has a milestone coming up July 31. He'll be a young 72.

Della Chiesa, who holds the city's longevity record as chief executive [12] years, retired from the political wars in 1965. He did so, he said, because his wife wanted him to start "taking it easy" They are now doing just that as residents of Pembroke.

LOOKING FOR A JOB? Gov. Sargent, relaxing and enjoying himself at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce clambake the other day, was brought to the PA mike by WJDA's Herb Fontaine to say a few words.

The Governor wanted to know if there was anyone in the crowd who would like to take on the state corrections commissioner's job? There were no takers.

A GOOD MANY people were surprised during the Sidewalk Bazaar to discover that Pete DeNicola of South Shore Television & Appliance is an accomplished musician. Pete, who plays the French horn, was invited to guest conduct the Milton Post and Satuit Bands for a few numbers. And, how many of you know that Pete really isn't Pete? He's Ferdinand.

SUDDEN THOUGHT: With the 8-ward plan moving the final city election into December, can't you see the candidates knocking on doors to solicit a vote and at the same time wishing the folks a Merry Christmas?

WELL, Saturday's rain might not have made a hit with you. But it may have been what the doctor ordered for Debbie Quintilliani, 16, of Cranch St. She's one of the contestants in the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Pageant. The pageant, of course, was postponed Saturday because of the rain and rescheduled for tonight [Thursday]. Debbie couldn't have made it Saturday. She was sick. Hopes to make it tonight, though.

For Candidates It's 'Wait And See'

The pending settlement of Quincy's redistricting crisis has apparently given birth to a "wait and see" attitude on the part of prospective candidates for the fall municipal elections.

No new candidates took out nomination papers from the City Election Department last week and those who have already taken them out seemed at a loss what to do with them.

"I have no idea what is going to happen to them under redistricting," said Asst. City Clerk Thomas Burke.

If the city goes from a six-ward to an eight-ward system a number of precincts will change wards. Thus signatures from those precincts affixed to nomination papers of a council candidate for the original ward will be invalid.

Ward council candidates may have to start all over again in September.

Navy Band At Merrymount Tonight

The U.S. Navy's Boston Band will present a concert tonight [Thursday] at 8 p.m. at the bandstand in Merrymount Park at the corner of Hancock Street and Southern Artery.

The concert will be sponsored by the Quincy Park and Recreation Board, which will provide special seats for senior citizens. Picnic tables also will be provided by the Park and Forestry Department.

Special bus transportation for senior citizens will leave at 6:30 p.m. from Oceanview and Hancock House; at 6:45 p.m. from Pagnano Towers and Martensen Street; and at 7 p.m. from Fenno House and 1000 Southern Artery.

A LONG LOOK 'BEFORE' -- Linda Wilson takes one last look at those long, long locks...and somewhat hesitantly...agrees to a hair cut. Vidal Sassoon's artistic director Roger Thompson, of New York, contending shorter hair is "more current", and "more chic", trims off a good five inches, comparing healthy look of blunt cut with straggly, longer split-ends. With hair sheared to new length, Debi Shore, Manhattan makeup artist, takes over.

Helpful Hint For Clam Fans!

If you're steaming clams, soak them first for several hours in water to which corn meal has been added. This makes them spit out sand.

This is one of the tips which comes with the popular clam steamer from United States Stamping Company, Mounts-ville, W. Va., a division of Lisk-Savory Corp.

Male Invasion!

More and more men are buying cookware nowadays, according to E. E. Schulenberg, general sales manager of United States Stamping Company, Mounts-ville, W. Va., a leading manufacturer of ceramic-on-steel cookware.

Schulenberg says that within recent years, men have become major purchasers of cookware products, especially the gourmet items.

A Work Saver!

To simplify the job of removing burned-on foods from your kitchen cookware, follow this advice from United States Stamping Company, Mounts-ville, W. Va.

Soak the utensil in a solution of two quarts of hot water to one tablespoon of baking soda. Then scour with a non-abrasive cleaner.

Dating can be expensive

By PAT and
MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My problem is finances. I've discovered that dating can indeed be expensive. I have been out of college one year and make an average salary. One evening can easily put a $25 to $40 dent in the budget.

What I am getting at is this -- why can't the girls pay a part of the expenses? Wouldn't it fit right in with the women's liberation bit? And it might even impress them with the cost of the luxurious dating pattern demanded by some.

All for Going Dutch

Dear Dutch:

I can see that the devaluation of the dollar, with its shrinking purchasing power, can be catastrophic to your wallet. If you can find girls who agree with you, all is well. If you can't, I'm afraid you'll be forced to pick up the tab.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I just met a girl I like very much. I think it could be serious except that she is a constant cigarette smoker. I do not smoke and consider it a dirty habit. What can I do?

Al

Dear Al:

If your girl reminds you of Smokey the Bear, tell her NOT ME.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

What can I do with my father? My boyfriend is always neat and clean. He likes to dress in the latest fashion and wears the new dressy boots. My father says he either takes off the boots or stays home. Why is my father so unreasonable?

Help!

Dear Help:

Tell Dad that he is making too much of a boot. Just consider the important men in our history who wore boots -- James Monroe and Teddy Roosevelt are two we all remember.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have a problem. I've gone with John for a year and my mother is genuinely disturbed. She likes John and the only thing that upsets her is his age. John is two years younger than I am. My mother feels that I should date someone older. She says that I am robbing the cradle.

John and I have a great deal in common and enjoy each other's company. How can I convince my mother that such a small difference in age just doesn't make all that many problems? I am 24 and John is 22.

C.A.

Dear C.A.:

How you feel about John is important. Forget about trying to convince Mom.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have read the letter from Friendless and I agree with your answer; however, I would like to add my experience in the hope it can help others.

Dear Friendless -- You say you have no friends because you refuse to smoke or take drugs and you say you could have many friends if you used drugs. You are wrong. If you take drugs, you won't have any true friends.

I went through the same thing you are going through when I was in the 8th grade except that I didn't refuse for long. I got myself deep into drugs. I won't give the details, but it was very bad. I made things very difficult for many people, especially the ones who really cared about me. I brought misery and sadness to myself and others. My mother found out that I was using drugs, and I hope that I never again see the tears and terrible sadness that were in her eyes. There were times when I really needed help but the friends who had encouraged me to take drugs were not around. My mother and a very dear friend were always there to help.

Not everyone takes drugs. All you have to do is look around and you can find real friends who do not smoke or take drugs. Just tell those who pressure you that you don't intend to mess up your life. It is difficult, I know, but after awhile they will quit bothering you. If I had taken the advice I am giving you, I wouldn't regret so many things. Believe me drugs aren't worth all the pain and sadness. Take it from who has,

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Play it cool and wait till all the facts are in before reaching conclusions regarding your professional life. Put your thoughts on paper now while the ability is strong. Finances improve. Guard reputation.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Things come easy

this week as you appear to have hit your stride. Use increased creativity for new ideas or perfecting a current project. Think carefully before going into debt for large purchases.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Go inside yourself now to contemplate the direction your life is taking. You may want to reevaluate goals. If schedule permits, this is a good time for a vacation. Join community projects.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Assume the role of detached leadership — give others a chance to perform, giving help when needed. Work on new projects. Good time for writing and advertising. Check up on administrative details.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — You can see now how to circumvent obstacles to progress. Ideas and suggestions from young people are helpful. Be realistic, attend to details and read the fine print. Be careful who you confide in.

Blouson will be bigger

By BETH MOHR
Copley News Service

The blouson, introduced as one of the big trends for spring and summer, will be even bigger for this fall and winter.

Not only are the newest soft, blousy tops expected to widen their popularity, they also will be lengthened in design.

Blouson bodices turn gently over waistlines marking the natural line or dropping to hipbone level. In two-piece dresses, blouson tops frequently are attached to bands encircling the hips.

Battle jackets gave the bloused look the chance to put its foot in the sportswear fashion door for the second time when the look was updated from the '40s for a return engagement a few years ago.

The traditional silhouette, gathered onto a waistband, is the basis for this year's blouson jacket. Greater fullness and longer lengths are the features which distinguish the newest creations. Most strikingly different are the jackets with back fullness increased by inverted pleats.

Tuna Tetrazzini

CLIP 'N' COOK

1 cup elbow macaroni
2 cans tuna (6 1/2-ounce or 7 ounce), drained
1/4 cup dried pimiento
1/4 cup chopped green pepper

1 small onion, chopped
1/4 cup milk
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 1/2 cups grated sharp cheese
Salt and pepper

COOK MACARONI in salted water until tender. Drain. Place tuna, pimiento, green pepper and chopped onion in a greased 1 1/2 quart casserole. Mix milk and soup and add to tuna mixture. Add 1 1/2 cups cheese, the macaroni and onion to taste. Toss lightly until well mixed and coated with sauce. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for about 45 minutes. Four servings.

Spaghetti or noodles may be substituted in this dish, however, since noodles swell only slightly, use 1 1/4 cups.

Rain Fails To Dampen Spirits At Hanna St. Block Party

It may have rained, but the downpour did not dampen the spirits of the 60 or so residents of Hanna St., Quincy Point, who held a block party Saturday.

The party, which ran all day and into the night, was sponsored by Mrs. Lucie Reichert and Mrs. Carmela Mood, with assistance by the entire street's population.

Highlights of the party included a cookout and games for both the children and adults.

The winner of the sack race was young Debbie Mahoney.

And in a close volleyball match, the Irish team prevailed over the Italian squad, 21 to 19.

Mrs. Mood called the party a "big success" and said that it would definitely become an annual event.

Charles Melchione To Be Installed County Legion Commander

Charles M. Melchione of the Robert I. Nickerson Legion Post, Squantum, will be installed as commander of the Norfolk County Legion Council Saturday.

The installation will be at the Nickerson Post starting at 8 p.m. Also being installed are:

Newly elected members of the County Executive Committee to be installed include:

Eugene Smith of Norwood Post; Alfred H. Mattson, of Holbrook Post; Charles Hunt of Dedham Post; Henry P. Bradley of Milton Post; Victor Jorgenson of Stoughton Post; Willard J. Timcoe of Houghs Neck Post; Harold Donnelly Jr. of Foxboro

Post; and Past County Commander Joseph M. Tomaino of Needham Post.

Commander-elect Melchione, a former North Quincy resident, is a Korean War veteran and served three years in the U.S. Marine Corps. He has been a member of the American Legion for 11 years, and a county officer for the past six years. He has served as commander of the Nickerson Post and is a Past Detachment Commander of the Marine Corp League.

The Commander has also held office in the 40/8 and the M.C.L. Devil Dogs. He makes his home in Cambridge with his wife Kathleen and daughter Marie and is employed at the American Biltrite plant in Cambridge.

The installing suite will be National Executive Committeeman Leo F. Malloy and Past County Commanders of Norfolk County. Among the guests expected to attend are Dept. Commander Ernest B. Montrond, Legionnaires representing Legion Districts throughout the state, Department Officers, Quincy officials, and friends and families of county officers.

Naborhood Pharmacy Provides Rare 24-Hour Emergency Service

By PAUL FELDMAN

"Ours is a distinctive drugstore", says Jack Silverstein, owner of Naborhood Pharmacy at 406 Hancock St., North Quincy.

And Jack is right. Among his special features is a 24-hour emergency service that embraces all regular Naborhood Pharmacy customers and the North Quincy area in general, the only such service in Quincy.

"We have an answering service like any doctor's and I come back to fill a prescription at any time of night when necessary."

Naborhood Pharmacy is the first area drugstore to have kept tax records for its customers.

"This way it is easier for my customers to be reimbursed by their insurance companies," he says. "And in January, we give them an annual income tax receipt so they can file their income taxes more accurately."

The store also features free delivery service and telephone, gas and electric bills can be paid at the Naborhood Pharmacy.

Jack, a Quincy resident for 20 years, has owned Naborhood Pharmacy since 1951. He remodelled the store three years ago, doing away with a busy soda fountain and magazine and book section to cut down on noise and congregating crowds of kids.

The store now is a landmark of modern, comfortable shopping pleasure. "We concentrate on prescriptions and hospital and medical supplies including the local franchise of Hollister ostomy appliances."

Naborhood also stocks impressive gift lines, perfumes from White Shoulder to Shalimar, boxed chocolates, greeting cards, plush animals and novelties. "And all gifts are wrapped free," adds Silverstein.

Among the staff of 22, are three full-time pharmacists, John Valenti, Al Goldberg and Silverstein.

Silverstein grew up in Roxbury, graduating from Roxbury Memorial High School in 1944, and the Mass. School of Pharmacy in 1950, with honors. He served in the Navy as Chief Pharmacist at St. Alban's Naval Hospital in New York.

Jack and his wife, Inez, live on Adams St. They have four children from ages 12 to 20. Donald, 18, will enter MIT in the fall.

Jack is a man of many hobbies and interests. During the summer, he jogs five miles a day at Nantasket Beach. In the winter he plays handball and in between he plays tennis.

Jack also collects jokes. "The reason for President Nixon's recent illness is staph infection," he claims.

Business Up During Sidewalk Bazaar

By TOM HENSHAW

Despite a Friday and Saturday rain that washed out some activities, downtown Quincy merchants report business up as much as 25 per cent during the fourth annual Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar which ran Thursday through Saturday. Some reported business "about the same as last year," blaming the rain that forced postponement of the three-day fiesta's big finale, the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Pageant scheduled for Saturday.

The pageant will be held tonight [Thursday] at 8:30 p.m. on a portable boardwalk in front of the Hancock Bank and Trust Co. on Hancock St.

Ron Mendler, executive director of the sponsoring Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, called the bazaar "the most successful we've had since its inception four years ago."

Ted Johnson of Granite City Hardware reported the largest gain in business.

"It was outstanding as far as we were concerned," he said. "We did 25 per cent more business than we did last year.

Thursday, the first day of the bazaar, was fantastic. Friday was not so good. But Saturday was very strong."

"It was great for us," said Robert Colman of Colman's Sporting Goods Store. "We were up 20 per cent over last year."

William Woskie of Sears Roebuck and Co. said his store's business also was up between 15 and 20 per cent.

"We're very pleased with it," he said.

"The rain didn't hurt us. In fact, Saturday I think it even helped. People came down to circulate among the displays outside. Then when it rained they were driven into the stores."

"We were about the same as last year," said Remo DeNicola of South Shore Television and Appliance. "Considering the rain factor, it was a good three-day period overall."

"The rain slowed us down. We had to pull the sidewalk merchandise into the store on Saturday. The fact it rained so heavy so early Saturday hurt. It kept a lot of people from coming into Quincy on Saturday."

Sumner Cohen of Kincaide's

Furniture also placed sales on a par with the previous year.

"The rain didn't help," he said. "We had a good Saturday despite the rain. If it had been a good day, we would have done much better."

Cobbler's Hut on Cottage Avenue placed business at "no more than usual. We drew our share."

"We did just about the same as last year," said Burt Cook of Tag's Sleep and Lounge Shop, "but we might have done 15 to 20 per cent more if it didn't rain on Friday."

"Thursday was the biggest day. Friday afternoon was bad and the night was lousy because of the weather. Saturday morning was slow but there was a heavy business in the afternoon."

Jason Feldman of Jason's Luggage and Music Store said business was a little better than last year "but there was not enough sun and not enough appeal to young adults." He placed the rise at 2 to 5 per cent.

"Saturday was the best day," he said, "with Thursday very close behind. Friday was not too good, due in part to the rain. We're going to have to do more to appeal to young adults."

TOO MUCH SLEEP
MAY CAUSE FATIGUE

For the person who complains of always being tired even though he gets at least ten hours sleep a night, according to medical authorities, his problem might be too much sleep rather than not enough.

Of course, one simple test for the long sleeper who is always tired is to try setting the alarm for a few nights for six or seven hours at the most. You will have nothing to lose since you won't feel any more tired. On the other hand, you may find yourself refreshed and invigorated.

A recent sleep study at the Boston State Hospital with long sleepers [more than 9 hours] and short sleepers [6 or less hours] found that the short sleepers were more efficient, ambitious, busy, decisive and satisfied with their lives.

This information has been brought to you as a public service by NABORHOOD PHARMACY, 406 Hancock St., No. Quincy, where you can always count on friendly, professional service. Hospital equipment and supplies for rent or sale. Let us keep your prescription tax and insurance records. Phone: 773-6426.

Entire Cast Intact For Tonight

23 To Compete For 'Miss Quincy Bay Race Week'

The Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Pageant—washed out by last Saturday's rains—will go on tonight [Thursday] with the entire cast intact.

All 23 contestants have indicated they will be on hand for the 8:30 p.m. event to be held on a portable boardwalk in front of the Hancock Bank in downtown Quincy.

All five judges will be there to select the winner and Regina Smith, last year's queen, will be present to crown her successor. Baron Hugo and his orchestra will provide the music for the pageant and will entertain starting at 7:15 p.m.

Henry Bosworth of The Quincy Sun and Kenneth P. Fallon Jr., of WJDA are co-chairmen. Mr. Fallon will also be emcee.

The winner and four runners-up will share in more than $1,000 in prizes donated by member stores of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, sponsor of the event.

In addition, all contestants will receive a gift.

The top winner will also have the honor of reigning over Quincy Bay Race Week Aug. 15-19.

Contestants will be judged in evening gowns and swim suit competition and for poise, personality and overall beauty. The five finalists will also be judged for their response to a question.

The girls will be escorted by Commodores in dress uniform from the Quincy, Wollaston, Squantum, Town River, Braintree, Metropolitan and Wessagusset Yacht Clubs.

The pageant contestants are:

- Cheryl Acker, 16, Bates Ave., Quincy.
- Cathy Beston, 20, Ruggles St., Quincy.
- Donna Burke, 18, Joseph St., Quincy.
- Maureen Chiminiello, 17, Chick St., Quincy.
- Janice Cook, 17, Bradford St., Quincy.
- Emilie DiTullio, 18, Stanley Circle, Quincy.
- Lois Halzel, 18, Houston Ave., Milton.

- Patricia Kelley, 18, Whitwell St., Quincy.
- Debra King, 17, Geraldine Lane, Braintree.
- Debbie Lee, 17, Houghton Rd., Milton.
- Janice Nesbitt, 16, River St., North Weymouth.
- Karen Perrault, 19, Judson St., Braintree.
- Maria Peterson, 16, Off Hill St., Weymouth.
- Debbie Quintiliani, 16, Cranch St., Quincy.
- Susan Ray, 17, Butler Rd., Quincy.
- Ottilie Riley, 17, Billings

St., North Quincy.

- Dale Robertson, 16, Washington St., Milton.
- Donna Robertson, 17, Washington St., Milton.
- Ellen Ryan, 17, Fisher Rd., South Weymouth.
- Jean Taylor, 18, Bunker Hill Lane, Quincy.
- Barbara Tayne, 17, Newton Ave., Braintree.
- Valerie Voegtlin, 16, Monroe Rd., Quincy.

Judges will be:
● Quincy School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

● Carol Nashe, owner Carol Nashe Model Agency and Model and Charm School.

● Richard J. Koch, executive secretary, Quincy Park-Recreation Board.

● Virginia Pritchette, Miss Quincy Bay Race Week of 1970.

● Wesley Watson, president Quincy Bay Race Week Association.

The pageant committee includes:

- Leslie Brierley, Hancock Bank; Raymond Cunningham, representing the Quincy Bay Race Week Association; Remo DeNicola, South Shore Television and Appliance; Paul Hurley Jr., Hurley Insurance; Florence Kerrigan, Baskin-Robbins; Roberta Meade, Roberta's Fashion Shoppe; Ruth Miller, Marvel Beauty Shop and Terry Pulito, Colpitts Travel Center.

13 Contestants From Quincy,

Milton Has 2 Sisters

The 23 girls competing in Thursday night's Miss Quincy Bay Race Week come from four South Shore Communities.

More than half of them—13—come from Quincy.

Milton has four—including two sisters, Dale, 16, and Donna

Robertson, 17. Braintree and Weymouth are tied with three each.

The age range is 16 to 20. Cathy Beston of Quincy is oldest at age 20. And how would you like to be the oldest at age 20?

$175 In Bonds To Be Awarded

Three savings bonds totalling $175 will be awarded during the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Pageant Thursday night.

The bonds—$100, $50, $25—are being presented by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, sponsor of the event.

The winners will be selected from coupons available at member stores last Saturday.

The drawing originally scheduled for Saturday, was postponed along with the pageant because of rain.

The pageant will be held Thursday at 8:30 p.m. on a portable boardwalk in front of the Hancock Bank.

'Good Duty'

Some people draw some pretty good assignments.

Like F. Gordon Davis of Squantum, for example.

His job Thursday night during the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Pageant will be to escort last year's winner, Regina Smith of Milton.

Davis was president of last year's Quincy Bay Race Week Association and served as one of the judges who picked Regina as the winner.

3 Quincy Track Girls In Alabama Games

Peter Gallagher introduced girls' track at Quincy High School two years ago and he hasn't had too much luck as far as wins and losses are concerned. But he has the satisfaction of having two of his runners and one of his former runners competing in the Youth Games in Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 16 through 18.

The girls are Jill Seamens and Janice Kelly, two of Gallagher's Quincy standouts, and Maria Ciano of Milton, who started with Pete in Quincy before moving with her family to Milton.

Her brother, Bob, was one of the greatest trackmen in Quincy history, being undefeated in spring and winter track and cross country for three years and setting numerous records, and another brother, Peter, starred for Quincy before moving to Milton.

The trio qualified last month in a meet held at White Stadium. Qualifying competition is being held nationally and the first two qualifiers in each event are eligible for the games in which events are divided into three age groups, 9-11, 12-13 and 14-15.

Jill won the 440 for 14-15 year olds, Janice won the 100-yard dash for 12-13 year olds and Maria was second in the 440 for 14-15 year olds.

Jill, a member of Quincy's track team for two years, was introduced to the games two summers ago when Gallagher held summer meets and brought the girls to the qualifying meet. Jill didn't make it two years ago but last year qualified for the games held in Detroit.

She runs the 220, 440, 880 and mile for Quincy and holds the record for the 220, 880 and mile but, oddly enough, not the 440, in which she qualified.

Janice, an eighth-grader at Central Junior High, excelled for the Quincy High team the past spring. She has been running for only about three months and admits she loves it. She holds the Quincy record for the 100 and also the 50-yard dash. She is running this summer for the Greater Boston Striders.

Maria has been running since the seventh grade and was on the Quincy High team that year, showing great promise despite her youth, and setting records in the half mile and mile which since have been broken by Miss Seamens.

The trip, sponsored by the Atlantic-Richfield Company, includes stops in different states including Maryland and Tennessee, as well as Washington, D.C.

"I'm very happy that the girls qualified for the games," Gallagher said. "They all have done a tremendous job for me and are very hard workers and extremely dedicated."

Specialists To Make Weekly Visits To 31 Playgrounds

Specialists in archery, arts and crafts, golf, nature study, drama, music and tennis will visit Quincy's 31 playgrounds on a weekly basis this summer.

Bringing music to the playgrounds again this year will be Miss Karen Walsh, life long Quincy resident and Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Massachusetts. Aside from running a coffee house at U.Mass, she has been playing and instructing guitar for students, inmates and the general public for four years.

Her program will include organized group singing, rhythm bands and beginning guitar lessons for youngsters at the Youth Centers. "I love music and want to encourage others to love it...it can bring a lot of happiness," she says.

Miss Rosemarie O'Brien, graduate of Stonehill College and a graduate student at Boston College Graduate School of College where she majors in elementary education and minors in recreation. She intends to bring several new concepts and techniques she has gained from her studies this year to teach Quincy's children.

Miss Maureen Kelly, a five-year Recreation Department veteran, will return this year as the Nature Specialist. She is a graduate of Quincy Junior College, and is currently pursuing her degree in Special Education. She has been actively involved in work with the exceptional children in the Norfolk County area Special Olympics Program and with the Happy Acres Day Camp program.

Affectionately known as "Mother Nature" to the playground youths, Maureen hopes "this summer with all the different field trips, will be one of awareness of the earth, its inhabitants, surroundings and what we can do to preserve it."

Puppetry and pantomime will be the primary area of concentration with emphasis placed on the children making their own marionettes, paper and cloth puppets for improvisational puppet shows and voice projection, characterization and improvisation around simple plots.

Arts and crafts specialist, Mary Ellen Grazioso, will head up the ceramics department in what will be her fourth year with the Recreation Department. She is completing her fourth year at Boston State Social Work, returns for her sixth year, as head of the drama and dance programs. She has been involved in dance for 12 years and drama for four, working for the Brockton VA Hospital, the Stonehill Theater, the Greasepaint Players and other groups.

Quincy Softball League

Beau's Place Combining Power, Defense For Playoff Bid

After a slow start, Beau's Place is beginning to solidify its hold on a playoff spot in the Quincy Softball League, using powerful hitting and a tenacious defense as weapons.

This week Beau's defeated County Line, 9-3, with Lenny Cinquegrano having three four and driving in four runs, and John Moran pitching five-hit ball.

County Line rebounded to top Alumni Cafe for the second time to raise its record to 9-9 and it is only two games behind Alumni as it battles for a playoff berth. Jack Schneider pitched well for County Line and made several fine plays.

Barry's Ship Haven won two during the past week, Ted Stevenson's five for five and Bob Kelley's two run-producing doubles guiding it to an 18-8 breeze over Palmer Pub, with Kelley and Tony Cammillo starting on defense.

Barry's later nipped Hofbrau, 5-4, as Rusty Kennedy homered and Bob Meehan drove in Billy Cuniff with the winning run. Cuniff moved into scoring position with some alert base running.

St. Catherine upset B & B Health Spa, 7-4, as Brian Buckley had three hits, Tom Walsh drove in three runs and the infield turned in three double plays. For B & B Art Rodman and Mike Connell had two hits each and Gerry Pratt hit two doubles.

B & B bounced back to defeat A & T Movers as Dave Tarbox pitched well with men on base. Pratt continued his hot batting with three for three and Mike Flynn pounded out a two-run triple. A & T's Bob Wirtz hit a tape measure home run, the ball clearing the trees and fence in right field at Welcome Young Park. Gerard Connolly added three hits.

Well's Grille added two wins to increase its lead in the National League East. The all-around play of Ed Hutchins and Bob Swirbalus paced a 10-2 win over China Lido and a 5-2 decision over St. Catherine. For the Saints, shortstop George McCall made a great over the shoulder running catch.

Barry's Deli nearly snapped out of a mid-season slump but dropped a 10-inning decision to Mr. Kelly's. Ken Pannaro hit a three-run homer while big Ernie Zimmerman and Ronnie Wilson had three hits each. Earlier, Noel St. Pierre's three-run homer sparked Dee Dee's 11-5 win over the Deli.

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Wins 11th, Quincy Bows

The Morrisette Legion baseball team kept its extremely slim hopes of winning its 19th Zone 6 championship alive Monday but despite Weymouth's failure to clinch the crown, it doesn't appear anyone will keep Weymouth from taking this year's title.

Morrisette's 3-1 win at Randolph Monday made its record 11-5 with two league games left, last night with Quincy and Monday night at Hingham. Weymouth was still 12-2 after being held to a 7-7 tie by Baintree, thus preventing the clinching of the crown. In addition to replaying that game, Weymouth had two games left with Milton and one with Quincy, all tough games.

Friday night at 8 under the Adams Field lights Morrisette will face the Ted Williams Camp team in an exhibition game.

Mark Dwyer pitched three-hit ball at Randolph to edge Tom Poto, who hurled a tremendous game, holding Morrisette to two hits and striking out 13.

Morrisette scored two runs in the first on the only two hits, singles by Dave Nelson and Jim Driscoll, a walk and an error. The other run scored in the third.

Quincy Legion, which ran into a snag after four wins in a row, dropped a 5-4 decision to Milton Monday, its third straight loss. Bobby Pierce was the Quincy pitcher and went all the way.

Quincy hit the ball hard with 11 hits, two each by Jim McCabe, Kevin Jago, Pierce and Steve Mele and one apiece by Billy Shea, George French and Frank DiSalvo.

The loss dropped Quincy's record to 5-8. Last night it met Morrisette in the rubber game between the intra-city rivals, Sunday night it hosts Weymouth at 8 at Adams Field and Coach George French was trying to play Baintree in a two-night doubleheader at Adams Monday, starting at 6 o'clock. The teams had two games remaining, one of them scheduled for Friday. Quincy also has a game remaining with Randolph.

Morrisette's hopes went out the window Sunday night when it lost to Baintree, 6-4.

Baintree hit the ball hard, collecting 14 hits off starter Bobby Lane and Tim Clifford. Morrisette had eight hits including a triple and single by Lee Watkins and two singles each by Dave Nelson and Bob Benn.

Last Friday the defending champs had kept their chances alive by handing Weymouth its second straight loss, 9-5. It was Morrisette's only win in its three games with Weymouth.

Morrisette erupted for four runs in the third but Weymouth came back with five in its half. Morrisette pushed across five more in the fourth for the win. Clifford, in relief of Lane, got the win to remain undefeated.

Mike Conroy had a triple and single, Benn two singles, Dennis McGuire, Watkins, Nelson, Art Boyle, Mark Dwyer and Clifford a single apiece.

• Quincy Youth Hockey Guest Scores 5 To Pace Midget Majors

Frank Guest broke loose with five goals and an assist to lead the Quincy Midget Majors to a 9-6 victory over the Quincy Midgets Minors last week in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

Glen Hanson had two goals and Mike Macauley and Steve Neville each had a single goal for the victors.

Assists were credited to Neville, with three, Macauley and Eddie Barry, with two apiece, and John Erickson and Bud Burke.

Paul Messina scored two goals and assisted on another for the Minors.

Dave Hurley, Steve Cronin, Bob Carmody and John Chiavaroli had the other Minor goals, assisted by Hurley, Joe McConville and Paul Andrews.

Kane, Hayes In Hat Tricks As Pee Wee Majors Roll

Eddie Kane and Bobby Hayes each fired a three-goal hat trick as the Quincy Pee Wee Majors bombed Scituate 10-2 in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

Brian Norton had a pair of goals and Kevin McGrath and Mike Edwards added one apiece.

Danny Sullivan, Norton and Kane drew two assists each while Johnny Mullin, Lenny Miceli, Paul McDermott, Hayes, McGrath and Edwards had one apiece.

Moore, DiCristofaro Team For Bantam Minors Shutout

Jimmy Moore came up with a pair of goals and goalie Daryl DeCristofaro turned in the shutout July 20 as the Quincy Bantam Minors won their first Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game, 4-0, over Abington.

Jim Triglia and Mike Van Tassel got the other goals.

The Minors fell before Columbia, 5-0, on Monday, their sixth loss against the lone victory.

The Quincy Bantam Majors ran their season's mark to five wins in seven games Monday with a 3-2 decision over Hingham on goals by Tom Cahill, Rick Camali and Mike McGrath.

Dave Preville had a pair of assists and Cahill and McGrath had one each.

Mimi DiFederico, Paul LaHive FB Mixed Scotch Winners

In the weekly Mixed Scotch Foursome at Furnace Brook Golf Club, Mimi DiFederico and Paul LaHive had low gross for 40 and Joy Robbins and Roy Christanson low net of 31.

Joyce Robbins and George Hodges shot second net of 32, Priscilla O'Neill and Mario Serafini third net of 33, Alice Pagnano and Quentin McCaffrey fourth net and Isabelle Morrison and Bill Mayer fifth net.

Joyce Robbins won the Directors Cup Class A with Mimi DiFederico runner-up.

In the previous Mixed Scotch Foursome Rena Hodges and Dick Corbin had low gross of 43 and Eda Plate and Joe Fitzgerald first net.

Florence Eramo and George Hodges had second net, Rena Roche and Paul LaHive third net, Priscilla O'Neill and Matt Smith fourth net and Mimi DiFederico and Quentin McCaffrey fifth net.

Mite Majors In 7-7 Tie With Columbia

The Quincy Mite Major team managed to salvage a 7-7 tie with Columbia last week as Paul Egan and Tommy Murphy contributed two goals each and Larry Costello had a pair of assists.

Mike McArdle, Chris

Harrington and Joe Harte got the other goals with assists going to Murphy, Harrington, Harte, Dave Allen, Billy Campbell and Paul Ryan.

The Majors also lost to Abington 4-2, with Murphy getting a goal and an assist, Bobby Lynch a goal and Kevin Tenney an assist.

The Quincy Mite Minors bowed to Adams Club, 4-1, with Bobby McCabe netting the only Quincy goal assisted by Danny Kelly and Billy Hughes.

Squirt Majors Win On Boussy Goal

Mark Boussy potted the winning goal as the Quincy Squirt Majors edged Bridgewater, 3-2, last week in a Bay Colony Hockey Association encounter.

Chuckie Marshall and Bobby

Beniers got the other Quincy goals with assists credited to Robbie Zanardelli, Joey Rathgeb and Mike Doherty.

Conn. Champs To Meet Quincy Babe Ruth

The champions of the 16-18 Babe Ruth League of Meriden, Conn., will meet the two Quincy members of the South Shore 16-18 League Saturday at Adams Field.

At 5:30 Meriden will face Raso Construction and at 8 it will meet the Vin Smyth Club, leader of the South Shore League Division One.

The Smyth Club leads with a 10-2 record, followed by Braintree, 9-3; Weymouth Painters, 7-5; Raso, 7-5, and Sal's of Weymouth, 4-8.

Milton has a slim lead over Weymouth Elks in Division Two, the Central League, and West Roxbury No. 2 has a big lead in Division Three, the North League.

Squirt B's Have Outing

The "B" Squirts of Quincy Youth Hockey recently had an outing at Peter's Pond in Sandwich.

Sailing, swimming, baseball, and ping pong were enjoyed by the Squirts who, coached by Paul Hussey and Joe McConville, finished first in their division in the Alamo League at Hingham Arena.

Coleen O'Day, Steve Mele 'Leaders Of The Week'

Coleen O'Day and Stephen Mele have been selected as the Recreation Department's 'Leaders of the Week', announces Recreation Director William F. Ryan.

Miss O'Day, Wollaston playground leader, has been chosen as leader of the week for her second consecutive year. "She has once again demonstrated exceptional skill at not only providing and maintaining interesting playground programming for her youth, but has also created one of the city's better arts and crafts programs in the city," said Ryan. "Miss O'Day's ability to motivate and bring to fruition the hidden talents of the Wollaston youth underscore her high degree of professionalism."

Coleen, graduate of North Quincy High, is presently a senior majoring in Speech Therapy and Communication Disorders at the University of Massachusetts. She is a member of the Phi Beta Phi sorority, the ARCON campus guides and is a Belchertown Volunteer. She has devoted considerable time in working with the mentally and physically retarded and is also a recipient of the Board of Higher Education Scholarship.

Mele, Merrymount playground leader has attended St. Ann's and is a graduate of Archbishop Williams. He is an honor student of four years and member of the national honor society. Steve has been active in sports, particularly in baseball.

"Steve Mele's talents in sports have been shared by the boys at Merrymount as is demonstrated by the record of the Junior, Senior and midjet baseball leagues," said Ryan. Mele will attend Dartmouth in the fall.

Recreation Roundup

The summer season of Quincy Recreation's activities is in full swing at 31 playgrounds and 13 beaches throughout the city.

Betty Vitner and Kevin McGinley, tennis specialists, note that last years champs, Patti Bellotti of Forbes Hill and Anne Bertrand of O'Rourke are ready to defend their titles. Promising challengers include: Laura and Russell Clark of Kincaide; Fran Guadiano and Mark Righini of Shea Rink; Richard Pompeo and Matty Breslin of Merrymount, Steve White and Tom Mullins of Faxon Field; David Flattery and Mary McBride of Fore River and Dan Madden and Teresa Coletta of O'Rourke.

Maureen Kelly and Dave Simpson, nature specialists, report Whitwell, Stoney Brae and Wollaston playground youngsters were the first in the city to visit the New Atlantic Aquarium. Atlantic playground leads the city in their insect collections. Other playgrounds throughout the city will be planting watermelons and vegetable gardens.

Mary Ellen Grazioso and Beth Hanratty, Arts & Crafts specialists, report children at Wollaston and Forbes Hill playgrounds have shown real talent in making yarn octopi, pocket books, beads and bracelets, especially Debbie and Donna Mann of Forbes Hill and Sheila Bellotti of Wollaston.

According to Rosemarie O'Brien, drama specialist, O'Rourke's Ricky Conroy, David Shawson and Georgia Sophia have created some of the most colorful paper plate puppets in the city, while their friends Mary Barr and Lisa Walsh each made rare ornate dog and bird puppets. Wollaston playground drew enthusiastic crowds while Joanne and Julie Green, Maria Galluzzo and Vicki Price made lively puppet performances, and Karen Jay, Ed and John Ramsden put on a show about comical cops and robbers. Elm Street playground and a number of talented puppet makers including Julie Barron, Claire Brennan, Michael Martin, Janet Caparelli, Karen Corlis and David Cook.

Music specialist Karen Walsh notes that the Fore River singing puppets "Sally Singer" owned by Ted Howard, "Mr. Mustard" belonging to Joanne Areana, David Cook's "Frankenstein", Laura McLean's "Indian Girl" all joined in on singing the playgrounds favorites. Montclair's Nancy Donfro, Patty and Chrissy Lamb, Ann and Eileen Cooney, Gail Crowley and Peggy Viden added their voices in chorus to "Rain Drops Keep Falling on My Head". At Squantum Bob Smith's broken collar bone didn't stop him from creating his imaginative puppet "Dirty Harry". Kathy Doody, Kim Kowilick, Laura Quinn, Joanne Cochran and John Donaghy all admitted that "Leaving on a Jet Plane" was their playgrounds favorite song.

Julie Doherty, water safety supervisor, points out that Bayfield Beach's 106 non-swimmers have all shown improvement thanks to the efforts of instructors Patricia Ready and Nancy Laing. Already Karen Bridges, Lisa Locke, Ed Sylvester, Donna Hidalgo, Debbie Pievo, Jayne and Jeremy Pierce have graduated from non-swimmers.

According to Gail Senter, instructor at Baker Beach, pre-beginner Neil O'Connor, as well as beginners Rena and Lynn DeAngelo have all shown great potential. Scott Matthews, Pat Connolly and Debbie Spenk now lead the field of advanced beginners, while Marie Madden and Ann Fitzpatrick have demonstrated tremendous progress.

Snug Harbor's Roseanne Fantuccio reports that Linda Mahoney, Maureen Flynn, Ron Story, Suzanne Libby, Beth Ann Timcoe, Steven Libby, Jackie Gabriel, Lisa Richardson, Christine Higgins, Joey Story, Kelly Fainsworth, Michael Cable, Debbie Gabriel and Betty Brian have all graduated from non-swimmer to beginners.

Mound Street's Lois McLean pointed out that Billy Bissitt, Joe Hart and the Glynn family have shown tremendous progress and should be the first to graduate from non-swimmers. Chris Groen is the first from that beach to pass into swimmers.

Miss Frances Strazzulla, Nickerson's own instructor has proudly announced that Squantum has at least four new candidates for the water ski program. Steve Fluhr, Julie Lyons, Mary and Kathy Gori have each passed the qualifying swim test. She continued that congratulations also go out to John Sloan who has passed into Swimmers.

Instructor Karen Murphy of Perry Beach informs us that Scott Babson has graduated to advanced beginners, James Hickey has passed from intermediates into swimmers and that Susan Mellyn a senior life saving candidate has demonstrated excellent swimming potential.

Fenno St. Beach instructors Diane Dunn and Kathryn McKenna feel that their season is off to a good start with more than 200 registrations, including 17 lifesaving candidates, as do the Elm Avenue Beach instructors Nancy Ellis and Debbie Sprague who took over 150 registrations, 15 of which were in the lifesaving categories.

Fat Chance Concert Draws Over 100 At HN

By PAUL FELDMAN

If someone told you that there would be a rock concert at the Houghs Neck Pumping Station last Sunday, you might have replied "Fat Chance." But there was a concert there Sunday and the name of the rock-blues-jazz band that played was Quincy's own Fat Chance.

Fat Chance, formerly named Ball, consists of pianist-saxophonist-harpist Frank Iacovino; lead guitarist, Steve Murphy; rhythm guitarist, Mark McGuiness; bassist Tom Lynch and drummer Rick Murphy.

More than 100 people of all ages spent the bright afternoon, bathing in the sun and listening to the pleasant sounds of the Houghs Neck quintet.

The group played a pleasing amalgam of music ranging from their own esoteric jazz number Space Train, featuring sax solos by Iacovino, to standard Chicago Blues tunes like Walking Blues, to double guitar-solo rock pieces like St. Stephen, featuring the virtuosic techniques of Murphy and McGuiness.

The band, which has been together in one form or another since 1967, has previously played at a number of South Shore showplaces including the Quincy Armory, the Weymouth Fairgrounds and Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Also featured at the Sunday concert was country singer and guitarist, 'Stony' Trotman and his group.

Weather permitting, the bands will put on another show this Sunday at 2 p.m. at the same site.

St. John's Juniors Plan Poolside Party

Dinner, dancing and a dip in the pool will start the new season for members of St. John's Junior League at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bersani, 35 O'Connell Ave., Quincy, Saturday, July 28.

The evening will begin at 7:30 p.m. with a cocktail hour followed by swimming, dancing and entertainment provided by Club members. A catered hot and cold buffet will be served at poolside.

The committee includes Mrs. Richard Storella, Mrs. John Jolley, Mrs. Frank Lomanno, Mrs. Frederick Walsh, Mrs. Anthony Aimola, Mrs. Raymond Southwick, Mrs. Paul Flaherty and Mrs. Ralph Fasano.

Proceeds from the party will go to aid the scholarship fund.

Delahunt Bill Co-sponsor

Easier Now For Substandard Housing Tenants To Withhold Rent

Legislation co-sponsored by Rep. William D. Delahunt, [D-Quincy] that would allow tenants living in substandard housing to withhold their rent more easily was signed into law recently.

"This law really expands the tools available to fight unsafe housing and deteriorating neighborhoods," Delahunt said, "by making rent withholding available to the average tenant who acts without receiving legal advice. Tenants can use the simplified procedure added by this law to really put pressure on lawless landlords," he added.

The bill allows tenants to withhold rent for dangerous housing and health code violations, without having to go through cumbersome notice and inspection procedures. The tenant must be ready to prove in court that the substandard conditions existed when he began withholding rent, that they endanger his health or safety, that the landlord did nothing to repair them, and that the tenant did not cause the violations in question.

Under the previous rent withholding laws, the tenant also had to show that the local code enforcement agency had inspected the premises and notified the landlord in writing about the defects. Tenants who withheld rent without meeting these formal requirements were subject to eviction.

"These unnecessary technicalities," Delahunt said, "often prevented many tenants from asserting their legal rights." Ch. 471 allows rent withholding without these procedures if the landlord knew about the code violation before the tenant started withholding rent.

"Most landlords know very well when their buildings don't comply with state and local housing standards," Delahunt said. "On the other hand, tenants living in substandard apartments aren't familiar with the law. This bill protects them, as long as the dangerous code violations really exist, even if they don't follow the exact procedures and technicalities the law previously called for. The courts can decide in each case whether the substandard conditions were serious enough to justify the tenant's rent withholding."

• Campaign Trail Kelly Asks Traffic Impact Study At Southern Artery-Sea St.

Leo J. Kelly, candidate for City Council from Ward 1, has asked for a master impact study of traffic in the Southern Artery-Sea Street area.

In a letter to Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Kelly noted "severe traffic snarls on Sea Street cause aggravation to motorists but more importantly a severe safety hazard to children on residential Merrymount streets."

Those streets, he said, "become major thoroughfares when drivers, frustrated by slow movement of traffic, search for short cuts to avoid congestion."

"A traffic impact study," he said, "will provide the city with the necessary data to draw upon in order to take steps to alleviate present problems."

"In addition, such a study will help the city to plan ahead to minimize the increased traffic impact which will result with the opening of the Quincy Youth Hockey Rink, the proposed YMCA addition and the community college."

Denver Suggests Guard Rails To Prevent Dumping On Marshes

Illegal dumping on city-owned marshes in the Houghs Neck area of the city has been criticized by Robert F. Denver, candidate for Ward 1 Councillor.

In a letter to Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Denver, former president of the Houghs Neck Community Council and active in conservation matters, suggested the city erect guard rails along the city-owned marshes on Rockland and Rhoda Sts., to prevent dumping there. He said signs that have been posted have had no visible effect.

Denver cited the guard rails installed in North Quincy behind a Quincy Shore Drive auto agency along the access road to Jordan Marsh as "wonderful deterrents to illegal dumping."

"How much more desirable it is to preserve the natural beauty in our residential areas in this city whenever it is possible," Denver said.

R.S.V.P. Program Has Great Potential For Community

By PUTNAM S. BORDEN
Executive Director
Quincy Council On Aging

For some time now, I've been dropping hints in this column and in any talks I have given to groups throughout the area, that a comprehensive volunteer program was in the offing.

Well, if you read the papers this week, you'll know it's arrived. R.S.V.P., [Retired Senior Volunteer Program], has come to Quincy.

R.S.V.P. is a national program to develop significant volunteer service in local communities for men and women, age 60 and over. It is planned, organized and operated at the local level and, in Quincy, will be under the auspices of the Quincy Council on Aging.

Any retired person, age 60 and over, can become a R.S.V.P. volunteer; there are no education, income, or experience requirements, only a real desire to perform needed community service.

We have been in touch with many of the service agencies in the area, both private, municipal and state and most see the use of volunteers and particularly senior volunteers as a really effective means of augmenting their programs.

Already, we are aware of potential opportunities for older citizens to serve as Classroom Aides, Clerks, Drivers, Companions, Friendly Visitors, Supervisors, Tutors, Consultants, Entertainers, Hostesses, plus many other interesting chances. Service will be performed in courts, schools, libraries, day-care centers, hospitals, nursing homes, social service agencies, etc.

Our plans also include developing new programs to meet the needs of volunteers themselves, particularly those having talents or skills which are somewhat unusual.

As an example, I recently had a discussion with an elderly gentleman living at one of our local nursing homes. He is a retired entertainer and he suggested that one really worth while activity which might come from R.S.V.P., would be the establishment of a troop of entertainers who could present performances at the various nursing homes. Why not?

Another example: I have been most interested in setting up a pilot "Meals on Wheels" program. The major problem was how to staff it. I hope, through R.S.V.P. volunteers, that we can get the help to start such an effort.

Volunteerism has always been an American tradition; though, in recent years, not as much used as in the past. Through R.S.V.P., we now have the chance to revitalize this tradition and, in addition, to demonstrate that older people are still valuable, functioning members of the community.

Quincy Gets $40,338 Grant To Start Senior Volunteer Program

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 12 - ACTION, the citizens service corps, has awarded $40,338 to the Quincy Council on Aging in Quincy, to start a Retired Senior Volunteer Program [RSVP], announces Congressman James A. Burke and ACTION Director Mike Balzano.

RSVP is a national program to develop significant volunteer service in local communities for men and women age 60 and over.

The one-year grant will enable the city to start an RSVP, placing 200 Senior Volunteers in service the first year, and as many as 275 in the next five.

The Quincy Council on Aging was established in 1968. Its programs include a senior corps placing older people in part-time employment in city offices, a placement service, hot lunches and emergency transportation. Putnam Borden is the council's executive director.

The RSVP will place volunteers with cooperating public and private social service agencies throughout the three communities. Senior Volunteers may serve with a consumer protection bureau, sheltered workshop, an association for children with learning disabilities and a Head Start program. Future placements may be made with a conservation commission, housing authority, alcoholism treatment program and a nursing home.

Volunteers serve in a variety of organizations, agencies and institutions such as courts, schools, libraries, day care centers, hospitals, nursing homes, scout offices, economic development agencies and other community service centers.

RSVP volunteers serve without compensation, although they may be reimbursed for such costs as transportation.

Other ACTION programs are the Peace Corps, Volunteers in Service to America [VISTA], Foster Grandparent Program, Service Corps of Retired Executives [SCORE], Active Corps of Executives [ACE] and University Year for ACTION.

MBTA Half-Fare Passes To Be Issued Here Aug. 1

Putnam S. Borden, executive director, Quincy Council on Aging announces arrangements have been made with the MBTA to issue reduced one-half passes to senior citizens aged 65 or over, Aug. 1.

Passes will be issued at the Woodward School for Girls, Hancock St., Quincy, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For those 65 or over who have not yet obtained the fare pass or have lost it, this will be the only chance this year to obtain it locally. Otherwise, it must be issued at Government Center Station in Boston.

Trip To Bermuda For Quincy Seniors Sept.13-18

The Quincy Park-Recreation Board today announces that a vacation trip to Bermuda will be offered to Quincy's Senior Citizens.

Chairman Joseph E. Burke, said, the six day, five night tour from Sept. 13-18 will offer hotel accommodations at the fabulous Princess Hotel located in downtown Hamilton, Bermuda.

Also included are full breakfast, and dinners daily, round trip transportation to Bermuda from Quincy, taxes, gratuities and insurance.

For further information concerning the Bermuda trip, interested persons are asked to contact the Quincy Recreation Department located in the John F. Kennedy Health Center at 1120 Hancock St.

If you thought we had energy to burn, here are a few things to think about.

When it comes to keeping up with our growing energy demands, America's a little like our friend on the exerciser—we're running through our energy resources faster than we can replace them.

Today, we have enough domestic oil reserves to last us 10 years. Enough natural gas to last 11 years. Enough coal for 500 years. And, without the help of the breeder reactor, only enough uranium for 13 years.

The trouble is that there are going to be more of us—over 35,000,000 more by 1985—burning up more and more energy. Our consumption of oil, gas and coal will almost double by 1985. But, our use of nuclear energy will be 11 times greater than at present.

That's why it's essential that we make the wisest, most efficient use of the energy resources we have... why we must develop new resources to serve our growing needs and best human interests.

Our goal is to provide our customers with reliable electricity—one of the cleanest and most efficient forms of energy—at reasonable prices and with environmental safeguards we can all live with. Together, we can provide the reasonable means to reasonable ends.

People like you working to make life a little better.

● Babe Ruth All-Stars Showdown Sunday

The third and deciding game of the Babe Ruth League all-star series will be played Sunday at 9 a.m. at Adams Field.

The teams split last weekend with the National League stars winning the opener, 5-1, and the Americans evening the score, 4-2.

In the opening game Mike Kelly pitched four-hit ball for the winners and struck out 10. Losing pitcher Pres Carroll also went all the way and allowed only five hits.

For the Nationals, Roy Whitman, Mark DeLuca, Mike Holleran, Paul Stack and Paul Ferris had the hits, all singles, while Paul Sutherland had two hits, Carroll and Mike McBride one each for the Americans. They also were all singles.

In the second game Paul Vespaziani, McBride and Don Earl were the pitchers for the winning Americans, while Rick Merino and Holleran pitched for the losers.

Carroll had a double and single, Tony Palezzi and Paul Pitts a single each for the Americans, while Paul Jackmauh had two singles, Stack, Ferris, Holleran, Kelly and DeLuca a single each for the Nationals.

The League is in its final week of the regular season with all make up games being played by the end of the week. Burger King and Houghs Neck must replay a game won by Burger King but protested by Houghs Neck. The protest was upheld by league officials.

In games during the past week, Police bombed Bersani, 21-6, with Lou Fishman pitching a three-hitter. Chuck LoPresti had three hits including a three-run homer. Paul Messina had two hits and scored three runs, including a steal of home. Joe McConville and Mac MacLean had three hits each for Bersani.

Firemen defeated Police, 8-6, as Jim Roberts pitched five-hit ball in snapping Police's 12-game win streak. Ed Daley, Bill Buckley and Roberts had two hits for the Firemen, while Jack Powers had two hits for Police.

Other results: S-D-S 2, Burger King 1; Firemen 9, VFW 2; Burger King 4, Bersani 2; Firemen 2, Houghs Neck 1; S-D-S 5, Morrisette 2; Elks 5, Burger King 3, and Hancock Bank 14, VFW 2.

New Ward Council Papers Will Have To Be Taken Out

For the second week in a row, no new candidates took out nomination papers for the fall city elections in Quincy.

The redistricting furor has thrown the election up in the air and, until it comes down, this is what City Clerk John M. Gillis says probably will happen:

Those who have taken out papers for mayor, school committee and councilor at large can still circulate them.

Those who have taken out papers for ward councillor will have to take out new ones after the Sept. 6 referendum on the new eight-ward setup.

The old filing deadline of Aug. 14 will be moved up to about Oct. 6, four weeks before the new preliminary election.

And what happens if the Sept. 6 referendum is defeated?

"Don't even think of it," said City Clerk Gillis.

Quincy Police Officer's Eyewitness Account 'Plane Crash Like Terrible Auto Accident Multiplied 85 Times'

By JOANNE PELTON
Quincy Sun Reporter

"The plane crash at Logan was the worst thing I've seen in my life.

"It was like a terrible car accident multiplied 85 times."

That is the eye-witness description of the scene of horror Quincy Patrolman Matthew Pollara found at Logan Airport Tuesday shortly after a Delta Airlines DC-9 airliner crashed on landing in dense fog killing 86 instantly and critically injuring two others.

Pollara and Patrolman Richard DiGuisto manned the Quincy Police Department rescue truck which was dispatched to the scene. The Quincy Fire Department also sent aid.

The two departments received calls for assistance by intercity-radio dispatch between 11:30 a.m. and noon.

The Quincy Police boat "Alert", manned by Patrolmen George Elder and Leo Luchini were also sent to Boston Harbor upon reports part of the ill-fated liner's wreckage was in the water.

Pollara told of sighting charred bodies of the victims and debris spewed over a large area.

"I saw wristwatches scattered," he said. "The plane's seats, wheels, and parts of the engines were everywhere. I couldn't see the plane's wings. It didn't even look like an airplane."

Elder noted: "The fog was so thick you couldn't see anything in front of you. The water was filled with debris."

Pollara had high praise for the Boston Police and Fire Departments.

"They made the best emergency unit I have ever seen," he declared.

And throughout all the chaos, one thing stuck out in Pollara's mind.

"It was a horrible sight on one hand. But it was a tremendous sight to see so many people all helping each other."

Friends Plan Benefit Dance For Philip Heleotis Sept. 21

Friends and West Quincy neighbors are rallying around Philip Heleotis in his hour of need.

Philip, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Heleotis of 35 Hilltop St., suffered a broken neck July 6 in a diving accident at a swimming pool.

He is paralyzed and a patient at Carney Hospital. He will later enter a rehabilitation center.

Friends have set up the Philip Heleotis Fund at the Quincy Savings Bank with the assistance of Assistant Treasurer Donald R. Johnson.

Fund raising coordinators are Norfolk County Commissioner George B. McDonald of 133 Grove St. and Mrs. Walter Woodward of 10 Mount Vernon St., both West Quincy.

The first fund-raising event will be a dance and buffet Sept. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the Carlton House, North Quincy.

Tickets may be obtained through Mrs. Alfred Cocco of 31 Hilltop St. [479-0262] and Mrs. Raymond MacAulay of 36 Hilltop St. [773-2702].

Philip had been working as a bricklayer since his graduation from North Quincy High School in 1970.

His father is an auto salesman. His mother is the former Jean Adler.

The Heleotis' have four other children, Lynn, 21, Christine, 18, Susan, 13 and Stephen, 9.

5 From Quincy Earn Recognition At Norwich U.

Twenty-nine students from the Quincy area earned recognition from Norwich University during the second semester of the 1972-73 college year.

Named to the Dean's List were:

Mark H. Conroy '73, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Conroy, Booth Hill Rd., Scituate, formerly of Quincy.

Russell F. MacDonald '75, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy K. MacDonald, 55 Wesson Ave., Quincy.

John P. Panarelli '75, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas A. Panarelli, 623 Quincy Shore Dr., Quincy.

John C. Pearce III '75, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Pearce, Jr., 72 Forbes Hill Rd., Quincy.

To qualify for the Dean's List at Norwich, a student must attain an academic quality-point average of at least 3.0, the equivalent of a "B" grade in all subjects.

In addition to being named to the Dean's List, the following received military promotions in the Corps of Cadets:

Cadet Panarelli, sergeant first class.

Robert Sylva '76, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sylva, 35 Copeland St., Quincy, promoted to corporal.

'I Think I Can Be A Better Mayor'

Hannon Announces Candidacy For Second Term

By TOM HENSHAW

"Frankly, the job was a lot bigger than I thought," said Mayor Walter J. Hannon. "But you don't find that out until you sit in this chair."

And with that, the Mayor announced that he will be a candidate for another two years in that chair.

"I think I can do a better job," Mayor Hannon told a news conference Tuesday. "I think I can be a better mayor. I know the job better. The first two years was quite a learning experience."

The Mayor declined to speculate on his opposition in the November preliminary election, except to say:

"There are no political heavies on the horizon but I regard anyone who files for Mayor as a formidable opponent. I don't discount any serious candidate."

There are four other candidates in the field.

They are George H. Manuvelian and Daniel S. Coughlin Jr., both college students; George A. Trubiano and Mrs. Grace Saphir.

The Mayor said State Sen. Arthur H. Tobin "has made no comment to me" on reports that he is readying a bid for the Mayor's office.

Mayor Hannon's formal announcement rattled off the accomplishments of his two years in office.

"No single problem received more of my attention than finances and taxes and no single accomplishment pleases me more than lowering Quincy's tax rate for the first time in many years."

"We must continue to administer our city frugally. We must be able to make the decisions, develop the techniques and have the expertise to keep finances and taxes within control.

"Although government is politics, I am convinced that people today are looking for administrators who will deal with their tax dollars as prudently and effectively as possible regardless of politics."

"I have surrounded myself with men and women who are activists — doers — men and women who are not totally politically minded but able to administer for I have always looked at our City as a $50 plus million business, not a political machine, for political machines cannot effectively deal with the problems of a City."

"These are people who are willing to do things with innovative ideas. Even though sometimes these ideas fail, we are not willing to sit back and wait for problems, but find solutions prior to their becoming problems."

"Two years ago, we set out to do certain things to improve our City and by and large we did them. But there are still many things to do, problems to be solved as in any large city."

"We shall find ways to refine government to make it work better, not for a few but for the majority."

Mayor Hannon told the news conference:

"There were times during the past year when things were uncomfortable, when the pressure was on, but I never thought of quitting and getting out of it."

"If the tax rate had gone up $10 or less we still could have held our heads up. But it is easier to run on a platform of having lowered the tax rate for the first time in many years."

"I don't know what the issues will be in this campaign but whatever they are we will have answers to them. We can justify everything that we have done."

"Problems do remain but we have only had two years to act upon them. We can't do everything in two years. Every city our size and age has problems. We live in a real world in this office."

The Mayor indicated that two of the problems which would receive close attention during a second term would be the renewal of downtown Quincy and the upgrading of the neighborhoods, with or without federal funds.

"If a city goes to pieces it starts in the neighborhood areas," he said. "We will have to sit down and think of ways to get money to improve our neighborhoods."

$38.7 Million In Tax Bills Going Out

Some 22,000 pieces of mail valued by the city of Quincy at about $38.7 million are expected to go into the mail this week.

They are the bills for 1973 real estate taxes dispatched annually to the city's property owners.

At the same time, the assessors told Mayor Walter J. Hannon that there are still some applications for abatements on 1972 real estate taxes remaining to be processed.

Assessor Chairman Elmer K. Fagerlund advised taxpayers:

"Those applicants who consented to an extension of time for a review by the assessors of their 1972 assessments are still protected as to their right of appeal until such time as the board completes the review and either abates the tax or denies the application in writing."

"Should this review of 1972 taxes not be completed before Oct. 1, 1973 persons still awaiting action will be sent an application for abatement of their 1973 tax so as to enable them to realize any possible abatement to which they may be entitled in 1973 if one is granted for the year 1972."

'A GENTLEMAN TO SEE THE PRESIDENT—SAYS HE'S A LITTLE OL' COUNTRY LAWYER FROM NORTH CAROLINA'

LET'S TALK

Consumers aren't all angels

By REV. W. LEE TRUMAN

An in-resident saint in my church used a phrase, "Consumers aren't all angels either" — which set off a whole spasm of truth in my mind.

While I am a genuine consumer, and my own personal theology holds that there must be a special place in the hereafter for those who issue useless warranties, make fraudulent claims, and write garbled instructions, I assure you that I can holler as loud to Ralph Nader as anyone, especially since a computer recently offered to have me arrested, jailed and the key discarded if I didn't pay $0.00 before the first of next month.

Every once in a while I can feel a strong sense of sympathy for the harassed and maligned merchants and honest providers of service in our culture. Miss Wolf, writing for DuPont, used the same title and set me to say the obvious. Of course, it will not come as a surprise to anyone that consumers are not all angels. It is astounding how quickly educated, civilized people quite cheerfully lie, cheat, steal, and destroy merchandise all as if they have never heard the words of honesty, integrity, and morality, all to save 29 cents.

Just for starters, take those people who see nothing wrong with switching price tags. They take the tag from a cheap item and put it on an expensive item. They hope the clerk will be too busy to notice, and they act quite innocent in it all if discovered.

I guess switchers can be found almost anywhere, but I saw a very well-dressed gentleman and officer in a local service club take the lid off a jar of peanuts and switch with the lid on a jar of cashews. He literally wanted to buy his cashews for the price of peanuts.

One sweet young slip of a housewife put a pound of butter in an oleomargarine box, and I was curious enough to follow her to the checkout stand where I am glad to say the hard-working young lady behind the register nailed her on that little trick.

A local drugstore owner tells me that his good consumers will buy magazines, take them home and read them, and then return them for a refund claiming their husbands bought duplicates, and then hand the proprietor a five-cent coupon and want the nickel without buying the product first. They finish off bars of candy and soda pop while walking through the store, but fail to remember this when it comes time to pay.

Did you know why most cereal food manufacturers do not put prizes in cereal boxes anymore? It's incredible, but buyers would pry open the package, take the prize, and leave the unsalable, torn box on the shelf.

Suburban stores tell of grown women who come in and buy a fancy party dress on Friday just before the country club dance and then return it saying, "I just changed my mind," and then get indignant if the clerk says it looks as if it had been worn. One dear lady even denied wearing the dress when there were cigarette burns on the front of it.

Then there are the people who brag about getting their whole car fixed under the insurance when the guy merely dented the fender. And the local laundryman claims that if a shirt is ever lost, it is always the most expensive one and invariably has just been purchased. His comment was: "How come I never lose last year's cheap shirt?"

Maybe there needs to be a Ralph Nader for upgrading the quality of the consumer in our country, or a moral revival. My advice to teenagers has been if they are going to be a thief, steal something worthwhile, like an airline or a railroad. Do not sell their character for 29 cents. I think I need to up the age level for this pitch after watching the consumers in my home town.

- Ziegler, Laird In Showdown
- Nixon Eyes Meat Prices
- The Backroom Budget Battle

WASHINGTON — The debate inside the White House over Watergate is developing into a showdown between Ron Ziegler and Mel Laird.

Ziegler got his White House job through the ousted chief of staff, Bob Haldeman, whose loyalists are still scattered throughout the Nixon Administration. Ziegler has now become the leader of this Haldeman-Ehrlichman faction.

They want President Nixon to thumb his nose at his critics and to take a hard line on Watergate. They argue that the public admires a strong leader and, therefore, will applaud a defiant Nixon.

Laird, on the other hand, has warned the President that his refusal to cooperate with the Watergate investigation makes him look guilty. Laird believes the way to get rid of the Watergate cancer is to cut it out. He would like to fire the Haldeman-Ehrlichman appointees, to cooperate with the Watergate investigation and to clear up the whole mess as quickly as possible.

Laird looks upon Ziegler, in particular, as the symbol of the Watergate coverup. Public confidence in the White House cannot be restored, Laird argues, as long as Ziegler is around.

Yet it was Ziegler, not Laird, whom the President took with him to Camp David to decide whether to turn over the White House tapes to the Watergate prosecutors. The President, who is combative by nature, came back in a defiant mood and threw down the gauntlet.

Bob Haldeman and John Ehrlichman may have been fired from the White House. But their influence still remains.

Anxious Eye: White House sources whisper that President Nixon is more worried about the economy than Watergate. He keeps an anxious eye particularly on meat prices. At the first outcry from housewives last spring, he froze the price of beef nearly three months before he imposed the freeze on other products. Now he is easing price controls on nearly all products except beef. The President has told subordinates that if Americans don't get their red meat, there will be red in their eyes.

But the tight control of beef is already causing a beef shortage. The prices of pork and other meats are skyrocketing, while beef remains the same. Smart shoppers, therefore, are buying up beef and ignoring the higher-priced meats.

Already, many supermarkets are running low on beef and the whole meat industry has been thrown out of gear. This secretly pleases some of the President's economic advisers who are philosophically opposed to government controls. They hope the beef shortage will cause a public revolt against all economic controls.

Tampering with the market, however, is a dangerous game. Even the experts can't be sure what the economic consequences will be.

Backroom Battle: The battle of the budget has been crowded off the front pages by the Watergate scandal. But a bitter struggle is raging in the backrooms between the Nixon Administration and the Congress over spending.

For example, the Administration impounded nearly $1.5 billion that Congress had appropriated for housing and community development. Now the Senate has quietly voted to cut off the salaries and expenses for bureaucrats in the Department of Housing and Urban Development unless the money is released.

The Office of Management and Budget also slashed $10 million from the Veterans Administration budget for veterans' hospitals. The cuts would prevent the hospitals from having air conditioning in the summer. This would mean many sick veterans would have to swelter through the long, hot summer in places like Gulfport, Miss., and Waco, Tex.

In retaliation, California's Sen. Alan Cranston introduced an amendment stipulating that no money in the budget could be used for air conditioning the budget cutters' offices until such time as the money for veterans' air conditioning is released.

Under the Constitution, Congress is supposed to control the purse strings. But President Nixon has often ignored the will of Congress in handling money. Now Congress is quietly lighting hack.

Black Market Boom: At the end of World War II and the Korean War, a bonanza of surplus military equipment became available to the public at giveaway prices. Canteens, sleeping bags, folding shovels and fatigue shirts became staples in surplus stores and college campuses across the nation. Many Americans were able to put old army jeeps, trucks and other heavy equipment to productive use.

Now that the United States has ended its involvement in the Vietnam War, however, none of these surplus spoils have shown up on the American market. The Pentagon claims all the usable equipment has been turned over to our allies in Southeast Asia.

A recent advertisement in the Singapore Straits Times tells where the equipment that cost U.S. taxpayers so much has gone:

"U.S. army equipment available," the ad says. "Large assortment of fork lifts, cranes, tractors, payloaders, road rollers, warehouse trailers, equipment and truck spare parts..."

It looks as if our Asian allies are peddling our military surplus on the black market.

Ward 5 Councillor William Delahunt reportedly not only has his eye on an at-large seat this year—but the council presidency, too.

Delahunt, who is vacating his ward seat, is expected to announce shortly his candidacy for council at-large.

The Speculation Corps also hears he is starting to line up support for the council presidency next January.

Delahunt, in just a couple of short years has become one of Quincy's brightest political stars. He's got what they call political charisma. Observers see him as a future mayor—and not too far in the future, either.

THE POLITICAL GRAPEVINE has former Councillor Charles Shea being urged to make a comeback bid as a Ward 1 council contender.

Shea, during his time in the council back in the 1950's-1960's, was a real pepper pot who took a stand and refused to back down from anyone.

Whether he steps out of political retirement, remains to be seen. He has flirted with the idea once or twice in recent years but at the last moment decided against it. His return would certainly have a major affect on the Ward 1 race.

SHEA'S NAME and the mention above of the council presidency brings back memories of 1962 when Shea won the council gavel.

He got the nod in a dramatic display of loyalty on the part of Councillor John Quinn. Quinn had sometime earlier pledged his support to Shea. Then, when it came to vote, he found himself Shea's biggest threat.

In fact, Quinn received four of the nine councillor's votes for the presidency. All he had to do was to cast one for himself and he'd be the president. It was a tempting opportunity for any man of political ambition. But Quinn kept his word and gave his own—and deciding vote—to Shea as he had promised.

Quinn, now the dean of the council in point of service, has never been president. Quite ironic.

EARLY BIRD: Councillor-Rep. Clifford Marshall is wasting no time in his bid for Norfolk County Sheriff next year. Marshall is already sending out letters and literature to Democratic committeemen asking for their support. His slogan, incidentally is a catchy one: "We Need A Marshall For Sheriff". [Matt Dillon would like that].

WONDER HOW MANY of you who saw the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Pageant last week know that one of the contestants, Barbara Tayne, 17, of Brintree is quite a track star? Not only was she on the Brintree High School girls track team—but also competed on the boys team. [She's done the 440-yard dash in 62.0].

THE NO PARKING ban on the westerly side of Hancock St. in downtown Quincy, has spawned a new nuisance: the U-turner. Some jockeys parked on the easterly side have discovered there is enough room now to make a U-turn because of the extra space on the westerly side.

DO YOU HAVE any old "penny" postcards with scenes of historic Quincy? William O'Connell, membership chairman of the Quincy Historical Society is looking for them. By "penny" postcards, he means the ones you used to be able to mail for a penny. He has some from early 1900's—including a few made of leather.

By the way, the Quincy Historical Society's membership is still rapidly rising. Latest count: 750.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE a ward plan makes. Before the new 8-ward plan was conceived, it appeared that Atty. Warren Powers and John Lydon, the funeral director, would be the main contenders for the old Ward 5 seat. Under the new 8-ward plan, Powers is in the Wollaston Hill District and Lydon in the Wollaston-Montclair district.

The other day Powers had a birthday party at the Knights of Columbus Hall in North Quincy. Among those attending: Jack Lydon.

DID YOU KNOW that the gravestones in historic Hancock Cemetery go back over 300 years? Oldest one-dated Dec. 10, 1666—is on the grave of Rev. William Tompson, first minister of the Church of Christ.

Among those buried there is Rev. John Hancock, father of the famous patriot.

And, do you remember the furor that went up back in 1963 when then Councillor Richard Barry suggested the cemetery be taken for an off-street parking lot?

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Q - Last month I purchased an automatic clothes dryer from what I assumed was a reputable appliance store. But when the store employees delivered the dryer to my home a few days later, I discovered that they had brought me a different model than the one I had ordered. Aren't there any laws against this type of practice?

A - Massachusetts Consumer protection Regulations, adopted in 1971, were drafted to protect persons like yourself from this kind of unscrupulous business practice. It is illegal under these laws for a company to ship, deliver or install a product different from the one ordered without obtaining prior customer approval. And when a company does try to make a substitution, it must have a legitimate reason—it cannot invent excuses in order to persuade a customer to accept merchandise that he really doesn't want.

Q - I recently tried to return a transistor radio which I had only purchased the day before. When I asked the store manager for a refund, he informed me that his store would give only credit on returned merchandise. Is that legal?

A - If you were not informed of the store's return refund and pricing policies by the clerk at the time of your purchase or if the information was not posted in the store, then you are the victim of a fraudulent business practice. The store manager may reserve the right not to grant cash refunds on returned products so long as he makes that policy clear to his customers. Next time make sure you know the store policy before you buy.

Q - Two months ago I purchased a winter coat at a pre-season sale. Since I didn't need the coat right away, I bought it on the store's lay-away plan. Yesterday I went to make a payment and was informed that my purchase had been cancelled. Shouldn't I have been told about this?

A - Yes you should have. Mass. law requires that the seller make clear to the customer any information or regulations regarding the store's lay-away plan at the time of the purchase. If the goods purchased will only be reserved for a certain period of time before being returned to stock, then the store is responsible for telling you this at the time of purchase. You should also have been informed ahead of time whether or not your deposit payments would be refunded in case of cancellation.

Living, Today

'Peg . . . From 261 To 130'

One whole person of 131 pounds is gone ... left is one beautiful woman now weighing 130 pounds. The dead weight clinging to her ... causing her to be depressed ... withdrawn ... ashamed has been sloughed off. Peg took no pills ... no gimmicks ... just controlled diet and the will to live. Today ... one year later ... Peg has stepped into a new free world ... happy ... enthusiastic and ready to begin a new life.

Peg had carried her excess weight for 10 years. She had reached a point where she had lost personal confidence ... and spent most of her day remaining in her room. Her depression deepened. She had lost many of her friends. Fears oppressed her. But Peg did not relate these symptoms to her excess weight. When she first came to my office, she said ... "I have no peace of mind ... I don't want to do anything ... I can't brush off the feelings of being afraid." When I asked how long she had had her weight problem, she was reluctant to answer ... for she hadn't really faced up to the fact that she was fat. She admitted that she'd felt hurt that the various remedies that had worked for others hadn't worked for her. She really hadn't seen her fatness as her problem. Finally she said that she hadn't really dealt with the condition ... except by "wishing the excess weight away ... which never happened." She had "hidden" the fatness from herself so long ... now she was trying to hide it from others by withdrawing herself to her room. Problems don't just go away ... whether obesity ... financial ... sexual ... marital. Usually they must be faced realistically and handled forthrightly. Peg was starting to do just this.

Under direction her weight loss was high at the start ... 5 pounds per week. "I didn't enjoy giving up various foods" ... she said last week, "but when I began to see the results my better eating habits were producing, it became a habit." After a few months I faced the fact that I was not on a diet but was in fact eating the way I would have to eat for the rest of my life. Physically she felt fine now ... felt no side effects from the loss of fat ... became more active in life ... went to summer school for graduate study ... and "I felt good about buying and wearing new clothes." Peg changed her wardrobe about every six weeks ... or every 20 pounds lost.

Half way through the year she began to cross her legs as she sat talking with me ... that she hadn't been able to do for 10 years. "I don't mind looking at myself in a mirror now" ... she announced to me one day. Besides her faithfulness to her diet ... and the drinking of water during each day ... Peg got a new image of herself ... the image of the girl she wanted to be. She saw herself professionally trained ... having friends ... thinner ... standing on her own abilities and confidence. That image tugged her along ... week by week.

How did "we" do it? I say WE because we worked together for our weekly goal of pounds lost ... I praised her progress and encouraged Peg. Each week we subtracted the pounds lost and calculated where she would be by Thanksgiving ... Christmas ... Easter ... when the school year ended, each milestone reached was a springboard to the next. I am very proud of Peg. There is no substitute for encouragement ... but it probably has to come from outside the family. This week we celebrate Peg's first anniversary with normal weight ... 130 pounds ... and a beautiful person.

In the words of Dr. Ruben ... "Any Woman Can". Peg did. She did because SHE WANTED TO. Not to please someone else ... but to please herself. That's the starting point for any change in attitude ... or behavior.

• Letter Box Open Letter To President Nixon

Richard M. Nixon
Office of the President
White House
Washington, D.C.
Dear President Nixon,

The office of the President of The United States of America, is the most respected Office in the world.

Men of your choice, Mr. President, are telling the people of the world that you are a liar and that through your office you are also a blackmailer. The real people of America elected you as their President and the real people will stand by you. Mistaken judgement, right or wrong, can be understood but a clean cut decision must be made and the real people are entitled to the TRUTH. TRUTH is a mighty weapon and it is understood.

Our country has made mistakes from the beginning, some of our leaders have been great in admitting their mistakes. We go forward by honest effort. In honest effort we make mistakes. Correction is the only turnabout, right or wrong, to the best of our ability. The TRUTH is the strongest right. There is no human person who is perfect. To err is human, to forgive divine. Damn few men whip a dead horse. Tell it the way it is!

Weighing all the words of the campaigners, yourself included, I marked my ballot for Richard M. Nixon. You are our President. The accusations that are being made cannot go unchallenged. This whole mess must have had a sound beginning, however your advisory group sure goofed according to the news media. Our American Image, Dollar, Stock Exchange, Business and most of all People are being damaged.

Our people want to know how they can help-not the money people who are taking full advantage of this rotten situation to make money. The only way in my very humble opinion is the truth. We learn our greatest lessons through our greatest mistakes. If you can convince the real people of America that this was not a mistake but a prudent judgement of thinking men then NOW is the time to do it not after the hearings when verdicts will be passed down for then it will be too late.

Real people and Public Relations are my life. Please read this in the spirit in which it was written.

CENTSIBLE SHOPPING Let children help buy school clothes

By JOYCE ROARK
Copley News Service

Summer is a carefree time of year. But very soon it'll be time to buy school clothes. Clothing prices are at their highest in August. So you must buy your child's clothes before August and hope he or she doesn't outgrow them before school starts, or try to make last year's clothes do until after school starts, or try to budget for the clothes at the higher prices.

Most mothers are in such a quandary about what to buy that they end up buying what they think is best for the child. If the child doesn't like it or won't wear it — then what do you do? For this and other reasons, the child should be taken along and consulted when buying school clothes.

The elementary school age child likes his or her clothes to conform with their friends'. At about age 10, the child will start to want individuality in his or her dress.

No matter what the age, everyone likes to have his peers admire his clothing. This is very important to children.

This year when you go shopping, keep these points in mind. They will save you money and eliminate many of your shopping problems.

Your child is at an age when growing rapidly is a common characteristic. His clothes will fit for a short time. You have two choices when making your purchase. You can buy less expensive clothes that will be worn out by the time your child outgrows it, or you can purchase more expensive clothing and pass it down to other children in the family.

Watch for seasonal sales. They can save you money. Usually clothing is priced lowest in October and April.

While your child is growing fast, it's wise to purchase fewer articles so that they will get lots of wear.

To help your budget, buy clothes that can be worn all year. Sweaters can make lightweight blouses or shirts into warm outfits.

Separates can be worn longer than one-piece outfits.

If you plan to pass clothes down, be sure to purchase styles that won't become dated. Fad styles are fashionable for very short periods.

Avoid clothing made of heavy fabrics, crepe, taffeta, satin, etc.

Large plaid and prints are not appropriate for children's clothing.

Children are very active people, so their clothing must be durable. When shopping, be sure to check the seams. It's also a good idea to check the fabric for flaws.

Girls like choosing their own clothes, so take them with you if you can. Boys are a bit reluctant, so don't pressure them. Do the best you can. Remember that there is always next year!

EATING OUT — Campfire Beans and Franks and Hot Mexican Corn Bread add up to hearty food to appease outdoor appetites.

COOKING CORNER

Some quickie dishes for cook's vacation

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Copley News Service

City congestion is more and more sending people to the country during the summer months when weather and the countryside are inviting.

Whether the outdoor trip is a "roughing it" jaunt or one which includes all the luxuries of home, there must be hearty food when appetites are sharpened by outdoor activities.

Food should be easy to prepare, for the cook needs a vacation, too. Skillet dishes, meats which each person can grill himself, and canned and dehydrated foods all contribute to ease of preparation.

The recipes offered today are geared to outdoor cooking methods, and are quickie dishes.

CAMPFIRE BEANS AND FRANKS

- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) margarine
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 cans (16-ounces each) vegetarian baked beans
- 1 can (16-ounce) tomatoes
- 6 frankfurters, sliced
- 2 tablespoons prepared mustard

Melt margarine in large saucepan. Add onion and saute over low heat until tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in beans, tomatoes, frankfurters and mustard. Heat through, stirring occasionally. Makes 6 servings.

HOT MEXICAN CORN BREAD

- 2 cups grated sharp Cheddar cheese
- 1 canned jalapeno peppers, seeded and finely chopped
- 1 cup yellow cornmeal
- 1 cup unsifted flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) softened margarine
- 1 cup milk
- 1 egg
- 1 can (12-ounce) vacuum-pack whole kernel corn, drained

Combine cheese and pepper in small bowl. Mix well; set aside.

Blend together cornmeal, flour, baking powder and salt in mixing bowl. Add margarine, milk and egg. Beat with rotary beater until smooth. Stir in corn. Pour 1/2 batter into a hot greased 9-inch skillet. Sprinkle on cheese and pepper. Pour on remaining batter, spreading mixture to cover cheese.

Bake at 400 degrees F. about 30 minutes, or until done. Remove from skillet and cool on wire rack. Wrap in foil when cool. To serve, place over hot coals until heated through. Makes 10 servings.

On July 9, 1940, Henry VIII's marriage to Anne of Cleves was annulled.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Contact important people and get together for meetings. Personal ambition prospers — you shine now. Display your talents and artistic accomplishments. Balance budget for future needs.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Take a position confidently and use the direct approach in your dealings. Situations at work improve and your position is strengthened. A phase is ending which you are glad to see pass along.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — also Aquarius Ascendant) — Changes that have a long-range influence are starting now. Be alert for a career opportunity. If a basic flaw in a work concept becomes evident, take the blame and change it. Be optimistic.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Projecting into the future is fine, but be realistically operative in the present. Resist procrastination and daydreaming. Some weight on your shoulders appears to lift. Good time for a vacation if possible.

LINCOLN'S WIDOW
On July 14, 1870, Congress passed an act granting a pension of $3,000 annually to the widow of Abraham Lincoln.

Graveside wedding wanted

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin: My sister has been engaged for nearly a year and she and our mother had made all the wedding plans. The ceremony was to take place in our church. Last week Mother died and now my sister wants the marriage to take place at Mother's grave. Our father says he'll do whatever my sister wants but I think the whole thing is macabre. What is your opinion? — Sister of the Bride

Dear Sister: Apparently your sister doesn't think it's macabre. I think the setting would be unusual and I'm not sure the wedding guests will feel as comfortable as they would in a church. Surely your future brother-in-law should have a say in the matter. Do try and persuade your sister to abide by her original plans. Would your mother approve of your sister's plan?

Weddings should evoke happy memories and I can't believe a wedding held at a grave will ever do that.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: If I have to regret an invitation, is it necessary that I give a reason? — Pondering in Waukegan

Dear Pondering: No, but if you have a legitimate reason, why not state it? "I'm sorry, but John and I will be out of town," or "I'm sorry, but we have other plans for that night," are all that is necessary.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: I am 40 years old and my mother has just remarried. How do I introduce this man to my friends? — C.L.C.

Dear C.L.C.: Of course you will introduce your mother first by saying, "I want you to meet my mother, Mrs. Jones." Then you would turn and say, "and her husband, Mr. Jones."

Aquinas Placement Director

Elinor Quigley Listed In 'Two Thousand Women Of Achievement'

Mrs. Elinor Quigley of 53 Clement Terrace, North Quincy is listed in the recent World Edition of "TWO THOUSAND WOMEN OF ACHIEVEMENT".

Mrs. Quigley has been Placement Director at the Newton and the Milton campuses of Aquinas Junior College since 1961. During this time, she has placed over 2,000 students in full-time positions. She has also provided opportunities for part-time employment during their college years.

Many of the graduates of Aquinas have very interesting positions. They have been trained in the following fields: Executive, Legal, Medical and Therapeutic Secretarial Programs; and Medical Assistant, Fashion Merchandising and Early Childhood Education Programs.

From these diversified programs, they have gone into almost every field of business in the Boston area; and some have traveled and are now working in other cities in the U.S.A. and in countries throughout the world.

Some of the Aquinas graduates are working successfully in local and federal bureaus of government.

MRS. ELINOR QUIGLEY

"I have so many graduates in the State House that I feel as if I am at an Alumnae Reunion when I visit there," says Mrs. Quigley.

Among the Aquinas girls working in the Washington area, one is in the White House, others are at C.I.A., several are with Senators and Congressmen. In fact, one is now Administrative Assistant to Senator Brooke in his Boston office.

Among the other interesting positions that have been held by Aquinas graduates are:

A Training Co-ordinator and Director of Flight Operations for the Alaska Airlines; a former Director of Public Education for the Massachusetts Division of the American Cancer Society; a former Assistant to the Vice President of S. S. Pierce Company; an Assistant to Rowland Evans, Jr. and Robert D. Novak, publishers of the Evans-Novak Political Report, "INSIDE REPORT", and a weekly TV program. These are only a few among the fascinating openings available to Aquinas graduates.

Mrs. Quigley's contact with Aquinas girls does not end with their graduation. She visits them during their first year in business to help them if they need help.

Dudley's Furniture Offers Complete Line Of Brand Names

By PAUL FELDMAN

"Our furniture prices are as low if not lower than anyone's in the state," says Dick Mulcahy, manager of Dudley Furniture and Appliance Co., 15 Billings Rd., North Quincy.

"We sell a complete line of home furnishings-national brand names like Kroehler and Bassett for living rooms; Sumter, Dixie and Bassett for bedrooms; as well as TV's, chairs, refrigerators and washers in our spacious three-floor showroom," says the soft-spoken North Quincy resident. "And since we don't have the overhead of other places, we can afford to sell for less."

Mulcahy has managed the 35-year-old business for more than eight years. He began with the company as a truck driver over 20 years ago, and after short stints as a salesman and warehouse manager, he was given the job of running the store.

Before working for Dudley Furniture, Mulcahy served underground as a 'sandhogger' or tunnel digger in layman's terms. "I helped build the tunnel between Chelsea and Deer Island. We exploded dynamite at strategic sections and then the machines pulled the muck out. I liked the work but I was allergic to rubber, a prime ingredient in tunnel construction."

Mulcahy grew up in Somerville, attending the Voc-Tech School there. He served in the front lines of Italy and Africa during World War II.

Mulcahy and his wife, Matty, moved to North Quincy 16 years ago. They have five children, ages 16 to 30, three of whom are married. Judy, 16, and Bill, 22, help out at the furniture store. Mulcahy also has three grand-children.

Mulcahy's main hobby is fishing. He usually angles for deep-sea fish such as haddock, bluefish and bass.

He is a member of the American Legion, VFW and the North Quincy Business and Professional Association.

"About 90% of our business at Dudley Furniture is repeat business," Mulcahy says. "The customers are satisfied and so they keep coming back."

Among the features of Dudley Furniture are free set-up and delivery service, quick action on complaints, courteous, helpful service by the knowledgeable seven member staff as well as low prices and good selection.

Dennis Walsh Graduates From Air Force School

Airman First Class Dennis X. Walsh, son of Mrs. Mary A. Walsh of 30 Becket St., North Quincy, has graduated at Keesler AFB, Miss., from the U.S. Air Force space control and warning systems specialist course conducted by the Air Training Command.

The airman, who learned to operate electronic consoles used in space tracking and control systems, is being assigned to Hancock Field, N.Y., for duty with a unit of the Aerospace Defense Command.

Walsh is a 1972 graduate of Cathedral High School, Boston.

CHARCOAL AND CARBON MONOXIDE

Do-it-yourself barbecue chefs should do their barbecuing out in the open. Otherwise, warns the National Safety Council, what starts out to be a festive meal may result in a tragedy.

Many persons regard charcoal briquets as harmless to use indoors, never dreaming that large quantities of carbon monoxide can accumulate.

You need plenty of air to get rid of the poisonous gases from burning charcoal. Poisonings and even asphyxiations have been reported when briquettes were burned indoors.

Some advice: Don't burn briquets in a garage or basement or any other enclosed area such as a porch, tent or cabin. If you absolutely must use charcoal indoors, please use it near an open window or door as a sensible precaution against accumulating carbon monoxide. If used in a fireplace make certain that the damper is wide open - not half way. It's the only way to be sure the lethal gases can escape.

MONEY TALKS

Help the Teenager Get Ready for Adulthood

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Hottelbrook
6-6 Weekdays 6-7:30 Thursday

As teenagers help toward household income with part-time and summer jobs, they get introduced into some of the complexities of earning an income and providing for the future. This is an opportune time to discuss social security, pension plans, life insurance, and savings programs that will help them map the way toward their own later financial independence and security.

Certainly, at this age all young people need to be brought face to face with the responsibilities involved in installment buying so that they they will not be led astray by the siren songs of "no money down" and "play now, pay later."

Throughout the period of growing knowledge and increasing financial independence, it is important that teenagers realize their continuing obligation of loyalty to the family team. With the heady freedom of money in the pocket or the savings account, it is easy for the teenager to nourish the illusion that he is making his own way, that the money he now has is his to do with as he wishes.

Just as the parents' savings account is available for emergency or planned use when needed for any family member—whether an operation or a college education—so too Johnny should recognize that his accumulated funds are a part of the family's financial reservoir. He has been subsidized over the years with food, shelter, and clothing, his medical and dental bills have been paid, his education planned or provided for. He must recognize that a decision to splurge his savings on a new sports car or a trip to Europe is a matter for family evaluation.

The bold experiment of one family in the financial education of its children is told in a national magazine. When their 13-year-old daughter Ellen lost a wallet at the movies and left a new spring coat at the local community house—just the latest in a series of careless acts—the parents discussed her lack of responsibility with their family doctor.

"Why should she be responsible?" he said. "Are you teaching her to? If that were my problem I'd think the wasted money was important too. After all, it's not the principle of the thing, it's the money!"

The parents' decision was to give Ellen full responsibility for her finances by turning over her $35 per month to her. Out of this she was to pay for everything except school, medical, and dental expenses. They asked her to keep a close record for six months of her expenditures.

After a few early crises that almost prompted Ellen's parents to give up the program, she began to show a sense of responsibility and to develop money management. By the time her younger brother was 13, Ellen encouraged her parents to put him on the same program. Now three teenagers in this family have learned through this radical method to handle money with intelligence, imagination, and dispatch.

Brownell Seeks Portable Police Sub-Station At Wollaston Beach

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] has recommended that the MDC place a portable police trailer sub-station for the summer on Wollaston Beach near where a girl was shot recently for no apparent reason.

Said Brownell in a letter to MDC Commissioner John W. Sears:

"The suggestion of a portable sub-station was made to me by a source who had indicated that there is now available a trailer that can be employed as a police sub-station.

"On the surface this idea appears to me to be a reasonable way of increasing police protection and exposure at Wollaston Beach to safeguard the public.

"As you are aware legislation compelling the construction of an MDC police sub-station filed by Quincy representatives has received favorable action by the legislature this year.

"This proposal I feel would be a reasonable compromise if it helped alleviate the problems at Wollaston Beach."

From Laborer To Miss Quincy

Patricia Kelley Keeps Quincy Beautiful 2 Ways

By PAUL FELDMAN

Patricia Kelley is helping to keep Quincy beautiful in two ways this summer — both as a worker in the City Forestry Department and as the new Miss Quincy Bay Race Week.

The pretty, bubbly 18-year old blond who won the pageant crown last Thursday night, worked as a laborer for six weeks this summer mowing lawns, pulling weeds or in her own words, "Keeping the City beautiful."

Summer City jobs for teenagers last only six weeks this year, so she had to retire recently. But as Miss Quincy Bay Race Week, she will continue to keep Quincy beautiful during her reign.

Of her victory in the competition, Patty says, "It was always my childhood dream to win a beauty contest and it's a great feeling to win. I'm both surprised and overjoyed."

Patty will reign over Quincy Bay Race Week Aug. 15-19, attending socials and riding in the Marine Parade.

"I'm looking forward to all of these events," she said.

For winning the pageant, she received almost $700 worth of prizes including $200 in bonds, $200 in scholarship money at a modelling school, and $300 in gifts that include a wristwatch, a wig, a dress ensemble, a bouquet of flowers, a tennis suit, a newspaper subscription and various gift certificates, all donated by local businesses.

First runner-up was Cathy Beston, 20, of Ruggles St., Quincy. Other finalists, in order of their finish were Emilie DiTullio, 18, of Stanley Circle, Quincy; Debbie Lee, 17, of Houghton St., Milton; and Ottile Riley, 17, of Billings St., Quincy.

Patty, a June graduate of Quincy High School was chosen as the best-looking girl in the Senior Class. She participated in a number of activities at QHS including Ski Club, Q Club, and Tri Hi V, of which she was the Vice President in her junior year and the President in her senior year.

Her favorite hobbies include skiing, both in water and on snow, sewing, and raising fish. She does volunteer work with retarded children at Wrentham State Hospital.

Patty has attended modelling school at the Academy Moderne in Boston and she hopes to do some modelling work in the future. "My modelling teacher was the one who advised me to enter the beauty contest," she says, "although I had been thinking myself about entering the Miss Quincy Bay contest for the past year."

This was the first beauty contest she had ever participated in. As for national contests, she says, "I'll have to wait and see what happens in the future."

Patty's life-long dream is to become an airline stewardess and she will apply to the different airlines for a job in the fall. "I love working with people and travelling, so being a stewardess would be great."

She explains her love for travel as resulting from her early life. "My father was in the Navy when I was young and we lived in Africa, Panama and Florida among other places."

Her father, Joseph T. Kelley, is now retired from the Navy and works at a restaurant in Lakeville.

Patty lives on Whitwell St. with her parents, her brother Joe, 16, and her two Siamese cats, Chang and Ming.

Judges in the pageant were: Quincy School Superintendent Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, Carol Nashe, owner of Carol Nashe Model Agency and Model and Charm School; Richard J. Koch, executive secretary Quincy Park-Recreation Board; Virginia Pritchette, Miss Quincy Bay Race Week of 1970; Wesley Watson, president of Quincy Bay Race Week Association.

Henry Bosworth of the Quincy Sun and Kenneth P. Fallon of WJDA were co-chairmen of the pageant committee, Fallon was also emcee.

Others on the committee included Leslie Brierley; Hancock Bank; Raymond Cunningham, representing the Quincy Bay Race Week Association; Remo DeNicola, South Shore Television and Appliance; Paul Hurley Jr., Hurley Insurance; Florence Kerrigan, Baskin-Robbins; Roberta Meade, Roberta's Fashion Shoppe; Ruth Miller, Marvel Beauty Shop and Terry Pulito, Colpitts Travel Center.

The field of contestants was narrowed from 23 to 20 when Pauline Keefe, 16, of Elmwood Park, Quincy; Debbie Quintiliani, 16, of Cranch St., Quincy; and Donna Lee Robertson, 17, of Washington St., Milton; all dropped out.

NICE DUTY — Vice Commodore Sal Gallinaro of Town River Yacht Club escorts Patricia Kelley, 18, of Quincy along boardwalk an hour before she was selected as Miss Quincy Bay Race Week of 1973. A crowd estimated at more than 3,000 turned out for the pageant in downtown Quincy despite threat of rain. Note spectators on roof of building in background.

Extra Modelling Scholarships

Bring Prizes To $1,600

An extra $450 in additional modelling scholarships, awarded on the spot by Carol Nashe, owner of Carol Nashe Model and Charm School, brought the total of prizes to approximately $1,600 in the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Pageant last Thursday night.

Miss Nashe, a pageant judge, was so impressed by the contestants that in addition to awarding $200 to the winner, Patricia Kelley, she awarded $200 to first runner-up Cathy Beston, and $50 each to the second through fourth runner-ups, Emilie DeTullio, Debbie Lee and Ottile Riley. In addition, she made another special award of $50 to contestant Debra King.

Patricia Kelley receives:

- A $200 bond from the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

- A $200 scholarship from the Carol Nashe Career Model and Charm School.

- A wrist watch from Rogers Jewelry.

- An Elura wig from South Shore Beauty Supply Co.

- A one-year subscription to The Quincy Sun.

- A gift certificate from Marvel Beauty Shop.

- A gift certificate from Remick's.

- A gift certificate from South Shore Television and Appliance.

- A dress ensemble from Sears Roebuck.

- A tennis suit from Colman's Sporting Goods Store.

West Quincy Firm Seeks Ocean Dumping Permit

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will hold a public hearing Aug. 23 on an application from a West Quincy company for an ocean dumping permit.

The hearing will be held at 10 a.m., in Room 505 of the John F. Kennedy Federal Building, Government Center, Boston.

Applicant for the ocean dumping permit is Safety Projects and Engineering, Incorporated, 3 Malden St., West Quincy, whose sole business is the disposal of a variety of substances at sea.

The permit, which is necessary under the Marine Protection, Research, and Sanctuaries Act of 1972, would authorize, with special limitations and conditions, the ocean dumping on a continuing basis of small quantities of a large number of assorted substances. Since April 23, 1973, this activity is prohibited without such a permit.

All interested persons are invited to comment on this application and to be present at this hearing to express their views on these or any other relevant issues.

Norfolk Labor Council, Local 5 Award $600 In Scholarships

NORFOLK COUNTY Labor Council $300 scholarship is presented Miss Margaret Walsh of Norwood by Richard Post of Local 1451 Machinists Union, and chairman of the council's Scholarship Committee. Looking on are Charles M. Johnston, president Norfolk Labor Council and Dist. Atty. George G. Burke, guest speaker.

Two $300 scholarships were presented at the recent Norfolk County Massachusetts Labor Council, AFL-CIO, Scholarship Dinner at Moose Hall, Braintree. Recipient of the Council Scholarship was Miss Margaret Walsh of Norwood, who will attend Holy Cross. The presentation was made by Richard Post, Local 1451, Machinists Union and chairman of the Scholarship Committee. Miss Joan Clawson of Abington, who plans to attend Jackson Junior College, received the Local 5 Shipbuilders Union Scholarship, presented by President Arthur Batson. Her father, James, is a member of Local 5.

Charles M. Johnston, President of the Council, introduced guest speaker Dist. Atty. George C. Burke, who spoke on prison reform and the role college graduates can play in changing the correctional system.

Others seated at the head table and introduced by President Johnston were:

John Callahan, COPE and Education Director; James P. Laughlin, Secretary Treasurer of the Mass. State Labor Council [AFL-CIO]; Edward O'Neil, Vice President Mass. Labor Council and Executive Vice President of the Norfolk County Labor Council; Alice Lyons, Secretary of the Council and secretary of the Retail Clerks Union, Local 224; Margaret Walsh, Antonio Svizzero, New England Regional Director of RUMSWA and Edward Sharkey, Secretary Treasurer of the Council.

Callahan stressed the importance of all locals participating in the scholarship program of the Massachusetts State Labor Council.

"It is an important factor in assisting young people to attain their goals in life," he said.

Germantown Clinic

Results Awaited In Testing Of 150 For Lead Paint Poisoning

By PAUL FELDMAN

Some 150 Germantown children between the ages of six months and five years participated in a lead paint poisoning test clinic last Wednesday.

Results of the test are not yet available.

The problem of lead in the paint on buildings at the Germantown Housing Project was discovered last month when a new resident, Mrs. Aida Vargas, moved there from Dorchester. Her son, Sean, had picked up lead poisoning in their Dorchester apartment and she had hoped to avoid further problems by moving to Quincy. However, to join Germantown's Head Start program, Sean took a federally-required screening test which showed that he was still finding lead somewhere.

A pilot test was made and one of five children from the Germantown project, chosen because they were putting non-food objects in their mouths, was found to have a high level of lead in his blood.

Last week, test stations were set up in yards and on porches throughout the project in the hope of testing all 400 youngsters there. A team of volunteer medical students and nurses from Boston University under the direction of Dr. Robert G. Feldman conducted the tests.

The procedure followed that of a routine blood test. Three forms were filled out by parents and then the child's hand was washed and a small incision made in a finger. Blood was siphoned into a small tube resembling a ball-point pen refill. After filling it with a small sample, the tube was stopped up with a soft crayon-like substance.

The test took less than two minutes and most of the youngsters withstood the minor pain with no more than the batting of an eyelash. Of course there were some tears shed but they were few and far between.

Due to the lack of sufficient supplies and the hot weather, only about one-third of the 400 children were tested. Mrs. Rosemary Wahlberg, director of the Germantown Service Center said that remaining children would be tested within the next two weeks at another similar clinic at the project.

While results of the first test should be released soon by the Mass. Department of Public Health, Carolyn Burke, an official at the DPH, cautioned that one test is insufficient.

"Since this is the first test for all the kids involved, it is by no means final," she said. "Anyone showing high levels of lead in his blood is immediately retested for the possibility of contamination in the sample."

The DPH hopes to test 50,000 children this year as part of their new state-funded program in lead poisoning. Any Mass. resident can take advantage of this state program.

The full extent of the Germantown project paint problem is not yet known. Preliminary tests, according to Mrs. Wahlberg, trace high lead content to the outside of windowsills of project houses.

Clement O'Brien, executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority said, "We must wait for the Quincy City Department of Public Health to make the proper and qualified testing to determine where any lead above the permissible limits is—in the interior, exterior or wherever."

An accurate lead count will be officially determined through the use of a special new testing machine supplied by the DPH to the local health department. However, the machine is not available until next month.

Once the source of the lead is discovered, the Quincy Housing Authority can request funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the state Department of Community Affairs to eliminate the problem.

O'Brien pointed out that there might still be much lead paint in the 25 year-old project since laws against lead paint did not go into effect until 1963.

"Before that," he said, "lead paint was regarded as the best quality paint and its use was recommended. We have no records saying how much we used. However, I do know that we haven't used any lead paint for the seven years I've been here."

Miss Burke adds that "Although interior lead paint was outlawed in 1963, if it has been used even once and then painted over, the lead remains and all paint must be scraped down to the wood to remove it."

The only other solution, at least for outside paint, is to put new shingles over the afflicted wood.

The problem of lead poisoning afflicts children in their "creeping, crawling age" through a nutritional disorder called Pica, in which a child looks for non-food substances to eat. The disorder is common amongst people of all ages, although older people eat ice or chew fingernails instead of consuming harmful substances like lead paint.

Lead paint poisoning can cause crippling and lead to the damage of nerve endings.

Veterans News

Q - I was the wife of a serviceman killed during World War II. My VA compensation was discontinued when I remarried in 1955. Since my second husband died recently, I wonder if VA will pay me compensation again based on my first husband's death?

A - Yes. Under a law enacted in 1970, VA may again award compensation to a remarried widow whose remarriage ended in death or divorce.

Q - I'm going to college under the GI Bill, but my 36 months of education entitlement will end two months before I receive my degree. When will VA discontinue my allowance checks?

A - At the end of the school term in which entitlement runs out.

Q - If a veteran with a nonservice connected disability dies in a private hospital, will VA pay transportation costs to place of burial?

A - No. VA is permitted to bear these expenses only when death occurs in a VA hospital or domiciliary, or while hospitalized at VA expense.

● Babe Ruth League

Police Club, Burger King Win N.L., A.L. Titles

The Police Boys' Club won the Quincy Babe Ruth League National League championship and Burger King the American League title and engaged this week in the championship playoffs at Adams Field.

The teams met Tuesday and Wednesday and if they split, the deciding game will be played today [Thursday] at 5 p.m.

Final results during the past week:

July 30:
S-D-S 4, Firemen 2; Firemen 9, K. of C. 0 [forfeit]; Houghs Neck 8, Burger King 3.

July 28:
Granite City Electric 8, Hancock Bank 2. Mike Kelly pitched a one-hitter and struck out 10 while Bob Stack had two hits including a triple and his brother Paul reached base four times on a double, single and two walks.

K. of C. 5, Houghs Neck 0. Mike Faherty pitched a no-hitter and Paul Barry drove in three runs.

July 27:
Police 7, Hancock Bank 2. Louie Fishman pitched four-hit ball, Paul Messina had a bases loaded triple and then scored on a passed ball to account for four runs in the third inning. Chuck LoPresti and John Ferris hit long doubles and Jackie Powers scored two runs. Ed Marino pitched good ball for Hancock and struck out 11.

July 26:
Police 15, Burger King 3. Behind the pitching of Paul Messina the Police breezed past the American League champs to clinch its league title. Burger King clinched the American crown, despite the loss, due to a later loss by runner-up Firemen.

Ronnie Donovan had three hits for Police while John Ferris and Chuck LoPresti had two hits each. Fishman played an outstanding game at shortstop in his first game at this position and had a ground rule double that would have been a homer in any other park. Paul Vespaziani had two hits and Ed Dacey three for Burger King.

Granite City Electric 12, Houghs Neck 3; North Quincy K. of C. 4, VFW 0.

July 24:
Burger King 6, Hancock Bank 2; Elks 6, Bersani Brothers 5.

July 23:
Police 15, VFW 8. Paul Jackmaugh was the starting pitcher for Police and together with reliever Chuck LoPresti, held VFW to seven hits. Fishman had four hits, LoPresti three including two long doubles, while Eddie Laracy, Jackie Powers and Paul Messina had two hits each. Tommy McBride and Ed Doherty had two hits each for VFW.

Hancock Bank 8, Morrisette 1; Houghs Neck Legion 11, Elks 9; Granite City Electric 5, Firemen 3.

BATTER UP — Al Jackson, captain and first baseman of The King and His Court for the past 15 years, hands the ball to blind-folded Eddie [The King] Feigner as the latter prepares to pitch in one of the four-man team's softball exhibition games.

'King' Eddie Feigner Takes On WBZ Here Aug. 8

The King and His Court return to Quincy Wednesday [Aug. 8] to play the WBZ Radio-TV softball team under the lights at 8 p.m. on the Quincy YMCA's Rotary Field.

The King is Eddie Feigner, the 50ish pitcher who has been blowing fastballs and curves past the nation's best softball batters for the past 28 years.

His Court is his three teammates — a catcher, first baseman and fielder — who barnstorm the country, playing and beating the best nine-man teams.

Feigner, perhaps the best pitcher in softball history, throws blindfolded, behind his back, between his legs and from second base.

13-Year Old All Stars Drop Pair

The Quincy Babe Ruth League [National League] 13-year old all-stars lost two straight games in a South Shore tournament which also included Quincy American League, two teams from Weymouth, Hyde Park and Hingham.

Quincy lost its opener to Weymouth South, 7-3, as the batters were shackled by Weymouth pitching. The only Quincy runs were scored on two passed balls and a ground ball by Eddie Laracy of the Police Club. Richie Boyle of the Police team pitched a strong game for Quincy but was lifted with the score 3-3 in favor of Hancock Bank's Mike McCormack, who took the loss. Brian Harding of Morrisette finished up.

In the second game Quincy was walloped by the same Weymouth South team, 10-3. Dave McLaughlin pitched all the way for Quincy.

The Quincy National League all-star roster included Billy Ross, Steve Cooke and Ed Deane of North Quincy K. of C.; Eddie Laracy, Richie Boyle, John Andrews and Ron Donovan of Police; Brian Harding and Bob McCabe of Morrisette; John Fitzgerald, Mark Neville and Dave McLaughlin of S-D-S; Carl Bergstrom and Jack Malloy of Granite City Electric, and Mike McCormack and Mark Flaherty of Hancock Bank.

Vin Smyth Club Defeats Waterbury All-Stars

The Vin Smyth Club defeated the Waterbury, Connecticut 18-16 All Stars, 7-3, at Adams Field, Quincy Saturday night in Babe Ruth League action.

Mike MacKenzie, pitching for the Smyth Club allowed only three scattered hits while striking out seven. Frank Schular was behind the plate and this battery were the big hitters for the night. MacKenzie helped his own cause with three sharp singles and Schular hitting two singles.

John Lawlor hit a double and a single, Bob MacIntosh, and Tim Pico had two singles apiece.

On Tuesday night at Adams Field, the Smyth Club was scheduled to play the first place team in the North Division of the league, West Roxbury 2 which leads the league with a 16-1 record. Vin Smyth is now

● Quincy Softball League Paige's, Ship Haven Rack Up 3 Wins Each

Paige's had a big week in the Quincy Softball League as it won three games.

After staging a five-run rally in the final inning to edge Dee Dee's, it defeated Beau's Place, 11-6, and Palmer Pub, 10-2.

In the win over Dee-Dee's, Terry Cullen drove in the tying run and the winning run scored on an error on Bill Osborn's ground ball.

Alumni Cafe defeated Beau's Place, 12-6, as John Barkas and Vin Cameron led the way with two hits apiece and Bob Chute, filling in in the outfield, was strong on defense. Tom Buckley pitched for the Alumni and also had two hits.

Beau's did salvage one win as it walloped Mr. Kelly, 11-4. Tommy Colclough had three hits for Beau's.

Marcel nipped McInnis, 11-10, as Ray Connerty homered, but the American League East leaders then suffered their second defeat of the year, 7-0, at the hands of Hofbrau.

Barry's Ship Haven also had a big week with three wins to increase its National League West lead.

After a runaway 18-1 win over China Lido, Ship Haven just managed to get by Jonathan's, 12-11, and had to stage a five-run rally in an extra inning game to top St. Catherine's, 6-1. Tom Walsh and Ken Marsters had two hits in St. Catherine's great effort, while Paul Bregoli collected three for Ship Haven.

St. Catherine's also lost to County Line but bounced back to edge Jonathan's 10-9, in another extra inning game. The Saints' defense in the late innings was outstanding as it came up with two big double plays. Brian Buckley and Jerry McCall carried St. Catherine's with their hitting.

Morrisette Eliminated, Quincy Drops Doubleheader

Morrisette was eliminated from the American Legion Zone 6 race on the last day of the season Monday, bowing to Hingham for the first time ever by a 2-1 score while Weymouth clinched the title with a 7-2 victory over Randolph.

Morrisette got only one hit, a single by Artie Boyle, off Hingham's Jeff Pinkus, but Hingham had to come from behind for the win.

Morrisette's run came in the second inning when Jim Driscoll was hit by a pitch, went around to third on two Hingham errors and scored on John Warren's sacrifice fly.

Hingham tied it up in the third and tallied the winning run in the sixth on two singles and a wild pitch. Tim Clifford was the losing pitcher for Morrisette.

Quincy Post closed out the season on the same day, dropping a doubleheader to Braintree 6-0 and 4-0.

Last week Quincy made it two out of three over Morrisette when it exploded for six runs in the fifth inning of their arclight game for an 8-6 decision.

The usually sure-fisted Morrisette team came up with three errors to hand Quincy two runs in the third.

In the big fifth a single by Jim McCabe, a walk and an error filled the bases and Steve Mele, the winning pitcher, singled home two runs. Frank DiSalvo singled home two more, George French's single added the fifth and another error allowed the final run to score.

Morrisette bounced back with three in its half when two walks and a single by Bob Benn filled the bases and a walk to Jim Driscoll forced in a run. Artie Boyle's fielder's choice accounted for the second and Steve McKinnon brought home the third with an infield out.

Benn's double following two walks added a run in the sixth and Morrisette added two in the seventh when Boyle tripled and scored on an infield out, Mark Dwyer reached second on an error and scored on Mike DePolo's single.

Quincy's nine hits were all singles by McCabe, Kevin Jago, Billy Shea, Mele [two], DiSalvo, George French, Bill Berberan and Jim French.

Morrisette had six hits including Boyle's triple and single, Benn's double and single and singles by McKinnon and DePolo.

Tim Clifford, Morrisette's 15-year old right-hander, suffered his first loss of the season following five wins.

Pop Warner Football Clinic At North Tonight

The fourth annual Pop Warner Football Clinic sponsored by the Mass. High School Football Coaches Association will be conducted tonight [Thursday] at 6 p.m. at North Quincy High School.

North Quincy Coach Ralph Frazier is the clinic director. Joe Crowley is president of the association and the clinic advisers are Henry Mucciaccio, South Shore Conference Commission of Pop Warner Football, and Bob McGee, Eastern Mass. Youth Football Association Commissioner [Pop Warner Football].

The clinicians will be Frazier, former B.U. lineman, on offensive backfield techniques;

Jack Bowes, Milton High coach, former U. of New Hampshire great and former North Quincy assistant, offensive backfield techniques; Ken McPhee, North Quincy assistant, South Central Connecticut; Mike McLaughlin, Milton High assistant, Tufts, and John Riordan, Milton assistant, Northeastern U.

"In recent years the Mass. High School Football Association has made tremendous progress in rebuilding interest in high school football," Frazier said. "Some of the association's accomplishments include a new rating system, post season playoff games and the addition of a tenth football game starting in 1974.

"The association has continually attempted to upgrade football by sponsoring clinics for its member coaches and the Pop Warner League. The clinic at North Quincy will emphasize the basic techniques of ball handling, passing, receiving, running, blocking and tackling.

"A basic skills booklet is being put together by the clinicians and will be of great assistance to the Pop Warner coaches. The clinic and the booklet will be available free of charge to all Pop Warner coaches."

Lou Tozzi Named North Cross Country Coach

Lou Tozzi, assistant spring and winter track coach at North Quincy High School, has been named the Raiders' cross country coach, succeeding the retired Bob Gentry.

Lou, who played a prominent role in developing North's outstanding relay teams, is a teacher at Central Junior High. Captain of Quincy High's 1963 and 1964 track teams, Tozzi attended Boston State College and Northeastern University and is presently completing his masters' program at Bridgewater State College in special education.

He is married and lives in Boston.

PEE WEE MINORS LOSE TO HYDE PARK

Giachetti Assistant Coach At Tufts

Rich Giachetti, former North Quincy football star who set several records at Tufts University, will return to his college alma mater as assistant football coach in the fall.

Giachetti, who holds the New England college record for most passes caught in a career, [159], also holds other Tufts marks.

Following an outstanding schoolboy career at North, Rich starred at Deerfield Academy before entering Tufts.

Last fall he took a challenging job as football coach at the Monterey Institute of Technology in Monterey, Mexico, and came away with some interesting appraisals of football and lifestyles in Mexico.

He explained that, because

Mexicans gear themselves more to being productive in fields other than sports, that they basically can't compete with Americans in football.

He did say, however, that his Monterey team, which won the Mexican intercollegiate championship, would be competitive in football against American teams.

Rich, a Little All-American end at Tufts, is looking forward to coaching there.

"I have always had great respect for Rocky Crocker, the head coach at Tufts," Giachetti said. "He's one man who always keeps football in what he feels is the proper perspective. He tries to relate things that happen in football to everyday life."

Quincy Boy

Willard Crocker In Canadian Tennis Hall Of Fame

Quincy's Willard F. Crocker has been elected to the Canadian Tennis Hall of Fame.

The honor climaxes the brilliant career of the No. 1 player in the long history of the Quincy Tennis Club.

Crocker lived on Park Lane and started playing at the Quincy Tennis Club as a junior. He was graduated in 1915 from Quincy High School where he was president of his class, and captain of tennis and basketball.

At Tufts he was an outstanding basketball player and was captain of the tennis team. In his senior year he was president of the Tufts Athletic Association, and president of 'Tower Cross, the honor society - the highest student honor. From Tufts he went to McGill University. There, among other activities, he exercised his orchestral talents and helped compose the college song, patterned after American college songs. After graduation from McGill, he settled in Montreal where he still resides.

In 1915, his senior year at Quincy High School, he was a finalist in the Quincy Tennis Club Lobster Tournament, losing in five sets. The following year he won a singles tournament at the Club, and in 1917 the Lobster. He was club champion in 1921.

Crocker played in the international field in the days of the tennis giants, and held his own with them. One of his notable wins was over Gerald Patterson, the noted Australian player. He played on the Canadian Davis Cup Team for eight years, 1923 through 1930. He was Canadian Singles Champion in 1925, and won the doubles championship in 1923, 1925 and 1929. He won the Canadian indoor title three times and the doubles five times.

For these accomplishments and his efforts for Canadian tennis, he has been awarded the highest honor that a Canadian tennis player can receive.

Junior League Playoff Friday

The Quincy Junior League championship will be decided Friday at 6 p.m. at Faxon Field when the playoff winners collide.

Cathy Ilacqua, John Kenney 'Leaders Of The Week'

Recreation Director William F. Ryan announces the selection of John Kenney and Miss Cathy Ilacqua as 'Leaders of the Week'.

"Both have succeeded in giving the participants of Pond St. playground one of the best programs in the City, as is brought out by the record number of participants and parents frequenting that playground," Ryan said.

Cathy who has lived in Quincy for 10 years attended Central Junior High School and is a graduate with honors from Quincy High School this year. She was captain of Quincy High's girls track team for three years, and also played center on the girls basketball team which won the Greater Boston League Championship. Cathy was also a member of the girls' tennis team and can be generally seen playing nightly at the Votec courts. Among her special interests Cathy includes photography, and many of her works have been exhibited in the Boston Globe Art Show as well as the Scholastic Art Magazine.

Cathy began working for the Quincy Recreation Department this past winter and was cited for her outstanding achievement as a leader at the Snug Harbor school. Cathy plans to attend Bridgewater in the Fall where she plans to major in Physical Education and minor in Art.

Kenney is a second year veteran of both the Quincy Recreation Winter and Summer programs. He is a graduate of Quincy High School and Bridgewater State College. His interest in recreation includes participation in international sports. Kenney's five teams at Pond Street playground each stand an excellent chance at winning both the District and City titles, which would be quite an accomplishment. His team's success is due in part to his ability to relate to and motivate his youth.

Brett Opposes Squantum Pumping Site

Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] has expressed opposition to the expansion of the MDC pumping station in Squantum to handle the increased volume of sewerage expected from the Montclair and Atlantic sections.

In a letter this week to the Quincy Citizens Association, Brett wrote:

"It doesn't appear sensible to me that sewerage coming from Montclair and Atlantic should be shuttled over to Squantum and then returned to Quincy Shore Drive for transmittal to the Nut Island Disposal Plant.

"It seems more sensible to me to locate the station on the southeasterly corner of Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum Street, which area has been previously filled in and no marshland or waterway would be affected.

"Such a station could be attractively designed and give an improved appearance to that particular corner."

The executive board of the Quincy Citizens Association voted July 16 to recommend expansion of the Squantum pumping station and construction of a loop to handle the additional sewerage.

Dorothy C. Kelly, secretary of the QCA, notified MDC Commissioner John W. Sears of the board's vote, saying:

"We believe that expansion of the present station in Squantum is the best solution to the plant location now before you.

Thomas Spano Marine Sergeant

Marine Sgt. Thomas J. Spano, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Spano of 354 Washington St.,

"Land is available at the current site for the erection of additional facilities; construction would not cause traffic congestion; the present station is well-kept and acceptable to the Squantum community.

"The cost of erection of additional facilities would be less than for a totally new station — and valuable tidal marsh in another location would not have to be filled."

A station at the corner of Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum Street, Miss Kelly said, would spoil the tidal marsh abutting the historical Moswetuset Hummock.

FOR PHIL - First ticket for Sept. 21 benefit dance for Philip Heleotis of Hilltop St., West Quincy, is purchased by Mayor Walter Hannon from Mrs. Eleanor Woodward and Norfolk County Commissioner George B. McDonald, fund raising coordinators. At left is Stephen Heleotis, 9, Philip's brother. Philip is paralyzed from a swimming pool diving accident. The dance will be held at the Carlton House, North Quincy, featuring the music of Baron Hugo's orchestra.

Thomas McDonald Solicitations Chairman For Heleotis Fund

Thomas P. McDonald of 127 Grove St. has been named solicitations chairman of the Philip Heleotis Fund, the great community effort to help a stricken neighbor.

Heleotis, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Heleotis of 35 Hilltop St., suffered a broken neck July 6 in a swimming pool accident. He is paralyzed and a patient at Carney Hospital.

McDonald, brother of Norfolk County Commissioner George B. McDonald, suffered a similar injury seven years ago in a swimming pool mishap and has since been confined to a wheelchair.

Commissioner McDonald and Mrs. Walter Woodward of 10 Mt. Vernon St., both West Quincy, are coordinators of the fund raising activities.

The Philip Heleotis Fund has been set up at the Quincy Savings Bank to help in Philip's rehabilitation. The bank's assistant treasurer, Donald R. Johnson, is in charge of the fund.

The first effort at fund-raising will be a dance and buffet Friday Sept. 21 at the Carlton House, North Quincy. Baron Hugo's orchestra will play for dancing in the hall donated by the Carlton House.

Tickets at $10 per person are available at the three offices of the Quincy Savings Bank, the Hollow Restaurant, and from City Clerk John Gillis, and from members of the committee who include:

Jay MacRitchie, Eleanor McEachern, William Wright, Mrs. Alfred Cocco, Donna DiCroce, John and Ann Erickson, Tom and Bernice McDonald, Fred Aimola, Gary Burnhauser, Mrs. Harold Pearl, George Shallah. Harvey Carmichael, William Cloudman, Harvey Legge, John

Gillis, Councillor Joseph LaRata, Councillor Albert Barilaro, Mrs. Raymond MacAulay, Julie Biagini, Henry Bosworth, John Powers, Gary Rogers, Eunice Chiaveroli, Joanne Pelton and Diane Sabatini.

Another fund-raising event, said McDonald, will be a Beano night sometime in October.

In the next few days, letters of solicitation will go out to Quincy businesses and to the various clubs on the South Shore.

Members of the North Quincy High School class of 1970, Philip Heleotis' class, also are expected to contribute to the fund.

Posters reminding potential contributors will be placed in the windows of various Quincy business establishments such as the Hollow, the Village Food Mart and Drohan's News Agency.

'No One Protected'

Delahunt Defends New 8-Ward Plan As 'Fair'

By PAUL FELDMAN

Councillor William D. Delahunt defends his 8-ward redistricting plan as a fair one with no attempt to protect incumbent councillors or their political allies.

"No attempt was made to establish wards with any individual candidates in mind," he declared in a Quincy Sun interview.

"And, no particular councillor asked to be protected."

As for the likelihood of the voters approving the redistricting proposal in a Sept. 6, referendum, he emphasized: "If we can inform people, the chances are good. The more that people are familiar with the plan and the circumstances, the better the chances of the bill passing. I dread the consequences of the bill not passing."

If the proposal is defeated by Quincy voters, the City Council must return to federal court and accept whatever solution Judge Andrew Caffery prescribes. The alternatives open to Judge Caffery are to hold this year's election on an at-large basis, to hold the election under the present six-ward plan, or to draw up his own mandatory redistricting plan.

Delahunt argues: "The people do not want to lose ward representation, even if only for a two year period. I believe in the close representation provided by the ward system. Also, the ward system provides for the representation of most ethnic groups and geographic interests. It's conceivable that in an at-large election, some small areas such as South Quincy, West Quincy and Quincy Point would have no representation because their candidates would

160 Owe $161,685 In Delinquent Taxes

Some 160 Quincy landowners are risking foreclosure proceedings on their property for non-payment of a total of $161,685.41 in real estate taxes going back to 1968.

City Treasurer-Tax Collector Robert E. Foy said the property on which taxes have not been paid will be placed in "tax title" on Aug. 23 with a 10 per cent interest rate.

Six months from the date that the property goes into tax title, the city has the right to foreclose on it and put the land up for auction.

One of the parcels has been delinquent in taxes since 1968, four since 1971 and the rest since 1972.

The tax bill, 8 per cent interest plus the 10 per cent interest charge must be paid by the Aug. 23 deadline or a lien may be placed against the property at the Registry of Deeds in Dedham.

If foreclosure is initiated, property valued at less than $2,500 may be auctioned in six months with permission of the Department of Corporations and Taxation.

Property assessed at more than $2,500 may be foreclosed through land court proceedings and sold by the City Council.

Property owners have until the time of the auction to redeem their land by meeting all the demands, including retroactive interest and other charges.

The names of the owners are advertised by the City in today's issue of The Quincy Sun.

Burke Hopes GD Can Win 2 Nuclear Contracts

Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] has expressed hope that the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard will be able to bid successfully on a Navy contract to build two AS-type nuclear submarine tenders.

The Navy disclosed recently that it is reopening bids for the two ships after an earlier bidding period brought in no suitable proposals. The Navy has requested an additional $20.4 million to meet inflationary costs.

Burke said that the two tenders, AS-39 and AS-40, are essentially repeat designs of

AS-36 and AS-37 which were built in the Quincy yard, thus giving it valuable experience in constructing ships of that class.

The Navy wants both ships to be built in the same yard, Burke said, with $113.35 million authorized for the first one and $85.3 million for the second.

not have a large enough electoral base."

He said he is also worried about any judicial redistricting.

"If the court carves up new districts, it would probably not take into account the many neighborhoods and ethnic areas in Quincy. This would be the worst solution and one we can't afford to risk."

Critics of the Delahunt Plan claim that the plan was drawn up for the political expediency of Delahunt and other city councillors. They point to the fact that a February plan submitted by City Clerk was not passed.

Delahunt replies that the Council had legitimate reasons for not accepting the Gillis Plan earlier this year.

"There were two considerations—time and sentiment on the council against redistricting in an election year. We were deeply involved with the 18 month budget in February to discuss redistricting fully and there would have been little time for public hearing on the plan since it would have had to be passed a while before nomination papers would be available in May or June. In addition, the council did not want to leave itself open to criticism of political self-seeking in an election year."

Critics argue that if lack of time was such a consideration in February then why is there now time for the council to proceed with the new measure. Delahunt replies that the present options of at-large elections or judicial redistricting are too great a risk.

Critics contend that the Gillis Plan was stifled because it might pit incumbents against one another, whereas the Delahunt Plan protects councillors from stiff competition and places key Delahunt and Tobin supporters in new wards without name opposition.

Delahunt argues that "Obviously the City Council did not want to redistrict this year but there was no option or alternative. And my plan does not necessarily 'serve the interests of incumbents.'"

He explains that he and Ward 1 Councillor Edward Graham, two members of the three member redistricting committee, are both not running for re-election. In addition, the three at-large councillors cannot protect themselves through redistricting. And furthermore, Ward 2 Councillor Clifford Marshall has run unopposed in the last two elections and Ward 6 Councillor Vincent Smyth cannot be protected by the plan because applying one-man one-vote principles set up by the Supreme Court, all wards must be continuous and thus the Quantum ward can only be linked to certain areas of North Quincy.

He also contends that the addition of the Brewers Corner area will not help Councillor Albert Barilaro and that there was only one way the Councillor Theophilus McLelland's district could be reapportioned and it just so happened that that way eliminates his opposition, Peter Gacica. Delahunt adds that the same thing would have resulted from the Gillis Plan too.

"The new plan will keep a sense of identity for the small neighborhoods too," he says.

"Speculation about the politics involved in the redistricting plan is pure speculation. I wouldn't speculate on any individual's chances in a municipal election," he adds.

2 More Candidates Take Out Nomination Papers

Two new candidates for City Council have taken out papers from the Elections Department, the first to do so in three weeks.

Andrew J. Veneto of 85

Stedman St., West Quincy, is running for the Council from Ward 4.

Since his home is in Precinct 4 for Ward 4 his residence will be in the same ward under the new 8-ward plan.

Abraham Lampert of 148 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, will be a candidate for the council at-large.

Will Be Retested

Quite A Few' Possible Germantown Lead Paint Poisoning Cases

"Quite a few" Germantown children will be retested to determine if test results showing possible lead paint poisoning were accurate, according to Mrs. Rosemary Wahlberg, director of the Germantown Service Center.

"Quite a few children tested affirmatively (signs of lead poisoning present) and retests will be necessary to determine if there was an contamination in the samples", adds Mrs. Wahlberg.

Some 150 children from the ages of six months to five years were tested for lead paint poisoning at a clinic at the Project held on July 27.

The problem of lead paint poisoning was discovered last month when a new tenant was shown to have the illness in test for entrance to the federally administered Head Start program.

While the unofficial results are not promising there is a chance that they may be inaccurate. Carolyn Burke, an official of the Mass. Department of Public Health' also says, "Since this is the first test for all the kids involved, it is by no means final. Anyone showing high levels of lead in his blood is immediately retested for the possibility of contamination."

Another clinic will be held to test the remainder of the over 400 young children in the Germantown Housing Project as soon as it can be arranged with the sponsoring volunteer groups according to Mrs. Wahlberg.

Blood Urgently Needed

Blood is urgently needed at this time according to Red Cross officials and on Aug. 20, the Quincy Point Congregational Church, in cooperation with the Greater Quincy Red Cross Chapter, will sponsor a bloodmobile.

Blood can be given from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the Social Hall of the Church which is located at 444 Washington St.

The visit is principally for church members but community donors will be most welcome.

Recruitment and arrangements for the bloodmobile are being made by Rev. Ronald J. Cebik, Assistant Minister Joseph Mayner, and Church Secretary Janet Brown. Call 773-6424 for an appointment.

Grants To ENC, QJC

Congressman James A. Burke announces federal allocations of $7,381 to Eastern Nazarene College and $3,891 to Quincy Junior College under the National Direct Student Loan Program.

The loans were approved by the Bureau of Higher Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and will provide 90 per cent of the capital contributions to the program fund. The school provides the remaining 10 per cent.

Susan Dare Appointed Survival Executive Secretary

Miss Susan Dare of Quincy has been named the new Executive Secretary of Survival Inc.

Miss Dare, a recent graduate of Stonehill College, will assist Executive Director Robert Hassey at the agency's administrative agency at 44 Faxon Ave.

Also appointed to the staff of Survival Inc. is Robert McIntyre of Hull. A graduate of Turnabout and a former staff member of their Hingham facility, McIntyre will become the assistant director of the newly dedicated Joseph H. Whiteman House at 1230 Hancock St.

Hassey said: "The recent dedication of the Whiteman House has been a great boost to Survival. We will now be able to again offer the widest range of drug and youth services of any program in Norfolk County. Our varied services are offered to any South Shore resident in need, free of charge with no waiting lists, and more and more of the participants coming to us are troubled persons not using drugs at all."

The new appointments were made possible by a Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant.

She scores zero shopping for mate

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

When it comes to buying my husband clothes, I have a perfect score: he hasn't kept any thing yet.

But it isn't my fault, simply another case of women having a tougher row to hoe than men.

All a man has to know to buy a woman a complete wardrobe is one size. He can walk into a dress shop, say, "Size ten," hand over his credit card and be out on the sidewalk in 20 minutes with enough clothes under his arm to keep a woman happy for at least two weeks.

But the last time I tried to buy my husband a shirt I was in the mens' department so long the styles changed. The store detective asked me to move on.

Because men don't have a size—they are a combination of measurements that makes shopping for them like working the tumblers on the Chase National Bank vault. But I try.

"Let me see what you have in a 15½ neck, 33½ sleeve, regular cuff, button down, Oxford cloth shirt," I said to a dapper young salesman only last week. His teeth showed in a cool smile beneath his luxuriant moustache. Arching his eyebrows, he asked, "Tapered?"

I didn't know whether he meant the shirt or my husband, so I asked to see pajamas. But pajamas for men are not Small, Medium or Large like womens'. They are A, B, and C.

Now I ask you, if a woman who weighs 190 has to say "large" to a salesperson, why can't a small man say "small"? He says, instead, A—which somehow has a nice academic ring to it.

He may be only 5 feet 2 and 110 pounds, but he wears straight A's in pajamas.

I bought a pair of 3's in electric blue with lavender piping and asked to look at sport jackets. But the clerk wanted to know: "Is your husband a 37 short stout, or a 38 tall regular?" I went home.

The store detective looked relieved. He also looked like about a size C pajama type.

When my husband saw his bright, new pajamas, he was overjoyed. "Thank heaven," he said, "you didn't buy me a shirt."

• The Calley Tapes

• Nixon, Newsmen And Hoodlums

• The Welfare Billionaire

WASHINGTON — We have listened to the secret tapes of Lieutenant William Calley, the convicted My Lai mass murderer, as he talks about himself to psychiatrists. These tapes hold the key to the question of Calley's sanity when he slaughtered Vietnamese villagers on March 16, 1968.

He was eager to talk to the psychiatrists. He complained that his attorneys didn't have time to listen to his ideas. He said: "They've gotta prepare a legal defense with mechanics that work under our present legal system. There's no time to go into combat tactics, physical stress and strain, mental stress and strain.... But I'm extremely interested in this because I, in my latter part of my service in Vietnam, I was getting extremely frustrated with the Army."

Calley was quite willing to discuss the My Lai massacre. "All you have to do is ask me about it," he said, "and I'll tell you." He spoke about shooting helpless prisoners, a child in a field, an old man in a ditch. It was "just like killing animals," he said. He insisted he was merely following orders to kill everyone so the enemy couldn't attack them from the rear.

He was asked by the psychiatrist about his mission in life. He answered the question impatiently. "I get so tired of that question," he said, "that I want to come back and say that's the most ridiculous question. What is my ambition in life? What is my present circumstances. I have no ambition."

But later, he said he would be acquitted. Then he would travel and lecture across the world. The psychiatrists, who listened to the interviews, couldn't agree whether Calley is psychotic. The final decision will be up to President Nixon who has promised to review the case.

Double Standard: The Nixon Administration has different standards, apparently, for newsmen and hoodlums. Shortly after the November election, White House chief of staff Bob Haldeman sent word to the Justice Department to go after the Washington Post, the Boston Globe and myself.

Thereafter, my associate Les Whitten and the Boston Globe's Tom Oliphant were arrested for allegedly conspiring with the Indian militants. The charges were so silly that they were soon dropped. The Washington Post was threatened with criminal prosecution over the Pentagon Papers and its TV licenses were suddenly challenged.

In contrast, President Nixon pardoned from prison ex-Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa and Mafia leader Angelo "Gyp" DeCarlo. The Mafia chief had been convicted of extortion and sentenced to 10 years. He served only 21 months before he was granted a presidential pardon.

Many feel Hoffa and DeCarlo were pardoned because they had powerful friends in high places. One close friend of DeCarlo is crooner Frank Sinatra who, in turn, is close to Vice President Agnew. Both Agnew and Sinatra, however, denied that they intervened on DeCarlo's behalf.

Now that DeCarlo is secure in his freedom, he is incredibly thumbing his nose at the judicial system. He refuses to pay a $20,000 fine levied by the New Jersey court which put him in jail. Instead, he left prison with $240 of the taxpayers' money, collected for his work in the pokey.

Great Grain Drain: The nation's harassed consumers, still reeling from the last wheat deal, should brace themselves. The government is planning a second wheat giveaway, which will lower even more the food stocks at homes and drive higher the prices at the supermarket.

Some worried officials have started to refer to these shipments as the great grain drain. Agriculture Department sources say that wheat sales to Communist nations will pass the 400 million-bushel mark this year. This amounts to about one of every five bushels harvested on American farms.

Most of the shipments will go to Russia and China. Every Russian and Chinese will receive the equivalent of four-tenths of a bushel of American-grown grain apiece, again at bargain prices. Last year, shrewd Soviet buyers took advantage of government subsidies and low credit terms to buy grain at prices below those available to American retailers.

Experts are declining to guess the cost to the consumers of round two of the wheat deal. But at a time when the price of feed grain and wheat products are rising out of sight, the beleaguered shoppers face the prospect of paying more for bread, meat and poultry.

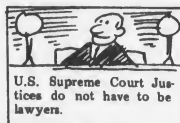

Welfare Billionaire: H. Ross Perot has been called America's first welfare billionaire. He made his fortune by collecting from the government — not by standing in the welfare line but by setting up the computer system that processes many welfare claims.

His company, Electronic Data Systems, now controls 90 per cent of all computer processing of "Part B" Medicare claims. Perot says his company gets the business because it is the most efficient in its field and produces lower overall costs for the medicare program.

But congressional investigators disagree. They say Perot's firm cuts corners to save money, sometimes making 100 per cent profit on the work. The firm works directly for insurance companies which handle medicare payments, but the insurance companies are reimbursed by the government, so the money going to Electronic Data comes out of the taxpayers' pockets.

Two of Perot's top executives gave a total of $198,000 to President Nixon's re-election campaign last year. Perot claims there is no relationship between his government contracts and the contribution.

It is clear, however, that H. Ross Perot has learned how to make the American system work — for him.

U.S. Supreme Court Justices do not have to be lawyers.

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Some political observers are wondering if there is a planned plot afoot to drive a wedge between Senator Arthur Tobin and Rep. William Delahunt.

The pair are good friends, Democrats, strong vote getters and each has his eye on the mayor's office.

It's very doubtful either will make a bid this year. Delahunt, anyway, has no plans to run for mayor this year. Tobin--well--he hasn't said definitely one way or the other.

But both want to be mayor. And, there are those with political and financial influence in the city who don't want either to be mayor.

Tobin and Delahunt right now probably have no thoughts of running against each other. A nice situation for them would be to have Tobin run two years from now, serve a couple of terms and bow out. Then Delahunt would have his chance. Each would support the other.

But observers think they detect a move underway to ignite a feud between the pair over the eight-ward redistricting plan.

The plan, as they see it, is to make it look to one that the other is "planting" or leaking items that don't make the other one look too good.

And from that, a big feud might develop like mighty oaks sprouting from tiny acorns.

The feud would diminish the political strength of both Tobin and Delahunt and set the stage for someone else to move into the mayor's office.

Far fetched? Not after Watergate!

THE NEW eight-ward plan [if it finally materializes] may bring back a familiar face as a City Council contender.

Rep. Joseph Brett reportedly is considering a bid for the new Ward 8 seat which would be open and up for grabs. That ward would comprise the Wollaston Beach and Merrymount areas.

Brett served in the City Council back in the 1950's and during his tenure was somewhat on the controversial side.

He ran two years ago against Walter Hannon for mayor but really never got his campaign going full-steam.

There are those today who feel he could have won it if he had conducted a more vigorous campaign. Brett also turned down campaign funds offered him, saying he didn't want to be obligated to anyone.

The new Ward 8 is the same one in which Rick Ward now finds himself. He originally was in Ward 1, and planning to run there.

WELL, Mayor Hannon is ready to get his re-election campaign rolling. Has some crates of bumper stickers to stick.

SONYA HAMLIN fans will see Dr. Frank Rubin, Quincy plastic surgeon, on her WBZ-TV show Aug. 9. That's at 12:30 p.m.

A GOOD POINT from the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "The world is full of cactus, but we don't have to sit on it."

HUFF'S NECK? One of the campaign workers for Paul Harold, the Ward 1 city council contender, is Jane Hough. She's a descendant of the Hough family for whom Houghs Neck was named.

Jane lives in Melrose but comes down to help out Harold. The two met at the University of Massachusetts. But Jane pronounces her name "Huff" and insists it should be "Huff's Neck" instead of Houghs [Howe's Neck].

Q - Recently I received a notice from a collection agency that had the name of the agency on the outside of the envelope. Yesterday one of my neighbors saw the envelope in my kitchen and asked if I was having any problems--it was an embarrassing situation. Are collection agencies allowed to use their name on the envelope?

A - It is an illegal practice for creditors to send debtors collection notices in envelopes that indicate that a debt is owed. If a consumer receives such an envelope, he should keep this as evidence of violation of law and contact the Consumer Protection Division.

Q - Recently I purchased a hair dryer--the first time I used it I discovered some marks on it which indicate that it may have been used before--then returned to the store and sold. Is this legal?

A - It is the seller's responsibility to clearly and conspicuously disclose any former use of a product. Even if any part of a product has had prior use, the product may not be advertised or described as new. The terms which the seller may use are "repaired", "reconditioned", "remanufactured", "rebuilt", and "refined" as well as "used" and "second-hand".

Q - A few months ago I decided to join a health spa and signed a one-year contract requiring monthly payments--however the exercise has proved to be too much for me and I would like to terminate my contract. My physician has sent a medical statement to the spa but the spa owners claim that I am still bound to the contract. Who is right?

A - If the contract has no provision for cancellation due to deteriorating health, the spa may be right. A legal contract is difficult to break. When a consumer signs a spa's retail installment sales agreement, he has the right to use its facilities and the spa has the right to collect the members' money and an obligation to make the facilities available. Therefore, the member is still bound to his contract unless the contract provides for a refund in the event of physical incapacity.

'Changing Your Life Script'

Although a person is born without knowledge or insight into his present or future life, he/she very quickly begins to form a set of living specifications. We are principally programmed by our parents during the first two years. A SCRIPT FOR LIFE is formed then. Under stress at age 40 we probably act very much the same as at two.

"He never saw a stranger" ... said an aunt of her nephew, "just like he is now." She was speaking of the attitude of this young man toward people. As a baby he was programmed not to be afraid of people. Now socially ... or in business, he meets people easily. His script for life. We follow those scripts unconsciously. Fear scripts are enslaving ... open scripts make us free.

A reader writes ... "You're always saying that anyone can change if one wants to. But I'm finding it very difficult to change. I was brought up very straight laced ... very proper ... very circumspect. The result is that I'm restrained ... cautious ... fearful about anything new or different. I'm suspicious of new people I meet. I don't trust people ... especially men. My mother was the same way. I don't like being this way. I'm sure I'm missing a lot in life. I don't know how to change this. Can you tell me how?" She asks ... you see ... "How do I change my life script?"

It isn't easy ... it will take a strong will and determination. It will probably take a good impartial friend or counselor who will delve deeply with you ... inspire ... encourage.

First ... you must KNOW and understand THE SCRIPT YOU HAVE BEEN FOLLOWING. Look back over the past month at your attitudes ... behavior ... conversations. Now look at your attitudes ... behavior ... conversations of one year ago ... five years ago ... twenty years ago. You will probably see that you haven't changed the script very much. Only names and places and circumstances have changed. You're following the same script. Know it ... see what you're doing. Only then can you know what you need to change to make your life happier.

Secondly ... you MUST KNOW WHAT YOU WANT TO CHANGE TO. I talked recently with a former nun. She'd been raised in a devout Catholic home ... then went into the convent. After twenty years she left. Now she wants to enter into a fuller life. It isn't easy for her. She knows where she's been ... she knows what she wants ... She's laid off the garb ... and is wearing stylish clothes. She's beginning to realize that she's feminine ... womanly ... and her soft spoken ... refined voice makes her attractive. Her big problem is throwing off the psychological garb ... the old script. She's succeeding ... though more slowly than she wishes. She learned to drive ... to cook ... to enter into business transactions ... to date. Her script is changing. Though difficult ... she's learning to do what she wants to do BY DOING. Part of the difficulty is the GUILT one feels for changing ... and the BLUNDERS one makes in changing. Both are inevitable ... and normal. We learn from our mistakes if we are learners. Guilt subsides when we see the true meanings of life. We can change a fear script to a freedom script ... from a negative attitude script to an open script ... from a selfish script to a sharing script.

Know where you've been ... know where you want to go. Then GO and gain confidence as you go.

Joseph Whiteman House 'New Life' For Unfortunate

Editor, Quincy Sun:

At last the Survival Joseph H. Whiteman House is a reality, a facility which will benefit the lives of many young persons on the South Shore who have fallen victim to drug abuse. The dedication of the 1230 Hancock Street home on Monday, July 23 provides the beginnings of a "new life" for these unfortunate people.

I would like to here publicly thank the many public officials who attended the dedication as well as those who voiced their support but could not attend. For sure, without the backing of persons such as Chief Francis Finn, Mayor Walter Hannon, District Attorney George Burke, County Commissioner George MacDonald, as well as the other attending officials, Survival would never have been able to "survive" to see a Joseph H. Whiteman House.

There are many other people, however, who have not been publicly recognized who are also responsible for the House becoming a reality. Numerous merchants donated free supplies to the renovations. Many South Shore residents have donated household goods to be used. But most of all, a wide range of people from housewives to young school children have helped to clean and brighten what was such a crumbling old building and have made the "inside" shine.

I do not have to list all of these people for they all know how I feel about their help, and they do not act so as to receive adulation. To be certain, the Whiteman House has many more needs, but in this writing I wish to here fully recognize the many different types of people responsible for helping us to help those young persons in need.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Try to charm mother-in-law

Dear Dorothy:

I know I am not perfect. But, the harder I try to get along with my mother-in-law, the less use she has for me. Yet, she always wants to do the things I do. She constantly vents her feelings, and the more I try to hide mine and bite my tongue to keep from snapping back, the more she dislikes me. Where have I failed?

Frustrated

Dear Frustrated:

Mothers-in-law automatically have two strikes against them from the start — no matter how decent they try to be.

Many loving, self-sacrificing mothers suddenly become monsters ... with only one chance left before they "strike out." But, being unaware of this, many of them blow it right in the beginning.

Your nature is to show how you feel by the way you act, indicated in your forward slant. You think you're hiding your feelings but you're not. The best you can do is to show an attitude — and this only gives her more yarn to unravel.

Your whole self requires plenty of attention — especially from your husband. It is natural, then, for you to feel a little cheated when he offers his mother some loving gesture. This is seen in the small beginning loop on the capital I. Only maturity and a grown son of your own will make you realize that the love of a son for his mother is an entirely different brand than that which he has for you.

The tapering of the m shows that you have the ability to handle people and delicate situations. If your tongue were left to flow freely, you could turn the tide all by yourself. Speak out — charm her, as only you can — treat her as you would like to be treated even if you have to bluff it through a few times to convince yourself of the rewards.

Not ALL mothers-in-law are accepting. But let's give them at least a 50-50 chance!

D.J.

'Anyone can grow long nails'

By PEGGY WALKER
Copley News Service

"Anybody can grow long nails with the Juliette manicure," promised Michaelle Wichert as she tidied up her client's cuticles with an electric cuticle pusher.

The "Juliette" method, more than 40 years old, was developed by a former Hollywood manicurist and is the reason for those long, sexy super fingernails Cher Bono displays on television (every inch her own).

Mrs. Desi Arnaz, Mrs. Jimmy Durante, Totie Fields, Mrs. Jack Benny, Jane Wyman, Mrs. Parnell Jones — all are among a host of other Beverly Hills types who are devotees of the manicure technique which puts a protective shell of paper, glue and polish over and under fingernails to keep them strong.

Ms. Wichert explained she was trained in Beverly Hills in a $350, six-week course to learn the secrets of the technique, which she said "promotes the health and growth of nails."

The manicure takes an hour to an hour and half and involves a detailed process of gluing fibrous paper over and under the nails to protect them. Two base coats, two coats of color and one coat of sealer go on over the paper.

"It doesn't lengthen the nails but it lets them grow without breaking," Ms. Wichert said.

"I guarantee anyone will be able to grow long nails."

Should a crack or split in the nails develop, the manicurist can repair it with her paper and glue. What's more, in what she calls her "miracle," she can replace a broken fingernail.

She does this by gluing the broken nail atop the remaining fingernail, then sanding the broken edge down with an attachment to her electric cuticle remover, until the pieced nail is as smooth as an unbroken one.

HANDLE WITH CARE — Even fragile fingernails can mend their ways and lead a long life. A little glue and paper under polish to make them stronger is secret employed here in "Juliette" manicure.

More glue, paper and polish and the nail looks as good as new. If you break a nail and lose it, Ms. Wichert can nevertheless perform a re-attachment by resorting to her "nail bank" of trimmed fingernails from other customers.

The manicure requires touch-ups about every week to two weeks, when paper may be replaced or any chance splits or breaks repaired.

The cost is almost three times that of a regular manicure, and a "re-attachment" runs a few dollars more.

She gives this advice to women who have the treatment: "Learn to use your hands in a more lady-like manner. You have to learn not to use your fingernails as a tool — that means your husband will have to button up your dress and hook your jewelry."

"You can learn to become a real lady!"

Tell son to work for cash

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Our son is 6 feet tall, weighs 180 pounds, and is 17 years old. My husband owns his own business and works from eight to 10 hours a day. Richard could help his father during the summer and get paid for it. However, he refuses to work in the shop. He says he doesn't like it.

His summer schedule consists of sleeping until noon and then going to the beach, playing tennis, bowling with his friends, and dating every night. I'm afraid he is too lazy to ever work. What can we do?

Mom

Dear Mom:

Tell Richard that due to the fuel shortage and the shrinking value of the dollars and his lack of ambition that you are going to stop his free supply of gasolins and ready cash.

If Richard wants to drive to the beach, allow him the privilege of earning the money to pay for the gas. If he wants to date, this is great. But he should pay the bill — not Dad. Experience is a wonderful teacher.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My husband looks at TV every evening — seven days a week. I am home with a 2-year-old and would like to visit it when my husband comes home. After talking to a child all day, I am ready for some adult conversation by evening. What can I do?

Louise

Dear Louise:

Talk fast during the commercials!

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I can never be at ease around boys and have very few dates. I really like Ray and want to know him better. How can I get on friendlier terms with him? I am very easily embarrassed and can blush at the drop of a hat.

Dear 16:

To win a game, you have to play. Forget about the blushing. Many consider this attractive. Try to forget yourself and stay as calm and cool as possible. Be friendly and pleasant but not coy and gushy. Learn to laugh at yourself and don't take things too seriously. Good luck.

Thornton Quincy's Newest Real Estate, Insurance Agency

By PAUL FELDMAN

The newest real estate and insurance agency in town is Henry E. Thornton Real Estate and Insurance Agency at 419 Hancock St., North Quincy.

The agency, part of a three-branch operation with other offices in Dorchester and Cleveland Circle, is run by David Large of Brookline. The young bachelor has been a real estate broker since 1969. He grew up in Wayland and attended Northeastern University and Lee Institute, where he took real estate courses.

After running his own real estate office, S25 Associates, for a year, he joined Henry Thornton as a partner in 1970. They opened the North Quincy branch in June.

Large's main interests are boating and photography. "I have an 18-foot outboard that I keep down on the Cape. On weekends I cruise it down the Cape." Large also owns a Nikon 35 mm. camera with which he shoots color photos.

His office-mate is pretty Jeane Hall of Cohasset. She has worked for three years for Thornton, selling insurance. Jeane grew up in Dorchester and graduated from Cathedral High and IBM School. She used to work for the telephone company as a secretary and bought her insurance at Thornton's. One day while she was in the Dorchester office, Henry Thornton asked her if she would like to work for the real estate agency. She answered affirmatively and has been a member of the Thornton family since 1970.

The young brown-haired single girl is interested in tennis, karate, ice skating and swimming.

The agency sells about 50 percent insurance and 50 percent real estate. Large says, "We sell houses, apartments, commercial leases and sales and investment property on the real estate end and any kind of insurance you would need to buy."

"We hope to expand our large office and build up a large sales force covering the entire South Shore area."

The attractive office is wood paneled and has a pretty red rug. It is a large office and as the agency grows, there is much space to expand.

Thornton Real Estate And Insurance is a member of the Massachusetts Businessmen's Association and the Greater Boston Credit Bureau. The Quincy branch is in the process of becoming a member of the South Shore Board of Realtors and the Multiple Listing Service.

Kemper Political Action Committee Hears Cowin

The New England Kemper Political Action Committee recently held its monthly forum at the Kemper Insurance Regional Headquarters at 150 Newport Ave., North Quincy.

Guest speaker was William I. Cowin, State Secretary of Administration and Finance.

Cowin addressed his remarks to Governor Sargent's proposed reorganization of state government. He called the plan a means of "trimming the bureaucracy's fat to provide a more efficient delivery of services to the average taxpayer."

2 New Degree Programs Added, Curriculum Revamped At QJC

Two new degree programs have been added to the Quincy Junior College evening division and the general curriculum has been revamped - beginning with the fall semester.

As of September, students in the evening division will be able to work towards an associate in science degree in either computer science or early childhood education.

The computer science degree will be taught in conjunction with Quincy Vocational Technical School. Students will take academic courses at the college and computer courses at the Vocational Technical School.

Persons graduating from the early childhood education program will be trained to work at day care centers and nursery schools. The program includes nine credit hours of on-the-job training.

The general curriculum at the college has been revised to make it more flexible, said Richard T. Mula, dean of continuing education.

Instead of being forced to take a large number of specific courses to graduate, students will be able to choose courses, selecting a certain number from subject areas.

Partly because of the curriculum revisions, a total of 17 new courses have been added to the evening school program.

Introduction to data processing and computer programming will be taught as the first two courses in the computer science sequence.

In the early childhood education program, new courses will include creative activities and observation and participation. A course in introduction to early childhood education was initiated last year and, this fall, will be taught at Hanover High School as part of the Quincy Junior College off-campus program.

A course entitled children with learning disabilities has been added to the education program. It is specifically designed for teachers and parents who want to become familiar with the major theories, terminology and teaching techniques in the field.

New courses in the humanities include the development of the introduction to philosophy, American film, basic drawing, elementary Italian and conversational Spanish.

Italian was previously offered as a non-credit course in the evening division.

In the sciences and social sciences anatomy and physiology, political geography, psychology of human adjustment, introduction to social psychology, psychology and politics and marriage and family courses will all be offered for the first time.

New secretarial courses include medical terminology and office practice and secretarial machine transcription.

In addition, four new non-credit courses will be offered in the evening division. They are the consumer and his dollar, ceramic workshop, speed reading and modern math for parents.

Many courses will be available at Scituate, Silver Lake, Hanover, and Hingham High Schools and the Weymouth Naval Air Station, as well as at Quincy Junior College and North Quincy High School.

For further information and a catalogue, contact Quincy Junior College Division of Continuing Education, 34 Coddington St., Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, or telephone 471-2470.

POOL CUES

True, your home swimming pool can provide limitless fun and relaxation - but it can also be a source of danger. Hospital records are replete with records of fatal accidents, [especially among children], which took place in this environment. Here's some pool cues to keep in mind.

The two most important safeguards pool-owning homeowners can provide are: [1] permanent fencing, with a self-locking gate, around the pool or yard area and [2] proper adult supervision when there are swimmers in the pool.

Post written instruction, including directions for artificial respiration, in the pool area. A casual mention of the rules is easily forgotten. Allow only one person on the diving board at a time and forbid swimming under the board.

Make sure that extension cords for radios and other appliances used near the pool are properly grounded and that children do not take glass, stones or hard balls into or alongside the swimming pool.

This information has been brought to you as a public service by NABORHOOD PHARMACY, 406 Hancock St., No. Quincy, where you can always count on friendly, professional service. Hospital equipment and supplies for rent or sale. Let us keep your prescription tax and insurance records. Phone: 773-6426.

Thomas Rice To Enter Mass. Maritime Academy

Thomas F. Rice of Haviend St., Wollaston, has been appointed for admission as one of 250 freshmen cadets entering the Massachusetts Maritime Academy, Buzzards Bay, in September.

Rice played football at North Quincy High, was a member of the school band, the stage band, a home-room representative and participated in the School Science Fair.

He is an acolyte at St. Chrysostom's Church, and a member of the YMCA Leaders' Club. He also received a certificate in safe boating from the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary.

The 82-year-old Academy, now one of the eleven State colleges, grants B.S. degrees in Marine Engineering and Marine Transportation, and offers an expanding curriculum in Ocean engineering, oceanography, fisheries science and computer science.

Marion Payzant Joins New Baptist Home Residence

Miss Marion McLellan Payzant of Lincoln Ave., Wollaston, school teacher for 45 years and author of "The Genealogy of the Payzant" families, has joined the family at the new 74-unit Baptist Home Residence and Retirement Home in Kingston.

The new 74-unit, four-story structure, erected on the 37-acre Evans Estate at 370 Lake St., Kingston, will be dedicated in October when Open House ceremonies are conducted.

The Baptist Home of Massachusetts, located on Commonwealth Ave., Newton, now marking its 83rd year, is one of the oldest and largest of its kind in the Bay State.

The Kingston land is the gift of the late Rev. Dr. E. Joseph Evans, widely known clergyman and formerly associate pastor of Tremont Temple Baptist Church, Boston.

Miss Payzant is a member of the National Society of Old Plymouth Colony Descendants, the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, and a member of the Wollaston Baptist Church for 45 years. She joined in 1928.

She is a graduate of the old Boston Normal School, class of 1919, and was a teacher in the Boston School system. She became a resident of Wollaston in 1925.

Miss Payzant was a member of the Women's Baptist Social Union, Secretary of Circle Two at the Wollaston Baptist Church, President of the Student Government at Boston Normal School, and a long-time member of the Geographic Society.

Delahunt To Seek Ordinance To Ban All Political Signs

Rep. William D. Delahunt [D-Quincy], announces he will introduce an amendment to the city ordinances which would prohibit the use of political signs within the city of Quincy.

Delahunt, who is also the Ward 5 City Councillor, explained that the present zoning laws provide that political signs, not exceeding 32 square feet in area, may be erected 30 days before the primary election and must be removed 14 days after the general election. Such signs may be erected in business and commercial zones but are prohibited in residential areas.

However, Delahunt said the present law has been disregarded and is most difficult to enforce effectively. Business and residential area abut and cut across each other, and candidates who feel they will have an advantage will sometimes encourage signs in residential areas. A total ban on political signs provides the only real solution to this problem.

Delahunt said: "During these times when one hears civic groups, conservationists, concerned citizens and community leaders voice an awareness as to our environment and its relation to man, it is difficult to understand why political candidates, who recite clichés and fears about the ecology impact of certain actions, insist upon utilizing political signs which most reasonable people agree constitute a blighting influence which mar the visual integrity of the community.

"It is my opinion that our business areas already are inundated with large unattractive commercial signs which, in some sections, create a real eyesore. As an example, one only need to drive Hancock St. from Granite St. to School St., to observe how really bad the situation has developed over the years. If the business community sincerely desired to attract shoppers to Quincy, it is incumbent upon it to police itself in some manner in alleviating this visual pollution.

"To allow the continued use of political signs, even in commercial areas, only compounds this problem and then to expand it to our residential neighborhoods, makes for an altogether equally unattractive and distasteful background for a city with the pride and history of Quincy.

"Another aspect of this problem is that large signs at intersections can block the vision of motorists, thus creating a traffic hazard. A conglomerate of temporary political signs, taken together with the over abundance of commercial advertisements, is also distracting to the motoring public.

"It is my hope that the City Council take swift action on this proposed ordinance in view of the fact that municipal elections and campaigning will soon be upon us," Delahunt said.

Delahunt indicated he planned to send a letter to each and every candidate for municipal office outlining his position and urging their cooperation and public support of this proposal. "Hopefully, those candidates who endorse this ordinance, would announce their support to the media so as to be properly recognized for their stand and make their feelings a matter of public record," Delahunt said.

Today's theme... "it's never too late"... is perfectly true. No matter how old you may be, it's never too late to learn or to try or to do. There's always room to put something new into your life.

How about that garden you've always wanted? Now that the summer is here you can make the most of it. MAKING THINGS GROW OUTDOORS [Knopf $7.95] by Thalassa Cruso [seen weekly on Channel 2], is one of the finest guides you could hope to find. From flowers to vegetables, and weeds to fertilizers, no stone is left unturned.

And once you're outside, why not pack your bags and take that vacation you've been looking forward to? To get to know the areas you'll be traveling through you'll need TRAVELING WEATHERWISE THROUGH THE USA by Powers and Witt [Dodd, Mead $7.95]. By glancing through the various sections on temperature and climatic conditions, you'll be able to judge what clothes you'll need for various parts of the country.

And while you're traveling, perhaps through a peaceful country town, you just might run across an old-fashioned auction. The rapid patter of the auctioneer coupled with the intricate bidding procedures may win you an unwanted 18th century Swiss shoetree unless you know what you're doing. HOW TO DEFEND YOURSELF AT AUCTIONS by Leona Rubin [Westover $5.95] is designed for the auction-goer who's attracted by a good bargain and an enjoyable afternoon, but is purely amateur in all other respects.

But it may be that you'd like to see more of the world than the U.S.A. Kodansha International Ltd. has printed a This Beautiful World series [$2.75 each]. A sampling of the 37 volumes deal with Ireland, Mexico, Hawaii, Vienna, London, Spain and Tokyo. Excellent full-color photos are included in each book.

Anyone who travels has to take a camera along. Ed and Dodi Schultz have written HOW TO MAKE EXCITING HOME MOVIES AND STOP BORING YOUR FRIENDS AND RELATIVES [Doubleday $7.95]. No one expects you to be another Cecil B. deMille, but the Schultz's offer good advice on how to get the most from your camera without being a pro.

But perhaps you'd rather stick to home and find a new hobby. An interesting one can be developed after reading BEEKEEPING: The Gentle Craft by John F. Adams [Doubleday $5.95]. Not only will you have a colony of bees to keep you amused, but with a little luck, you'll also have your own private supply of honey. Adams offers fact, instruction and encouragement for the beginner by mixing wit with practical advice.

As mentioned before, it's never too late to learn. Have you ever thought about going back to school to take a course or two? THE HANDBOOK OF ADULT EDUCATION edited by Smith, Acker, and Kidd [MacMillan $15] could be of great value to you. Curriculum, social setting and special programs are a few of the aspects covered. Now's your chance to take that course in child psychology or perhaps brush up on your Italian.

Have you ever thought about turning your spare time into profit by writing? HOW TO MAKE MONEY WRITING SHORT ARTICLES AND FILLERS by Marjorie Hinds [Fredrick Fells $4.95] is a good starting point. Who knows, you may have a best seller in you!

And finally we offer THE RETIREMENT HANDBOOK by Joseph Buckley [Harper & Row $7.95]. As Buckley points out, retirement isn't an end, it's simply a new beginning. Basically, it's a time to plan for all the things we've previously mentioned. This handbook contains all the information a retiree [or prospective retiree] needs to know.

So just remember...it's never too late for whatever you wish to do. All that's really necessary is a willing attitude and an adventurous outlook.

9 From Quincy Complete A.L. Boys State Course

Nine high school students from Quincy recently completed a course at the American Legion's Boys' State at Assumption College in Worcester.

They are Carl K. Tutunjian, Barry S. Gilbert, Steven Nolan, Steven Lawler, Douglas Gentry, Brett McGrath, Craig Chamberlain, Garry Miller and David Ham.

Boys' State is a program designed to teach young men about the American system of government by conducting the business and functions of office-holders in their towns, cities, counties and states. During the nine day program, conducted by Harvey M. Forman, the boys were guided by experienced counselors and city and state officials.

Those from Quincy who were elected to office in the program were Barry Gilbert and Steven Nolan as city school committeemen, and Steven Lawler as a city mayor.

The Norfolk County Boys' State Chairman is Charles Melchione.

QUINCY POINT

A Unique Shop

Quincy Point Bike Shop Offers Raleigh Line, Complete Service

An expert repair service for all makes and models of bicycles together with a complete line of Raleigh three-speeds and ten-speeds serves to make the new Quincy Point Bike Shop unique.

"We realize most of Quincy's bike shops repair only what they sell. But we'll repair anything. And we're ten-speed specialists," says manager Tony Viapiano, a life-long resident of the Point.

His new bike shop is one of three of an expanding company. The main store, in Central Square in East Weymouth, has been around for many years under the direction of Donald Vaillancourt, Bill Windson and Earl Nelson, of Nelson Heating Co. They recently decided to expand their business and have opened up stores in Stoughton and Quincy Point in the last two months.

Tony Viapiano, who worked at the Central Square location, as a repairman and salesman, was given charge of the new shop in his own neighborhood.

Tony has been repairing bicycles for six years. Much of his knowledge and precision can be credited to the two years of mechanical engineering courses he has taken at Northeastern University.

Tony's knowledge also comes in handy for helping customers select the right bicycle for themselves. "We have a large selection here at Quincy Point Bike including all Raleigh models - three-speeds, ten-speeds and coaster brakes. We also sell Phillips, Vista, Rex and Roll Fast, as well as a full line of Raleigh accessories," he says.

Tony, who graduated from Quincy High School in 1961, served in the Navy and worked at General Dynamics before entering the bike business.

His main hobbies are deep-sea fishing and carpentry. "I make many cabinets and shelves at home," he says.

Tony and his wife, Kathleen, have two sons, Tony Jr., 3½, and John, 1.

Vacation Tips

Don't Leave Invitation To Burglar When You're Away

This is the time of the year that you and your family have been looking forward to.

The warm sunny days are just right for taking vacations or getting away for a weekend trip or simply working in the back yard.

This is the time of year that burglars have been looking forward to, too.

The warm sunny days that draw the family out of the house also give him a wide selection of homes on which to practice his trade.

Fortunately, there are a few things you can do to discourage a burglar from choosing your home to practice on.

- While outside your home on these warm days keep the doors locked. You might be out back raking the leaves while your television set goes out the front door with a burglar.

- Don't advertise your vacation plans. Thieves read the papers too.

- Should a death occur in your home, be sure to leave a responsible person in the house during the wake and especially the day of the funeral. Many burglars check the obituary column. This applies to weddings as well.

- If you have your name displayed in front of your home it is a good idea either to remove it before you leave for vacation or have an unlisted telephone number. Many thieves will find your name in the phone book and call your number. If no one answers, they can be quite sure that you are away.

- Have all newspapers, deliveries, and mail stopped at least one day before you leave for vacation so that you can be sure that they really are stopped. An accumulation of these things tells the burglars that you are not home.

- Cut the grass just before you leave, or have a neighbor cut it while you are away. An unkempt lawn is another sign that the burglar looks for.

- When you leave your home, even for a day, let a trusted neighbor know about your absences. Neighbors can be one of your best burglar deterrents.

- Join "Operation Identification", the Police Department's engraving program. Engrave your valuables with your social security number, make a list of your valuables and display the window decal that is provided when you join the program. This will deter most burglars.

- Ask a neighbor to park his car in your driveway while you are away.

- Have a neighbor check your house at odd hours, pick up unexpected deliveries, change the position of the shades, and turn on different lights in the house.

- Do not disconnect the phone. A temporary disconnected phone is a sign that the house is empty.

- Check all entrances and windows to the house and make sure that all locks are in proper repair and working order. Every door should have at least a 3/4 inch deadbolt to prevent jimmying or prying open.

- Keep all lights outside the house on. It really does keep the unwanted burglar off your property. A good idea is to check into an automatic timer which will turn the lights on at night and out during the day.

- Do not hide keys outside your home. The burglar knows where to look.

- Do not leave ladders outside your home. A ladder is useful to a burglar should he attempt to gain entrance to your home.

- Before you leave for vacation, call the police department and let them know the dates when you will be away. The police will then check your home frequently and remove newspapers and other signs that show that you are not at home.

- All these precautions are relatively simple and could save you many complications when you return from your vacation. If you do not take the time to secure your home you have everything to lose.

It's up to each individual citizen to eliminate the invitations to burglary in his own home.

The Squeaky Wheel Gets The Grease

By PUTNAM S. BORDEN
Executive Director
Quincy Council on Aging

Did you know that right now there are more than 20 active senior citizens organizations in our city?

These organizations, set up to bring together older people who wish to participate with others in activities of mutual interest, are located throughout the community.

In these clubs, members have the opportunity to join with others in their age bracket and enjoy dances, trips, luncheons, dinners, games such as bridge, whist, beano, etc., to hear interesting speakers, and to discuss, amongst themselves, their problems.

And today, with living costs on the rise, taxes increasing each year, suitable housing at a premium and many areas of government showing little or no concern, senior citizens have real problems.

These clubs play an important part in our community life. Unfortunately, many can no longer accept new members, primarily because of safety restrictions as to the number of people using the facilities at which meetings are held.

However, new clubs are frequently formed, making memberships available. In such cases, I suggest that those interested in joining a club, who have run into such a problem, contact Mrs. Marion Andrews, Senior Citizens Activities Director for the Quincy Recreation Department for information. Mrs. Andrews is also available to assist groups in getting new clubs started.

Now, I would like to make a suggestion, and let me preface it with some personal opinions. It seems to me that one real problem facing our senior citizens is a failure to really recognize the truth of the old bromide, "in numbers there is strength."

Oh, I know lip service is paid it, "senior power" etc., but there is no continuing concerted effort at the grass roots to utilize the concept. It seems to me that when the chips are down, the numbers are not there. So what happens? Well, our society continues to shrug off a good part of its responsibility to a major segment of its membership. I think that our senior citizens fail to recognize their true community of interest - themselves, - and continue to identify with traditional reference points. Republicans, Democrats, union members, businessmen, etc. I think it's time they started to think in terms of what's good for me, the senior citizens, forced to stop work, placed on a fixed income, catered to at election time and neglected in between.

I think it's time they thought in terms of not selfishness, but enlightened self-interest because it is a truism that the squeaky wheel gets the grease.

And where better to start such thinking than the senior citizens organizations. Here are groups of people who have recognized a community of interest based upon their age, who have already made the essential first step, coming together, and who through their organizations can communicate to the establishment in terms it understands; numbers and strength.

I suggest to all senior citizens that you use your club not only for recreation and enjoyment but as a vehicle to better the quality of your lives.

Trip Planned To Submarine Base Aug. 18

Oceanview Tenants Visit Cape Cod

Twenty-two handicapped tenants of the Oceanview Senior Citizens Apartment in Germantown were taken on a trip to Cape Cod recently.

The highlight was a dinner at the Holiday Inn in Hyannis.

Assisting the trip-takers were Thomas Delmonico, a member of the National Guard stationed at the Quincy Armory; Frank Kennedy, coordinator from the Council on Aging; Mrs. Harriet Shelley, President of the Oceanview Tenants Association; Mrs. Theresa Whitaker, Vice President of the Oceanview Association; and Mr. and Mrs. Albert King, members of the Association.

The annual Oceanview Chicken Barbeque will be held on Aug. 15.

The Oceanview Tenants Association now has a membership of 294, all of whom live in the Quincy Housing Authority establishment in Germantown.

August SS Checks Will Be Delivered Sept. 1

Social Security checks for August will be delivered on Sept. 1 this year, which is "unusually early," according to Frank Culkin, social security manager in Quincy.

"Checks for a given month are usually delivered on the 3rd of the following month," Culkin said. "When the third falls on a day mail isn't delivered - a Sunday or a national holiday - the checks are usually delivered a day ahead, the second of the month.

This year Sept. 2 is a Sunday and Sept. 3 is Labor Day; so social security checks will be delivered on Saturday, Sept. 1. It doesn't happen very often," he said.

Social security pays over $4 billion a month in retirement, disability, and survivor's benefits to almost 29 million people.

New CO At South Weymouth

For Capt. Henry Cassani It Was 'A Boyhood Dream Come True'

By PAUL FELDMAN

For Capt. Henry L. Cassani, it was a "boyhood dream come true," when he was installed last Thursday as commanding officer of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

Captain Cassani, who graduated from Quincy High School in 1948, and served 25 years across the United States in the Navy, called his return "a great occasion. I always dreamed of coming back to the South Shore to command a base."

And for his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Cassani of 28 Churchill Rd. Quincy, it was a proud moment. His father, vice president of President Chevrolet, Inc. of Quincy, beamed happily.

"The ceremony was wonderful, it's just grand to have our son back near home."

His mother, prettily attired in a pink dress, confessed, "I had goose pimples watching him up on the platform - and I still do."

Over the years, the two have spent many vacations visiting their son at different duty stations.

In a short address to the hundreds of gathered friends, family and servicemen, Captain Cassani said:

"Every Naval Officer aspires to command. Every native son years to return to the familiar surroundings of his youth. I am extremely fortunate to be able to realize both of these aspirations on a single occasion."

Captain Cassani was accompanied by his wife, the former Florence Radford of Pensacola, Fla., and six of his seven children, during the change-of-command ceremony and the reception afterwards.

Cassani first became interested in the Navy in his last year of high school when he joined the Naval Reserve unit at Squantum. As a youth, he had watched the flight training planes from the now-closed Squantum Air Station circle Quincy and decided he too would learn how to fly.

Relinquishing command at the morning ceremony held in cavernous Hangar Two was Captain Gerald C. Canaan. He will become Commander of the Oceanographic System Atlantic in Norfolk, Va., after spending a year at the South Weymouth Station. In a short speech, he thanked "the wonderful people with whom I have been associated, both military and civilian."

Rear Admiral Thomas Beckwith Russell Jr., Commander of the Naval Air Reserve Force also spoke.

The Boston Navy Band played salutes to officers of the Marines, Coast Guard and Navy as they entered the hangar on a specially set-up red carpet.

Among the friends and family who attended the change-of-command were Edward T. Lewis, former Quincy city manager and executive secretary to former Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, and Mrs.

CAPTAIN HENRY CASSANI, Quincy native and the new commanding officer of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station holds the Elmer F. Coles Officer Leadership Plaque with Archie Snaddon, President of the Southeastern Mass. Council, Navy League. Standing with them are Rear Admiral Thomas Beckwith Russell Jr., Commander of the Naval Air Reserve; Thomas Morris, President of the Navy League; and Captain Gerald C. Lewis; Edward Lewis Jr., an official with Mass Electric and his wife, the sister of Captain Cassani; George Reardon, President of President Chevrolet; and Mayor Walter Hannon.

Captain Cassani began his Naval career as a hospitalman at the Naval Reserve Unit in Squantum. In 1950 he reported to Pensacola, Fla., as a Naval Aviation Cadet. Upon completion of advanced training at Corpus Christi, Texas, he was commissioned in June 1952.

From there, Cassani went back to Pensacola for helicopter training and soon moved to the Helicopter Utility Squadron Two at the Lakehurst Naval Air Station. He later attended General Line School at Monterey, California.

In 1954, while serving as a helicopter pilot, Captain Cassani assisted in the filming of Walt Disney's award winning feature, "Men Against the Arctic". The next year he assisted in the aerial film shooting of "Away All Boats".

After serving on the USS Antietam and the USS Lake Champlain, on which he participated in the Cuban Blockade, he returned to Monterey and received a B.S. degree from the Naval Postgraduate School in 1967.

Subsequently, Captain Cassani served as the first commanding officer of Helicopter Support Squadron Three and then as Air Officer of the USS Boxer. He received his Master of Science Degree from the Naval Postgraduate School in 1970 and served two years in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations prior to reporting to the Corpus Christi, Texas Naval Air Station as Executive Officer.

South Weymouth Naval Air Station, built in 1942, trains Naval Air Reservists for emergencies in which they would help the regular operating forces of the U.S. Navy.

There are 35 officers and some 350 enlisted men on active duty at the Air Station which support the assigned Reserve squadrons.

PROUD MOMENT - Captain Henry L. Cassani is congratulated by his son John, 7, and daughters Susan, 17, and Cindy, 13, at the change-of-command ceremonies at South Weymouth Naval Air Station. Captain Cassani, the father of seven children, returns to the Quincy area as a commanding officer after 25 years of Naval service across the country.

SGM & Co. Named Advertising Agency For Hancock Bank

William E. Kelley, President of Hancock Bank & Trust Company, announces the appointment of SGM & Co., Inc., as its new advertising agency.

Hancock Bank is the third largest remaining independent bank in the Boston banking market and the largest remaining independent bank having its home office in Norfolk County. SGM will service Hancock Bank's main office in Quincy Center and its 14 branches spread out south and west of Boston.

SGM's first project for the bank has been an extensive, specialized campaign to announce Hancock's new high savings accounts rates. This campaign will utilize newspaper, direct mail pieces, in-bank displays, and radio.

The account executive servicing Hancock Bank is Joseph Nevins, Vice President.

South Shore National Offers Continuous Business Credit For Small, Medium Businesses

South Shore National Bank announces the beginning of Continuous Business Credit (CBC) to provide small and medium-sized businesses with a revolving line of credit similar to that enjoyed by large corporations.

It became effective July 10. CBC is designed to offer businesses a convenient method of meeting working capital, seasonal, or emergency financial needs.

The line of credit may be established from $1,000 to $25,000. It may be provided on an unsecured or secured basis at any South Shore National Bank branch office and payments can be geared over a 12 or 24-month period.

In addition to the general business community, CBC is also available to present or new checking account customers who are doctors, lawyers, or dentists if the credit line's use is connected with their practice.

South Shore National Bank maintains 34 offices in Norfolk County and lists assets in excess of $225 million.

'How To Find Way Around S.S.' Booklet Available At Chamber

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce announces it has available copies of "How to Find Your Way Around the South Shore," a new booklet which includes an individual street directory and map of each of the towns in the Chamber's service area.

It also contains important statistical data and information about points of interest in each town. The towns covered by the Chamber include Braintree, Canton, Cohasset, Hanover, Holbrook, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Randolph, Rockland, Scituate and Weymouth.

Information for the booklet was gathered by the Chamber. The booklet was published by the Quincy Savings Bank.

One copy per person of "How to Find Your Way Around the South Shore" may be obtained, free, by visiting the Chamber's offices at 36 Miller Stile Road, Quincy, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday thru Friday. Additional copies are $1 each.

The Chamber is unable to mail out copies of the publication.

● Babe Ruth League Police Club Wins Championship

The Quincy Police Boys' Club won the Quincy Babe Ruth League championship by sweeping two straight over Burger King in the playoffs.

Police had won the National League crown and Burger King the American League title. The Police Club finished the season with a 20-4 record.

In the first game Louie Fishman pitched a four-hitter and struck out six in leading the Police Club to a 6-0 win.

Paul Jackmaugh drove in two runs with a double in the first. Brian Connolly had three hits for Police, with Chuck LoPresti having a double and single and Paul Messina also having two hits.

Police clinched the series with a 4-2 win as Messina pitched a six-hitter, struck out 10 and didn't issue a walk.

LoPresti had two hits and scored two runs. Messina drove in a run as did John Ferris. Burger King scored its two runs in the fourth inning on a single by Cuddy, a double by Paul Vespaziani and a ground out by Bill Pitts. Vespaziani pitched for the losers and struck out eight.

The Police team, coached by Dick Laracy, were led by pitchers Paul Messina, 7-1; Louis Fishman, 8-2; Paul Jackmaugh, 3-0, and Chuck LoPresti, 1-1, who also had two saves. Another pitcher with great potential is Richie Boyle, only 13, who won the one game he pitched.

John Ferris was rated one of the league's top catchers and is only 14. He was backed up by 13-year old John Andrews.

Infielders were Messina and Jackmaugh when not pitching at third base (Jackmaugh also plays outfield); Jackie Powers at shortstop; two 13-year olders, Ronnie Donovan and Eddie Laracy at second base and Louie Fishman and LoPresti at first. [LoPresti is also a fine outfielder].

Outfielders included Mike Murphy and Ken Battista, both whom played at St. John's a year ago, and Brian Connolly along with the two Boyle brothers, Mike and Richie.

The top batters were LoPresti, with a .500 average; Fishman, .426; Messina, a switch hitter, .406 and Powers, .352.

The Police team have 6 of their 9 starting players back next year, and all of their utility players return, with the loss of only 3 players the Police should be very strong contenders next year.

Ocean Races Entry Forms Available

Entry applications for three ocean yacht races to be held in conjunction with Quincy Bay Race Week on the weekend of Aug. 18-19 are available from Frank J. Carroll, chairman of the Ocean Race Committee, at 26 Calumet St. (479-1945).

The three competitions are the Frank E. Remick Ocean Race on Aug. 18, the City of Boston Bermuda Cup Race, and the Harry Warner Memorial Trophy Race, both on Aug. 19.

The Remick Ocean Race will be held in two fleets, the first consisting of boats from 26 to 45 feet overall length, and the second for boats from 17 feet waterline length to 26 feet overall length.

Smyth Club Defeats Milton In Babe Ruth League Action

The Vin Smyth Club defeated the Milton team of the South Shore Babe Ruth League, 4-1, at Adams Field Saturday night.

Tim Picco the winning pitcher allowed three hits and drove in the first two runs with a long double, good enough for the win.

runners on base. Milton's Jim Walsh robbed Dave Power of a double with a back to the plate catch against the new center field fence at Adams Field.

Tonight [Thursday] the Smyth Club will play Braintree in the final game of the regular season. The four team playoff will start this weekend.

O'Brien, Crusaders Shine Curran's Tops YMCA Spring Basketball

The Quincy YMCA spring basketball league recently completed its season.

All teams were stocked with present and former college stars and some pro players and the fans were treated to some outstanding games.

Curran's Lounge finished first in regular season play handing the O'Brien Club, sponsored by Dick O'Brien of Cardonna's News, its only loss.

Another standout club was the Crusaders, featuring Eastern Nazarene College players Ron Bradley, drafted by the ABA, Don Eads and Rick Reyenger.

Playing for the O'Brien Club were Ken Baker, Jamie Doherty, Brian Donahue, Eddie Miller, Leo Papile, Tom Cairnes and Mike Greenlaw, all former North Quincy stars; Bob McNamara and Allan Dalton. Cairnes and Greenlaw were lost during the regular season with injuries.

The Curran's Lounge roster included Mark Jellison, another former North Quincy stickout recently drafted by the NBA after a great career at Northeastern U.; Rick Brault, John Haviland, Paul McDonough, Kevin Shea and Art Williams of the Boston Celtics.

In the playoffs the O'Brien Club defeated Curran's, 51-45, but the win was protested by Curran's, which claimed Dalton, who arrived for the second half only and was scoreless, playing only seven minutes, was ineligible because he hadn't played in 50 percent of the regular season games.

At the time the scoresheets proved, according to O'Brien Coach Leo Papile, that he had played the required number of games, were not available and at this writing no decision had been reached by league officials.

The performance of Miller was the difference as he scored 35 points, many coming on the end of the fast breaks led by Doherty and Donahue. Baker and Papile came up with many clutch rebounds.

Priscilla O'Neill, DiFederico Low Gross Winners At F B

In the weekly mixed Scotch foursome at Furnace Brook Golf Club Priscilla O'Neill and Joe DiFederico took low gross of 41 and Jeanne Doherty and Bob Roche low net of 33.

Rena Roche and Mario Serafini had second net, Joyce Robbins and Hal Buzzell third net, Mary Morrissey and Tony Spinello fourth net and Marie Corayer and Jim Morrison fifth net.

In the Ladies Day Mulligan tourney, conducted by Jenny Luffy and Eileen Clifford, Florence Eramo shot low gross and Ellie Mulroy low net.

Rena Roche and Jean Doherty tied for second net, Priscilla O'Neill had third net and Jo Hinckley and Aileen Hany tied for fourth net.

The Directors Cup was won by Joyce Robbins. Mimi DiFederico was a finalist. Class B was won by Rena Hodges with Mel Corgan a finalist.

● Quincy Softball League Dee Dee's Closes In On Playoff Spot

Dee Dee's moved nearer a playoff spot in the Quincy Softball League by edging St. Catherine, 7-6.

Fitzy and Paul Erler had two hits each, while Jack Bryan started in the outfield. For the Saints Steve Verenis had three hits and Don Smith two including a home run.

The Saints bounced back to defeat China Lido as Brian Buckley went four for four and played another steady game at first base. Desher had three for three for Lido and Glynn played an excellent game in left field.

McInnis Corp. taking advantage of nine St. Catherine errors, romped, 16-6, despite fine relief hurling by Mike Parros, who came in to pitch in the third inning and allowed only two earned runs the rest of the way.

McCarthy homered and John Alberti reached base four times for McInnis. Ken Marsters and Joy Boyd had two doubles apiece for the Saints.

A & T Movers rallied to top Barry's Ship Haven with Gus DeBoer leading an awesome A & T offense with four for four including a homer.

Eddie Miller was three for four including a homer. For Barry's Bernie Giammelavo had four hits and Dave Breen three. Marcel defeated Beau's, 14-9, despite Tom Colclough's home run. Ray Connerty and Bill Armstrong homered for the winners.

Alumni Cafe, behind the pitching of Tom Buckley, defeated Wells Grille for the second time.

Keohane's Captures Title

Keohane's, the Service League champion, won the Quincy Little League title last week as it won two out of three games from Houghs Neck, the Business League winner.

Houghs Neck won the opener, 10-2, behind the three-hit pitching of Franny Donovan. Donovan also had two doubles and a single and Brennan and Congdon three hits apiece for the winner.

Keohane's came back to win the second game, 7-0, as Dave King pitched a two-hitter and struck out seven. King and Andy Carrera hit back to back home runs in the fourth inning. Jeff Giordani was outstanding at first base for Houghs Neck.

Keohane's clinched the title with a 4-1 win in the third game Sunday as Carrera pitched until the final batter of the game when Rich King, brother of Dave, struck him out with the bases loaded and two outs. Donovan gave up six hits in pitching for Houghs Neck.

The all-star teams opened a three-game series Monday with the Service Leaguers defeating the Business League stars, 9-6.

The second game was scheduled for Tuesday and the third, if necessary, last night at Faxon Field.

Although held to three hits, the Business team rallied for four runs in the final inning and Bobby Ceurvels came into pitch and retired the side with the bases loaded.

Gary Earl pitched hitless ball for Service for the first three innings. The big hit was Paul McDermott's grand slam homer in the fourth inning.

Earl had a double and single, Dave King two singles and McDermott his grand slam to lead Service. Fran Donovan had a double for Business.

Quincy Youth Hockey Bantam Majors Breeze, Bow In Colony Action

What a difference three days made for the Quincy Bantam Majors in Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league play last weekend.

The Majors walloped South Boston 7-1 Friday but regretted they didn't save some of those goals for later as they bowed 2-0 to the same Southie crew Monday.

Tom Cahill had two goals and an assist and Billy Doherty and Dave Peters each had a goal and a pair of assists in the Friday romp.

Richie Troy, Rick Danner and Brian Watts had the other goals with assists going to John Cooney, Dave Previte and Mike Wilson.

Southie scored twice in the last three minutes and 57 seconds Monday to earn the shutout win.

The Quincy Bantam Minors went down before Cohasset, 4-3, Monday with John Kelly and Dave Lewis each netting a goal and an assist. Neal Sullivan also had a goal and Jim Triglia an assist.

The Minors whose record now stands at one win and eight losses, are a B team playing in an A league.

Dwayne Wilcoxin Fires 6 Goals For Mite Majors

Dwayne Wilcoxen fired six goals, which may be a record for the Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league, as the Quincy Mite Majors beat their little brothers, the Quincy Mite Minors, 16-0.

Joe Harte contributed four goals and Rick Reardon three.

Fourteen players in all figured in the Majors scoring.

Zanardelli In Hat Trick As Squirt Majors Romp

Robbie Zanardelli got the three-goal hat trick as the Quincy Squirt Majors won their seventh game against no losses with an 8-2 victory over Hyde Park in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league contest.

Mark Boussy had two goals and Bobby Beniers, Mike Doherty and Chuckie Marshall had one each.

Brennan Scores 2 As Pee Wee Majors Tie

Bob Brennan collected a pair of goals as the Quincy Pee Wee Majors battled to a 3-3 tie with Weymouth in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

Ed Kane had a goal and an assist.

Assists also were credited to Dan Sullivan, Jack Jackson and Bobby Hayes.

Sal's All-Stars Eliminated From New Bedford Tourney

Sal's All-Stars of Quincy were eliminated last weekend from the New Bedford tournament with two straight one-run losses but have many other games listed for the remainder of August, together with Sal's North Quincy team.

In the New Bedford tourney Quincy was edged by Acushnet, 3-2 and by Bridgewater, 6-5.

Against Acushnet Don Perdios pitched a seven-hitter with six strikeouts and a walk and also hit a homer in the first and a double in the third. Danny Santonato had a triple in the first and a single in the sixth.

Acushnet's winning run in the fifth scored on two misplayed bunts and a misjudged pop fly.

Against Bridgewater Ray Coscia started pitching for Sal's but was driven out in a four-run first inning and was relieved by Bobby Ceurvels, who pitched six fine innings. Billy Deitsch pitched the last inning and gave up the winning run on two walks, a wild pitch and a single.

Sal's scored twice in the first on a double by Billy Burt and singles by Lou Avitable, Perdios and Danny Santonato. Quincy added two in the third on a double by Perdios and Santonato's home run and scored the tying run in the fifth when Santonato singled, stole second and scored on Ceurvels' single.

Last night [Wednesday] Sal's Quincy team played Norwood Police at Curry Field and tonight the combined Quincy and North teams played at Whitman. Friday at 6 the Quincy team plays at Norwood Police, the North Quincy team will play in another New Bedford Tourney Saturday and Sunday, Quincy will play in a Marlboro tourney Monday and Wednesday and will host the Norwood Robeck Club Tuesday at 6.

Quincy will play at Medford next Thursday at 5, North will play at the Norwood Robeck Club Friday, the 17th, at 6, and both teams will play in the Marlboro Tourney on Saturday, Aug. 18.

Sal's Quincy players are Bob Woodman, Gary Stack, Danny Santonato, Bobby Ceurvels, Billy Deitsch, Ray Coscia, Billy Murphy, Donnie Perdios, Mike Abbous, Andy Carrera, Lou Avitable and Billy Burt.

The North Quincy squad includes Rich Finnegan, Ricky King, Dave King, Danny McDonnell, Phil Coggiano, Harry Donaghue, Chris Lamphere, Brian Condon, Stephen Picot, Brian Donovan, Bobby Lindenfelzer and Jeff Connerty.

Rotary Club Salutes Quincy Bay Race Week

The Quincy Rotary Club will salute the Quincy Bay Race Week Association at its Aug. 14 meeting at the Neighborhood Club.

Race Week Association President Wesley Watson will be the guest speaker at the noon meeting. He will outline the program and time schedule for the 30th annual race week. Additional guests from the Race Week Association will include

Vice President William Munroe, Secretary Edward Simpson, Treasurer David Maloney and Past President Gordon Davis.

Special guests will include Norman Rogers, the Commandant of the Point Allerton Coast Guard Station and Patricia Kelley, Miss Quincy Bay Race Week of 1973.

Patty, a pretty, blonde 1973 graduate of Quincy High School will reign as Queen over Quincy Bay Race Week, August 15 through 19.

Pee Wee Minors Lose

The Quincy Pee Wee Minors lost to Hingham, 6-3, despite goals by Paul McGrath, Mike Panico and Randy Parker.

Parker, McGrath and Robbie McHugh had assists.

Moret, Guerrero 2 Big Reasons Sox In Thick Of It

By TOM SULLIVAN
Quincy Sun Writer

Many reasons have been offered for the Red Sox being in the thick of the American League Eastern Division race with as much chance of winning the title as any other team.

But, from our point of view, two of the major reasons are the performances of Puerto Rican Rogelio Moret and Latin American rookie Mario Guerrero.

There, of course, are many other reasons, such as the amazing hustle of veteran Tommy Harper, the superb outfielding of Rick Miller, the continued fine play of shortstop Luis Aparicio, truly a wonder player, and the aggressive catching of Carlton Fisk.

But we feel the sparkling play of Guerrero, the throw-in player in the Sparky Lyle-Danny Cater trade, who is making that deal look better and better, is one of the season's high spots.

Guerrero, from Santo Domingo in the Dominican Republic, has made plays at shortstop few have ever seen before and has displayed a truly amazing throwing arm. He covers acres of ground and we hope he won't be used only in second games of doubleheaders. We have felt all along he should be given more chance to spell the aging Aparicio at shortstop.

Aparicio is still a fine shortstop but balls are getting by him that never would have escaped him in the past. Many plays which look outstanding should be easy for the 39-year older. The way the 23-year old Guerrero goes everywhere to get the ball, he deserves to be in the lineup a lot more than he has so far.

And he is no patsy at the plate. He was batting .250 at this writing and has come up with some big hits.

Moret, also only 23, who hails from Guayama, Puerto Rico, has finally received the starting job he deserved long ago and now rates as a key man in the Sox pitching plans. He blanked the Yankees, 1-0, on July 4 but didn't make another start until Aug. 2 when he again shut out the Yanks on four hits. This time Manager Eddie Kasko announced he would stay in the regular starting rotation. If he hadn't made this decision, he probably would have been lynched.

Following a fine 1971 season, the lanky southpaw had all sorts of trouble a year ago, couldn't get untracked at Fenway Park and spent most of the year at Louisville.

This spring he came back, looked good in spring training, but still couldn't make the starting rotation.

After his four-hit shutout last week against the Yanks, he had 23 2/3 straight scoreless innings, a 4.0 record and a 2.34 earned run average.

If the Sox do win the division championship over the Orioles, Yankees and Tigers, a great deal of the credit must go to Puerto Rican Moret and Latin American Guerrero.

Recreation Roundup

Recreation Director William F. Ryan reports the following have successfully passed the Red Cross approved rowing course at Black's Creek and have now progressed into sailing:

From the city's 13 beaches comes word that:

Lynne Gillespie, Chiana Horton, Cliff Horton, Michael Panaro, Danny Powell, Theresa Dearing, William Dearing, Dennis Pappes, James Cantley and Jimmy Gantley of Orchard beach are improving their swimming skills, while Edward and Michael Brennan, Sandra Dabrowski and William Bohn of Perry Beach have all completed the requirements to pass into beginners.

Stephen Hall, Richard Monahan and Kathy Houlihan of Perry Beach recently entered the Advanced Beginners classes. At Rock Island Beach instructor Penny Ryan reports Renee Manoloues, Rosie Cullen and Mary Matthews have also moved into the Advance Beginner class.

At Bayfield Beach, Darry Connolly, John Ward, Robert Connolly, Tom Wildes, Ken Zwicker, Lisa Pacino, Susan Fennell, Michele Healy, Fiona Healy and Tom Wildes have each passed Non-swimmers. Jeanne Rathgeb and Maureen Kelly have taken the lead in that beach's 50 mile swim. Irene Finlay, Sheila McLaughlin and Mary Stanton of Edgewater Beach have passed into the Advanced Beginner's class, while potential life guards Kathy McLaughlin, Kathy O'Sullivan and Kate Donlin each received 100% on their written life-saving examinations given at Elm Avenue Beach.

Among the leaders of the 50 mile swim at Elm Avenue beach, are: Linda Walker, Anne Marie Boness, Valerie Grande, Marie Anne Boness, Kate Donlin and Peggy O'Sullivan. At Fenno Street beach instructors Kathy McKenna and Diane Dunn report Mary Sue Moran, Lee Anne O'Keefe, Andrea Rodenstein and Larry Rudnik have passed intermediates. Mound Street's Bill Bissett, Cindy Cameron, Mark Glynn, Robert Pitts, and Kevin Cameron have each passed the Non-Swimmers exam and are now in Beginners, while Carol Pitts, Allison Hunter, Charlie Madden, Ed DiTullio, Binny Cooke and Noreen MacLean lead that beach in their 50 mile swim.

At the playgrounds: Lisa DeSantos and Mary Kenney hold the Bradford playground record for continuous ups and downs on a see-saw ... 2,300, and that Tracey DiStefano, Jackie Mallett, Terry and Tina Stearns have made some rather intricate belts and key chains. Family Night at Shea Rink found Jeff Heath and his dad winning the egg throwing contest, Jim Daley winning the football toss, and Francis Gaudiano, Christine Garmavillo, Diane Heath, Maria Marinelli, Helen Ann Kelly, Bobby Ready, Chris Gallery and Kathleen Lamitine winners in the apple bobbing contest. Columbia's leading basketball player is Dana DuBois; and Squantum's Girl Basketball stars include Toni Alibranti, Micki Callahan, Kendra Donovan, Laureen Baker, Rhonda Zoia, Gail Quigley, Carol Brown, Sandy Collins and Karen Carnali. The winning Welcome Young Senior Boys' Baseball team includes Jim McGinley, Mike Martinelli, Frank Miceli, Steve Martinelli, Ed Malelanel, Paul Jackmar and Ron Colan.

Winners in the apple bobbing contest at Snug Harbor included Mike Nevin as the one who dunked the most, Frank Lupo, handsomest, Nancy Chuldrinski as the prettiest, Pat McGovern as the funniest, Paula Morrison as the wettest, Kevin Quigley as the meanest, Francis Garvey as the happiest, Steve Francion as the sloppiest, and Jackie Kennedy and Kim McGovern as the sweetest.

Harold Favors Broadmeadows For Community College

Paul D. Harold, candidate for Ward One councillor, takes issue with those who suggest the new South Shore Community College be located further south. He supports the Quincy Broadmeadows site for the school.

At a meeting at his campaign headquarters, 508 Sea St., Monday night, Harold said:

"Some people have suggested that the new college, planned to replace Quincy Junior College, be located in an area more central for the community college district, for example, in Weymouth or Hanson. I would suggest, however, that Quincy is the most logical place site for this major educational facility.

"Of all the towns in the area, only Quincy can offer the wide range of professional, historical, cultural, business, recreational, religious and governmental facilities to supplement the regular classroom lessons.

"A community college is supposed to participate in the community in which it is located, as its name implies, and not be isolated from the social needs or assets of the community. There should be an interaction between the college and the community, so that both benefit.

Aniolowski On National Guard Training

A Quincy man is undergoing two weeks of annual field training with the Massachusetts Army National Guard at Camp Edwards in Falmouth.

Private Stephen N. Aniolowski of 144 Palmer St. is with Company A of the 181st Engineer Battalion. The company, under the command of Captain John Hannon of Milton, is headquartered in Bridgewater.

Private Aniolowski is a combat engineer with the unit. In civilian life, he is an employee of the Nesco Company of Medford.

Some 500 members of the Battalion are undergoing combat proficiency training during the active duty period. They are also participating in a number of construction and maintenance programs while at Camp Edwards.

"A community college should therefore be located where the college can draw on the cultural resources, services, and assets of the community and where the college can contribute to the betterment of the community. It should not be located apart from the social needs and realities of life of urban areas.

"Of all the possible uses that can be made of the Broadmeadows site, I think the community college would be of the most benefit to the citizens of Quincy. And the low density of the college plant would leave much of the area open space."

LEGAL WAY Penalty clause is bindingBy E. J. DEMSON, J.D.
Copley News Service

It's common to include a financial penalty for late performance in a contract. But does that imply a bonus payment for early performance?

Q. I was awarded a contract to demolish a school building in Pennsylvania. A stipulation in the contract says that $100 will be deducted from the $4,500 demolition price for each day the job is unfinished after Dec. 23.

Is this part of the contract voidable, since there is no provision for awarding $100 to me for each day the job is finished ahead of schedule?

A. The law says that a contractor who promises to complete his work by a definite date, or pay a daily penalty, is bound by his promise. If he wants to bind the other party to pay a bonus for early completion, that provision must be stated in the contract (Corbin on Contracts, Sec. 720, p. 680).

Thus you must abide by the penalty clause in your contract, even though there was no bonus clause included.

Brett Urges Sargent Preserve MDC In Present Form

Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] has urged Gov. Francis W. Sargent to preserve the Metropolitan District Commission in its present form and avoid the "chaos" that would result from its abolition. There is a measure in the State House currently that would abolish the MDC and parcel out its functions among various departments of the State Government.

Said Brett, in a letter, to Sargent:

"While we can agree it [the MDC] has not always carried out its obligations to the complete satisfaction of all, nevertheless it has earned and maintained a reputation of good service to its people throughout all of those years.

"A close examination of the various functions of the Commission ... would indicate that this is something which should not be tampered with in one fell swoop, so to speak.

"To amend the assessment formulas by spreading the costs of the MDC among other communities throughout the state would result in great and justified dissatisfaction by the taxpayers and officials of those communities.

"I feel sure, also, if the present reorganization plan is implemented, there will be tremendous difficulties involved in restructuring the scope and obligations of the water and sewer divisions of the MDC.

"I dread to think of the havoc which may result if the responsibilities of these two divisions should have to go statewide."

Brett recommended that, in addition to retaining the MDC, similar commissions be established in other areas of the state.

Phillp Heleotis Benefit Golf Tourney Aug. 14

The Philip Heleotis Golf Tournament for women will be held Tuesday [Aug. 14] at the Strawberry Valley Golf Course in Abington.

Proceeds of the tourney will go to the Philip Heleotis Fund, set up for the 20-year-old West Quincy youth who suffered a broken neck last month in a swimming pool accident.

Mrs. Harold Pearl of 14 Rice Rd., Wollaston, is chairman of the golf tournament.

Financial Assistance Forms For Students Available

Students seeking financial assistance for post-secondary education beginning in September may pick up forms at the city's high schools, the Vocational-Technical School or Quincy Junior College.

The Basic Educational Opportunity Grant forms are being provided by the U.S. Office of Education in an effort to assist qualified and needy students in their higher education goals.

All of the necessary instructions for the completion and mailing of the applications are contained in the forms.

Persons seeking additional information on the grants may also contact Stewart Sargent, Federal-aid Coordinator for the Quincy Public Schools at 70 Coddington St., Quincy.

Unemployment 7.2%

Burke Wonders If Nixon Trying To Cripple Massachusetts

By PAUL FELDMAN

Congressman James A. Burke says the Nixon Administration has "no consideration" for unemployment in New England and wonders if the President may be deliberately attempting to cripple the Massachusetts area.

He made the observations in an interview Monday with The Quincy Sun.

"You don't want to believe he'd do it but look at the facts," Burke said. "The closing of Route 128 industries, the closing of NASA, the Boston Shipyard, the Chelsea Naval Hospital, airfields, facilities along the Rhode Island coast - it seems like he's cutting off the whole Northeast."

"The trouble with the Nixon Administration is that it has no consideration for the economic impact of closing facilities. There is 7.2 per cent unemployment here, and this aggravates the problem more, especially considering that transfers are being made to the south where there is less than 2 per cent unemployment."

"Why should one area suffer so much at one time," complained the eight-term Congressman. "If they're going to do it, they should at least act so that there are gradual conversions, not a meat axe."

Congressman Burke hopes that the General Dynamics Shipyard will bid on $198 million in contracts for two submarine tenders in order to maintain a full schedule of operations and help ease the unemployment situation.

"The shipyard has been invited to bid on the two ships and now it's up to them. The Quincy yard is the only yard with experience with this type of ship," he said.

The available contracts, open for bids by both public and private shipyards, are for the construction of an AS-39 and an AS-40 nuclear submarine tender. The Quincy yard has previously built AS-36 and AS-37 tender models.

The contracts were first offered in 1972 by the Navy but no suitable bids were received. The House Armed Services and Appropriations Committees, with the consistent encouragement of Congressman Burke, recently approved a reprogramming request on the contracts, and the Navy sent out invitations for bids last week.

When queried about Watergate, Burke had no comment. He said that since the case is in the courts and before the Senate Committee and the Special Prosecutor, he does not want to make any judgements.

And on the question of whether the House of Representatives should begin impeachment proceedings, Burke also gave a firm "no comment". He argued that any comments, even about whether or not the House should begin an impeachment investigation, would be tantamount to an act of prejudice.

However, the Congressman did have an affirmative reaction to the end of the bombing in Cambodia. "I voted for the cut-off of bombing and I am glad to see the situation come to an end," he said.

George Trubiano Candidate For Mayor

George Trubiano, a civil engineer and real estate broker, has announced his candidacy for mayor of Quincy.

He said he is running "because the city of Quincy needs long term planning instead of just going on from year to year."

"I think the city of Quincy is currently heading the way Boston did and it is time we put a stop to it."

Trubiano said he does not plan to file nomination papers at this time because they would be null and void since they have the wrong date for the primary election on them.

"I do not want my papers offered for public scrutiny until they are valid," he said. "I am going to wait to hear from City Hall when such valid papers are available."

"I am very disturbed that there hasn't been any farsightedness as far as this problem goes. I cannot get a correct answer from anyone in City Hall as to what I should do."

$74,241 In New Wiring

Some 139 permits for $74,241 worth of wiring were issued by the City Department of Wire Inspection during July. Fees collected totaled $812.25.

Major projects were:

A new two family house at 239-241 Beale St., a new five apartment building at 11 Harrington Ave., and a new 18-apartment building at 608 South St.

The department made 191 inspections according to William H. Pitts, Inspector of Wires. Twenty-three defects were found.

Visit From Ted Green Might Help Quincy Knife Victim

A 31-year-old former Quincy man lies paralyzed in Massachusetts General Hospital, the stab victim of a burglar's knife three weeks ago in his Charlestown apartment.

Dennis Krasnigor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Krasnigor of 31 Lowell St., Quincy, was stabbed in the skull at 3 a.m. July 21, the blade penetrating his brain.

He underwent delicate brain surgery, similar to that performed on the New England Whalers' defenseman Ted Green four years ago, receiving 14 pints of blood donated by workers at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

After he was stabbed, Krasnigor managed to crawl to the door of his apartment and attract the attention of a 71-year-old woman neighbor, who summoned police from the nearby Charlestown station.

The robber got $1,100 that Krasnigor had been saving for a trip to New Orleans.

Krasnigor, a graduate of Quincy High School and Boston State College, has been a school teacher for nine years, including a stint at Quincy High. He taught Spanish at Melrose High School last year and had transferred to Dedham for the coming school year.

Despite therapy at Mass General to alleviate paralysis that has gripped his left side, Krasnigor is discouraged.

Perhaps a visit from Ted Green, who made a remarkable recovery from a similar injury, might lift his spirits, his father believes.

He is in Room 902, The White Building, Mass General Hospital, Boston.

Cliveden St. Getting New Look

Cliveden Street, the only direct access from Hancock Street to the Ross Parking area, will be closed for about a month while it undergoes a "beautification" process.

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti said the street will be narrowed to 22 feet in width and the sidewalk on the Lerner Shops side will be widened to 12 feet to permit the planting of trees and installation of benches.

Narrowing the road to 22 feet from the present 29 will have no effect on traffic, Ricciuti said, except that it might slow down the vehicles and improve the traffic flow. The street will remain two-way to traffic.

"Initially," said Ricciuti, "it was planned to make Cliveden Street a mall with a lane for emergency fire vehicles.

"Since then, however, the thinking of the business community has come to feel that Cliveden Street is needed as a safety valve for traffic going in and out of the parking area."

The current plan is a compromise between the two.

'MAYBE I SHOULD HAVE TAPED MY CHECKERS SPEECH'

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Son needs Mom and credit card

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

Back-to-school shopping for a boy entering high school is an experience I wasn't prepared for.

I mean, I can understand why he doesn't want to hold my hand when we cross the street anymore, but why should I have to walk half a block behind him?

"Ma!" he said out of the side of his mouth, "Get back!"

"Back?" I echoed, looking around. "What do you mean?"

At first I thought there might be a rabid dog loose on the sidewalk and he was trying to protect me.

"The guys. The guys are coming," he said.

Two harmless-looking boys ambled past us and exchanged mute greetings with my son. Boys of 14 say hello with a quick lift of the chin and a brief closing of the eyes. My son looked up and down the street hurriedly to make sure the coast was clear and then ducked into a clothing store.

"Look," I said to him, "if this whole thing is too much for you, I could go home with my charge cards."

"No, it's OK," he said generously. "Just sit down in this chair here by the door and don't move."

I can remember when I said the same thing to him when he was 3. He spoke to the clerk in monotonous and disappeared into the fitting room with several pairs of pants that looked just like the ones he had on. When he came out he handed three pairs to the clerk and walked over to a rack of shirts. He picked a purple Hawaiian print to go with beige cords.

Fourteen years of mothering is not easily suppressed. I stood up and inched my way toward the shirt rack.

"This brown Hawaiian print with the yellow pineapples would go a lot better with beige than purple," I whispered.

"Sit down," he whispered back.

Back in my chair I picked up a magazine and peeped over the edge to follow the rest of his selections. Except for a touch of color blindness, the kid has impeccable taste. And good timing.

"Mom," he finally said, "come here a minute. You have to sign for this." It's good to be needed.

- Worldwide Watergate Woes
- The CIA Amateurs
- Congressional Vote Jockeying

WASHINGTON — The Watergate Woes, which bedevil President Nixon, have spread to other world leaders.

In Russia, for instance, party chairman Leonid Brezhnev had to overcome powerful opposition before he could establish friendly relations with Nixon. Brezhnev, therefore, must show his rivals in the Kremlin that his new friendship with Nixon will benefit Russia. As Watergate erodes Nixon's authority, it also reduces Brezhnev's chances to make favorable diplomatic and economic deals. The impeachment or resignation of Nixon, according to intelligence reports, could bring on the overthrow of Brezhnev.

In China, Premier Chou En-lai also encountered bitter opposition when he befriended Nixon. The weakening of Nixon, therefore, also weakens Chou.

In Japan, Premier Tanaka is beset with problems that have plunged his popularity to an all-time low. He needs helpful decisions out of Washington, as the two allies become competitors for world trade and oil resources. Nixon's unpopularity, therefore, increases Tanaka's unpopularity.

In England, Prime Minister Heath is plagued with rising prices and sinking political fortunes. His administration has also been sullied by a sex scandal. In France, President Pompidou is politically beleaguered and physically in poor health. Both leaders are associated in the public mind with Nixon.

And this has become a liability around the world.

CIA Embarrassed: No one is more embarrassed over the Watergate fiasco than the professionals at the Central Intelligence Agency. Two of the waterbuggers, E. Howard Hunt and James McCord, are CIA veterans. Their bungling could give the profession a bad name.

For example, Hunt disguised himself in a CIA wig when he flew out to Denver to suborn the testimony of ITP's Dita Beard. But Hunt put on the wig crooked. A professional disguises himself to look as inconspicuous as possible. Hunt, in his preposterous ill-fitting red wig, attracted attention to himself.

McCord was supposed to be an expert in the art of electronic eavesdropping — in the words of the trade, "a good wire man." But he used the equipment and methods of a bungling novice.

The listening device police recovered inside the Watergate was bulky and obsolete. Such bugs are known as "throwaway" equipment, which are sometimes planted by seedy practitioners of the bug-sweeping trade. Then they pretend to discover the devices later for the benefit of naive clients.

Professionals could have bugged Democratic party headquarters with sophisticated devices that could never have been detected. McCord's bug was so obsolete that Washington policemen, who discovered it, thought it was an explosive device and called the bomb squad instead of the wiretap experts.

Inside the CIA, meanwhile, the professionals are mortified.

Vote Jockeying: The new electronic voting system in the House permits the congressmen to change their votes at will during the 15 minutes allotted for each roll call. Unlike the old voice-voting system, there is no record of the vote change.

Our spies on the House floor, however, report there was a lot of vote jockeying over the pay raise for congressmen. The majority finally voted down the pay hike by 81 votes, but not until there had been some frantic fiddling with the electronic levers.

As many as 35 congressmen hastily changed their votes in the waning seconds of the tally. These congressmen, apparently, hoped to get their fat increases now and worry about the voter reaction later. But the last minute, they saw the pay raise would be narrowly defeated. They quickly switched their votes, therefore, so they could look good at home.

The last-minute switches made in the House appear more self-sacrificing than it was. The pay raise would have lost by less than a dozen votes before the switching began. But once they saw the pay bill was doomed for defeat, several congressmen suddenly became statesmen and voted to save the taxpayers money.

The Profiteers: Now that the price freeze is over, consumers have seen food prices soar out of sight. This has raised suspicions that some unscrupulous businessmen have used the freeze as a pre-emptive for profiteering.

In other words, some farmers and merchants apparently have boosted their prices higher than they would have risen naturally if there had been no freeze at all.

A look at prices of then and now tends to confirm the suspicion. After two freezes and four phases, prices are higher than ever.

For example, the price of corn is up an incredible 124 per cent from last year. Chicken broilers are up 139 per cent and eggs have gone up 132 per cent. The price of steers for the butcher has gone up 40 per cent.

More revealing, however, is a comparison of prices on a monthly basis. The price of hogs on the wholesale market shot up 44 per cent in just one month. In the same month, eggs jumped 39 per cent.

The consumer not only has to pay for government economic mismanagement, but for private profiteering as well.

Missing kids can call home now ter left home a year ago, and he hopes a similar system will be established throughout the country. — CNS

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Why can't she stick to diet?

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master
Graphoanalyst

Dear Dorothy:

About two months ago, I went on a diet prescribed by my doctor. I succeeded and lost 15 pounds. Well, before I knew it, I gained it all back. Now all I think of and do is eat. What compels me to eat so much?

M.S.

Dear M.S.:

The hardest thing about a diet is sticking to it. For you, tomorrow is another day. You'll worry about it when it comes. This is seen in the lack of upper and lower loop extension in your writing.

Frustration compels you to eat.

You are always on guard for criticism of any kind, seen in your 't' and 'd' loops. Your low weak 't' crossings limit your sites and you lack faith in yourself. You're unsure of your acceptance, by even those closest to you ... and you don't know just where you stand.

But one thing you do know is

I gained it all back.

that food will fill the gap right now and so you eat.

Like any normal person, you are totally involved in protecting your self-image, and you do it in several different ways.

For instance, you're hiding behind a set of homemade standards by which you want to live, seen in your short 't' and 'd'. Your inflated 'k' causes you to rebel against anything forced upon you, including a diet. Then you have a dozen different excuses for why you eat and what you eat, justifying every little bite you take. This is seen in the loop on the left side of a. If you want to lose weight, you have to face facts. It means counting your calories, not just today. But ... tomorrow ... and the next. And a vision of what is to be if you do.

D.J.

Today's Women

CHOOSE YOUR LOOK - These four hair styles for fall were unveiled by the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologist Association. Hairdressers met in Washington, D.C. to learn to cut and style them. Featuring short hair and easy-to-care-for styling, they had been dubbed by the hairdressers as, left to right, the "Camp," "Scamp," "Vamp," and "Amp."

THINK PRETTY

Short byword for hair styles

By BARBARA HERRERA
Copley News Service

Don't expect anything flowery to bloom under the nation's hair dryers this fall.

Hair will be shorter, more casual, and easier to care for than in years.

Back-combing is out and so, apparently, is the wild "gypsy" look so dear to the hearts of many.

"Short" is the byword. Yes, now that you've finally coaxed your hair to that luxurious, long length you've always coveted, it's time to cut it off.

At least, that's the prediction of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

The hairdressers introduced four styles for fall in Washington, D.C., as a prelude to the 60,000-member group's annual convention.

All four styles feature shorter lengths, and they all seem somehow reminiscent of something you've seen before.

But bowing to the fashion independence that women have flaunted at designers recently, the hairdressers have softened their predictions.

"We wish only to leave an impression of what you will be seeing, rather than telling you what you will be wearing for a hair trend this fall and winter," said Bernard Desjardins of Lewiston, Maine, styles director of the Official Hair Fashion Committee which created the season's four designs.

Most startling of the four looks is the nostalgic "Vamp," a progression of tight waves, flaring at the ends and parted in the middle, a la Bette Davis of a few decades ago.

The woman who can't bring herself to shear her long locks may find a stylish compromise in the "Amp," long at the neck but short at the front and top.

Shortest and most casual are the so-called "Scamp" and "Camp" looks. The first is brushed back almost carelessly from the forehead and the other is combed forward from the crown for a neat schoolgirl look.

And what if none of these styles turns you on?

Then wear your hair as you jolly well please.

Even Desjardins admits that things have changed from those bygone days when stylists dictated the season's look.

"The life style of today's woman and her personality direct the hair design she will wear," he said.

For The Week Of August 19 To 25

By GINA
Copley News Service

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Curb tendency toward laziness — "get on the ball." Enjoy mate or partner's activities without feeling competitive. Real estate matters stressed. Improve or shop for new residence. Be realistic, not extravagant.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Be realistic regarding an emotional situation at home or involving relatives. Take the conservative path in financial matters. Take care of legal or tax matters on time. Stay in control of yourself.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Indications are that you will receive honors and praise for past efforts. Accept compliments modestly, graciously. Creativity runs high — use it! Marriage a possibility for the single Geminis.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Energy and activity are at a peak now. There may be some conflict between home and business since you wish to be active in both areas. Approach superiors for favors, redecorate and beautify home.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Set aside personal interests in favor of professional demands. Curb impatience, sarcasm, with co-workers. Possibility of short journey involving relatives. Rest, relax and recoup energies toward week's end.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Pressures within family relationships are likely now. Good period for problem-solving and accomplishment on your job. Possibility of a financial settlement in your favor. Study philosophy, religion now.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Use creative talents you haven't tried before — be dramatic. Trust your intuition. Good time to take a vacation. Plan well the travel details to avoid disappointment. Evaluate a relationship where you do all the "giving."

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Give time and attention to loved ones. Ignore criticism and continue regular job routine. If bored, take up a new hobby. Seek to help a friend who is going through a trying and changeable emotional period.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Take your seat on the "side lines" this week and let others have the spotlight. Rest, recoup energies. Relationships with mate or partner improve. Reach agreements on document, contracts.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — You accomplish most this week by attending to routine, detailed work. Romance a possibility for those who are single — added sensuality to the married. New opportunities appear on the "social scene."

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Business and personal relationships are "to the front." Think before you speak — curb opinionated attitudes. Check home for accident hazards. Enjoy community cultural events. Read spiritual books.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — "Tune in" on the subtle, underplayed happenings going on about you. Feeling a need for meaningful emotional relationships there is a possibility of reuniting with one who has been "distant." Use intuition.

MODES

Sweaters taking over

By BETH MOHR
Copley News Service

Any fashion you see this fall and winter might be a sweater — no matter what it looks like.

Sweaters in plain, cable and fishermen knits are designed as jackets, toppers, dress-length coats and long evening wraps. There also are sweater dresses and gowns.

Knit coats and jackets with fur collars and belts suggest a new fashion breed, neither sweater or coat, yet both.

Add to the new introductions every possible sweater you can think of — including cardigans, short and long pullovers with and without belts, sweater vests, bulky sweaters, cashmere sweaters, tight sweaters, baggy sweaters, blouson sweaters and sweater sets — and you begin to get the feeling that the humble little topper you have been regarding so casually is about to take over the fashion world.

The influence is certainly going to be felt on an "every waking hour" basis. Evening sweater jackets, coats and gowns are in dazzling yarn agleam with gold or silver thread for that extra touch of glamor.

STRICTLY PERSONAL Hosts obligated to pay bill?

By PAT and
MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

We have been married two years and are on a strict budget. We do have a certain amount set aside for entertainment but try not to go over that amount.

The problem is this one couple. We have had them over for dinner several times; but when they ask us to have dinner with them, this is how it is handled. We arrive at the appointed time and the wife says something like this, "I was too tired to cook so we are going to try the new restaurant down the street. Hope you don't mind." When the bill is presented the host says, "Well, this is reasonable enough. Your half is $15."

We don't want to appear cheap, but when people invite you to their home for dinner and then go to a restaurant aren't they obligated to pick up the check?

Sue

Dear Sue:

Obviously this couple feels no such obligation. If you enjoy their company, you will have to pay for it.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I'm heartsick with worry since I accidentally discovered that my teen-age daughter is taking birth control pills. So far, I haven't told her that I know. Judy is only 18 and I am afraid I don't know how to cope with this situation. What would you do?

Mrs. C. W.

Dear Mrs. C.W.:

I would tell Judy exactly what you have told me. Then I would point out a few facts.

Judy should be informed of the dangers involved in taking birth control pills unless prescribed by a doctor. A surprising number of teen-agers are taking the pill and are not under the care of a physician. Any form of self-medication can be dangerous. There is also the ever present danger of VD.

If you feel you cannot give Judy the facts, you might suggest that she have a talk with your family doctor. She is not a child; and if she insists on taking the pill, she should at least receive proper medical supervision.

Squantum Youth Author Of Boston Harbor Book

Alan Mikal, 20, of 142 Crabtree Rd in Squantum has published his first book "Exploring Boston Harbor".

It is an easily-read guide, both historical and descriptive, and contains over 60 photographs taken by the young author himself.

Mikal, a 1970 graduate of Milton Academy, presently an English major at Eastern Nazarene College, has been exploring the islands of Boston Harbor for over 10 years and spent almost two years researching and writing his book.

"I felt there was the need for a simply written guide to the islands, showing what they are today," he says.

His 22-year-old sister, Michele, who also lives at home with their parents, Dr. and Mrs.

ALAN MIKAL

Stanley Mikal, drew maps of Boston Harbor that accompany the text.

The 128-page hardback was published by Christopher Publishing House of North Quincy.

56,000 Pounds Of Fat Missing

There are 56,000 pounds of fat missing in Quincy, but they're not missed. The members of the Diet Workshop who lost all that weight, the equivalent of 28 small cars, in the past few years, are not issuing any rewards to the finders - it is gone and good riddance.

Group members lose about two pounds per week, but in a year that could total 100 lbs. For example, Mrs. Marie O'Meara has successfully lost 115 pounds.

If other Quincy residents wish to start adding their "adipose tissue" to the growing collection, they may do so weekly at several locations, one of which is the Atlantic Memorial Church, 136 Sagamore St., North Quincy. Meetings are held every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. Men, women and children are welcome to the workshops.

And in an effort to help more people diet successfully, the Diet Workshop is offering free to the public low-calorie recipes.

IF CONFRONTED BY A SNARLING DOG

Ever wonder what you'd do if confronted face-to-face with a snarling dog? Here's some advice by experts that may help.

First of all, you have no choice but to bluff it out. Run, and he's sure to strike, because dogs are excited by a moving target. Instead, stand still with your legs together and your arms folded on your chest [to make your extremities less tempting (site-objects)], and talk to the dog in a firm, steady voice. After it calms down, take one step forward, then, if the animal doesn't object, take another and proceed slowly on your way, pausing after each step. If the dog threatens when you move forward - put your legs in exercise and backtrack slowly instead. Still facing him, move back slowly, one step at a time. If this doesn't work and the dog is determined to attack - tell him to wait until you read next week's column which will cover this situation.

At Nesco It's TVs, Radios, Records, Tapes, Films, And Even Trains

By PAUL FELDMAN

A B and M Flying Yankee [No. 616] Lionel model train might not sound like anything special to the average person, but to a collector, it's worth more than $100.

And at Nesco, at 423 Hancock St., North Quincy, Jake Pike has this model and many other rare trains as well as TV's and TV repair service, radios, records, tapes and film.

Jake, a native of Maine, opened Nesco in 1966. Back then it was a straight-laced TV shop. But he soon tired of having a shop no different than any other TV sales and service store which carries Zeniths and Admirals as he does, so he went into the model train business.

Now when you walk in, you sense an easy-going, down-to-earth atmosphere. The front half of the shop is taken up by a large railroad track, complete with bridges, switches and scenery.

"I buy and sell new and used trains. I deal in any kind of Lionel made trains," he says.

Among the antiques in stock that really mean something to collectors are the 40-year old Union Pacific 752; the Lackawanna, Fairbank and Moore that is worth about $200; the 1665 Bell Ringer Switcher worth about $125; and all three types of Post World War II trains.

"You'd have to go pretty far to beat that selection," he comments proudly.

Pike sells TV antennas which he installs for customers, radios, top records and tapes; and film, including one of the only local branches of GAF photo processing, as well as TV's & trains.

JAKE PIKE, owner of NESCO at 423 Hancock St., displays some of the rare Lionel trains that he sells and buys. Jake also sells and repairs TV's and radios, and sells records, tapes and film.

Jake, who lived on Oval Rd, Wollaston for four years, now resides in Whitman with his wife and his 2-year-old son, Alger.

He moved to Massachusetts in 1964 after spending most of his life in Lubec, Me. There, he graduated from Hebron Academy and Attended the University of Maine for two years. He came to Boston to attend RETS [Radio, Electronics, and Television School] where he earned Massachusetts radio and television licenses.

"I came down to the RETS school to learn enough to set up a cable TV system in Maine. But after I graduated, I never went back."

He opened NESCO soon after.

Jake's main hobby is photography. In Maine, he worked as a salesman and photographer for a large photo company for which he shot mostly family and baby portraits. He now has a "fleet of Nikons" with which he shoots "a little of everything."

Pike's other hobby is gardening. He has a small garden behind his house.

"I grow tomatoes and try to get them raised earlier than the local commercial growers. This year I beat them by at least a week," he says.

NESCO is a member of the North Quincy Business & Professional Association.

County Retirement Board Nomination Papers Available

Norfolk County Treasurer James M. Collins announces that nomination papers for the elected member of the Norfolk County Retirement Office have been distributed and are presently being received at the Retirement Office.

Collins said the election is to fill the three-year term of the elected member of the Norfolk County Retirement Board, which is presently held by Sheriff Charles Hedges. The other members of the Board are Wallace Carson, chairman, of Quincy, and Collins.

Nomination papers may be obtained from Miss Rita Burns, Administrative Assistant, at the Office of the Norfolk County Retirement Board, Superior Court House, Dedham.

MONEY TALKS

Concept of Thrift Can Be Taught to Children

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Wollaston
9-6 Weekdays 9-7:30 Thursday

Most of these observations on children and money focus upon the matter of spending, and this teenagers do in staggering amounts — close to $100,000,000 weekly, according to one source. Related, of course, is the matter of saving. The development of the instinct for saving and the virtue of thrift is one of the more important things to be learned by children as they acquire the experience of handling money.

Obviously, saving comes in to the picture for the child after spending has been going on for some time. The day your 6-year-old discovers that a dime need not be spent all at once, he has made a real advance in money management. Boys and girls find it hard to control their spending and to plan ahead; at some stage, however, they appreciate the idea that to get some things they want they must forebear spending now.

Saving for short-term goals should soon become part of a child's experience with money. A 9- or 10-year-old begins to find satisfaction in saving for several weeks, and there are exceptional instances where putting away small portions of spending money — for a tennis racket or ballet slippers—is continued for longer periods.

The habit of saving can be further encouraged if it is suggested to the child that his goal may be more easily reached if he puts his funds into a savings account. This helps him to resist the temptation toward impulse spending since his money is not directly in hand. It gives him a sense of satisfaction as he actually sees his savings mount in his account. And he enjoys the "growing up" activity of dealing with his savings institution.

The world of books abounds in opportunities for developing a child's sense of values. The daily parental admonitions all too often reach deaf or "tuned off" ears. But a character in a story whose warmth, strength, or other appeal awakens the child's admiration reaches him so effectively that he identifies himself with the character and seeks to imitate him.

Parents will find in libraries guide books to literature that accentuates values they wish to develop in their children. By way of example, here are only a few works that are described as particularly helpful in inculcating the virtue of thrift. One, an introductory biography and picture book by Ingrid D'Aulaire, Abraham Lincoln (Doubleday, 1939) is intended for youngsters in grades 3 and 4. Another book for the middle grades, Walter D. Edmonds' Two Logs Crossing (Dodd, 1943) tells the story of a lad who assumes responsibility for his family after the father's death. Two books for grades 4 to 6 are Ruth Weir's Benjamin Franklin (Abingdon, 1955) and Lois Lenski's Boom Town Boy (Lippincott, 1948).

We live today in a money economy. We can no more get along without it than the air we breathe. The wise parent, in our mind, is the one who starts his children early to develop sensible attitudes toward money that will serve them well for the rest of their lives.

Petition Drive For More Lifeguards, Elevated Chairs At Wollaston Beach

A frequent Wollaston Beach bather, upset about a near drowning last weekend, is starting a petition for more lifeguards and elevated chairs along the beach.

Sam Greenwald of 15 Ridgeway Drive, Merrymount, claims that while there were 22 lifeguards at Wollaston Beach last year, there are only 15 now, and not all on duty at the same time.

Greenwald will send the petition to MDC Commissioner John Sears.

However, a spokesman for the MDC contends that there are always 15 lifeguards on hand at the same time on the beach on sunny days. The spokesman went on to say that the MDC wants more lifeguards and has just requested special supplementary funds from the legislature to add 92 lifeguards to the present MDC force.

"We just haven't had enough money this year," the spokesman complained. "We always want more lifeguards than we have money for but we got less money this year so we've had to cut down on the force. We're now trying a second time to get more money."

The spokesman added that if more funds are received, elevated chairs can be installed. "The MDC is for elevated chairs even though we've had bad luck with them due to vandalism. We'd like to see them every 500 feet along the beach."

The near-tragedy that sparked the petition campaign occurred last weekend when a six-year-old

Cambridge boy almost drowned.

Robert J. Steele was using scuba equipment when water apparently got into mask and he began to drown.

Many people in the area saw him floating face down but thought that he was only playing with the scuba gear. However, Russell A. Hayes, a boarder with the Steele family, became worried and pulled the boy out of the water.

While lifeguards and police were being summoned, Paul Bauer, of 949 Quincy Shore Drive, applied artificial respiration to the boy's back.

The boy's breathing was restored by the time the police and fire rescue units had arrived but he was sent to Quincy City Hospital as a precautionary measure.

Exclusive Quincy Sun Series

Burgin, Platner 'Remember When?' Ads Stir Many Fond Memories

Remember When?, ask the Burgin, Platner Insurance ads in The Quincy Sun.

A lot of people do. The series of ads with photos of nostalgic Quincy scenes appearing in The Sun have stirred fond memories for many customers of Burgin, Platner and readers of The Sun.

The insurance agency at 1357 Hancock St., which in itself has become a Quincy landmark, is getting a lot of fun, comments and results from the series.

"The response to our ads has been tremendous," says David Leitch, in charge of advertising for Burgin, Platner. The scenes of old Quincy stir fond memories for many present and former residents of the city.

Burgin, Platner has run the series for over two months exclusively in The Sun. Most of the photos have been loaned from the Thomas Crane Public Library.

"We have received telephone calls from many people, customers and non-customers, telling us they remember a certain building when it looked like it does in our ad or when there was a pump in Quincy Square or when the trolley cars ran in Quincy," says Leitch.

Some customers mailing in checks to Burgin, Platner have enclosed clippings of the ads with pencilled notes of enthusiasm over these touches of nostalgia.

Burgin, Platner has even received letters from out-of-state

REMEMBER WHEN - Former Mayor and State Senator Thomas S. Burgin, who founded the Burgin-Platner Insurance Agency in 1925, looks over the series of 'Remember When?' ads appearing exclusively in the Quincy Sun. The advertisements have received many favorable comments from area residents (old and new) and are even being saved as collectors items. With him is Debbie Lotterhand, youngest employee at the Burgin-Platner Agency, 1357 Hancock St., Quincy. (Quincy Sun Photo by Laban H. Whittaker) subscribers to The Sun extending thanks for the pleasant memories the ads bring back.

"We have received more nice comments from this series of ads than for any other advertising we have ever done," says Leitch. "It's really fantastic."

It's so fantastic that some people are even saving the ads as collector's items.

GD Sees Increases In Sales, Earnings Continuing

General Dynamics Corporation reports increases in its sales and earnings are expected to continue for the rest of this year, making 1973 "substantially better" than 1972 for the company.

In the second quarter report to shareholders, David S. Lewis, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, pointed out that sales for the first six months were more than $57 million higher than for the same period last year.

"We believe this rate of sales increase will continue for the rest of the year," he said. "This will represent the first reversal in the decreasing year-by-year sales levels experienced since the peak year of 1968"

"We have every indication that our earnings recoveries will continue and that 1973 will be a substantially better year than 1972," Lewis said.

General Dynamic's commercial operations accounted for more than one third of the company's total operating profits, Lewis said, and "this percentage should continue to increase."

The company's second quarter earnings of 86 cents per common share were 43 percent higher than 1972's second quarter earnings of 60 cents per common share.

For the first six months of 1973, General Dynamics reported earnings of $1.56 per common share, compared with $1.08 per common share in 1972's first half.

House Counsellor Named For Whiteman House

Robert Hassey, Executive Director for Survival Inc. announces the appointment of Karen Shields of Palmer as House Counsellor at the agency's Joseph H. Whiteman House, 1230 Hancock Street, Quincy Center.

Miss Shields, a graduate of Spectrum House in Shirley, will serve as both a coordinator and counsellor at the in-patient facility.

"We feel a definite need for a strong female staff person at Whiteman House since around one-third of those receiving help there will be females, and they need a figure to relate to," said Hassey. Miss Shields' position is funded under a federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant.

Having virtually completed staffing under the limits of current funding, Hassey noted that "many young persons in need are again turning to Survival for help." While admitting that the agency's credibility among South Shore young persons has "not always been great," Hassey emphasized that "the word is out that Survival is really changing for the better, and more persons are being treated than at any time in the agency's history."

He also pointed out that "our relations with area courts and police departments are excellent. In their eyes," he said, "we are a very viable organization."

As an example of the improvement in Survival services, Mr. Hassey cites the utilization of the Survival Hot line, the agency's 24-hour crisis intervention service. Over 900 calls were received by the line in the month of July, many of which were of a serious nature. More than 40 people referred from area courts were receiving weekly therapy at Survival's Walk-In Center in July, while 550 people utilized that Center during the month received varied forms of help for drug, family, or personal problems.

Hassey also said that "our small methadon clinic has been restructured into a functioning program combining medication and psychological therapy," while the newly dedicated Whiteman House "will be filled to capacity very soon with people who have struggled for months waiting for Survival to again offer an in-patient program."

Hassey said he now hopes that as summer draws to a close and organizations begin to schedule speakers for their fall meetings, Survival can be called upon by many interested groups to discuss a wide range of current drug and youth related concerns.

The multi-faceted agency provided speakers to over 10,000 South Shore persons in the past year, and hopes to increase that number starting again in the fall.

Sal's All Stars Eliminated

Sal's North Quincy All-Stars were eliminated from the New Bedford baseball tournament last weekend as they lost two out of three games.

The North team started off well Saturday with a 5-1 win over Attleboro as Dave King pitched a three-hitter, struck out eight and didn't issue a base on balls.

North scored twice in the second inning on singles by Brian Condon, Danny McDonnell and Bobby Lindenfelzer, added one in the third when Brian Donovan was hit by a pitch, Rick Finnegan walked and Condon singled. The locals added two in the sixth on a single by Lindenfelzer, a walk to Donovan, a fly ball by Phil Coggiano and King's single.

Saturday night North and Hanover engaged in an outstanding game which went into extra innings, Hanover winning, 1-0, in the seventh.

Hanover failed to get a hit off Jeff Connelly, while North had one hit, a single in the first by King. Hanover's run scored on two walks, a passed ball and an infield out. Connelly struck out 14 including the first seven batters in the game.

North was ousted Sunday when it bowed to Sudbury, 3-1.

North led, 1-0, after four innings but Sudbury tied it in the fifth and won it with two runs in the sixth. North's run came in the third inning on singles by Lindenfelzer, Coggiano and Ricky King. Harry Donahue pitched four-hit ball for North, which collected five.

Sal's Quincy and North all-stars were busy in non-tourney games last week.

Norwood nipped North, 7-6, on Wednesday, in eight innings. Norwood exploded for five runs in the first inning but Quincy tied it with two in the second, two in the third and one in the fourth. In the second extra inning Norwood scored twice and North came back with a run in its half.

Donahue had a homer and Dave King a single and double to spark North Quincy.

Thursday Sal's two teams met each other with Quincy romping, 14-2.

Quincy took a 7-0 lead after two innings and it was no contest as it added three runs in the sixth and three in the seventh. The teams eight innings instead of the usual six.

Billy Deitsch was the inning pitcher while Ricky Finnegan took the loss. Deitsch, Lou Avitable and Danny Santonato had home runs.

Friday Quincy walloped Norwood, 9-4, with Andy Carrera the winning pitcher. Santonato had a double and single, Ray Coscia three singles and Billy Murphy two singles.

Welcome Young Defeats O'Rourke

In the Semi-Final round of play-offs in the Quincy Recreation Department, Welcome Young opened with a 9-7 victory over O'Rourke Playground.

Welcome Young had John Earl going the distance on the mound for his third victory against no defeats. John also got two hits including a two run triple. Other top hitters for Welcome Young were Frank Miceli, Jim McGinley, Turtle O'Sullivan, two hits each, Ed McGalaney, Mike Martinelli and Mac McGinley, one hit each. Paul Jackmauh and Frank Miceli each had three RBIs with Turtle O'Sullivan contributing another two RBIs, Ron Colan, Jack Whealan and John Earl all performed well defensively.

With the score 8-0 in the bottom of the fourth, O'Rourke Playground went on a hitting spree scoring five runs on four hits and a couple of Welcome Young errors. Preston Carroll, Rick Veskanee, Paul Paluzzi and Bill Lucier all hit well for O'Rourke. O'Rourke also collected another run in the fifth to make the score 9-6.

In the last half of the seventh O'Rourke threatened again with some excellent bat control to bring across the seventh run. With a runner on third base and two out John Earl hurled harder than he did all game to force the last O'Rourke batter to fly out to him.

Tennis Tourney Opens Aug. 21

The Third Annual Quincy Recreation Tennis Championships at Voch-Tech Tennis Courts will be held Aug. 21-26.

The tournament is being run by Kevin McGinley, Tennis Instructor of the Recreation Department and Kenneth Rickson, assistant athletic director Quincy School Department.

A large turnout is expected. More than 100 tennis enthusiasts participated last year in mens singles and doubles, womens singles, mixed doubles and boys and girls 16 and under.

Winner of the singles championship the last two years,

Phil Steele, will be teaming with Rick Murray, singles quarter finalist. Bernie Kramer, last year's doubles champ, will be teaming with a new partner, Jim Wilcox, to form two powerful doubles teams. They are the pre-tourney favorites to take the doubles title. Larry Courtney, Jim Wilcox, Bill McSweeney and Henry McCulliffe, appear to have strong chances of taking home the singles crown. Last year's women's singles finalist, Rita Morash, is returning but appears that she will be hard pressed to repeat her performance of last year.

Vincent, Scott McDonald Father-Son Golf Winners

Scott McDonald, 11, and his father, Vincent, of 15 Broadway, Quincy Point, were the winners of the annual Father-and-Son Golf Tournament with a low net of 60 Sunday at South Shore Country Club in Hingham. The McDonald's had a gross of 82.

Winner of the prize for low gross with a 75 were the team of Warren Anderson of Hingham and his son, Neil, 18.

Red Sox Clinic For Women

Quincy women who want to learn the fine points of baseball to keep up with their husbands and boy friends, can do so Saturday when the Red Sox conduct a clinic for women prior to the Sox-Kansas City Royals game at Fenway Park.

The clinic, starting at 11:15 a.m., will be conducted by Eddie Pellagrini, Boston College coach, former Red Sox infielder and a 10-year major leaguer. He will be assisted by several of the Red Sox players and coaches. Pellagrini and several other baseball personalities are conducting clinics throughout New England this summer sponsored by Coca-Cola and Radio Station WHDH.

Women attending the clinic can purchase a $3 reserved grandstand ticket for $1. If a husband or boy friend wishes to accompany them, he can purchase a ticket at the regular price.

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy Bay Race Week now underway through Sunday, for the 36th year has become a summer spectacular.

A year ago about 400 boats and 1,500 sailors competed in the daily events and this year's Race Week Association President, I. Wesley Watson of Wessagussett Yacht Club estimates an even bigger entry list this week.

"We have another great line of racing and I believe we'll have an additional 40 to 50 boats and another 50 to 75 sailors taking part," Watson said. This is the second largest event of its kind in the country."

Racing each day is held from one of the participating yacht clubs. Wednesday's opening races were held from Wollaston. Today's [Thursday] host is Town River with the races starting from Wessagussett. Friday the races will also start from the host Wessagussett club, Saturday Quincy will be the host and Sunday's host will be Squantum.

The colorful Marine Parade will be held Sunday at noon with the boats leaving Town River and proceeding from Wessagussett to Quincy along Manet Beach and Wollaston Beach to the Squantum Yacht Club.

The Gala Night Kick-off Dance will be held Friday night at Quincy Yacht Club and Rendezvous Night will be Saturday at Town River with all boats getting together for the Marine Parade.

The annual Trophy Night for presentations of trophies will be held on Sept. 7 at Wessagussett. All winners and guests are invited to this event.

QUINCY BAY RACE WEEK officers for 1973 are, Edward Simpson, secretary; David Maloney, treasurer; Wesley Watson, president and William Munroe, vice-president.

Braintree, Metropolitan Join Race Week Association

The Braintree Yacht Club and Metropolitan Yacht Club joined the Quincy Bay Race Week Association this year, bringing the total membership to seven clubs.

Although sailors from both clubs will participate in the week's festivities, neither will host any of the races.

"I think next year both will join with other clubs and act as co-hosts," QBRWA President I. Wesley Watson said.

Last Year's Outside, Inside Line Winners

The following were winners in outside line races last year:

Ocean Racing Set For Saturday, Sunday

To stimulate interest in cruising type sailboat ocean racing, the Quincy Bay Race Week Association is again offering two consecutive days of ocean racing.

The Frank E. Remick ocean race will be held Saturday. As in past years, the race will be sailed in two fleets. Fleet 1 consists of boats from 26 feet overall length to 45 feet overall and Fleet 2 for boats from 17 feet waterline length to under 26 feet overall length.

In 1959 the trophy was presented to the QBRWA by Frank E. Remick for competition between ocean racing sailboats. Because of the large number of boats competing in 1962, it was decided to split the race into two fleets. Remick again presented the QBRWA with a second trophy for the winner of Fleet 2.

Last year Dave Johnson won the Remick Fleet 1 honors and Dick Haley the Fleet 2 race.

The City of Boston Bermuda Cup race will be held Sunday.

This valuable and historic punch bowl had been in the custody of the Quincy Yacht Club for more than 50 years. It was presented by the City of Boston around the year 1905 for a race from Boston to Bermuda. This race was never held and in 1911 the City of Boston again placed the cup in competition to become the permanent possession of the winner. That race was won by Hollis Burgess in his sloop Marie L.

Burgess generously made the Quincy Yacht Club trustee of

the cup to be placed in competition as a perpetual trophy.

In 1968 the Quincy Yacht Club presented the trophy to the QBRWA for Race Week competition.

Dick Haley also won this trophy in 1972.

The Harry Warner Memorial trophy race will also be held Sunday immediately after the start of the Boston Bermuda Cup race.

This fine trophy was presented by the Warner family and the Town River Yacht Club as a perpetual trophy to be raced for by cruising type trimarans.

In all of the races the winners will be awarded the trophy to be held until Race Week of the following year when it is to be returned to the association. A suitably engraved keeper trophy will be awarded each winner for his permanent possession.

Frank J. Carroll is chairman of the QBRWA Ocean Race committee.

Quincy Bay Race Week A 36-Year Tradition Of Excellence

There is a long tradition of excellence which yachtsmen taking part in the 36th annual Quincy Bay Race Week have to live up to.

Quincy Bay Race Week was born in 1938 and has been an outstanding success ever since. The Quincy, Squantum and Wollaston Yacht Clubs formed their association that year.

Boats competed in 20 separate classes in that first summer sports event from July 31 to August 4, 1938.

The Quincy Bay Race Week Association had been formed the previous winter, with Edward P. Shaw of Wollaston Yacht Club as president, to supplement Marblehead Race Week with activities here on the South Shore.

Roy McPherson of Quincy Yacht Club was the association's first vice president, George Hey of Squantum was treasurer and Arthur Leavitt of Wollaston was the first secretary.

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin was named honorary chairman of the board and presided over the first year's activities.

Mayor Burgin provided a trophy for the Adams Class in the competition and his successor, as honorary chairman, Boston Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, set up another in 1939.

It was in that year that Thomas Sheehan of Squantum Yacht Club became secretary of the association and began the work which earned him the title of "Mr. Quincy Bay Race Week".

The Town River and Merrymount Yacht Clubs swelled the membership in 1940 and the first "squadron review" of power boats was held.

Activities were diminished during the war years as many young sailors were fighting in Europe, but reflowered in 1946 as the entire shoreline was illuminated with red flares on opening day.

The new governor of the state, Maurice J. Tobin, was chief of judges for the 1946 event which featured a marine parade and the largest number of entries ever.

In the years that followed, the Merrymount Yacht Club dissolved and was succeeded in membership by the Wessagusset Club and many older classes of sailboats have been replaced.

This year the Braintree and Metropolitan Yacht Clubs were added to the association.

Among the prizes added to the competition are Remick Trophies and trophies in memory of James B. Finlay, Howard Gannett, John Reynolds and Fred Hunt.

Norman Rogers Active In Race Week

The Quincy Bay Race Week Association salutes Chief Warrant Officer Norman Rogers who, three years ago, was assigned to the Point Allerton Coast Guard Station as his point of operation.

He originally came from Quincy and attended Quincy schools and during the past 18 years he has been in New Bedford, Vietnam and prior to his Hull assignment was on the Boston Light Relief Ship.

As area yachtsmen know, the Point Allerton station is recognized as one of the busiest. In 1972, 730 calls for assistance were answered. The station was founded in the 1860's and in March of 1970 took over the new facilities.

Rogers has four children, two of whom are active in the Hull Yacht Club sailing program.

In addition to his busy program at the station, Rogers has found time to belong to Hull and Wessagussett Yacht Clubs plus being active in the Quincy Bay Race Week Association.

The QBRWA salutes Rogers, his wife Anne and family and extends its thanks for the assistance he has given the men, women and children who participate in boating.

Handsome Trophies Attract Sailors Of All Ages

A wide variety of trophies have attracted sailors of all ages and will be presented at Quincy Bay Race Week.

The Capt. James Berwick Finlay Memorial Trophy was presented to Quincy Yacht Club in 1948 by Alfred W. Finlay, his father, for competition during Race Week.

This handsome trophy given in memory of a son who during his lifetime did much to advance the sport of yachting on Mass. Bay is awarded annually to the yacht or yachtsman considered to have made the most outstanding record or to have performed some signal act of sportsmanship during Race Week.

It is annually suitably engraved and remains in the custody of the Quincy Yacht Club. An appropriate engraved replica will become the permanent possession of the winner. Last year's winner was Robert Marks.

The Howard Gannett Memorial Trophy has been presented annually since 1954 by the Quincy Bay Race Week Association in memory of Howard Gannett, who for more than 50 years served his fellow yachtsmen as a member of the race committee and who served on the race committee of the association from 1938 until his death in 1953. It is presented each year to the race week winner in a class selected by the committee.

The Fred Hunt Memorial Trophy is a perpetual trophy presented annually since 1966 by the Patriot Ledger in memory of the man who served that newspaper for more than three decades as a yachting writer and its yachting editor.

A deep water sailor and a racing enthusiast, Fred did as much as any man for Quincy Bay Race Week and for those who love the sport. This trophy is awarded to the skipper who has proven his ability in the Race Week series, has demonstrated a high degree of sportsmanship and a willingness to help others in the advancement of the yacht racing sport. It is held for one year by the home club of the winner who receives a suitable replica for his permanent possession. John Murphy won the trophy a year ago.

The Boston-Bermuda Trophy was presented in 1968 to the Race Week Association by Quincy Yacht Club. This cup was originally presented for competition in 1910 to stimulate interest in ocean racing. Dick Haley was last year's winner.

The Reynolds Memorial Trophy was presented to the association in 1966 by the family of John Reynolds, an ardent supporter of and skipper in the Day Sailor Class until his untimely death in 1965. This beautiful trophy is awarded to the Race Week winner in the Day Sailor Class. Phil Dresser won last year.

The Frank E. Remick Trophy was presented to the Race Week Association to stimulate interest in competition between cruising type sail boats of not less than 17 feet on the water line and not more than 45 feet overall. Raced for annually since 1959, it becomes the permanent possession of the yacht owner who wins it three times.

The 1300 Trophy has been presented each year since 1960 by Radio Station WIDA to demonstrate its co-operative interest among the junior classes. This handsome trophy is awarded to the winning skipper in the Turnabout Class and becomes his permanent possession. Last year's winner was Richard Dreher.

The Commonwealth Trophy was presented by the Commonwealth National Bank of Boston. It is awarded to the Race Week winner in a class to be selected by the association. Jim Robinson was last year's winner.

The Harry Warner Memorial Trophy was presented to the

Hewitt's Sells John Allmand Ranger To WHDH's Hoffman

Paul R. Neelon, Vice President of Hewitt's Cove Marina in Hingham, announces that the Marina has sold a 28-foot John Allmand Ranger to Bill Hoffman of the WHDH Marine Patrol.

Bill is well-known in New England waters for his Marine Patrol broadcasts which are carried 18 times each weekend on WHDH in Boston. The broadcasts contain information on weather, sea conditions, fishing results and "where they're biting", and include boating safety tips in cooperation with the Coast Guard and Registry Division of Motor Boats.

Due to the tremendous interest Bill's Marine Patrol broadcasts have generated, he decided that it was necessary for him to get his own boat so that he could adequately cover the Massachusetts Bay area and "be where the action is."

Neelon said that in light of his special requirements and lifelong interest in boating and safety afloat, Hoffman chose the Allmand Ranger as the boat best fulfilling his requirements, after several months of research.

The Allmand has a very strong hull and comes equipped with twin engines and 170 gallon fuel supply, giving it extensive cruising capacity and the ability to handle rough seas.

Hewitt's Cove Marina has equipped the boat with several of the latest advances in the marine field for cruising and safety, including the Bristol Digital Depthfinder and the Protector Marine Fire Watch automatic fire detection and extinguishing system.

The boat is also equipped with extensive communications equipment and will be available to help mariners in distress in cooperation with the Coast Guard and Registry.

Hoffman chose to buy and keep the Marine Patrol boat at Hewitt's Cove Marina in Hingham because he said, the Marina is capable of handling all aspects of boat maintenance and repair, and has a large staff of factory trained specialists in inboard marine engine repair, which is available on a 24-hour basis. Also, the Marina has 24-hour telephone communications. Hewitt's Cove's location permits immediate access to the main boating area in Massachusetts Bay and has restaurant and fuel facilities as well as guard service to protect the large amount of expensive equipment on the over 225 boats docked there.

Hoffman said he was also impressed with the progress that has been made at the Marina, founded just two years ago, and the plans for future expansion and development of the Marina in consort with the redevelopment of the entire Hingham Shipyard property.

These plans include a much larger marina facility and a Motel/Boatel and restaurant on the waterfront.

Neelon, in addition to being the manager of Hewitt's Cove is also Vice President of Colonial Coastal Corporation, and the owner of the Hingham Industrial Center (Shipyard) property.

Service League All Stars Wallop Business Loop, 9-1

The Service League All Stars pounded out a 9-1 victory over the Business League Stars Tuesday [Aug. 7] as Harry Donoghue's two-out double in the sixth and final inning spoiled a no-hitter for four Service League pitchers.

Gary Earl singled home a pair of Service runs in the first inning and Service added seven more in the second on back-to-back doubles by Dave Perdios and Bob Ceurvels and singles by Chris Lamphier, Rich Olson and Lou Avitabile.

Lamphier, Dave King and Bob Lindenfelzer allowed no hits over the first five innings. Then, with two out and Peter Davis on base by way of an error, Donoghue blasted his run-scoring double.

It was the second win in a row for the Service All Stars over their Business League counterparts and would up the season for the Quincy Junior Little League.

Bantam Majors Roll Over Abington, 10-1

Dave Previte got a goal and two assists and 11 other players also figured in the scoring as the Quincy Bantam Majors walloped Abington, 10-1, in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game Monday.

Tom Cahill had a pair of goals in the scorefest.

Rick Danner, Dave Peters, Mike Marks, John Andrews and Jack Cavanaugh each had a goal and an assist.

Mike McGrath and Brian Watts had the other goals while Mark Paolucci, Arthur Bertoni and Bill Doherty were credited with assists.

The Quincy Bantam Minors won a 1-0 forfeit from South Boston. The goal was awarded to Goalie Daryl DeCristofaro and an assist to Goalie Kevin Cotter.

Wilcoxon In Hat Trick As Mite Majors Win, 8-6

Dwayne Wilcoxon had a three-goal hat trick plus an assist as the Quincy Mite Majors walloped Hyannis, 8-6, in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

Tommy Murphy and Joe Harte each had a goal and an assist while Kevin Tenney, Chris Harrington and Dave Allen also had goals and Rick Reardon and Mike Riley assists.

The Mite Minors, a B team playing in the A league, bowed to Hyannis, 14-3, with Danny Kelley getting two goals and Paul Marshall one. Bobby McCabe had an assist.

Game pucks for outstanding play went to Marshall and Dennis Cronin.

Cummings, Craig Pace Squirt Minors

Unassisted goals by Johnny Cummings and Kevin Craig provided the margin as the Quincy Squirt Minors upset Bridgewater, 2-1, in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

Joey Rathgeb scored the winning goal with five seconds left to play as the Squirt Majors squeezed past Abington, 4-3.

Bobby Beniers, Chuckie Marshall and Robbie Zanardelli had the other goals with assists going to Marshall, Zanardelli, Mike Doherty, Karl Nord and John Carty.

Ed Kane In Hat Trick As Pee Wee Majors Win

Ed Kane turned in a three-goal hat trick as the Quincy Pee Wee Majors topped Abington, 6-5, in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

Kevin McGrath, Mark Messina and Mike Edwards got the other goals.

The Pee Wee Minors bowed to Weymouth, 8-4, despite two goals and an assist by Robbie Craig.

Dickie Reinhardt and Scott Richardson got the other goals with assists going to Richardson, Mike Panico and Mark Messina.

Lawn Bowling Tourney Here

Three man teams from Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut will compete for the Dave Dakers Trophy, offered by the New England Lawn Bowling Association Saturday at 9 a.m. at the Quincy Bowling Green in Merrymount Park.

Entries include contestants from Quincy, Milton, Boston, Pawtucket, R.I., and several top teams from Connecticut.

Vin Smyth Club Wins Title, Plays Williams Camp Tonight

The Vin Smyth Club of Quincy, managed by John McDonnell and coached by John Rabel won the championship of the South Shore 16-18 Babe Ruth League Inc. "South Division" at Adams Field last week by defeating Braintree 3-10.

The Smyth Club will play the Ted Williams Camp of Lakeville tonight [Thursday] at 8 p.m. at Adams Field.

On Saturday the two teams will meet at Lakeville in a return game.

The winning pitcher for the championship last week was Tim Picco who chalked up his eighth win of the season against only one loss. He allowed only two hits and no runs in the first five innings. Scott Broome relieved in the sixth inning and allowed one hit and one run, in the last two innings.

Tom Donovan was the leading batter with two hits and Jack Rabel, Dave Power and Dan Minton had one hit each.

The losing pitcher Harry Stewart of Braintree allowed only five hits and two walks.

Steve Baker with a double and single led the Braintree hitters.

The defensive play of the game was made by Jack Rabel, Smyth Club short-stop who dove at a sharp grounder over second and turned a sure hit into a double play. Mike MacKenzie, Smyth catcher, on a missed suicide squeeze play caught the runner at the plate with the help of third baseman John Lawlor and then doubled up the runner coming from second to third.

The playoffs are now underway.

Water Carnival Today

Recreation Director William F. Ryan announces that the city's 25th Annual Water Carnival will be held today [Thursday] at 12 noon at Fenno St. Beach.

Miss Julie Doherty, swimming supervisor of Quincy's 13 beaches which offers instructional Swim Programs for all ages, said activities will include water safety demonstrations, water balloons and a water ski demonstration under the supervision of Barry Welch, supervisor of instructional water ski program.

Competitive swim races from ages 6 - 15 in several different categories as well as awards and certificates to be passed out will also be among the day's activities.

The public is invited to attend to see the Quincy Recreation Department Water Front Program in full action.

David Bouley In Minuteman Golf Classic

David F. Bouley, an independent insurance agent from Quincy, has been added to the impressive list of 150 amateurs, professionals and celebrities competing in the $50,000 Minute Man Classic Golf Tournament August 27-29 at Nashawtuck Country Club in Concord.

Announcement of the entry of Bouley, vice president of Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc., of Quincy, was made by T. Eric Blomfelt and J. Gordon "Buck" McKinnon, co-directors of the tourney sponsored by the Concord-based Minute Man Companies.

Bouley is a member of the Mass. Association of Independent Agents and Brokers and the Independent Mutual Agents of N. E. He is a member of North Quincy K. of C. and Quincy Lodge of Elks.

An 18-handicap golfer, he will be making his fourth appearance in the classic.

Softball All- Star Game Saturday

The Quincy Softball League will hold its annual all-star game, pitting the outstanding players of the American and National Leagues, Saturday night at 7:30.

at Rotary Field.

During the past week, Beau's Place, with Ed Cahill turning in some outstanding relief pitching and Tom Mareno, Tom Colclough and Lenny Cinquegrano hitting homers, outlasted Palmer Pub in a league slugfest, 21-20.

Later in the week a homer by Cinquegrano and three runs batted in by Cahill, combined with the excellent defensive play of the infield, gave Beau's a 6-4 decision over McInnis Corp.

Well's Grille, sparked by the steady play of Bob Collieran and John Hoffman and the all-around hustle of Chuck Sullivan, edged Dee Dee's, 10-9, in extra innings. The winning run scored on a very close play at the plate.

Marcel's Ron Arria hit a three-run homer over the Rotary Field fence to give his team a 7-6 win over Barry's Ship Haven. Arria's clout came in the last inning. Bob Kelley played a strong game for Barry's.

Jonathan's snapped a 16-game losing streak as it edged St. Catherine, 10-9; Bob Marsh had three hits and Al Sullivan homered for the winners as Jonathan's reserves came up with timely hits and strong defensive plays. Steve Verenis had two home runs and George McCall and Don Smith one each for the Saints.

Recreation Roundup

At Pond Street Ann Marie Cicerone, Claudia Cicerone and Tricia Connors created really artistic leather belts. In Senior Boys basketball, Wollaston remained undefeated in its 45-36 game with Forbes Hill. However Forbes Hill's Patti Bellotti, Lori Stearns, Donna Mann and Kerry Bolster have shown excellent basketball potential. O'Rourke's Ann Bertrand, Nancy Collette, Leah DePolo, Sandy Depoli, Robin Veneto, Karen MacDonald, Winnie Bertrand, Eileen Marr, Jim McSweeney, Owen McElaney, Tom Gillis, Stephanie Veneto and Mary Beth Donovan have been mentioned as O'Rourke's best boatmen.

Kincade's Susan Vraibel, Debbie Aluisi, Morgan Arnoff and Donna Keto put on an excellent puppet show. Bayside's midget's averages are Kenny Ryan 1,000, Danny Dunn 500, Kevin Craig 428, Robbie Craig 400, John Robertson and Mike Sturne both 333 and Steve Kamb, Mike Jaehng and Tim Back all enjoying comfortable batting averages. Robby Meegan, Bob Delamano and Kevin Connors are Harborview's more impressive ball players.

Undisputed bubble gum blowing champions of Atlantic playground are Phil DiCarlo, Jackie and Kathy McCloskey, and Lisa Flikan, Karen Canniff, Debbie and Lisa Corbett of Quarterdeck playground have made some rather artistic ear rings, bracelets and rings. The Snug Harbor Parent's Night was a huge success with Liza Beliveau and Donna O'Neil winning the treasure hunt, James Graham winning the wheelbarrow race with his partner Kevin Williams, Robert Williams and Lenny Smith winning the three legged race. In the team race category the team of Frank Lupa, Kevin Quigley, Paula Morrison, Robert Williams, Mark Landry and Virginia Connolly, was tops. Scott Berlucci's 40 points gave Heron Road its basketball victory over Merry Mount, 52-35. Merry Mount's Junior baseball team crushed Perkins and Heron Road playgrounds with scores, 25-0 and 10-0 respectively.

Perkins Senior girls softball team score over Merry Mount was raised to 26-2 thanks to a grand slam by Kathleen Boyle. Mass Fields Parent's Night found Buddie Conley and John Riley winning the egg-toss and Kyle Morton winning the sneaker race. Elm Street playground scored the year's most unbelievable upset in defeating the strong Fore River team 24-0 in Senior Girls' Basketball action.

Florence Eramo, Ed O'Neill FB Low Gross Winners

In the weekly Furnace Brook Golf Club mixed Scotch Foursome, Florence Eramo and Ed O'Neill took low gross honors with 39 while Jeanne Doherty and Joe DiFederico had low net of 31.

Helene McPeck and Dick Corbin had second net of 32, while tying for third net of 34 were Mary Morrissey and Joe Bianco, Ginny McCann and Jim Morrison, Mae Butler and Tony Spinello and Joy Robbins and Mario Serafini.

Granite Co-op Lists 7 Golf Ticket Winners

Six Quincy people are among seven winners of a pair of tickets to this week's U.S.I. Golf Classic in a drawing held Friday at the Granite Co-operative Bank.

They are Mark Abate, 25 Royal St.; Rosemark Buckley, 411 Furnace Brook Parkway; Ed Fitzgerald, 165 Harriet Ave.; Ruth L. Nielson, 579 Hancock

St.; William E. Kahler, 21 South Central Ave.; and Roy T. Cavicchi, 100 Nightingale Ave.

The Golf Classic, which runs today [Thursday] through Sunday at Pleasant Valley Country Club in Sutton, is co-sponsored by the Granite Co-operative Bank and will be televised nationally.

Offers Of Help Roll In For Philip Heleotis

Philip Heleotis Fund activity has shifted into high gear with a deluge of offers of time, services and money from concerned people.

The fund was set up for the 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heleotis of 35 Hilltop St., West Quincy, who suffered a broken neck July 6 in a swimming pool accident. He is paralyzed and a patient at Carney Hospital.

Mrs. Walter Woodward of 10 Mt. Vernon St., co-ordinator with Norfolk County Commissioner George B. McDonald of fund raising activities, had this report Tuesday.

• Some 925 pieces of mail containing letters of solicitation and tickets to a dance and buffet Sept. 21 at the Carlton House [$10 a person] have gone into the mail. There would have been more but the mailers ran out of letters and tickets.

• Six youngsters devoted a good part of Monday putting stamps on the envelopes. They were Susan Heleotis [Philip's sister], Dorothy Woodward, Adriane Cocco, Jean Palmer, Roberta Goldberg and Kathy Garrity.

• A Boston lawyer, Robert D. O'Leary of 11 Beacon St., offered his services free of charge to help with legal matters involved with the Heleotis trust fund.

• Rev. Kallistos G. Samaras of the Greek Orthodox Church on Beal Street, the Heleotis' church, offered the use of the church hall to the fund raising committee any time they need it.

• The Morrisette Symphony Band offered its services for a pops concert sometime in October.

• Barbara Bowlen of South Quincy offered her services and expertise as a bookkeeper to the fund.

• Peter Fuller and Jack Hallawell of Cadillac-Oldsmobile on Commonwealth Ave. in Boston offered a 1974 Cutlass auto at cost to be raffled off for the fund. They also contributed $1,000.

• Council President Arthur Tobin and State Rep. Thomas Brownell [D-Quincy] offered their aid and Councillor Albert Barilaro volunteered to get the Beano places around Quincy to give the fund a Beano Night.

• Remo DeNicola of South Shore Television donated a television set for young Heleotis' use at the hospital.

Several new members were added to the fund-raising committee. They are Mrs. Thomas Garrity, A. F. Lane, Faye Vlassakis, Charles Dowd, Steve Tomasetti, Mike Reppucci, Mrs. Peggy Kelly, Allen Butterworth, Thomas Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Manny Cussianna.

Brownell Asks

Crackdown On Speed

A strict enforcement of the speed limit on Palmer St. to avert future accidents has been called for by Rep. Thomas Brownell in a letter to Police Chief Francis Finn.

The five year old son of Mrs. Ann Reagan of 17 Bowes Ave. was recently struck by an alleged speeding automobile on Palmer St. He has been in Quincy City Hospital suffering from multiple serious injuries.

Brownell told Finn:

"As you are probably aware, speeding on Palmer St. has become a chronic problem. I appeal to your department to take immediate steps to combat this menace to public safety. As you must realize, this problem is a serious threat to the many small children who are out of school during the summer months.

"A strict enforcement of the speed limit on Palmer St. must be imposed before another unfortunate accident occurs."

Margaret Ryan, Bob Ular, Donna Fandel, Ken Furfari Cited As Leaders Of Week

Margaret Ryan and Bob Ular of Snug Harbor playground, Ken Furfari of O'Rourke and Donna Fandel of Stoney Brae are the Recreation Department's 'Leaders of the Week'.

Both Margaret and Bob have won several of the district three division championships and have conducted outstanding programs all summer long, notes Recreation Director William F. Ryan. Margaret is from Hough's Neck and Bob from Germantown, and both are highly regarded in their respective neighborhoods.

While at Broad Meadows Junior High in grade 9, Margaret won the American Legion Award as an outstanding student. She was an honor student at Quincy High, and there won the Munroe McLean Physical Education Scholarship Award.

Margaret excels in gymnastics, and plans to become a physical education teacher. She will attend Boston State College in the fall.

Bob is also an honor student graduate from Quincy High School. While there, he excelled in basketball, and won the Michael C. Finnegan Basketball Award for outstanding achievement. Bob is interested in coaching athletics, and he has worked for the Recreation Department for three summers. Both he and Margaret have also worked in the Winter Recreation Program.

Bob won the Sportsmanship Award while attending Quincy Junior College. This fall, he plans to enroll at the University of Massachusetts.

Ken Furfari of O'Rourke Playground, was born in Quincy and attended Quincy public schools. He is a 1973 graduate of Quincy High. Throughout his years at Quincy, Ken showed great talent in the sports he participated in. An all star member of the basketball team and active member of the track team he hopes to continue these sports in the future. He has been a high honors student throughout his high school years.

In September, Ken will be a Freshman student at Bridgewater State College. He will be majoring in Elementary Education.

Donna Fandel is a new comer to the Recreation Department Staff and has proved to be an excellent leader at Stoney Brae Playground. Donna's crafts program is cited as one of the best out of 31 playgrounds, and her enthusiasm has spirited the participants to actively participate in all recreation programs.

A senior at Archbishop Williams High School, Donna has been a member of the Varsity Basketball Team for three years as well as being co-captain last year and this coming year. Donna is also a member of the girl's track team, Glee Club, and Spanish Club. She has been an honor student at Archies for 2 years. Donna is a member of the choral group at Eastern Nazarene. Born in Quincy she is the oldest of three girls.

On The Screen By Vincent Puleo

From a creative side, "A WARM DECEMBER" is virtually a one man show. SIDNEY POITIER did just about everything connected with this film short of make the costumes... POITIER personally chose the cast which includes ESTHER ANDERSON, YVETTE CURTIS, GEORGE BAKER and EARL CAMERON; directed and starred in the picture along with viewing dailies, giving his final OK to all the costumes, attending to his own company business, working with the editor plus, of course, learning his own role... Mesh this hectic schedule together and you have SIDNEY POITIER working in excess of 80 hour weeks... In between POITIER managed to keep fit on a high protein and milk diet and swift games of tennis - whenever that was possible...

"THE LAST TANGO IN PARIS" has critics buzzing Best Foreign Film of Year for director BERNARDO BERTOLUCCI and a third Best Actor Award for MARLON BRANDO... Thinking out loud and wondering by "KID BLUE" filmed in 1971 under the title "DIME BOX, TEXAS" was released just recently under its new title?... And yup, this is the best picture DENNIS HOPPER has yet appeared in. At last he does justice to his craft... ROGER MOSLEY star debuts in "SWEET JESUS, PREACHER MAN", the story of a hit man passing himself off as a man of the cloth in order to gain control of the underworld...

The notion that books are apple pie easy to translate to the screen, particularly when they follow the structure of a movie, triggers a patient, subdued smile from FRED ZINNEMANN, who directed the motion picture version of FREDERICK FORSYTH'S "THE DAY OF THE JACKAL"... "The fact of the matter," ZINNEMANN tells it, "that for almost a year screenwriter KENNETH ROSS and I worked long, hard hours to distill - without blunting - FORSYTH'S fluid story into acceptable cinematic terms. Just as the source material is only an indication for the script, so is the script only an indication for the film"... When you think about it, a script is a launching pad, a memorandum when one comes to make a film...

Another reason why "PAT GARRETT AND BILLY THE KID" is such a down to earth realistic western, is the film's cast of characters. Director SAM PECKINPAH assembled a group of supportin actors whose faces have peopled the Old West more than any collection of characters since they were real... JACK ELAM, JASON ROBARDS JR., CHILL WILLS, RICHARD JAECKEL, LUKE ASKEW, SLIM PICKENS and ELISHA COOK JR. are about as sagebrush an onery group as ever rode into a frontier town...

QUOTABLE, QUOTES: VINCENT PRICE discussing being type cast: "It's true I have become mainly identified as a terror-film specialist. If that is my public image, I've no objection"... Getting himself into the mood, so to speak, ALEC GUINNESS did his homework for "HITLER: THE LAST TEN DAYS". Besides growing his own mustache and having his hair cut short in the back, in the manner of Hitler, GUINNESS spent hours looking at newsreels of the dictator, listened to his speeches and located some tapes of his normal conversational voice...

Wouldn't you say "SCARECROW" follows in footsteps of such "friendship" genre films such as "MIDNIGHT COWBOY", "EASY RIDER" and "DELIVERANCE"... BILL ELLIOTT of TV's "BRIDGET LOVES BERNIE" impresses in "COFFEY" in the key role of Carter, a young black policeman who defies the underworld, thereby putting his own life in danger... And in the same flick, PAM GRIER continues as one of the busiest actresses in the business today. "COFFEY" is her umpteenth picture in the past 12 months...

Of the many big-screen and massive sound processes to emerge from the film industry's TV scare in the early 1950's, the one that has finally been accepted as the standard for big-scale presentations is the 70mm format with 6-channel stereophonic sound, as is used in "THE SOUND OF MUSIC"... Among the early influences of writer LONNE ELDER JR. ["SOUNDER"] career, the one individual who most had a bearing on his style was BEAH RICHARDS. Besides being an accomplished actress [she was nominated for a Best Supporting Actress award in "GUESS WHO'S COMING TO DINNER"] Ms. RICHARDS is also an acclaimed writer of short stories, poetry and novels...

Veteran actress RUTH ROMAN returns to the big screen via "WANT A RIDE, LITTLE GIRL". Also in the soon-to-be-lensed Miami locale feature is TV's WILLIAM SHATNER... FRANK SINATRA is on the comeback trail via the Republican banquet circuit. The Voice is slated to do a TV special Nov. 11 for NBC... How they do things in movieland: "HITLER: THE LAST TEN DAYS" was developed as a film project by MGM which brought in General Electric as a co-financier which company bailed out $$$ by selling its U.S. distribution rights to Paramount...

Police, Firefighters Cited For Action At Flaming Car Crash

State Police, from the grassroots level, have cited the Quincy Police and Fire Departments for efforts beyond the call of duty during a flaming one-car crash on the Southeast Expressway July 20.

The Fire Department's Emergency Rescue Unit was singled out particularly for outstanding service.

Trooper Richard B. Jennings, the senior State Police officer on the scene, wrote to Mayor Walter J. Hannon thusly:

"Upon arriving at the scene I observed fire and police units from the city of Quincy and the town of Milton. The police unit had the traffic and gathering onlookers under control and the fire departments were extinguishing the last of the flames.

"In particular, the Emergency Rescue Unit of the Quincy Fire Department was outstanding at this time.

"It was my opinion, after viewing the charred human remains trapped within the vehicle, that there existed no life. This opinion was apparently not shared by the members of the Quincy Rescue Unit.

"Their relentless efforts to free the two occupants did not cease until the car's roof had been sawed off and access to the bodies finally confirmed that a rescue was hopeless.

"It became my duty at this time, as senior State Police Officer on the scene, to coordinate the investigation.

"My task was made considerably easier with the excellent cooperation received from the police and fire units. These men performed many tasks this night which were not, by any means, their duty or responsibility and were in every sense of the word 'distasteful'.

The Owner may consider informal any bids not prepared according to the forms included herewith.

THE CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS reserves the right to waive any informalities in, or to reject any or all bids, or to accept any bid which it deems most advantageous to the City of Quincy.

Every bid submitted by Contractors shall be accompanied by Cash or by a Certified Check on, or a Treasurer's or Cashier's Check, issued by a responsible bank or trust company, payable to the City of Quincy, Massachusetts. The amount of such cash or check shall be not less than five [5] percent of the value of the proposed work, as estimated by the Awarding Authority, but in no event, less than one hundred dollars nor more than fifty-thousand dollars.

Attention of Bidders is particularly called to the requirements as to conditions of employment to be observed, and minimum wage rates to be paid under the Contract.

No Bidder may withdraw his bid within 30 days after the actual date of the opening thereof.

250,000 Expected At South Weymouth Air Show On Weekend

Plans have been completed to welcome upwards of 250,000 spectators at the two-day Air Show and Open House at South Weymouth Naval Air Station, Saturday and Sunday.

Captain Henry L. Cassani, USN, commanding officer at NAS South Weymouth, said extra police details are being assigned to direct the traffic flow to and from the base for the four-hour air program each day featuring world famed parachutists, stunt flyers and other spectacular acts.

"All is in readiness and we welcome all interested in the region in viewing a first class air show for worthwhile causes to come aboard the air station and to enjoy themselves," Cassani said.

The air show on each day will begin at 1 p.m. and will continue to approximately 5 p.m., featuring the famed Red Devils Precision Acrobatic Team, world champions in 1972 and the "Flying Pierces", a husband/wife team that specializes in wing-walking at high altitudes. The Navy's crack parachute team will also participate in free falls and other sky maneuvers.

The spectators will also view the antics of J. W. "Corkey" Fornof, stunt flyer who flies sideways and upside down in his Grumman F8F "Bearcat". There will also be other airplanes and military vehicles on display, refreshments, children's amusement rides and helicopter and airplane rides.

Admission to the show is free. However, there will be a $1 parking fee to benefit the Jimmy Fund and the Museum of Naval Aviation at Pensacola, Fla. Gates to the air station will open on both days at 9:30 a.m. for the Open House segment of the program.

The Red Devils combine the talents of three of the top aerobatic pilots in the U.S. today. The leader is 1972 World Aerobatic Champion Charlie Hilliard of Fort Worth, Texas. On his left wing is the 1970-71-72 U.S. National Aerobatic Champion, Gene Soucy of Milwaukee. The right wing slot will be manned by 1972 U.S. Team member Tom Poberezny, also of Milwaukee.

The combined scores of Hilliard, Soucy and Poberezny won the 1972 World Aerobatic team Championship in Salon de Provence, France. The "Devils" will be flying Pitts Specials, Midget biplanes regarded by many as the top aerobatic airplanes in the world.

SKY JUMPERS - The Navy's championship Parachute Team will perform at the two-day Air Show and Open House at the South Weymouth Naval Air Station, Saturday and Sunday, for the benefit of the Jimmy Fund and the new Naval Air Museum. The public is invited and admission is free. The air show will start on both days at 1 p.m.

At Unique Conference

Management, Trade Unions Praise State Street South Work

A "unique" post construction conference in honor of the building of Multi-Million dollar

State Street South was held Tuesday at Walsh's Restaurant, North Quincy.

Frank E. Totonelly, of the Gilbane Construction Company, project manager for the construction of the huge bank computer and office complex, hosting the luncheon, praised all parties involved for "cooperation on the smooth-running, safe job."

The State Street South computer center is the hub of a multi-purpose development twice the size of Boston Common. It uses more power in one day than Hingham does in a month.

The first phase of the huge complex, construction managed by Gilbane Building Company, was opened at the beginning of June, right on schedule.

"On Nov. 12, 1970, we held a pre-construction conference," Totonelly said. "There were two questions then: how to settle jurisdictional disputes and how to run the job safely. We wanted no strikes and wanted to keep on schedule to hold down the cost. At that time we asked for cooperation and we are here now to tell you we got cooperation."

Other head table speakers were William F. Hughes, Vice President of State Street Bank; John N. Dwyer, Executive Vice President of State Street South Corporation; Carmine D'Olimpio, President of the Quincy Building and Construction Trade Council; and William J. Gilbane, Executive Vice President of the Gilbane Building Company of Providence, R.I.

UNIQUE CONFERENCE — William F. Hughes, Vice President of State Street Bank; Frank E. Totonelly, Project Manager; John N. Dwyer, Executive Vice President of the State Street South Corporation; Carmine D'Olimpio, President of the Quincy Building and Trade Council; and William J. Gilbane, Executive Vice President of Gilbane Building Company; at the post-construction conference for the building of State Street South. The $30 million project was completed on schedule with the cooperation of all parties involved. (Paul Feldman Photo)

D'Olimpio also mentioned with pleasure the 3,500 new jobs opened by the construction of State Street South to all people.

Hughes of 12 building trade unions who worked on the State Street Project, in addition to representatives from State Street South and the Gilbane Building Company, attended the conference.

A reprint of a section of the Quincy Sun's special State Street South issue was distributed at the luncheon by the Gilbane Company.

Heads of 12 building trade unions who worked on the State Street Project, in addition to representatives from State Street South and the Gilbane Building Company, attended the conference.

A reprint of a section of the Quincy Sun's special State Street South issue was distributed at the luncheon by the Gilbane Company.

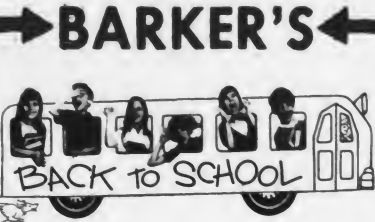

According to information furnished by the owners of the land, the building will have eight floors plus a basement. The garage will have one level underground and another at finished grade.

Hearing Tonight on Planned Apartment Building

The Quincy Conservation Commission will hold a public hearing under the Wetlands Protection Act tonight [Thursday] at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber, City Hall.

It will concern the Notice of Intent of John L. Anthony and Vernon L. Haag to erect a 168-unit apartment building and a two-level concrete garage on land in Fort Square at the junction of School St. and Brook Rd., Quincy.

According to information furnished by the owners of the land, the building will have eight floors plus a basement. The garage will have one level underground and another at finished grade.

Grace Saphir Opposes 8-Ward Plan

Grace E. Saphir, candidate for mayor, has come out against the eight-ward redistricting plan that goes to a referendum in a special Sept. 6 vote.

In a statement issued Wednesday, she questioned the legality of the City Council meeting at which the plan was approved and she noted the extra expense to the city of adding two members to the City Council.

Mrs. Saphir's statement said in part: "Everyone including the press has a right under the open meeting law to attend all public meetings which should be posted 24 hours preceding the meeting in City Hall.

"Was the discussion [of redistricting] held in the chamber allowing the public the right to hear the proceedings or behind closed doors?

"It is part of our campaign platform to 'take a closer look at our city and our tax dollar.'

"After an attractive redecorating job of the council chamber, perhaps the public is not aware that to add two more councillors to our city government at $3,500 each per annum plus $1,500 expense account for each, will require redesigning the chamber to accommodate them among other expenses.

"As this candidate sees it, the public should have been given a chance to voice its opinion and whether or not this referendum passes, which it shouldn't, the council must redive the precincts."

District Attorney Burke, Entertainer Volunteer To Aid Phil Heleotis

Paul O'Donnell, popular comedian, singer and banjo artist, will entertain free at the benefit dance Sept. 21 for Philip Heleotis of West Quincy severely injured in a swimming pool accident.

James McGettrick, owner of the Beachcomber on Wollaston Beach, has donated the services of O'Donnell who will be appearing at the nightclub that date.

The dance, first in a series of fund-raising events being planned to aid the 20-year old youth, will be held at the Carlton House, North Quincy, which is donating the use of its facilities.

Meanwhile, Dist. Atty. George G. Burke has donated his services as counsel for the fund-raising committee which is headed by Norfolk County Commissioner George B. McDonald and Mrs. Eleanor Woodward of 10 Mount Vernon St., both West Quincy.

Thomas P. McDonald of 127 Grove St., West Quincy, who suffered a similar injury as Philip's seven years ago, is solicitations chairman.

The fund has been set up at the Quincy Savings Bank through Assistant Treasurer Donald Johnson.

Philip, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Heleotis of 35 Hilltop St., suffered a broken neck in the mishap July 6. He is paralyzed and a patient at Carney Hospital.

Tickets for the dance are still available at $10 per person. Music will be by Baron Hugo's orchestra.

Mrs. Woodward said that to date some 1,000 letters have gone into the mail in the interests of the fund.

"Response has been good," she said. "People are eager and anxious to help."

She said that Michael Martin, president of Philip's 1970 class at North Quincy High School has been added to fast growing committee.

Members of the committee now include:

Ursula Ahearn, Fred Aimola, Frank Anselmo, Corinne Baker, Albert Barilaro, Julie Biagini, Mrs. Barbara Biagini, Richard Biagini, Patti Biagini, Henry Bosworth, Barbara Bowlen, Joseph Brett, Thomas Brownell, George Burke, Thomas Burke, Gary Burnhauser, Allen Butterworth, Timothy Cardwell.

- Nixon In Fighting Mood
- Food Prices And Politics
- High Cost Of Homes

WASHINGTON — Sources close to President Nixon say he is in a fighting mood. More and more, his anger is directed at Congress which has been using Watergate to whittle away his powers.

The President has told associates that he intends to hold his ground against Congress. He will order his subordinates to hit back at Congress. He still believes that in politics as in war, the best defense is an offense.

Several weeks ago, he ordered his new counsel Fred Buzhardt to prepare countercharges against the Democrats. Buzhardt investigated charges, for example, that George McGovern's campaign aides bribed black voters three dollars a head in some states. This turned out to be false; the money was spent legitimately to register black voters.

Buzhardt inquired into other reports that the late President Lyndon Johnson carted off truckloads of White House property, including 50 TV sets, when he left the White House. The reports, however, could not be verified.

President Nixon, therefore, has pretty much given up the idea of blasting back at the Democrats with countercharges. Instead, he will take the offensive against Congress. He will accuse Congress of using Watergate irresponsibly to undermine the presidency.

He will hold Congress responsible for anything that may happen in Cambodia because of the congressionally ordered bomb halt. He will also try to blame Congress for high prices and consumer shortages.

Richard Nixon, apparently, hasn't changed his combative nature.

Prices and Politics: White House sources claim that President Nixon ignored the advice of his economic advisers and tried to play politics with prices. This has resulted in an economic squeeze which will send the prices of food, clothing, gasoline and home heating skyrocketing this fall. Here's what happened:

The President's voluntary economic controls, under Phase III, failed to hold down consumer prices. So the President, in a political panic, clamped down a 60-day price freeze.

His top economic advisers, Treasury Secretary George Shultz and chief economic adviser Herb Stein, warned the President not to do it. They pointed out that demand exceeded supply and predicted, therefore, that the consumer clamor would create shortages and black markets.

The warning was right. The price freeze forced bakeries to go out of business, poultry producers to kill their baby chicks and ranchers to stop butchering their cattle. This increased the shortages, leaving the demand greater and the supply smaller.

Now the President has been forced to lift the lid off prices. The more he lifts, the higher prices will shoot out of control. Perhaps it proves that economists know more than politicians about economics.

High Cost of Homes: The news that the government has spent nearly $10 million on President Nixon's homes came at a bad time. Never has housing been so expensive for the President's homes in California and Florida. Yet the average American can't afford a new home for himself.

Land prices have been multiplying across the country. The cost of lumber, wall board and other basic housing materials has shot up more than 30 per cent in the past year.

Worst of all are the interest rates, which have now hit a record high. This has added thousands of dollars to the costs of most homes. The home builders report that every time the interest rate goes up another percentage point, it drives 3.5 million families out of the housing market.

All of this has created a housing crisis. A study shows that a $6,000, 1948-model home in New York City's Levittown is now selling for $40,000. In the Miami area, homes that sold for $16,000 as late as 1966 are now going for $42,000. In Chicago, homes that cost $21,000 in 1962 are now on the market for $43,000. And in Los Angeles, the cost of homes has jumped almost $5,000 in the past six months.

As a result, millions of Americans have given up the dream of better housing at the same time that they find out the President has been squandering the taxpayers' money on his own homes.

Kissinger and Chou: Foreign policy czar Henry Kissinger is preparing for another round of talks with Chinese Premier Chou En-lai. Sparring with Chou has become Kissinger's favorite diplomatic sport. Kissinger has found the Chinese leader to be the most stimulating diplomatic antagonist he has met.

On Kissinger's first mission to Peking, for example, he delivered a carefully prepared speech. He employed all his diplomatic skill to say just the right things. He wound up by appealing for better understanding between the two countries. It was his hope, he said, that China would become less mysterious to Americans.

Chou ignored all the diplomatic points Kissinger had made and launched into a philosophical discussion of the word "mysterious." The two men exchanged thoughts and got to know one another. Then they got down to diplomatic negotiations.

Now Kissinger looks forward to his long late-night discussions with Chou En-lai.

Kissinger would like the Chinese premier to visit the White House. But the invitation isn't likely to be accepted. Chou has recently repeated to visitors that he won't go to the United States as long as Chiang Kai-shek has an embassy in Washington.

And Kissinger has found Chou to be a man who speaks softly but means what he says.

Sunbeams

By HENRY BOSWORTH

It's the "last hurrah" for Norfolk County Sheriff Charles Hedges and he's making it a lively one.

Hedges is campaigning vigorously for re-election. But not as sheriff. He's seeking another term as a member of the Norfolk County Retirement Board, on which he has served since 1970.

He refers to it as "my last campaign". Which is the closest he has officially come to announcing that he will not seek re-election as sheriff next year.

And that should make a couple of Quincy Democrats-County Commissioner George McDonald and Councillor-Rep. Clifford Marshall-feel a bit happy.

Both are candidates for sheriff. And although the county-a one-time Republican stronghold-is now in the hands of the Democrats, old Republican pro Hedges would give either a merry run if he decided he wanted to keep the badge for a few more years.

Hedges has done a first class job as sheriff since he took over in 1960. In fact, McDonald and Marshall would be among the first to agree to that.

He's favored to win re-election to the Retirement Board.

But with his political background-sheriff, state senator, state representative, Quincy city councillor-it almost seems a little sad that this, his "last hurrah" isn't a bigger battle.

SAY, aren't there some hard feelings developing in the Ward 1 area over a political power trying to get a well known name to enter the city council race?

SUDDEN THOUGHT: Speaking of political power, remember when a lot of people-mostly Republicans-were afraid FDR had too much of it? Compared to what's coming out at the Watergate hearings, Roosevelt was a political sissy.

NICE GESTURE DEPT: Thomas McDonald of Grove St., West Quincy, made a quiet no-fanfare trip to Carney Hospital the other day to visit Philip Heleotis, the 20-year-old Hilltop St. youth who suffered a broken neck July 6 in a swimming pool accident. McDonald, who is serving as solicitations chairman for the Philip Heleotis Fund, suffered a similar injury in a swimming pool accident seven years ago. Though confined to a wheel chair, Tommy went to the hospital to offer Phil encouragement.

TRAVEL DEPT: Paul Harold, Ward 1 council candidate, last week made the front page of the Louisville [Ky.] Courier-Journal. He was attending the national convention of the Young Democratic Clubs of America when his picture was snapped with Congressman Don Riegle of Michigan at the opening ceremonies of the convention-a mint julep party.

Former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre recently returned from a legislator's conference in Chicago.

And, School Committeeman and Mrs. Harold Davis are back from a short vacation in Spain.

[Well, I got to the Cape for the weekend].

GOVERNOR SARGENT proclaimed Liberty Tree Day last week. The famous one grew in Boston but do you know that Quincy had one, too. And in fact, still has a replica. Quincy's liberty tree-where the local boys including probably John Adams and John Hancock-gathered to help plan or discuss the revolution-stood near what today is the intersection of Hancock St. and Elm St. just beyond Colman's Sporting Goods Store. A few years ago a small oak was planted on the Mini-Park like traffic island there and a stone erected to commemorate the spot.

PLANNING AHEAD DEPT: The North Quincy High School Class of 1974 will hold its senior prom Friday-evening, May 10, 1974 at the Blue Hill Country Club, Canton. [So, don't be late].

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "Opportunity may knock only once, but temptation keeps banging for years."

WHILE MANY of the candidates are sitting tight waiting for the referendum outcome on the 8-ward plan proposal, William Duane Jr. is busy campaigning for the Ward 1 seat. His bumper stickers made their appearance a few days ago.

SPEAKING OF BUMPER stickers, no doubt you've seen the one that proclaims: "I'm From Massachusetts. Don't Blame Me."

Jaycees Support Delahunt On Sign Ban

The Quincy Jaycees have voted unanimously to support Councillor William Delahunt's proposal to eliminate campaign posters in Quincy.

The Jaycees said: "Campaign posters are a definite eyesore in this fine community. In past history, it has been proven that the collection and disposal of these posters has been both a slow and sometimes negligent process. Not only are these signs a definite scenic defect, but also a hazard, due to the distraction which develops in passing motorists."

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Q - Two months ago, after seeing an ad in the paper which said "EARN $3000 in TWO MONTHS", I applied for the job and got it. However, my earnings have been substantially lower than the amount promised. Is it legal for a company to advertise in such a misleading manner?

A - Under the regulations established by the Consumer Protection Division earnings and profits are not to be exaggerated in any type of sales or advertising claim for a company, job, or business venture. The advertiser must give a reasonable and fair estimate of the salary potential in any job.

Q - Last week I went to a store outside my neighborhood to do my grocery shopping. When the clerk was ringing up my purchases, I noticed that the prices and the total cost of my groceries were not visible to me. In most stores the cash register clearly shows the customer the amount of the purchase. Is there a law regarding this?

A - Under Massachusetts law, which has been in effect for two years, it is illegal for a person to install a cash register in a position that hides the prices added from a customer's vision. Persons responsible for obscuring cash registers from sight will be liable for a $50 fine.

Q - Last week a repairman came to my home to fix my air conditioning system. He gave me an estimate of necessary repairs and then said, "You should be glad that you called me, your air conditioner was about to blow up." Later a friend who is an electrician, came over and, after describing what had been wrong with the system, told me that a simple adjustment was all that would have been necessary, and that the system would not have blown up. What kind of story did the repairman give me? Was his method honest?

A - Repairmen who diagnose unnecessary repairs are violating a Mass. law. It is considered illegal for a repairman to scare customers with fabricated statements.

Consumer questions should be sent to "Consumer Questions, Dept. of the Atty. General, Room 373, State House, Boston, Mass. 02133. Those with broadest interest will be answered in the column.

Living, Today

'Trust And Suspicion'

TRUST AND SUSPICION
are two ways of life ... very different ways ... yet closely related. They're represented by Fred and Robbie.

Robbie trusts ... fully ... completely ... naively. While Fred was saying he was working late nights the truth was that he was having an affair with his secretary. Robbie never questioned what he said. This had gone on for 18 months. He said the red marks on his shirt were his "red pencil" ... that his arrivals home at 3:00 A.M. ... 4:00 A.M. ... were "entertaining clients". Robbie believed all of this and Fred took unfair advantage. Hers was the trusting way of life.

Fred, on the other hand, while secretive about his own life ... continually checks on Robbie's comings and goings. He calls on the phone when she goes to visit a friend ... reads the speedometer of her car ... looks at her mail ... opens her pocketbook. He accuses her of sexual relations with men who deliver oil, bread, milk to the house. Feeling guilty himself he looks for unfaithfulness in his wife. He is the suspicious way of life.

There seems to be a fine line between trust and suspicion. If Robbie had been a little more suspicious her relationship with Fred would have been more realistic. If Fred had trusted Robbie and been less suspicious their relationship would have been a happier one.

Two facts stand out to me ... and these two facts may even be applied to our crisis in our Federal government. Fred ... that FEAR and GUILT ... cause people to be SUSPICIOUS. Fred was suspicious ... feeling guilty about his affair with his secretary ... fearful that Robbie would find out and that she might take action that he couldn't handle. This results in aggressive behavior ... (breaking into Watergate ... or rifling the files of the psychiatrist in the case of the federal officials). In Fred's case checking on his wife ... going through her pocketbook ... making accusations against her. That's the aggressive defense. Another defense is "cover-up" ... silence ... hiding ... lying. Fred used both. So have the Federal officials.

The other fact is that TRUST must ASSUME COMPARABLE TRUST in the other. Without both parties trusting ... husband and wife ... Congress and the President, for one to trust and not the other is foolish. Robbie trusted ... and got hurt because Fred was not trustworthy. Her trust was misguided. Congress trusted and the Executive took advantage. The country got hurt. Somebody always gets hurt when trust is broken.

How beautiful when we are able to balance the contrasts of life ... trust and suspicion. When both are working in a balance chances are the marriage will be healthier ... and the nation too.

What Is Cost Of 8-Ward Plan ?

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Perhaps Quincy Councillor and State Representative, William Delahunt, truly thinks his 8-ward redistricting plan is fair. But fair to whom?

Perhaps Quincy Council President and State Senator, Arthur Tobin, thinks it was fair to use personal clout to speed the redistricting plan through the Massachusetts General Court. But, fair to whom?

Perhaps City Clerk, John Gillis, can give us some estimated cost figures, indicating the differences between his 6-ward redistricting plan offered the Quincy City Council in February, and the recently enacted 8-ward Delahunt plan. For instance, we should know: What is the cost - measured in terms of extra man-hours as well as money - of putting the Delahunt Plan through the State Legislature?

What is the cost, in those terms, for holding the special Sept. 18 referendum for ratification of the 8-ward plan?

What is the additional annual cost if the 8-ward plan is approved, of those two extra councillors - pay, plus office paraphernalia, and time?

The one requirement of any professional [including even politicians] is competency. If our local politicians can't perform one job well, why should they be allowed to hold two jobs at once?

Quincy voters should resent being forced to pay the price of an 8-ward plan to save the necks of procrastinating politicians who feel free to feed in the public trough at taxpayers' expense!

Aquinas Junior College Enrollment Largest Ever

Sister Dorothy Welch, President of Aquinas Junior College, Milton, announces that this year's enrollment is the largest in the school's history.

The two-year junior college in Milton is chartered by the state to grant Associate degrees.

"It is, I think, a combination of factors which are responsible for our growth," Sister Welch said. Acknowledging the fact that teaching positions have become a scarce commodity for the four-year college graduate, Sister Welch commented that positions for executive and legal secretary, medical assistants, retailers, and para-professionals are available, challenging, and creative.

"I believe today's young woman wants to make meaningful decisions for a meaningful life, and many of them find a great deal of satisfaction in career-oriented programs," she said.

Aquinas Junior College has expanded its curriculum to include a Therapeutic Secretarial course which is programmed for the young woman who seeks to combine the secretarial skills with studies in Sociology for future careers as para-professionals in social service agencies.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Look at yourself before marriage

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master
Graphanalyst
Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I was married the second time three years ago. Within a week I knew I had made a mistake. I was married to a stranger. After much turmoil, I made my decision to end the marriage for my own peace of mind and for the happiness of the children. I think I want to marry again when the next man comes along. What do you suggest?

K.F.

Dear K.F.:

I suggest you get off that "marriage-go-round." At least, until you know in which direction it's turning.

The long beginning stroke on m and upswing endings on your words are working overtime to gain you all the affection and attention you're begging. The hooks at the beginning of your words are reaching out to grasp every bit you can get. If what you get doesn't satisfy, you put.

Your small rhythmical writing indicates your extreme orderliness and your set pattern of living. You're not about to put up with a man who scatters the papers or leaves his clothes on the chair. No less than a saint could put with such regimentation.

If you decide to marry the "next" man up, don't blame the poor "stranger."

Best you remove the blinders and take a good look at your relative value in the matrimonial mart before you marry again!

D.J.

No need to attend skin flick

By PAT and
MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Can you imagine my shock when Jack took me to a pornographic movie? I've dated this guy for six months and our relationship has developed into more than a casual date.

I'm over 21 so know what goes on in the world but to say I was dumbstruck is putting it mildly. We were with another couple or I think I would have demanded that Jack take me home. So far, I haven't spoken to him about this incident. In fact, I think he is beginning to wish the whole thing hadn't happened because I know he realizes how I felt.

Should I mention this or hope the whole thing will go away?

Lynn

Dear Lynn:

Anybody who is old enough can go to a skin flick. Some think it is modern and chic. No one needs to enter a theater showing a pornographic film. The signs which blaze across the marquees indicate the muck inside. If you can read, you know what you will see. Next time speak up.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My husband and I both work and have saved our money to build a swimming pool. Last summer we were overrun with uninvited guests. Instead of enjoying our pool, I was exhausted. How can I tactfully discourage these people without losing their friendship?

Mrs. B.W.

Dear Mrs. B.W.:

Unless you want a repeat performance, give these "friends" the facts. People who impose on others do not know the meaning of tact.

Raw Quantum Sewage Believed From Moon Island

Raw sewage that is being washed ashore in Quantum probably comes from the Moon Island sewage reservoir tanks and will be eliminated when the MDC's new system is completed.

That is the word that Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn has passed along to Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy].

Said Quinn, leaning on a report from Louis Cellineri of his Environmental Protection Division:

"Moon Island is the only raw sewage discharge left in Boston Harbor and the Division of Water Pollution Control is pushing efforts to phase it out.

"Though sewage is released only on the outgoing tide to minimize pollution of the inner harbor, it is possible that some of this is washing ashore at Quantum.

"At present, a new sewerage line is being constructed on Quantum to tie in with Nut Island and thus eliminate reliance upon Moon Island.

"According to Mr. Frank Bergin of the MDC Engineering Division, only 400 feet of pipe remains to be laid and the entire project should be completed by the end of August.

"The completion of this project seems the most feasible and immediate solution to the major part of the problem."

Quinn also told Brownell that Cellineri's investigation indicated that pollution in Quincy Bay is coming from a series of eight storm drains emptying into the bay and not from sewage.

"Quincy authorities," said Quinn, "have been extremely cooperative in undertaking the repair and replacement necessary to abate this pollution and keep [Wollaston] beach open for swimming."

IF ATTACKED BY A DOG

If you're confronted by a snarling dog and can't bluff him out of attacking [see last week's column], here's some armchair advice for experts.

Prepare for the attack. Cross your arms, gripping your elbows firmly. When the animal leaps, try to knock it off balance by giving it an uppercut with your arms. Since its legs are off the ground, making its balance precarious, it usually can be thrown [hopelessly].

But if the animal's lunging attack, bows you over, stop fighting. Fold your arms over your face and lie perfectly still. Amazingly, your savage attacker will probably lose interest and stalk away. [A little dog when menaced by a bigger one employs this tactic. It surrenders, lies down, and its attacker walks away.] Let me know how it works out.

Plaza Restaurant Features Good Food At Good Prices

By PAUL FELDMAN

Good food at good prices from early in the morning to late at night make Ernest and George Varitinos' Plaza Restaurant at 51 Billings Rd a great place to eat.

The two brothers, who grew up together in Summersworth, N.H., opened Plaza Restaurant 20 years ago. They have built it from a small lunchroom a block away on Hancock St., to the combination restaurant and bar that it is today.

Plaza Restaurant sells steaks, chops, chicken, fish and sandwiches of all kinds at reasonable prices in its simple, homey dining room.

Ernest does all the cooking. "I've been in the restaurant business since I was 15," he says. I started as a cashier in Rochester, N.H. Then I did some baking after our family moved to Massachusetts. I cooked in restaurants from Cleary Square to Hyde Park to Everett before we opened Plaza Restaurant in 1946."

George, the younger brother by six years, runs the bar. The restaurant is open from 8 a.m. to 1 a.m., the kitchen open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Ernest and his wife, Bertha, live in Dedham. They have two sons, Tom, 37, and George, 31.

travel. Two years ago he visited Greece to serve as the best man at his nephew's wedding. "I love to travel and this was a great experience," he says.

Ernest also enjoys doing carpentry work around his house.

George lives in Dorchester with his wife, Effie. They have two sons, Stacy and John.

George's favorite hobby is photography and he is very proficient at it. During his army days, George was the staff photographer for General Douglas MacArthur. "Sometimes I wonder why he's in the restaurant business, he could be such a great professional photographer," comments brother Ernest.

Both brothers are Masons and Ernest is a Shriner.

Hedges Seeks Re-election To Retirement Board

Sheriff Charles W. Hedges is seeking re-election as a member of the Norfolk County Retirement Board.

Hedges, a graduate of Quincy High School and a retired Brigadier General in the Massachusetts Air National Guard, has been sheriff since 1960. He is a former Quincy City councillor, state representative and state senator.

He was elected to the Retirement Office Board in August 1970 for a three-year term.

Other candidates who filed nomination papers are Joseph A. Masandrea and William F. Woloshyn.

Ballots will soon be in the mail to members of the Norfolk County Retirement System and must be returned by September 20.

Charles Shea Takes Part In CG Academy Program

Charles L. Shea III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Shea of 201 Manet Ave., Hough's Neck, participated in a four day program at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn.

The program, called Project Academy Introduction Mission, is designed to give selected high school juniors an intimate exposure to the routine of a cadet at the Academy.

He will be a senior at Boston College High School this fall.

Brian Reardon Graduates From Chevrolet School

Brian A. Reardon, representing President Chevrolet, Inc. of Quincy, was among a class of 55 men graduated recently from a special session of one of American industry's most unusual education institutions. He was a member of the 79th session of Chevrolet's Dealers' Sons School held at Detroit. The school, which is considered a model of its type in the industry, concentrates on special studies covering the latest methods of operating a modern and successful automotive retail establishment.

Included in the 79th session was a group of five men from General Motors' Overseas and Canadian operations. The session was held at Chevrolet's School of Merchandising and Management which has graduated more than 9,000 persons from retail and wholesale sessions since its founding in 1938.

Milton Bank Increases Savings Accounts Rates

The Milton Bank & Trust Board of Directors recently voted the following new increase in rates:

Regular savings accounts to 5 per cent.

Ninety-day notice accounts [$500 minimum] to 5½ per cent.

One-year thrift accounts [$500 minimum] to 6 per cent.

An added feature of the new increase in rates will be a free checking account with any one of the above accounts that maintain a $500 minimum balance.

Something Special

'Bessie' Joins Staff At Russell Edwards

"Bessie" has joined the staff of the Russell Edwards Beauty Salon on Cottage Ave., Quincy Center.

She got the job because she is a tireless worker and is said to do a perfect job every time.

"Bessie" is an automatic shampoo machine, first cousin to the washing machine and dishwasher that soaps and rinses without the operator turning a hand.

The customer simply relaxes on a lounge chair, lays her head back into the machine and "Bessie" does the rest.

The machine gives a thorough washing and rinsing in three minutes, stimulating the scalp at the same time.

Russell Edwards is one of the first beauty salons in New England to tap "Bessie's" talents.

Harland Co. Purchases Royal Check Outstanding Stock

Multibank Financial Corp., with headquarters in Boston, and the John H. Harland Company, with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., jointly announce Harland had purchased for cash the outstanding stock of Royal Check Inc. from Multibank.

Royal Check Inc., located in Rockland, started business in 1968 and prints checks and other bank stationery items for banks in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

The John H. Harland Company is a nationally-known check printer listed on the American Stock Exchange. This acquisition marks their entry into the New England area.

Harland operates 18 plants in the United States including Puerto Rico.

Quincy, North Start Grid Workouts Monday

It is hard to believe, but schoolboy football time is here again.

Monday is the first official day of practice for the schools and, while Quincy works out daily at Faxon Field behind Voc-Tech High School, North Quincy will be enjoying a week on Cape Cod as the Raiders, together with Milton, will be mixing pleasure with practice at a football camp at Camp Wono in Brewster.

Quincy Coach Hank Conroy announces double sessions for the Presidents next week. They will practice from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. each day and, following a one-hour break, will again drill from 11:30 to 1:30, weather permitting.

Quincy will have a new assistant this year as Gene Macomber has stepped down to devote full time to his administrative duties. At this writing, no successor had been named.

Returning as Conroy's aides will be Bud Mosher, John Bogan and Dave Burke, who has had amazing success with the sophomore team.

Quincy was 4-4-1 last year. It opens its season Sept. 22 against Weymouth South in a non-league game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The North players and coaches will leave the high school Sunday at 10:30 a.m. and will open their drills Monday morning at 6:30.

"We will get the boys up at 5 each morning so we can beat the heat and also give them a lot of free time during the day," Coach Ralph Frazier said. "After all, these kids are paying all the expenses for this week at camp themselves and we want to give them time to do a lot in addition to practicing football."

The boys will have a snack at 5:30 a.m. and, following the morning session from 6:30 to 8:30, will have breakfast from 9 to 9:30.

They will be free from 9:30 to 11:30, have a skull session until 12, be free until 3 o'clock and then have an afternoon workout from 3:30 to 6. Dinner will be at 6:30, followed by a squad meeting. Lights out will be at 9:30.

The camp has a quarter mile of ocean, a swimming pool and 10 tennis courts.

The Raiders and the Milton squad, led by Coach Jack Bowes, a former aide to Frazier, will leave camp at 3:30 Friday. North will scrimmage Catholic Memorial Saturday and have Sunday and Labor Day off.

Frazier has the same assistants as a year ago. Tom Fitzgerald, Ted Sadowski, Dick Meyer and Ken McPhee.

The Raiders were 7-2 and tied for second place in the GBL a year ago. They will open their season at Revere in a GBL game on Sept. 22.

Family Day, Night At Fenway Labor Day

The price of food, gasoline and most everything else is going up but the Boston Red Sox have reversed the trend with the announcement that they will not only have a "back to school" Family Day on Labor Day afternoon at 1:30, but will also have a "Back to School" Family Night game that evening at 7:30.

This means that the special Red Sox family prices will prevail for the first two games of the final Fenway Park series of the year with the Baltimore Orioles, picked by many to win the Eastern Division title.

The Labor Day night game is a newly-created game, making up for a rained out game of June 22. As such, every ticket in the park is available to purchasers on a first come, first served basis.

Under the Sox family plan, the head of a household can purchase a box or reserved seat for his or her own use at the regular price, then can purchase the adjacent seats for the rest of the family at half price. Tickets for the twin Family Day and Family Night are available at the Fenway Park box office or Filene's in downtown Boston only.

This is the first time in history that the Sox have conducted a Family Day and Family Night on the same date, and one of the few times the club has been able to make the special family bargain rates available for two games with another prime contender in for the pennant.

Marcus' 'Silkie' Wins Bermuda Cup

N. Marcus' "Silkie" of the Metropolitan Yacht Club upset Dick Hiley's "Checkmate" to win the Boston Bermuda Cup last week during Quincy Bay Race Week.

Haley, out of the South Shore Yacht Club, had won the race for the last two years.

Behind them were [3] J. Gilbert's "Irish Mist" Conathan

YC, [4] G. Prout's "Mt. Lion Eater", Boston YC.

The Boston Bermuda Cup, a silver punch bowl, was originally established as a trophy for a Boston-to-Bermuda race.

The race was never held and the Quincy Yacht Club came into possession of the bowl in 1911 when Hollis Burgess won it for a Labor Day ocean race.

●Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee Minors Upset Bridgewater

Scott Richardson got a pair of goals and Robbie Craig had a goal and an assist as the Quincy Pee Wee Minors upset Bridgewater, 4-3, in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

George Mackey scored the other goal and assists went to Freddie Palmer, Mike Panico and Paul McGrath.

Kevin McGrath set up three goals and John Keane scored two of them in pacing the Quincy Pee Wee Majors to a 4-1 win over Hingham.

John Miceli and Ed Kane each had a goal and Dan Gorman contributed an assist.

Marshall, Doherty Pace Squirt Majors To 9th Win

Chuckie Marshall and Mike Doherty each scored two goals as the Quincy Squirt Majors won their ninth in a row against no defeats, beating Hingham 4-2 in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

Bobby Beniers had a pair of assists and Mark Boussy, Robbie Zanardelli and Joey Rathgeb had one each.

The Squirt Minors bowed to Hyde Park, 7-1, with Mike Sullivan getting the goal assisted by Paul McCabe and Timmy Ryan.

Egan Fires 4 Goals As Mite Majors Win

Paul Egan fired four goals and Dwayne Wilcoxon had a goal and three assists to lead the Quincy Mite Majors to an 8-1 victory of the Adams Club of South Boston in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

Kevin Tenney, Joe Harte, and Tommy Murphy got the other goals while Chris Harrington, Mike McArdle, Rick Reardon and Tenney chipped in assists.

Bantam Majors Bow To Hyde Park

Mark Paolucci and Brian Watts scored the goals but the Quincy Bantam Majors bowed to Hyde Park, 3-2, Monday in a Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league game.

John Cooney and Rick Dannar were credited with assists as the Majors were losing their fourth game in 11 starts this season.

Debbie Meehan Double Winner In Tennis Tourney

Debbie Meehan was a double winner in the fourth annual Sagamore Classic tennis tournament last week at Welcome Young Playground.

Debbie won the women's singles, defeating Alberta Murray, 6-0, 6-4, then teamed with her sister, Maryellen, to beat Cathy Ilaqua and Nancy Bernstein, 6-1, 6-2, for the women's doubles title.

Larry Courtney whipped Bill McSweeney, 6-3, 6-4, for the men's singles crown and Phil

Steele and Richard Murray dumped Ed Riley and Buzz Connolly, 7-5, 6-3, in the men's doubles.

In other matches: Junior Singles - Paul O'Malley defeated Bob Grozier, 6-4, 6-3.

Junior Doubles - O'Malley and Grozier defeated Eddie Coutts and Ronnie Colon, 6-1, 6-2.

10-and-younger Singles - Dickie Reinhardt defeated Paul Egan, 4-3.

Men's Singles Consolation 'B'

- Phil Steele defeated Bob Driscoll, 11-7.

Women's Singles Consolation 'B' - Laura Rooney defeated Maryellen Meehan, 8-2.

Coffee and donuts were served on the final morning of the tournament and the last games were followed by a cookout.

Director was Richard Murray, who founded the tournament four years ago, assisted by Bill Egan and Debbie Meehan.

Quincy, North Players Shine In Agganis Game

Although the South Shore All-Stars, with North Quincy's Ralph Frazier as one of the coaches, were bombed by the North Shore, 34-7, Saturday night in the annual Harry Agganis football game at Lynn, the North Quincy and Quincy players performed well.

The South squad received a tough break when it lost quarterback Joe O'Brien of Catholic Memorial early in the game.

"We played an option-type game and O'Brien is an option quarterback and we had built our attack around him," Frazier said.

"I felt all four of our North

Quincy players, Burt Bray, Bob Morton, Wayne Bell and Steve Fransoso did well. Bray and Morton in particular were outstanding on defense and I was pleased with the play of all four.

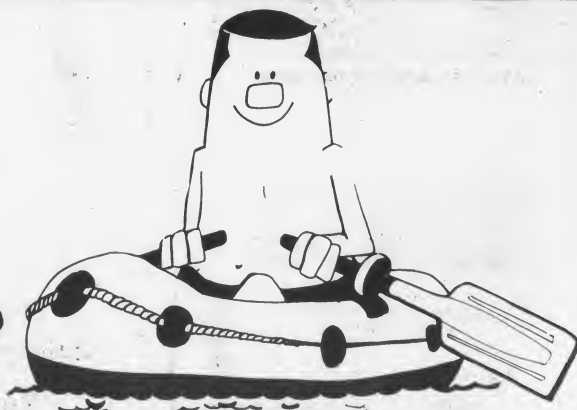

"Also, Frank Guido, a Quincy guard, did well and it was a pleasure to coach him."

Renew Rivalry

Raiders, Milton At Pre-Season Camp Aug. 26-31

In September, 1974, North Quincy and Milton will renew what was one of the most interesting and hard-fought football rivalries on the South Shore.

The addition of this non-league game was made possible when the State Headmasters Association ruled schoolboy teams can play 10 games instead of the nine they had been restricted to for many years.

This renewed rivalry adds interest to a pre-season summer camp during the week of Aug. 26-31 at Camp Wono in East Brewster on Cape Cod.

Spending the week at Wono will be the North Quincy and Milton football squads.

Neither coach, North's Ralph

Frazier nor Milton's Jack Bowes, who was a North assistant with Frazier under Carl Leone and then worked as an aide to Frazier for three years before moving to Milton as head coach last year, feel this camp will take a competitive edge off their 1974 opener.

"If anything, it will strengthen the spirit of competition," said Frazier. "The camp is designed so that we won't be practicing on the same field. There are four football fields down there. We may have some passing scrimmages together and the boys will be eating together and sharing many of the other activities, but the spirit of competition will always be there."

Pre-season camps for high school teams are becoming more and more commonplace but usually a team goes to camp by itself.

About 100 boys from each school will attend the camp and the players themselves raised the necessary money. Each boy will pay $50 for the week's session.

Instructors will be the coaching staffs of both schools and they will be augmented by other coaches within the school systems. In addition, a therapist or nurse will be on the scene and a doctor will be on call.

"When kids live together, eat together, sleep together and do everything together, a unity, a bond begins to build and values of pride start to form," Frazier continued. "Our goal is to get into shape, be in top physical condition and to maintain the best teaching-learning situation possible so that each individual can develop his potential to a maximum."

"You get to know all the boys on a first-name basis, especially the sophomores coming up from different junior high schools," Bowes added. "The coaching at a camp is a lot more individualized and it builds up a tremendous amount of unity."

Camp Wono is right on the water and among the activities offered will be swimming, basketball, tennis, softball, volleyball, water track, water polo, badminton, horse shoes, movies, handball and a camp show which will include skits by the coaches and players.

Before North entered the Greater Boston League and Milton the Bay State League, the schools had many games in a series which ranked with the best.

North Coach Jack Donahue had many an interesting game against Milton's Harry McCormack and the late Jack Carnie. The renewal of this series should mean huge crowds when the rivals meet.

Sal's All Stars In Contention At Marlboro

Sal's All Stars, both the Quincy and North Quincy teams, remained in the championship running in the Marlboro baseball tournament last week as each came up with two wins in three games.

Quincy kicked off the tournament Monday [Aug. 13] with a 2-1 victory over Milford as Don Perdios pitched a three hitter and fanned six. Milford's lone run was a homer in the last inning.

Bobby Ceurvels scored both Quincy runs. He singled in the second and moved around the bases on a passed ball and an error. Then he belted a home run in the fourth.

All the Quincy runs came on home runs Saturday in a 9-7 loss to Lowell.

Danny Santonato hit a three-run homer in the first inning. Perdios belted one with the bases empty in the third. And Lou Avitable smashed another three-run round tripper in the sixth.

Quincy stayed alive in the double elimination tournament Sunday, coming up with nine runs in the fifth inning to wallop Natick, 11-3, behind the three-hit pitching of Billy Deitsch and Andy Carrera.

Lou Avitable's three-run homer, Perdios' two-run round tripper and Carrera's two-run single were the big blows in the fifth inning slugfest.

North Quincy started its tournament play Saturday with a 4-3 loss to Milford, which bunched three of its four hits, including a bases-loaded triple, in a big four-run fourth inning.

North got a run in the first on singles by Phil Caggiano and Harry Donahue and Brian Condon's fielder's choice. They got two more in the third on singles by Condon and Jeff Connerty and two Milford errors.

The North stars bounced back Saturday night, scoring nine runs in the first two innings and romping on to a 14-1 win over Lowell behind the four hit, nine strike out pitching of Jeff Connerty.

Singles by Caggiano, Jimmy Deitsch and Donahue, plus three errors, a walk and two passed balls added up to five runs in the first for North. Dave King's three run homer and Connerty's single accounted for four more in the second.

Steve Picot's homer scored two in the third; Jackie Dunn singled in Bob Lindenfelzer with a run in the fourth; and Donahue doubled home a pair more in the fifth.

Dave King limited power-hitting Framingham Nationals to four hits and struck out 11 as North chalked up its second win Sunday by a score of 3-1.

Picot singled home Dunn and Lindenfelzer with enough to win in the fifth and then Framingham presented North with a gift run in the sixth as King reached on an error, stole second and came in on another error.

Both Quincy and North Quincy will be in action in the Marlboro tournament this weekend.

In non-tournament games, Quincy defeated Norwood Roebucks, 6-5; North tied Norwood Roebucks, 3-3, and North edged Medford, 1-0, behind the three hits pitching of Richie King, Bob Lindenfelzer, Chris Lamphere and Brian Condon.

Atty. Robert Langlois Ward 7 Candidate

Atty. Robert W. Langlois of 107 Wilson Ave., Montclair, announces his candidacy for the new Ward 7 City Council seat under the proposed 8-ward redistricting plan.

Langlois thus become the first official candidate for one of the two new proposed wards.

Ward 7, if the Sept. 6 referendum is approved, will include precincts 6 and 8 of present Ward 5 and precincts 2, 3, 8 of present Ward 6.

Langlois, 27, graduated with honors from the University of Pennsylvania with a baccalaureate in Political Science. He then attended Boston University School of Law where he received a Juris Doctor degree in 1972.

While in his last year at Boston University, Langlois became employed as the Federal Fund Coordinator for Norfolk County. As Federal Fund Coordinator in 1971 he initiated and co-drafted legislation to permit the Norfolk County Commissioners to purchase the Wollaston Golf Course land for recreation and open space use.

Prior to working for Norfolk County, Langlois was a research associate in the Planning and Research section of the Quincy Police Department. An attorney with offices in Quincy Square, he is a member of the North Quincy Council of the Knights of Columbus and the Elks. He is married to the former Mary Louise Duffy. They have one child.

Meat Price Solution

Tasty Cat Food Anyone ?

By PAUL FELDMAN

Meat prices are too high...and getting higher. Beef is scarce and black markets are cropping up throughout the country. Everyone is trying to think of a way to combat the current economic situation.

Well, two 14-year-old Wollaston boys have found one readily available way to lower the cost of meat meals.

Mark Coletti of 28 Wentworth Rd. and Jeff Gavin of 9 George Rd. recently dined on cans of "9 Lives Chopped Platter" cat food upon the dare of four friends.

Mark told The Quincy Sun, "Regular meat does taste better but the cat food doesn't taste bad."

Jeff agrees, adding, "It tastes best in a sandwich."

While meat prices skyrocket - when you can find what you are looking for in the first place - cat food prices are still relatively low. At the supermarket where Mark and Jeff bought their cans of chopped platter and CAT'S MEOW! -- Mark Coletti and Jeff Gavin show how to eat chopped platter and liver and eggs cat food while the neighbor's cat looks on.

liver and eggs cat food, they paid 18 cents a can, or two for 33 cents. At the same place, chicken livers are up to 89 cents a pound, on sale, beef costs are astronomical, when the cut you want can be found, and even most delicacies are far over $1 a pound. The two Central Junior High School students, besides eating what they called an "OK" meal, received $5 each from the four friends who dared them to eat the cat food.

But one thing Mark and Jeff still agree on, "Whatever it is, it doesn't beat mother's cooking."

Sgt. George McGonagle At Nevada Air Station

New QHA Apartment Lease Needed By Aug. 31

Unless the Quincy Housing Authority and representatives of Quincy's public housing tenants can come up with a new apartment lease by Aug. 31, the QHA may have to follow minimum requirements for public housing leases decreed by the Mass. Department of Community Affairs.

A spokesman for the Harborview Resident's Committee expressed this view to the Quincy Sun.

The QHA and a board of tenants elected by the populace of Quincy's various public housing facilities have been negotiating a new apartment lease for some time.

They have not yet reached an agreement and state regulations impose an Aug. 31 deadline. If the DCA does not approve a lease by Aug. 31, the DCA decrees minimum requirements, regardless of whether they differ with local policy or procedure.

However, Francis X. McCauley, head of the Quincy Housing Authority thinks that the DCA may give Quincy time past the August 31 deadline.

A spokesman for the Harborview Resident's

Committee agrees but adds that additional time is only given if the tenants and housing authority are negotiating in "good faith".

The new lease, if signed, will reflect the obligations of the QHA as lessor and the correlative obligations of the tenants. A new grievance procedure, which must also be negotiated by August 31, will provide for the airing of grievances before an impartial panel.

New federal and state regulations have established minimum standards for public housing leases and grievance procedures. The regulations require that the documents be prepared in full consultation with tenants, contrary to the old Quincy policy which did not provide for consultation with public housing lessees.

Viens Ward 3 Candidate

Raymond G. Viens announces his candidacy for the Ward 3 City Council seat.

He said he has deep concern with the problems of the youth of Quincy.

Viens, 27, who resides with his wife Carolyn at 45 School St., called for the establishment of a more extensive drug abuse education system.

"I believe that the young people of this community can be of great assistance in the betterment of the city and I am hopeful that Quincy will recognize their capabilities and offer programs that will keep them active in the affairs of the city."

Viens, who is associated with the George Ellison Agency of New England Life Insurance in Boston, is an active member of the Quincy Jaycees and was recently elected Vice-President of the Massachusetts Jaycees. He is currently working closely with the South-West Community Center.

Viens vowed to be "a man for the people" and urges every citizen in Ward 3 to speak out and let him know what problems concern them and what he can do as a city councillor to represent the citizens of this area.

Germantown Youngsters Being Retested

Some 20 Germantown children have been sent to Carney Hospital in Dorchester for a retest to determine if they actually have lead paint poisoning.

The results are not yet available.

Over 150 children between the ages of six months and five years were tested for lead paint poisoning at a clinic at the Germantown Project on July 27.

Of the children tested, about 20 had a count of over 50, the state level for an automatic retest. More than 20 more children had a count between 40 and 50. Some doctors feel that 40 is a high enough count for a retest, and in the near future, these children will be retested if their parents wish.

You can save an awful lot of energy with just a little bit of effort.

Reliable electricity is something we all take for granted. But it's also valuable energy we're going to have to conserve and use wisely. You can help.

For example, the less electricity you use during the peak load hours—4 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the winter and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the summer—the better we can serve you.

By reducing your usage during these hours and doing more household chores during the rest of the day, you make the most efficient and economical use of our total generating capacity.

Here are some other things you can do to conserve electricity and also to keep your bill as low as possible.

- Use your dishwasher, washing machine and dryer only when you have a full load.
- Set your food freezer at zero temperature (not below) and defrost before the ice becomes a 1/4" thick.
- When cooking vegetables, use a small amount of water and cover the pot. It will boil faster.
- Use electric fry pans, broilers, and rotisseries whenever possible. They require less electricity than your range.

- Take showers instead of baths and save on hot water.
- Fix leaking faucets...they waste water and make your water heater work overtime.
- Install storm windows and doors and check your insulation. Ideally you should have 6" in your attic, 3" in unheated crawl spaces, and 3" in side walls.
- Keep your fireplace dampers closed when not in use. Set your thermostat at a comfortable temperature and leave it there...never turn it down for brief periods or overnight.
- Install your air conditioner on the shady side of the house. Keep outdoor vents and condensers clear and draw drapes or shades to cut down on sun heat.

We're doing everything we can to provide you with reliable electricity at reasonable prices and with environmental safeguards we can all live with. You can help us by using it wisely. Together, we can make the most of our energy resources.

People like you working to make life a little better.

The Rains Came . . .

SOUTH QUINCY residents fear more scenes like this if proposed 168-unit apartment building is constructed at Brook Rd and School St. This is Independence Ave. during Aug. 8 storm.

IT WAS FUN for youngsters but not for homeowners when floods rolled along Center St. Aug. 8.

BROOK RD area will be worse than this if more construction is allowed there, residents fear. (Story on Page 2)

Hot Lunches Delayed

Mothers Demand Interim School Bag Lunch Program, 'Ridiculous' Counters Kelly

By PAUL FELDMAN

A group of mothers demand that an interim bag lunch program be instituted in the Quincy schools until the hot lunch program begins but School Committee Vice-Chairman Paul C. Kelly called their idea 'ridiculous'.

The Quincy Parents Advisory Committee on School Lunches criticized school officials for not implementing the hot lunch program on time.

The group voiced their criticism and demands in a press conference Tuesday on the steps of historic First Parish Church in Quincy Sq. Some 30 parents were present.

The state law reads that Oct. 1, is the deadline for a hot lunch program to be implemented in all elementary schools. But the deadline will not be met. And the Quincy Parents Advisory Committee on School Lunches is demanding that an interim bag lunch program be implemented at the beginning of the school year.

"Money has already been appropriated for lunchroom matrons and there are over 200 applicants so why not have a bag lunch program?" asked Mary Collins of 116 Lansdowne St., Squantum, a member of the committee.

Mrs. Collins said that many elementary school mothers have planned on starting jobs at the beginning of the school year in September since the mandatory hot lunch program was supposed to go into effect then.

"Why should these mothers have to lose jobs because the School Committee is violating the law?" she questioned.

School Committee Vice-Chairman Paul C. Kelly called the mothers' complaints and their proposed interim bag lunch program "ridiculous".

"Ridiculous—positively ridiculous", he said. "All these mothers want is someone to take care of their kids at taxpayers expense while they get a job."

"This program will be operating within 60 days and they know it. It would be ridiculous for us to hire a lot of matrons to service a bag lunch program and then fire them two months from now when the entire program goes into effect."

Kelly noted that the School Committee approved the program with its budget in January, but nothing could be done until the city council approved the budget in April.

Humid Weather Brings Out Roaches In West Quincy

Cockroaches are out in larger force than usual in some sections of West Quincy this summer.

But there's nothing to be alarmed about, says Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney.

"We have calls about them every year," said Dr. Mahoney. "There are more than usual this summer because the hot and humid weather is bringing them out in larger numbers."

"We are spraying daily in the area. When we get a call we have an exterminator on the scene within a day."

Dr. Mahoney said the source of the roaches is an abandoned dump in an old granite quarry.

"It hasn't been used in 10 years," he said, "going back to the days when we mixed garbage and refuse."

In South Quincy

Residents Fear Apartment Complex Will Worsen Flooding

South Quincy residents fear a proposed 168-unit apartment building at the junction of Brook Rd and School St. will worsen the already severe flooding conditions in their area. And more than 20 of them, including Ward 3 Councilor Theophilus McLelland III and Pasquale DiStefano, chairman of the Quincy Environmental Protection Society, voiced their alarm over the plan at a City Conservation Commission meeting last Thursday.

McLelland said, "I am dead set against the apartment complex at the present time. I'd like to see what happens there for a few years - how the new Lincoln-Hancock School effects water runoff and if federal flooding funds are appropriated. If in five years, the situation is corrected, I'd possible be for apartment buildings."

DiStefano, candidate for School Committee, called Brook Rd a "disaster area." "It seems foolish to put a structure where there is so much controversy."

Mrs. Florence Weeks, of 284 Water St. said, "I have lived in South Quincy all my life. But now because of building in the area, places that weren't threatened by floods before are now experiencing this difficulty."

She submitted several photographs depicting the flooding. Some of these photos appear in today's Quincy Sun.

The meeting opened with Charles Owens Jr. of Wayland, an engineer for the Architect Collaborative Inc. of Cambridge, explaining, with data he has compiled why he thinks the building will not pose an environmental problem.

He said that the apartment building would change the topography to allow proper drainage to the existing drain on Brook Rd. He pointed out that since the building would be on a higher grade than neighboring property, there is no truth to contentions that the land is a storage basin for floodwater.

He also said that an apartment building would add to the chance of federal funds being appropriated for area flooding.

FLOODED Independence Ave. is checked by Mrs. Florence Weeks of Water St. during Aug. 8 heavy rains.

"More tax property considerably affects the cost ratio in Army Corps of Engineers estimates. The Engineers balance the cost of their work to the value of the land they are working on. The land they help must be worth more than the money they spend."

Owens was repeatedly interrupted by South Quincy residents at numerous points of his presentation which they disputed.

Leslie Molyneux, chairman of the Conservation Commission, tried to keep order but was only half-successful in his efforts.

Members of the Conservation Commission stressed that the building had not previously supplied adequate data for judgement about the apartment's environmental affects.

Molyneux said, "We don't have enough information to make a decision on the building yet."

Owens promised to supply his data to the Commission so that a decision could be made within 21 days.

The crux of the problem lies over whether or not the proposed apartment building will actually cause more flood problems. And no definitive

More Car Pools Needed

Sun Reporter Finds WBZ Helicopter Best Way To Travel Expressway

By PAUL FELDMAN

The best way to travel between Quincy and Boston during rush hour is by helicopter.

I found that out last week when I took a spin aboard the WBZ Traffic Copter with Joe Green during the Southeast Expressway afternoon rush hour.

The helicopter seemed a bit shaky and fragile as it landed in the South Shore Plaza to pick me up as a passenger. However, once it climbed off the ground, the ride was as smooth as H. R. Haldeman's crewcut.

The helicopter ride was a chance for WBZ to show the local media the extent of traffic problems at rush hour and a way to promote their new Commuter Computer Clubcar.

The WBX-ALA plan, which has been endorsed by both Secretary of Transportation Claude Brinegar and local Environmental Protection Agency Commissioner John A. S. McGlennon, is an attempt to bring commuters together into carpools as part of a strategy to reduce air pollution levels over the city.

The EPA says that to make city breathing safe, commuter car ridership must increase from 1.1 people per car to 1.5 people per car.

Now, 4/10's of a person per car might seem like a small amount of change but in hard figures, it amounts to changing the driving habits of over 60,000 individuals each day.

At a press conference prior to the helicopter ride, Jerry Winshow, a WBZ official, said that the station along with ALA, through a massive promotional campaign, hopes to create car pools for 40,000 commuters within a year.

After lifting off, we began cruising about 250 feet above Route 3 in West Quincy. The Howard Johnson Restaurant over the expressway was clearly visible in its orange splendor.

BIRD'S VIEW - Traffic begins to build up at the Furnace Brook Parkway cloverleaf at the beginning of the afternoon rush-hour. The photo was taken from the WBZ traffic copter, 250 feet in the air, by Quincy Sun reporter Paul Feldman.

It was only about 4:30 so the bulk of the traffic had not hit the area yet.

As we cruised north towards Boston, many more predominant sights of Quincy stood out - The South Shore National Bank, the beach lined-coast, the new State Street South complex and the Quincy City dump.

And as we moved north, the traffic became thicker and thicker. What seemed a snail's pace of traffic movement was "nothing just ordinary traffic" to Joe Green.

Green has seen it all from the sky. From the monstrous traffic jams during the blizzard of 1969, to numerous multi-car collisions, to the humdrum everyday traffic standstill along the Southeast Expressway.

Joe, along with his compatriots at the WBZ studio and the ALA Traffic Center, feel that only a solution like the Clubcar can help the traffic pollution situation. And he as most people agree that the Clubcar is a better solution than the rigid traffic enforcement solutions that the EPA has threatened.

Winshow termed the WBZ plan "the carrot as opposed to the stick."

We moved across the city skyline, nosing near the Prudential Center and the new Harbor Towers apartment building like a mosquito sizing up a potential victim. The drone of the helicopter buzzed loudly at the mammoth structures, its occupants hearing a sound much like a fly buzzing around one's ears.

We moved on, looking at the traffic situation at the Mystic Bridge, the key area of flow for Northbound traffic. Movement was at a standstill.

We then turned suddenly at a terrifying angle to cruise back towards Quincy.

It was only 10 minutes later when we flew over West Quincy again but the Expressway was jammed. I could only think that driving a car each day at rush hour is as excruciatingly nerve-wracking and painful as watching the Jack Paar show for 90 straight minutes.

As we landed, I was especially impressed that a solution is necessary and from what I have heard and read, the WBZ Commuter Clubcar is a good step in the right direction.

Questionnaires can be obtained for the car pool program by writing to WBZ or ALA in care of the Commuter Computer Clubcar.

Rubbish Pickup Reminders For The Fall

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti has issued the following fall reminder about rubbish pickup services:

- No food wastes can be mixed with refuse.

- All rubbish must be placed on the sidewalk before 7 a.m. on collection day otherwise it cannot be collected.

- Rubbish bags must be securely tied.

- The rubbish contractor will pick up brush and tree branches provided they are tied in bundles three feet long by one foot diameter.

- Building materials, lumber over three feet in length and major home appliances will not be collected. Disposal permits for homeowners are available on application.

- The rubbish contractor is not required to pick up rubbish placed in oil drums or like containers.

- Material or containers weighing more than 55 pounds cannot be handled for disposal.

- Kidnapping Publicity Stunt ?
- Agnew Won't Resign
- The Big Grain Drain

WASHINGTON — The mysterious kidnapping of South Korean opposition leader Kim Dae Jung has been dominating the headlines in Asia. His supporters charge that he was kidnapped by the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency. They claim the kidnapping crossed international boundaries, required the efforts of at least 35 men and the expenditure of $500,000.

Now, my name has been caught up in the story. Tokyo newspapers report that Kim was in touch with me in Washington and that I joined him in condemning South Korea's President Park. It is true that Kim came to see me and that he accused President Park of political oppression. All I did was listen to him; I did not join him in his accusation.

Kim made one statement that surprised me. When I asked about his plans, he told me that he intended to return to Seoul. This struck me as strange, since he had also been telling me how his life had been threatened by President Park.

Now Kim has turned up in Seoul as he said he would do. But his supporters claim that he was abducted against his will and that he is not permitted to leave the country.

I have been on the overseas telephone to Tokyo in an attempt to clear up the mystery. My Japanese associate, the respected newspaper commentator Omari, has spent several days investigating the kidnapping. He has reported back to me that his findings aren't conclusive. But some sources suspect the kidnapping was purely a publicity stunt.

The Junketeers: For years, we have reported on the far-flung junkets that members of Congress have been taking at the taxpayers' expense. We have been particularly critical of trips by senators and representatives who have retired, resigned or been defeated.

Now, as in other congressional recess periods, a horde of legislative junketeers are swarming over Europe and Asia. Some are studying important problems. Others are sightseeing at the taxpayers' expense. Almost all are party and pampered.

There is, however, a brighter side to the travel ritual. First of all, more and more congressmen are returning with important reports that can affect national policy.

Secondly, for the first time in several years, the cost to the taxpayers decreased last year by 14 per cent. The cost of congressional junkets in 1972 was slightly under $1 million. This is still double what was spent in the late 1960s. But it does, at least, represent a step in the right direction.

And third, a bill is pending in Congress to prohibit free trips for lame duck members.

We have been complaining for 25 years about the millions of dollars that are squandered overseas by congressmen who preach government economy at home. Perhaps it hasn't all been in vain.

Agnew Won't Quit: Sources close to the Baltimore grand jury tell us that U.S. Attorney George Beall had enough evidence to indict before he went ahead with his formal grand jury investigation of Vice President Spiro Agnew. This means Agnew is almost sure to be indicted.

The prospect has President Nixon fuming. He feels, according to some of his confidants, that the Agnew mess is making it more difficult for him to convince the public of his innocence in the Watergate scandal.

The last thing he wants, on top of his Watergate woes, is to have his Vice President resign in case he is indicted.

The President, however, has no power to fire the Vice President. This can be accomplished only by the long and painful ritual of impeachment and trial by Congress.

Agnew and his aides are resisting the pressure to resign. If he is indicted as expected, he has decided to remain in office and wrap his defense in the majesty of the vice presidency.

He is reported by associates to feel he will be in a stronger position going before the bar of justice as Vice President, not as an ex-office holder.

Grain Drain: Those "amber waves of grain" heralded in the patriotic song "America" are the key to the food crisis. We face a situation unique in our history: The most bountiful nation on earth may find itself with a food shortage.

The price of grain has gone out of sight, pushing up the prices of meat, dairy and bakery products. Eventually, though, the inflated grain price may have far more serious effects. It could cause a serious shortage of meat.

It is now more profitable to sell grain on the world market than feed it to livestock. This already has reduced the number of animals brought to slaughter.

Unless something is done to control the price of grain, the experts say, this country could be desperately short of beef and pork by next year.

Ironically, our crops this year unquestionably are the largest ever harvested in history. Prices, therefore, should be low. But poor crops worldwide have increased the demand for American grain. Agriculture Department sources tell me that about half of our entire wheat crop this fall is already committed for overseas sale.

Nevertheless, the Nixon Administration is persisting all pleas to slap controls on grain exports. They claim the grain trade helps strengthen the dollar. But as usual, it's the American people who pay — in the form of higher prices.

Sunbeams

BY HENRY BOSWORTH

The Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Pageant may have opened the door to big things for winner Patty Kelley, 18, and first runner-up Cathy Beston, 20, both of Quincy.

Carol Nashe, former Quincy resident who now owns a Boston model agency and school, was a judge at this year's pageant.

Both girls won $200 scholarships to Carol's modelling school. And Carol is so impressed by both, she has signed them to a year's modelling contract.

Cathy, incidentally, is in line for a small part or a stand-in role in one of George Peppard's "Banacek" TV segments.

Patty will be handling one of the celebrity telephones during the WMEX radio telethon of St. Jude's Research Hospital, Sept. 29.

Both girls are thrilled by it all.

By the way, Cathy comes from a well known sports family. Her father Harold is remembered as Turk Beston, a star grid lineman at Quincy High in the early 1940's. And her grandfather, Joe, was a well known boxing trainer and gym owner who handled, among others, welterweight boxing champ Lou Brouillard.

IF TV WAS around back then, John Quincy Adams would never have made it as sixth President. It's doubtful if he would have gotten to the convention.

Rev. John R. Graham, minister of historic First Parish Church, described John Q. thusly in a recent talk before the Quincy Kiwanis Club: "Not only was he rotund and only five feet seven inches tall, but he was prematurely bald and his voice was high pitched and shrill."

Adams, notes Rev. Graham, was a somewhat insecure person but because of it, he strived harder and became one of our great Presidents. But TV would have killed him.

Incidentally, Rev. Graham's talk has been inserted in the Congressional Record by Congressman James A. Burke who, of course, now represents the same district as John Q. Adams did after his term as President.

JAMES D. ASHER JR. is following in his Dad's footsteps. His late father was a president of the Quincy Rotary Club. Jay, who now runs the radio station, is joining the Rotary Club.

SPEAKING of the Rotary Club, here's a thought to think about: "Don't waste time looking for a four leaf clover when there are weeds in your garden."

YOU CAN ALWAYS find a little humor, regardless how serious the topic. Take, for example, the Conservation Commission hearing on the proposed South Quincy apartment complex and the impact it could have on flooding conditions.

Conservation Commission member Harold Crowley asked Charles Owen, an engineer representing the builder, what type of land they were building on.

Owens referred to it as "perhaps a meadow but definitely not a marsh." When Crowley asked Owens his definition of a marsh, the reply was, "a marsh has water lilies on it."

"In Quincy," noted Crowley dryly, "we call that a pond."

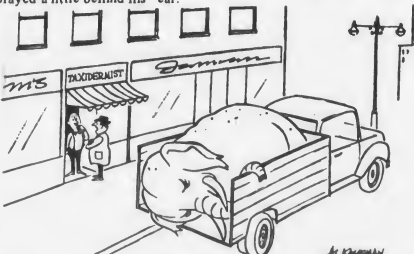

ALSO AT THAT hearing, the problem of a storage basin for rainfall was discussed at length, prompting Rep. Joseph Brett to suggest in a light moment: "Maybe the problem could be solved by building an especially large swimming pool."

DEAN Richard Mula, dean of continuing education at Quincy Junior College, has become a student again—for a semester. He is taking a sabbatical for graduate studies in science at Boston State College. While he's in class, Thomas Mullen will be acting dean.

TYPO TERROR DEPT: From the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin: He retained his post as chairman of the State Council, making him titular chief of state.

SMILE DEPT: From "The Insider" written by inmates at the Norfolk County House of Correction:

Inflation is getting so bad that when a teenager drove his jalopy into the station and asked for a dollar's worth of gas, the attendant sprayed a little behind his ear.

"Well, speak up, man—do you want the job or don't you?"

BY ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Q - Last month I moved out of my apartment into another one. My landlord has refused to return my security deposit because I kept a dog in violation of our lease. However, he knew this all along and had never objected before. Is this legal?

A - Tenants may avoid security deposit problems by abiding exactly by the terms of the lease agreement. When the lease states "NO PETS", owning a cat or dog is grounds for the retention of the security deposit. Even if the landlord has knowingly allowed a tenant to keep the pet in violation of the lease, he may still legally keep the security deposit. Verbal or tacit alteration of the terms of the lease is not sufficient. Any changes in the lease should be either deleted or circled with a notation and signed by both parties.

Q - Last week I went to an appliance store. Several of the appliances had signs next to them which read "AS IS". Isn't the use of such signs illegal now?

A - A law which became effective in 1971 prohibits merchants from modifying or excluding implied warranties of fitness or merchantability. Under this law, a seller or manufacturer cannot use any language either oral or written which attempts to limit the consumer's right to get a usable product. This offers protection to unwary consumers as well as encouraging dealers to accept the responsibility for the quality of the products.

Consumer questions should be sent to Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn, "Consumer Questions", Room 373, State House, Boston, Mass. 02133. Those questions with broadest interest will be answered in the column.

Labor Pause

Special is Labor Day
The Sun-day of the Year,
Set-aside, in Honor of Labor.

A Special Time, also, it is,
When the Laborer, sun-spots
Himself... and mentally
Takes in his "work harvest."
The image, henceforth, sheds,
Highlights of his thoughts:
Earning his daily bread
By the sweat of his brow,
He joyfully wipes away
Toil tears, while his heart
Sings with a soul-satisfying
Reward, of work-days well spent.

As man star-gazes
Into autumnal clouds and Future skies, he prays to
His Maker in silent gratitude,
An continues to build grand Hopes of Visions to Come—Crowning the "budded dream."
With human bundles of Energy and Vitality.

Days Tie in with Time,
And the laden dream-tree,
Becomes a reality...
Filling the dreamer's-being
Again, with Dignity and Joy.

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'What's Happening To Men?'

While my wife was trying on some clothes in a large London Department store I was talking to the lady clerks. "What do you think of American men?" I asked. One clerk replied, "American men are such babies. They come in here with their little lists of articles their wives wanted and seem so excited that it may not be exactly right." "Such babies" ... "such babies". It rang in my ears. I didn't much like the ring.

I don't think that the Clark Gable or John Wayne image of maleness is necessary for a man to be a man. But I do think that there are certain attitudes which are MARKS of true manhood.

One of the marks of manhood is a POSITIVE ATTITUDE TOWARD WORK. A manly man works, likes to work, finds satisfaction in creating or building something. It may be a house, a profession, a business, a book, a garden, a savings account. To each his own thing. Work may be physical or mental or both. Without work as a reward in one's life something will be missing in the man's life. A man's attitude toward work is revealed in the way he keeps his lawn, the paint on his house, the condition of his car, as well as his bank account. Lazy men usually don't care for their property. They lack a POSITIVE ATTITUDE TOWARD WORK.

The second mark of manhood is a WHOLESMOME ATTITUDE TOWARD WOMEN. A manly man likes women, respects women as equals, is able to relate to women, and one woman in particular, in a rewarding companionship. A manly man is aware of and sensitive to the needs of his woman and seeks to meet her legitimate needs. He wants the relationship on an ADULT MALE to ADULT FEMALE BASIS. The manly man does not want to be "big daddy" to a "little girl" wife. The manly man wants to give and to receive courtesies and favors with his wife. It is not beneath him to wax the kitchen floor nor beneath her to wash the car. The manly man shows warm affection to his wife and enters fully into sexual relationships which are unhibited and fulfilling to both. One of the marks of the weakness of men seems to be the lack of sexual power — lack of desire and various forms of impotency.

A third mark of manhood is the CONSISTENT ATTITUDE TOWARD RESPONSIBILITY. The POWER to MAKE DECISIONS and FOLLOW THROUGH ON his COMMITMENTS. The manly man is not arbitrary, does not feel so emasculated he cannot talk over situations with his wife or female associate before taking action. He does not procrastinate. He gets the facts and then decides. After a decision he swings into action.

You wives who are married to a man who has a positive attitude toward work, a wholesome attitude toward women, a constant attitude toward responsibility, would do well to take good care of him, because this rare kind of manhood seems to be becoming more and more extinct.

Urges Voter Look Carefully At Proposed 8 - Ward Plan

him."

The recent problems which Quincy has been experiencing with redistricting came to my mind last week as I was reading a book on New England folklore.

The anecdote involved a man who had a worthless horse for sale. When a potential buyer inquired, the owner said, "Now you see that horse. He looks all right; got a good mouth, legs all right, nice color, clever as a sheep. But he's got faults and I don't like him, and I am selling him on account of them. Now I might have lied to you and told you he was all right and maybe fooled you. But I won't lie. Now this horse has got two faults. I'll tell you one before we trade, and if we trade I'll tell you the other." The buyer asked what the first fault was and was told that the horse was awful hard to catch. When it was let out to pasture, the neighbors had to help catch him. The buyer figured he could solve that easy enough by not letting the horse out to pasture, and since the price was reasonable, he agreed to buy it. After he had paid his money, the new owner asked what the second fault was. Shoving the bills into his pocket, the seller replied, "He ain't good for nothin' when you catch

The City of Quincy is in the process of buying a new Council district plan, a plan which is being sold much like the above horse. I hope that Quincy voters will look very carefully at the new plan. Admittedly, the present ward lines must be changed because some wards are far too large compared with others. However, I have seen no justification for the creation of two new wards which will increase costs for the taxpayers. Is it necessary to hire two new Councilors at $3,500, plus $1,500 expenses per year? Have the present Councilors been unable to handle the workload? Why not continue the six ward plan with redrawn ward lines, and avoid the added bureaucracy? Why was the eight ward plan drawn up in a basement rather than at a public meeting following a hearing? It is unreasonable to expect the voters to make an intelligent decision if no rationale is given for the eight ward plan.

You, the voter, are buying the plan. Will you be buying a plan that "ain't good for nothin'?" You still have time to ask questions, make sure you get some answers.

Today's Women

4 Pretty Sisters = 4 Pretty Models

By PAUL FELDMAN

Mr. and Mrs. John DeBartolo of Bedford St., Quincy, have four daughters. There's nothing unusual about that.

But all four daughters are pretty models and they have appeared in fashion shows, movies and magazines. That's unusual.

They are Debbie and Donna, 19 year old twins, Doreen, 18, and Lucille, 17. In the past year, all four have graduated from Carole McCole's Fashion Models School and Agency, 372 Union St., South Weymouth.

"They're all beautiful," says their mother. And their father, who owns South Shore Auto Sales, fully agrees.

"It was our Dad who got us interested in modelling school," says Lucille, "and we all had an excellent teacher, Clair Johnson. If it wasn't for Clair, we would never have gotten so far."

The young girls have already made names for themselves in the local modelling world. All four girls appeared a little more than a month ago at a fashion show at the Surf in Nantasket, sponsored by the Carole McCole School. They have also appeared at Expo '73 at the Weymouth Fairgrounds.

Debbie has done photo modelling for a poster and Donna has done the same for an Industrial Art magazine.

One of the biggest thrills of their young careers occurred a few months ago when Debbie and Donna won parts as extras in the hit movie, "The Friends of Eddie Coyle", starring Robert Mitchum.

"We decided to go into Boston for an interview for the film and a few weeks later we were actually being filmed in the movie. We were in the background of a scene filmed at a Dorchester bowling alley. It was a good start in the movie business and we even got to eat dinner with Robert Mitchum.

The two girls plan to go to New York later this month for an interview for the up-coming film "Godfather Part II".

As for full-time modelling plans in the future the girls say, "We love modelling but we haven't decided for sure yet."

Coach is so-called "because it has more glass than any of the other coaches," a palace spokesman explained. — CNS

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Mind's too busy to permit sleep

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master
Graphonomist
Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy: —

I'm one of those people who can't go to sleep without taking a sleeping pill. Basically, I think I'm an uptight person. Outwardly I appear gay, but inside ... wow! I can't relax and my mind is always clicking away thinking of everything. What's my problem?

K.B.

Dear K.B.: —

Once upon a time sleep was automatic.

Now in this noisy age of rushin' and pushin' it seems reserved for those few left who still know how to relax.

With your changing moods, your good days and bad, seen in your forward slant and bouncy writing, you keep your emotional battery pretty well charged. The long lower loops keep you on the move and you're so busy ... busy!

In getting so overly involved, you keep bumping into all kinds of people who keep taking advantage of your jumpy little spirit. Inwardly, you've resented this for some time, seen in the long stiff beginning upstrokes.

So when at night you add all the big and little grievances, which have mounted during the day, to the overall total, you can't help but tighten your muscles and mind, which keeps you awake.

If you choose to go on as you are, expect to stay awake. If you want to go to sleep, learn to accept people for what they are, and step aside when you feel you're being used. It's all up to you.

But, whatever you do, stop crawling into bed every night with that habitual crutch in your clutches.

President Real Estate A Good Place To Buy, Sell Property

By PAUL FELDMAN

Fair, honest, reliable service together with expert advice on remodelling make Vito Barresi's President Real Estate at 44 Billings Rd., North Quincy, a special place to buy, sell and rent property.

Vito, who opened President Real Estate four years ago, is a particularly knowledgeable real estate salesman. A graduate of the Real Estate Institute, he has not been content to hold a standard real estate certificate. Instead, he is taking extra courses at the Institute to qualify for a postgraduate Real Estate degree.

"You've got to keep up with the times," he says.

Vito used to have a plumbing, heating and fuel oil business in Quincy but health reasons forced him to give it up. "I have plumbing, gas and oil burner licenses," he says. "This gives me the advantage of being able to counsel my customers on remodelling their new property."

A member of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors, Vito is respected enough by other local real estate salesmen to have been made a member of the Multiple Listing Service Committee.

He is ably assisted in his North Quincy headquarters by salesmen Joseph Marks and Kenneth Scarry.

Raised in South Boston, Vito has lived in Quincy for 19 years with his wife, Pearl. They currently reside on Rawson Rd in Wollaston with their four daughters and son.

Cito is particularly proud of his children and their involvement with school and civic minded activities.

Music, or the North Quincy High School Band more specifically, has been a major interest in the life of the Barresi household in recent years.

Daughters Kathy, Diane and Nancy have all played in the band. And Vito was president of the North Quincy High School Music Parents Group which helped send the band to Ireland in March.

"It was quite a trip," says Vito. "I went to Ireland with my daughters and my wife, who worked as treasurer for the group. We paid our own expenses as chaperones and it was an exciting experience."

Kathy, the eldest daughter, is a music major at Lowell Teachers College. Last year, she was active in the Girl Scout Project Friendship, a program to give unfortunate children camping experience.

His two youngest children, Donna, 9, and Vito, 7, are both in elementary school.

Vito is secretary of the North Quincy Business and Professional Association and is a member of the Knights of Columbus.

Murray Wachtenheim Elected Mass. CPA Society Fellow

Murray L. Wachtenheim of Quincy has been elected a Fellow of the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants.

He is a Senior Accountant with Coopers & Lybrand, Boston. Wachtenheim is a 1968 graduate of Babson College where he received his BS in Accounting.

The Massachusetts Society of CPAs is an organization of 3,200 members founded in 1900 to promote and maintain the high standards of accounting.

Quincy Savings Bank Breaks Ground For New Headquarters

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Quincy Savings Bank headquarters at 1200 Hancock St., Quincy Center, were scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

Speakers at the ceremony to start construction of the three-story structure of exposed aggregate pre-cast concrete with a combination clear and dark solar bronze glass, will include Mayor Walter J. Hannon; Charles B. Twigg, Senior Vice President of the Spaulding and Slye Corporation of Boston, developers of the new bank headquarters; Michael A. Manzo, Project Manager from Spaulding and Slye Corporation; and Charles Pearce, President of the Quincy Savings Bank.

"The primary purpose of this move," says Pearce, "is to provide better service for our customers and a more pleasant banking and working environment."

The new bank will occupy 26,000 square feet of floor space in the 51,000 square foot building, more than twice the size of its present 12,000 square foot headquarters at 1574 Hancock St. The remaining space will be rented.

In addition to the new headquarters, the present office at 1374 Hancock St., open since 1897, will remain in operation offering depositors full service.

Invited guests for the groundbreaking ceremony include Quincy Savings Bank Trustees, Thomas S. Burgin and Amelio Della Chiesa, both

On The Labor Scene

Joseph Sullivan Labor Coordinator For United Way Fund

Joseph A. Sullivan of Quincy, president of the Massachusetts State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, will serve as labor participation chairman in the first United Way of Massachusetts Bay campaign.

Announcement was made by Atty. Paul F. Hollmuth, United Way chairman of campaign support activities.

Sullivan will coordinate the United Way campaign among organized labor in the Mass. Bay area.

The United Way of Massachusetts Bays is a reorganization of the Massachusetts Bay United Fund and United Community Services structure to better service the needs of the community through its 203 family, health, child care and youth-service agencies.

Sullivan, a member of the board of directors of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay, has served the United Fund in previous campaigns. He is past chairman of South Shore Committee on Alcoholism and served on the Salary Survey Committee and Professional Conduct Committee of the Quincy Schools. He assisted in the formation of Local 294 of the Meatcutters Union in Quincy in 1937. He attended Boston College.

S.S. Women's Caucus Supports United Farm Workers Boycott

At a recent meeting of the South Shore Women's Caucus it was unanimously agreed to support Caesar Chavez and the United Farm Workers in their plea for the boycotting of Teamster Union picked iceberg (head) lettuce and grapes.

The South Shore Women's Caucus urges women to support this boycott by not shopping at SAFEWAY or A & P Stores, and not buying iceberg lettuce or grapes unless the Black Aztec Eagle label is visible.

The South Shore Women's Caucus "supports the men and women in the fields who are striking for recognition so that farm workers can return to a decent way of life that contracts bring."

Mr. Michael Attends Cosmetology Conference

Mr. Michael of Hanover Beauty Academy, Quincy, was among 70 persons who participated in the 11th annual Advanced Cosmetology Conference this summer at the University of Connecticut.

Those attending the five-day conference received instruction from nationally known hair stylist Louise Cotter, educational and style director of the Virginia Farrell Beauty Schools.

Sponsored by the U. of C. Continuing Education Services and the Connecticut Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Assn., the conference also focused on hair shaping, design and coloring, make-up and skin care, and the evaluation of current products.

Ronald Frazier Completes Seminar

Ronald F. Frazier, manager, Public Affairs Group for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce has completed a week-long seminar at the University of Delaware.

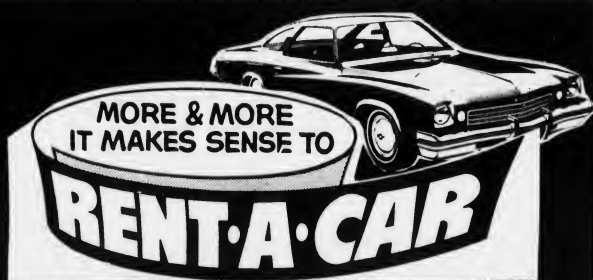

Frazier participated with more than 350 Chamber of Commerce executives, representing more than 20 states, in the Institute for Organization Management at the University. As a fifth year student he was involved in intensified special studies.

Each annual Institute Program is five days long and is an intensive professional training program designed to expose Chamber of Commerce Executives to the most modern techniques of effective volunteer motivation and organizational management.

South Quincy Residents Oppose Apartment Complex

ruling can be made by the Commission until it receives and reviews all data.

However, City Engineer Edward Leone, talking to The Quincy Sun after the meeting expressed his fear that the apartment building may aggravate the flooding problem.

Taking what he termed a common sense approach, he explained:

"Runoff, the amount of rainfall, the quickness of the rainfall and the material it falls on are the factors that must be considered when it comes to flooding. An apartment building would seem to me to aggravate the situation because of the water quickly falling off the roof and the quickness of the water running off the asphalt driveway."

But Owens, disagreed. "Since water on the property is at a saturation point now, any rain rolls right off so it won't be a bigger problem," he told The Sun.

He also said that "since we will change the total grade, the water will go downstream quicker and won't go through people's property. We'll divert the drainage away from there."

The South Quincy area has been plagued for years by the flooding of Town Brook. In 1955, nearly 85 million gallons of water covered 3.6 million square feet of land when the brook overflowed.

The problem is not limited, however, to floods of the epic proportion of 1955. One resident of Booth St., Miss Dorothy Murray, complained that during one brief rain storm last month, the electric lawn mower under her porch was submerged in water. Miss Murray's house is directly across from the new Lincoln-Hancock School.

Many other area residents expressed their displeasure with the proposed building too. Peter Gaccia, of Stanley Circle said, "The building would increase taxes but it would also lead to flooding and traffic problems."

Albert Conte of 292 Water St. complained, "The water was over my head in the cellar during the 1968 flood. The water went three feet over my land clear over that apartment. If it's built, what's going to happen to us."

Conte also expressed his concern for prospective apartment dwellers who would park their car in the proposed underground garage, unfamiliar with the flooding problem. "What's going to happen to their cars during a flood?" he questioned.

Lawrence J. Curtin, a City Councillor President, expressed his anger over the proposed project by shouting, "The only thing important today is the almighty dollar."

And Joseph E. Brett, a member of the Conservation Commission read a letter from Carmine D'Olimpio, president of the Building and Construction Trades Council for the South Shore.

D'Olimpio said that the executive board of the Council "could not in good conscience approve the building site because of the great existing flood conditions and traffic problems."

Aside from the builders, John L. Anthony of Framingham and Vernon L. Haag of North Scituate, and their representatives, only two other proponents spoke.

Robert Cunningham who works at 20 Fort Street said, "Water couldn't get any higher in the area anyway. And the building would be great for the square. A nice apartment complex would be a nice thing for the city."

He went on to say that "we'd get rid of the dump with its dead cats and tires and lower the tax rate with a beautiful modern apartment."

One question unanswered at the meeting was whether or not the builders have actual permission from the city to build on the land.

Atty. James Reynolds, counsel for the builders, contended that the Quincy Planning Department has approved the building plans. However, Councillor McLelland argued that the planning department has given final approval to the builders. He said he has sought planned unit development for the area so that the City Council has final approval over any plans.

Wine, Homeowners, Floating Palaces

We have good news for you this week! Dr. Salvatore P. Lucia joins Plato and Euripides in extolling the joy of wine in his WINE AND YOUR WELL BEING. [Popular Library. $2.50]

Along with the pleasurable aspects of imbibing he describes its function as a tranquilizer and a pain killer, useful in the treatment of gout, angina, glaucoma, diabetes, etc., but for ulcers it is a no, no!

He lists the types of wine [all Californian] and their place in the meal, recipes, serving glasses, and concludes with an extensive bibliography. It all sounds great but don't indulge in this treatment if you have a medical problem without first getting your doctor's permission.

Remember the days when we had time to take a leisurely trip by boat to New York? Roger W. McAdam brings it all back in FLOATING PALACES: New England to New York on the Old Fall River Line. [Mowbray. $15.] The photographs will help you recall the elegance of the dining service, the staterooms, some with hot and cold running water, some with chamber pots, the advertisements, the menus, the captains, and so many other pleasures we enjoy now in memory only.

"A man builds a fine house; and now he has a master, and a task for life: he is to furnish, watch, show it, and keep it in repair the rest of his days." - Ralph Waldo Emerson.

The book to help this man [or woman] is the Popular Science Illustrated ALMANAC FOR HOME OWNERS, by Robert P. Stevenson and Roy Doty. [Popular Science. $8.95] This is arranged by date with a little history and suggestions for each day. For example, for May 11 the quote is "B.F. Goodrich announced tubeless tires on May 11, 1947", followed by instructions for repairing brick walls and chimneys. Under Aug. 3, the names of the hurricanes in the Atlantic area are given for 1973 through 1976. "Anna" will be the first one to watch out for this year.

For international flavor we have two new books of interest. THE OFFSHORE ISLANDERS: England's People from Roman Occupation to the Present. [Holt. $10.] The author, Paul Johnson, covers 2,000 years in 400 pages of frankly engaging and readable prose.

A HISTORY OF THE SWEDISH PEOPLE [Pantheon. $6.95] by Sweden's best-selling novelist Vilhelm Moberg reads like a novel. Unlike Johnson, Moberg covers only the prehistory period to the Renaissance, focusing on peasant life, the Vikings, the kings, the religion, the laws and other aspects of daily life. This book would make a good gift for anyone interested in Sweden. Other volumes covering later periods are planned.

MIX YOUR OWN POISON

A conscientious housewife was not satisfied with the way her bathroom bowl cleaner was removing stains so she added a dash of household bleach. She was found on the bathroom floor - dead! An unsuspecting victim of deadly chlorine gas.

Mixing household cleaners can be dangerous. The deadliest mixture is the combination of chlorine bleach with an acid-producing substance, such as bathroom bowl cleaner or vinegar. The result will be chlorine gas.

One Medical Newsletter told of 20 persons in separate incidents being overcome by gases from the combination of chlorine bleach and ammonia. These occurred in the kitchen bathroom and in treating swimming pool water.

To be safe - never mix cleaning agents, especially chlorine bleach. Make sure you read the directions and warnings on the labels of all cleaning products.

Beano Night Aids Fund

Philip Heleotis Moved To B.U. Medical Center

Philip Heleotis of West Quincy has taken another step on the long road back from a paralyzing injury.

The 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Heleotis of 35 Hilltop St., was transferred by ambulance from Carney Hospital to Boston University Medical Center on Harrison Avenue for further rehabilitation.

Young Heleotis suffered a broken neck July 6 in a swimming pool accident.

Meanwhile, efforts to raise money for the Philip Heleotis Fund continued with the announcement that a Philip Heleotis Beano Night will be held Sept. 10 at 8 p.m. at St.

Boniface Church in Germantown.

Mrs. Eleanor Woodward of West Quincy, who with County Commissioner George B. McDonald, is coordinating the fund raising, disclosed that more than 2,500 letters of solicitation have gone in the mail and more are being prepared.

Some 2,000 letters and 2,500 envelopes were donated to the cause by Devonshire Press, 111 Garfield St., and 2,000 more letters by John Murray of the South Shore National Bank.

Franklin Printing Service, 163 Robertson St., came through with 250 envelopes.

Committee members Julie Biagini, Margaret Marini and Gail

Popowitz spent the weekend typing out more letters destined to go into the mail this week.

There was even a little something that the youngsters could do as Adrian Cocco, Ken MacAuley and Susan Heleotis donated their time licking envelopes.

The committee was looking around for someone to donate a vacant store on either Hancock or Temple Street for use as fund headquarters until it could be commercially rented.

Final plans were being worked out for a dance Sept. 21 at the Carlton House, North Quincy, at which Baron Hugo's orchestra will play for dancing and Paul O'Connell, comedian, singer and banjo artist, will entertain.

Mrs. Woodward said current plans call for hors d'oeuvres to be served throughout the evening, topped by a midnight breakfast at the conclusion of dancing. Tickets are $10 per person.

The committee added seven new members during the week. They are Mrs. Mary Schlager, Mary Johnston, Gloria Noble, Heather Beattie, Ed Supple, Irene Supple and Ronnie Michelson.

Contributions to the fund may be sent to Donald Johnson, assistant treasurer at the Quincy Savings Bank, or to Mrs. Eleanor Woodward, 10 Mount Vernon St., West Quincy.

Dr. Peruzzi Named Supervisor Of Science

Dr. William T. Peruzzi, a graduate of Quincy High School, has been appointed Supervisor of Science by the Board of Education of the South Colonie Central Schools in Albany, N.Y.

The former Quincy resident served as School System Science Coordinator in Hanover before moving to New York.

The father of three earned his Ph.D. in Science Education from Ohio State University in 1972. He is a past recipient of the National Science Foundation Sequential Institute Grant.

Dr. Peruzzi's parents live at 41 Common St., West Quincy.

Plight of Aged Worsened By General Attitude

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Wollaston
9-9 Wednesdays 9-7:30 Thursdays

We have noted in a number of previous articles the financial plight of men and women in their retirement years. There is another consideration about this phase of life which deserves equal consideration.

It is the psychological impact the retired seem to have on America's younger generations.

Seeking to learn why old people are stripped of a significant role in life, a staff of fifty researchers from Boston's Age Center of New England interviewed more than 2,000 persons, beginning with kindergarten.

They found, according to the Center's research coordinator, Natalie Cabot, an "insidious resentment" of old age. In her volume, You Can't Count on Dying, Mrs. Cabot reported that even the 4-year-olds showed a rejection of elders: "I don't want them. They're too old." Young adults felt a need to punish old people, who are "a reminder of what they themselves are inevitably going to become. They also fear unduly that the older generation will become dependent upon them."

The American idolatry of youth is in sharp contrast with the Asiatic reverence for the aged, who are credited with wisdom and experience that merits for them an exalted place in the family circle. How we developed this cult of youth and what can be done to change such values is something for the social scientists to ponder.

Suffice to say, dependence on their children is the last thing most oldsters want. Most would like to go their own way, particularly if they are in good health and vigor. But how can they, if two of every five have liquid assets of under $200? Few old people have any substantial property; two-thirds own their own homes but the value of these houses is usually limited.

If we learned anything from the "war on poverty" and the facts it brought to light, it is that we must do some hard and serious thinking about our own retirement years. If they are going to be comfortable and rewarding, it will be by virtue of our own present industry and foresight—not by what outside agencies may do for us. These provisions, such as social security, can only satisfy, on a universal basis, the bare minimum for subsistence.

Many people nowadays say they can't save. If we remember correctly, one of Parkinson's laws is to the effect that "expenses rise to meet income." Who hasn't had the experience of welcoming a raise in pay, only to find within a few short months that it was being totally absorbed in current operations, without any appreciable gain in living standards?

The only way we can assure ourselves with the poet Browning that "the best is yet to be" and that our retirement years will be golden is to plan now for our financial independence.

QJC To Offer New Course In Filmmaking

A course in basic filmmaking for amateurs who wish to learn the essentials of simple, yet effective home movie productions and beginning filmmakers who desire to improve the quality of their films will be offered at Quincy Junior College this fall.

Topics for discussion will include script writing, camera operation, shooting techniques, visual composition, basic lighting, editing, and soundtracks.

Craig Pozzi, the instructor, will critique all films made by the class on how well the intended ideas are communicated.

Pozzi, a Quincy resident, has had extensive professional experience with shows on the West Coast and in Watertown at the Photographer's Workshop. One of his films, "Shackles and Chains" was awarded a prize at the 1971 Cannes International Amateur Film Festival.

Beginning in September, the course will consist of 10 sessions, with a fee of $35 for Quincy residents. The meetings will be held on Thursday evenings. Only an 8mm or Super 8 movie camera is required.

For more information, contact Quincy Junior College at 34 Coddington St.

Mothers, Kelly Clash Over Bag Lunch Program

He said that on Tuesday, the general bids were opened on the Lincoln School renovation. That will be the facility where the lunches will be prepared and served. The sub-bids were opened Aug. 21.

"We didn't get approval from the state for reimbursement to have this program until July 25," Kelly said. "And on the following day, everything went out for bids. We had everything prepared."

The parents group met with school officials Aug. 13 and say that they were told by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creodon that a bag lunch program "is not necessary and would not be implemented."

Mrs. Marilyn Joseph of 6 Hovey St., North Quincy, said, "They could care less about the parents. Dr. Creodon made it plain that his only interest was in complying with the law."

While School Committee officials have previously expressed faith that the Oct. 1 deadline would be met, Dr. Creodon, in a telephone interview with The Quincy Sun Tuesday afternoon, frankly admitted, "No, the deadline will not be met."

He estimated that the program could be implemented "60 to 90 days after the contractors get on the sites and get to work." However, he is not even sure when the contractors will begin work.

When asked whether he is worried about the legal consequences of not complying with the law, he said he is not concerned because Quincy is complying in the sense that it is moving toward implementing the state law.

He compared the present situation to the 1954 Supreme Court ruling on desegregation. "It is now 20 years later and some cities have not complied but as long as they are moving to comply this is what counts according to the courts."

The parents complain that the School Committee has no contingency program in case unforeseen problems arise and believe that their bag lunch plan is one needed contingency.

However, Dr. Creodon told The Sun that "I see no need of any kind except the need to rapidly implement the law."

He noted that no law requires a mandate for a bag lunch and Quincy has no obligation to install an interim program even though it may be breaking the state law.

Asked why the city has waited until the last minute to implement the hot lunch program, Creodon replied, "This is not so, we're not required to comply until September so the School Committee is complying."

However Dr. Creodon had no answer when asked why the program would not be ready in September, even though the City has had at least two years notice from the State law.

The elementary mothers say that they will press for legal action against the School Committee by Atty. General Robert Quinn if the October deadline is not met.

The parents will not have to instigate any legal action, however, because any violations of the law is automatically investigated by the Attorney General.

According to the parents, the Massachusetts Education Commission can withdraw funds to a city in order to force quick compliance with the hot lunch law.

The Quincy Parents Advisory Committee on School Lunches is an ad hoc group concerned with the implementation and quality of the hot lunch program in Quincy's elementary schools. On Aug. 22, the group received formal recognition by the Quincy School Committee as an Advisory Committee to the Quincy Public Schools Food Services Program.

'Good Neighbor' Balloting Starts In HN

The voting season begins today [Thursday] at Houghs Neck when nominations will be accepted for the annual "Good Neighbor" and service awards.

Ballots may be cast through Sept. 12 in "The Bulletin" box at Pages Pharmacy. Candidates selected will be honored at the annual awards banquet of the Houghs Neck Community Council Oct. 16.

Qualifications require five years' residence or activity at Houghs Neck. Persons may be nominated for a single act of heroism, continuing acts of a "good neighbor," or for civic contributions.

The Houghs Neck Good

Neighbor Policy began in 1954 when the late Otto A. F. Page, retiring as pharmacist and proprietor of Pages Pharmacy, was honored by the community for his many acts of kindness during his business years. More than 350 persons attended the banquet in his honor.

In 1957 the Awards Banquet became an annual event. To date 63 individuals have been honored, in addition to teachers, youth, and servicemen.

Mrs. Dorothy Laing is heading the awards committee which will consider the nominations and select the candidates.

$552,000 Quincy Point Project Underway

Ground was broken at the corner of Grafton Street and Glenwood Way Tuesday for the final public works contract of the Quincy Point Improvement Project.

The federally funded urban renewal project is being phased out next year by the Nixon Administration.

The last contract, worth $552,000, is for resurfacing and reconstructing streets, sidewalks and curbs, repaving the fire alarm system and upgrading police signs in an area bounded by Southern Artery, Quincy Avenue and Elm Street.

Project Director, George Fleming said work should be completed by the end of the year or next spring at the latest. Then the whole project, even the concept behind it, goes out of business.

"We hope that the Nixon Administration will see fit to continue such projects under a different name," said Fleming.

The project also is working on the rehabilitation of the 300th private home to be fixed up in the past two years through federal assistance.

Home owners in the project area were eligible for low interest federal loans or, if their financial standing did not permit loans, for federal grants up to $3,500 for rehabilitation.

Squirt Majors Drop First To Scituate, 5-3

The Quincy Squirt Majors bowed to the Scituate Whalers, 5-3, in their first Bay Colony Hockey Association defeat of the summer season.

Tommy and Mike Doherty and Robbie Zanardelli had the Quincy goals with assists credited to Tony Chiochio, Kevin Ryan and Chuckie Marshall.

The Quincy Squirt Minors, a

B team in an A league, lost to Columbia, 7-2, with Kevin Duff and Mike McNiece scoring the goals. Mike Marshall and Kevin Craig had assists.

Pee Wee Minors Bow To Stoughton

Robbie Craig scored a pair of goals but the Quincy Pee Wee Minors lost to the Stoughton Squires, 8-3, in Bay Colony

Hockey Association summer league play.

Dickie Reinhardt got the other Quincy goal with assists going to Scott Richardson, Tommy Mullen, Mike O'Brien and Sean Dennis.

Junior Baseball League Registration Sept. 8

The Quincy Junior Baseball Leagues will hold registration for 1974 Saturday, Sept. 8, from 9 a.m. to noon at Quincy Vo-Tech gym.

The leagues are open to all Quincy boys 8 to 18 years of age. All boys who played Farm League and Triple A this year must register and all applicants are urged to know the date of their birth. The application fee is 50 cents.

The Quincy leagues operate in four divisions, Babe Ruth [12 teams, ages 12 to 15]; Junior League [12 teams, ages 9 to 12]; Triple A [8 teams, ages 11 and 12], and Junior Farm [10 teams, ages 9 and 10].

There is also a South Shore Senior Babe Ruth League for boys 16 to 18. Quincy had two teams in the league this year.

4 Straight In Playoffs Louis Wins Slo Pitch Title

Louis' softball team of Quincy, in its third year of South Shore Slo Pitch League competition, had its finest season this year and won four straight playoff games to win the league championship.

Louis' finished its regular season with a 24-4 record and first place in the National League. It was the best overall record in the league.

In the playoff semifinals the Quincy team swept by Weymouth in straight games, 18-8 and 22-13.

Louis' also defeated Pond Plain of South Weymouth in straight games, 7-6 and 16-6, in the finals to win the title.

The team boasted an outstanding defense and hard hitting offense. Brian Interland in left field, Dick Carvelli in center, Jerry Crowley in right and short fielder Butch Chase formed a solid outfield. Ted Miller, another strong outfielder, was injured and missed many of the games.

The infield included first baseman Bernie Vantassell, second baseman Dave MacMillan, shortstop Bill MacDougall and third baseman Joe Chase.

Warren Hennessey and Fred Kussman were outstanding catchers and Bill Doyle, Art Giordani and Dick Wilson all had excellent pitching records.

Crowley led the team in batting with a .592 average and Butch Chase led the club in home runs and runs batted in. The team batting average was .460 with everyone batting over .300.

Another major factor in the team's success was a strong bench and such reserves as Hank Miller, Bill Costello, Joe Mann and Jack Congdon came through every time when called upon.

Ray LaRue, MacMillan and Hank Miller coached the team and Congdon was manager. The team sponsor is Don [Sacco] Sartori.

Eramo, Robbins FB Low Gross Winners

Florence Eramo of Furnace Brook and Sandi Robbins of Hatherly had low gross of 83 and Virginia McCann of Furnace Brook and Judy Hart of Walpole low net of 63 in last week's member-guest day at the Furnace Brook Golf Club.

Virginia McCann and Pauline Mucciarone of Walpole shot second gross of 84.

Three teams tied for second net of 64, Jeanne Doherty of Furnace Brook and Doris Hutchinson of Needham, Rena Hodges of Furnace Brook and Virginia Dwyer of White Cliffs and Joe Robbins of Furnace Brook and Jill Drohan, unattached.

Tied for fifth net of 65 were Rena Roche of Furnace Brook and Barbara Parker of White Cliffs, Joyce Robbins of Furnace Brook and Ruth Donovan of Braintree, Joe Hinckley of Furnace Brook and Helen Kelley of Braintree, Florence Eramo of the host club and Esther Aimola of South Shore. Ninth net of 66 was taken by Mary Morrissey of the host club and Ruth Paige of Hatherly and Key O'Leary of Furnace Brook and Laura Lynch of Walpole.

Mimi DeFederico of Furnace Brook shot nearest to the pin on the sixth hole and Jill Drohan closest to the pin on the 15th hole.

Chip-in winners were Helen Fallon of Bass River, Esther Aimola of South Shore, Priscilla O'Neill of Furnace Brook, Helene Peck of Furnace Brook and Marilyn Sullivan of Wollaston.

Justin Harrington Key Man For Harvard

North Quincy's Justin Harrington, former Abp. Williams High standout, looms as a key man in Harvard's football plans this fall.

Harrington, a 6-2, 215-pound senior, is expected to be a starting defensive tackle or a strong back-up performer, according to Coach Joe Restic.

"Justin was probably the most improved player among our defensive linemen last year and could really help us at tackle this season," Restic said.

Harrington performed at several positions with the Junior varsity team in 1971 and 1972 before settling into the tackle slot. As a freshman on the 1970 squad, he was a regular linebacker.

Justin's father is a Harvard

Graduate, Class of 1940, and is presently a professor at Boston College.

Provost Figures Big In Holy Cross Plans

A year ago two former Quincy High teammates, Jon Provost and Wayne Richards, were defensive standouts at Holy Cross and played major roles in leading the Crusaders to their first winning season in seven years.

Provost was an all-American safety man and intercepted many passes, while Richards also sparkled on defense.

This fall Provost will see regular action on defense and is being figured on heavily by Coach Eddie Doherty.

However, Richards will miss the 1973 season due to knee surgery.

"They both were excellent players a year ago and could play for any team," Doherty said. "Provost should have a tremendous year for us and it is a shame we lost Richards. He too, would undoubtedly have had a great year for us."

■ Life styles change. Traditions and customs change. So does funeral service. Today, no two funerals are alike, because no two families are alike. Today a competent funeral director must provide a broader spectrum of services than ever before.

It's a challenge. Funeral directors affiliated with National Selected Morticians meet this challenge with a wide selection in a broad range of prices so each family may choose what best meets its needs. As members of NSM in this area, we helped bring it about. We believe in matching the service to the need. It helps make us someone to count on, every time.

Project Friendship An Enjoyable Experience

Project Friendship, where disadvantaged girls have the opportunity for a free week at camp, has been conducted this summer for the fourth straight year by the Senior Girl Scouts of Blue Hill Girl Scout Council.

The camp session for over 90 girls from the Blue Hill Council area started Aug. 24 at Camp Favorite in Brewster, and ends today. The girls, who range in age from 9 to 14, have the chance to enjoy various camp activities, such as swimming, arts and crafts, boating and cookouts; learn responsibility and sharing of work and fun; experience and appreciate living in the out-of-doors; and meet people from outside their own close environment.

The camp is directed by 20-year-old Kathy Barresi of Quincy and Becky Liddell, 21, of Needham. They are aided by four other young adult Scouts who act as consultants, and about 26 Senior Scouts from throughout the council. Although there is much hard work involved in the camp as well as the planning and preparation, all of these young women give their time and effort voluntarily. They are there to help the campers learn and grow, but most admit that their own growth and satisfaction make the project as worthwhile for them as for the girls.

"Although it's frustrating because the time is so short," says Miss Barresi, "I can't help getting emotional when I see the love and friendship that develops in one week. It's a great experience for both the girls and the staff."

Kathy started Project Friendship here in 1969 when she brought the idea back from an international Girl Scout event in Mexico. By 1972, the camp was so successful that it was chosen as a National Event, with Scouts from all over the country serving as staff members. Many of the Scouts who came here brought the idea back to their own councils, and Project Friendships have sprouted across the country.

On The Screen By Vincent Puleo

Falmouth was recently graced by the presence of Quincy native and favorite son BILLY DE WOLFE. And he looked absolutely superb... Trim and tanned to a golden bronze. "Soaked up plenty of that Cape Cod sunshine and spent every possible daylight minute on the beach...the weather couldn't have been better," said a beaming DE WOLFE. "As a resort area the Cape is in a class by itself"...

Though he's forever busy, busy, busy, DE WOLFE never forgets old friends and makes a two week vacation to the Cape a yearly ritual "so I can talk, reminisce and have a good time with some of my closest friends DERN and HERB BABBITT and ELENA HERMANN"... Of course it's pretty difficult for even a "vacationing" celebrity to escape his many fans, and BILLY told this writer at Logan airport before departing for Hollywood, and an evening dinner engagement with DORIS DAY, that he was suffering from writers cramp...

"See this hand," he asked with a twinkle in his eye. "Thank goodness I had a pen with me at all times. Ever try signing an autograph with a coke in one hand and a hot dog in another?" Prior to his Falmouth sojourn he spent six weeks at New York's Waldorf Astoria in a large company industrial show with co-stars BOBBY MORSE, GWEN VERDON and GENE NELSON... His immediate plans could include a London stint in the hit play "IRENE". Also BILLY is mulling over several movie possibilities, a role in another series, not to mention all those late night TV guest shots on the Talk Shows...

A hectic enough schedule for any actor, De Wolfe credits his go, go, go and absolute zest for life to "Plenty of exercise, the right foods, a solid eight hours sleep a night, good friends and a positive mental attitude"... "You have to dig into life," he said in a more serious vein. "Give it all you got, and enjoy the beauty of nature. Ever look at a sunset? I mean really look? The best things in life are free is more than just a philosophical saying...it's a reality. A blueprint for a happy life"...

Show business needs more BILLY DE WOLFE'S. Down to earth. A regular guy. A credit to his profession. And a joy to his legion of fans and friends... As DERN BABBITT put it, "Billy's still the same beautiful character he was when we were appearing together in stage productions. You know I owe a great deal to Billy...can remember when I was just beginning as a dancer on Broadway. God was I nervous and scared. I was so nervous the producer, would have, given me my walking papers if Billy hadn't talked him out of it...then Billy did a beautiful thing. He came up to me, gave me that famous smile of his and said, "you're doing great kid, but can you shake a little quieter." Just broke me up. Couldn't stop laughing"...

PETER FALK is unhappy. Has no intention of fulfilling his contract with Universal to lense the six remaining segments of his "COLUMBO" pact... FALK plans to devote all his energies in the future to the big screen. Also, FALK is, shall we say, angry with the Universal brass for not "allowing me to direct some "COLUMBO" segments last season. I was under the impression I would"...

The WATERGATE FOLLIES may prove to be an international TV smash. CBS-TV has sold specials on WATERGATE to no less than 39 countries... TAMARA DOBSON, all 6' 2" of high voltage beauty, does all of her own stunts in "CLEOPATRA JONES". The car sequences which reach as fast as 135 m.p.h., as well as the fight scenes with SHELLEY WINTERS and company... For the curious, director JOHN HUSTON's theatrical career began on Broadway 46 years ago; and his career in films, 40 years ago... In the last four decades he has directed 28 films, including his latest "THE MACINTOSH MAN"...

Overheard in a crowded subway: "I find 'JESUS CHRIST SUPERSTAR' vulgar, irreverent and..." What followed after the "and" is unprintable... What makes a star international??? Probably the likes of IRENE PAPPAS. She has peopled the scenes of countless films from Italy, America, Greece, England, Yugoslavia, Spain and Portugal... Parents pondering what film to take their offspring are reminded that "TOM SAWYER" is a riverboat of family joy...

New motion pictures include "WHITE LIGHTNING" with BURT REYNOLDS; "I ESCAPED FROM DEVIL'S ISLAND" with JIM BROWN; and "S-s-s-s-s-s". The three have the common denominator of action, suspense and then some... The only two 1973 released motion pictures to crack the Top $$$ Films for the 1st half of the 1973 season (January to June 30th) are "LAST TANGO IN PARIS" in the number six slot; and "FIVE FINGERS OF DEATH" in number seven position. The other eight features are all carry overs from last years release date...

City Purchases 11,000 Remote Meters

The Hannon Administration apparently bypassed the recommendations of a City Council study committee Tuesday and purchased 11,000 "encoder register remote reading" water meters from the Neptune Meter Co. of Atlanta, Ga.

Neptune, which has local offices in Scituate, was designated "the lowest eligible bidder".

The City Council committee, headed by Councillor Edward S. Graham, approved purchase of meters but recommended "only magnetic drive conventional all-bronze digital meters be considered."

With an "encoder register remote reading" meter, the reading is encoded and the signal transmitted to a receptical outside the house.

Instead of entering the house, the meter reader simply plugs into the receptical, takes the signal down on a tape recorder and brings it to the city computer which turns out the bill.

Neptune's lowest eligible bid was set at $33 per unit. When bids were opened July 24, the lowest bid for a conventional all-bronze meter was $18.37 per unit by Hersey Products Ametrol Division of Spartansburg, S.C.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon listed as reasons for buying the more sophisticated water meter system:

* "The city is guaranteed a firm price covering meters and remote reading equipment for a period of two years.

* "These prices reflect a unit savings of 31 per cent over the last bid prices received by the city for meters with encoder registers.

* "When the system is in full operation, the city will benefit financially with an annual savings of approximately $50,000 in employees' salaries and benefits by not filling positions open through normal attrition.

Opposes

8 - Ward Plan

Herbert Reppucci, a candidate for City Council from Ward 4, has placed himself in opposition to the eight ward redistricting and "in favor of six wards equally divided, as suggested, by people outside of the political arena."

"It's evident there is added expense" to the taxpayers," Reppucci said in a statement.

"Our taxes will rise, the labor, the accommodation in the Council chamber, material supplies, two city councilors, their salaries, their expense accounts, the cliques that could be created by muscle of political machines to control the majority of a larger Council.

"My apologies to the voters of Quincy for their inconvenience, having election day so close to holiday shopping days.

[The election is Dec. 4.]

"My apologies to the voters of Quincy for those who showed no consideration, I repeat, no consideration for the voters — the elderly, the sick, the mothers with children, the fathers who have worked all day — for those who may not have a chance to vote because of the late date picked for election, are days of uncertain weather conditions, owing to the rain, snow, sleet, storm or the cold, that may occur.

Rock Island Labor Day

The Rock Island Cove Improvement Association will hold its annual Labor Day celebration Monday at its clubhouse, 52 Allerton St., Hough's Neck.

The day will begin with a Horribles Parade at 9:30 a.m. starting at the top of Rockland Street and proceeding to the clubhouse. There will be pony rides, races, games and refreshments.

Tracy Adams is chairman of the committee which includes: Mr. and Mrs. John Urbanus Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Urbanus, Mr. and Mrs. James MacKay Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chenicki, Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Catrambone, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Piscatelli, Mr. and Mrs. A. James MacKay, Mrs. Hilda Giffin, Mrs. Mary Crowley and James Doherty.

School Bells Ring For 16,500 Students

School bells rang Wednesday for approximately 16,500 Quincy elementary, junior high, and high school students and 1,012 teachers, including 47 new teachers, as the 1973-1974 year began.

Five hundred youngsters attended the opening day of the new three-level Lincoln-Hancock Community School in South Quincy. The new school replaces Quincy's oldest school, the Hancock School built in 1886, and Quincy's third oldest school, the Lincoln School built in 1892.

The new school year is sure to be full of innovations and controversy.

1973-1974 will mark the beginning of the controversial elementary school lunch program in Quincy. Although the legal deadline set by the state for starting the program is Oct. 1, school officials are still uncertain what date the plan will go into effect.

A school spokesman said: "We have no idea when the program will start. We won't know for certain until the dates for the contractors beginning their work are known."

General bids for the renovation of the old Lincoln School, which will be used to prepare lunches for the program, were opened last week.

School officials are still certain however, that the program will begin sometime during this school year.

Another problem that must be dealt with this year is the one of space in the school system, and more specifically, the problem of space at North Quincy High School.

North Quincy will lose accreditation from the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools unless a workable solution for the lack of classroom space for pupils is solved by 1974.

The School Committee and the City Council are now studying a list of possible solutions to the problem including plans to build a new North Quincy High School on WMEX property near the present school or to add to the present facilities.

One new addition to the Quincy School System this year, will be an artist in residence, John Raimondi, who is under the sponsorship of the Massachusetts Council of Arts and Humanities. Raimondi is known for his 20 to 30 foot sculpture-structures made of wood and metal which add to the aesthetic quality of commercial buildings. He will work on special projects with Quincy school children.

New administrators this year are Robert Basiliere, assistant principal at Quincy High School; Paul Breslin, principal of Sterling Junior High School; Richard Crystal, director of staff development; Peter Chisom, principal of North Quincy High School; and Robert Collins, assistant principal at North Quincy High School.

By PAUL FELDMAN

Only 10 percent of Quincy's 47,951 registered voters are expected to turn out for today's [Thursday's] historic referendum on the proposed eight-ward plan.

If City Clerk John M. Gillis' prediction is correct it means that about 4,800 of the city's eligible voters will have their say while 43,000 will stay home.

The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Gillis lists the current heat wave as a main reason for his light-vote forecast.

Other observers feel that most voters just haven't had the interest in the referendum despite the fact that if approved, it would bring an historic change in Quincy's government.

If approved, it would give Quincy an 11-member instead of its present nine-member City Council

The new line-up would be eight ward councillors and three at-large instead of six ward councillors and three at-large.

Gillis and Asst. City Clerk Thomas R. Burke said it will also be the first time in modern history at least that Quincy voters will be going to the polls on a Thursday rather than a Tuesday.

Gillis said he has no idea what the special election will cost but estimated it could run up to $20,000.

Maps showing what ward each precinct would be under the Delahunt plan will also be displayed at each polling place according to Asst. City Clerk Burke.

Proponents of the redistricting plan claim that eight wards will bring government closer to the people.

However, opponents of the plan argue that the Delahunt plan will cost the city over $5,000 a year in extra money and will protect the incumbent ward councillors.

The 37-word referendum, to be answered by a "yes" or a "No" reads:

Powers Files Bill

Rioting In Prison Would Be Illegal

By TOM HENSHAW

If you riot in the streets, they can throw you in jail.

But if you riot in jail there is no lawful punishment.

The Norfolk County District Attorney's office, which is frequently called upon to sweep up the legal litter left by trouble at the State Prison in Walpole, has moved to correct that curious situation.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Warren Powers of Wollaston has filed a bill in the State Legislature that would make it illegal to riot in jail.

"Rehabilitation should be the primary goal of the Corrections Department," said Powers, "but rehabilitation and reforms are impossible in an atmosphere of stabbing, disorder and riots.

"Every prisoner has a right to an atmosphere which is conducive to prison reform and rehabilitation."

Powers' proposal defines a riot as a situation in which "five or more persons armed with clubs or other dangerous weapons, or ... 10 or more persons armed or not, are unlawfully or tumultuously assembled."

In such cases, "the commissioner of corrections, superintendent or deputy superintendent or principal officer in charge" of the jail shall appear before the rioters and order them to disperse.

Those who fail to disperse face State Prison terms of five to 10 years if they are already under sentence [if they are inmates] and up to 2½ years in a jail or house of correction if they are not under sentence.

"The bill places a heavy responsibility on the officer in

No New Candidates

No new nomination papers for any city offices have been filed recently due to today's [Thursday's] referendum vote on the eight ward redistricting plan.

Asst. City Clerk Thomas

Burke explains that nomination papers cannot be filed, even for the office of Mayor which will not be affected by the redistricting proposal, until the referendum question is decided upon today by the electorate.

"Shall an act passed by the general court in the current year entitled 'An Act increasing the number of wards and ward councillors and authorizing the redrawing of ward lines in the city of Quincy' be accepted?"

The proposed eight ward setup is commonly known as the Delahunt plan, fathered by Ward 5 Councillor William D. Delahunt.

If it passes, the city must present the new eight-ward plan to Federal Judge Andrew Caffery.

And City Solicitor Richard McCormick believes, "The judge has no choice but to accept the plan if we comply with the law. And we do comply with the law."

If the voter's defeat the plan, City Clerk Gillis says, "Federal Judge Caffery will make some type of ruling, whatever he feels is just."

Among the options open to the Judge are to set up his own arbitrarily drawn redistricting plan for Quincy's now malapportioned districts, to hold an at-large election for all City Council posts this year, or to hold the election with the same districts as in the past.

However, Gillis sees no reason to believe that the Judge will let the status quo persist this year. "Since our present districts are illegal due to their disproportionate sizes, the Judge will not let us use them."

Voting in the referendum will be held at the same polling places as in the past. And since precincts are being transferred and not divided up by the Delahunt plan, voters would continue to vote at their usual polling place if the plan passes.

The Delahunt plan provides for two new wards through reshuffling of existing precincts. Each ward would have approximately the same number of voters.

One major change made in the new plan would be to add a new Ward 8. The precincts involved are the old Ward precincts 3 and 7 and the Ward 5 precincts 4, 5, and 9.

The new Ward 7 would consist of precincts 1, 4, 5, 6 from the old Ward 6 Squantum and North Quincy.

A complete list of chart that would be encompassed by the Delahunt plan have been published in The Quincy and the Patriot Ledger and have been posted at strategic locations throughout the city.

charge of the institution," said Powers.

"It places in that delicate position a man who is experienced in volatile situations and who won't panic or overreact."

"This bill will hopefully provide a more peaceful atmosphere and will benefit those prisoners seeking an opportunity to establish themselves as productive inmates."

Powers said he sent the measure to Senate President Kevin Harrington and House

Speaker David Bartley's late-filed bill for the current legislative session so that it be passed as soon as possible.

The State Prison in Walpole currently under the control of the State Police but will be turned back to the Department of Corrections when a corrections commissioner is named.

Some fears have been expressed that the transition period will be one of trouble. Powers' bill would help police officials to maintain order.

- Percy Over Ted Kennedy?
- Kissinger Needs Oil Diplomacy
- Trimming Federal Bureaucracy

WASHINGTON — The most critical problem awaiting Henry Kissinger when he moves over to the State Department is oil diplomacy. Middle East experts are prepared to warn that the United States can no longer continue its all-out support for Israel and expect the Arab nations to keep up the flow of oil across the Atlantic.

Already, the Arab nations are being stirred up to use oil as a political weapon and to retaliate against the United States by cutting down oil shipments. The campaign, according to our intelligence reports, is gaining favor throughout the Arab world.

The State Department experts will point out that the United States is dependent upon Arab oil for the next few years. They will urge Kissinger, therefore, to change U.S. Middle East policy and adopt a more pro-Arab attitude. The United States could bolster its position with the Arabs, they will suggest, by using its influence with Israel to settle the Middle East crisis on terms the Arabs can accept.

If the United States doesn't change its middle East policy, the experts will warn, the Arab nations almost certainly will start shutting off oil. This would leave the United States critically short and would force Washington to take desperate action.

The only alternative to diplomatic action, they will suggest, would be military action. Either the United States must become more pro-Arab, they will say, or must take over the Arab oil fields by military force.

WANTED - A WINNER:

Democratic leaders are frustrated over their inability to find a presidential prospect who can capitalize on the Watergate issue. President Nixon's popularity has plunged to 30 per cent, an all-time low. Yet in all the polls, two Republican senators, Charles Percy and Howard Baker, are running ahead of anyone the Democrats can put up.

Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss has been working behind the scenes to restore party unity. He is trying to revive the political coalition that the late Franklin Roosevelt put together of liberals, blue-collar workers and Southern populists.

But it took a charismatic personality like Roosevelt's to rally voters from a wide ideological spectrum behind the Democratic banner. Some party leaders believe their front runner, Sen. Ted Kennedy, has the magic spark. But the polls show young people and women, who are enthusiastic followers of the senator's two martyred brothers, prefer Charles Percy over Ted Kennedy.

Hawaii's Sen. Dan Inouye is causing some excitement among Democratic voters. But perhaps because of his Japanese ancestry, he is mentioned only as a vice presidential prospect. What the Democrats are looking for is another Franklin D. Roosevelt or John F. Kennedy. But there is no one like that in sight.

FAIR GAMES: The nation's No. 1 sports fan, Richard Nixon, would like to give Russia more competition in athletics. He is chagrined over the way Russia throws its top athletes against America's amateurs and then makes political capital out of the results.

For example, Russia trains and subsidizes its Olympic athletes but still calls them amateurs. President Nixon feels that, rightfully, they should compete against America's professionals. Instead, Russia's best athletes meet only the amateurs who are really America's second-string athletes.

For 10 days during August, Moscow was host to the World University Games. The United States sent some of its best college athletes. But they found themselves up against Russia's Olympic stars. As a result, Russia won over half of the gold medals. The United States managed to win gold medals only in swimming and basketball.

The President has told friends he would like to see some competition between the best athletes from both nations.

This would be the only fair way, he said, to determine which country is really best at world sports.

For the Kremlin, athletics is an extension of politics and victories are used to proclaim Soviet superiority. The President would like to find a way to make the contests more fair.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES:

Every President since Franklin D. Roosevelt has tried to trim the federal bureaucracy. How is Richard Nixon making out? One incident tells the story. At budget time this year, the President announced he was phasing out federal grants and loans for building and modernizing hospitals. Nevertheless, the men and women who administer the program have just spent two days planning how to build and modernize more hospitals.

The Securities and Exchange Commission appears to be cracking down — of all things — on evangelist preachers. The regulators have filed complaints against at least six evangelists in the past few months. Most of the cases involve church groups which sold securities or floated bonds in violation of federal law. One evangelist, however, has not been investigated. He is Billy Graham, preacher to millions and spiritual adviser to the President. Reason: The SEC's new general counsel, appointed by the White House, is Billy Graham's former attorney.

Murray Chotiner has long been one of the nation's wildest politicians. A few days ago, his secretary was summoned to a meeting with the staff of the Senate Watergate Committee. They wanted to ask her for intimate details about her boss. But when the secretary arrived, Chotiner was with her and refused to leave. His secretary was also his client, he said, and she was entitled to be represented by her lawyer. The Watergate lawyers said they did not want to question her with Chotiner present. So the battle-scarred Murray Chotiner left — with his secretary.

Sunbeams

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Political observers are just about convinced that School Committee Vice-Chairman Paul Kelly will not seek re-election this year.

His quite frank remarks in last week's Quincy Sun about the mothers who are demanding an interim school bag lunch program ["All these mothers want is someone to take care of their kids at taxpayers expense while they get a job"] pretty much firms up that speculation, they feel.

However, Kelly reportedly is very serious about making another bid for council-at-large this year.

ANYONE got an old Hum & Strum record to spare?

Edith Cunningham of the Boston Music Co., 116 Boylston St., Boston, informs us she has a request from a party in Weymouth who wonders if "Hum & Strum of Quincy fame ever recorded".

Max [Hum] Zides and Tom [Strum] Currier recorded on the Stellar label [78's] back in the 40's. But they never made an LP together, although friends tried to get the pair together after retirement to do a souvenir album.

Max is now PR Man at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome and Tom is in retirement in Reston, Va.

Tom, incidentally, did do an LP by himself a few years back in Boston. It was called, "Reminiscing With Tom Currier", and was cut on the Corey label.

Their many friends have long wished they had gotten together for an LP.

IT'S ELECTION YEAR and time for campaign gimmicks. Grace Saphir, running for mayor, has an eye-catching one: A telephone dialer with magnifying glass and the message, "Take a closer look at your tax dollar".

FORMER Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa who came up from Pembroke for the groundbreaking of the new Quincy Savings Bank headquarters, is still sporting that thin white mustache he sprouted some months ago...Also add to the Quincy Mustache Club, businessman Bob Faxon. [Looks like a real handsome devil with it, too.]

LOOK ALIKES: Charles Twigg, senior vice-president of the Spaulding and Slye Corporation, designer-developer of the new Quincy Savings Bank, and Governor Sargent.

SPEAKING of the new Quincy Savings Bank, President Charles Pearce got off this story at last week's groundbreaking ceremonies:

It was the first day of school and the mother yelled up the stairs: "Son, get up or you'll be late for school." "I don't want to go," he replied. "The kids don't like me and the teachers hate me."

"Well, there are two good reasons why you have to go," said the mother. "First of all, you're 42 years old. And second, you're the principal."

TYPO TERROR DEPT: From the Wenatchee [Wash.] Daily World:

A reception was held honoring her daughter and sin-in-law.

HERE'S ONE: A customer at a local beauty salon caused a bit of a stir the other day sitting nonchalantly under a dryer reading a movie magazine. So? So nothing, except that the customer was a guy. Call it Men's Lib or something.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Q - A home improvement contractor has just finished remodeling my bathroom. The finished product looks nothing like the plans we agreed upon. In addition, the workmanship is extremely shoddy. The contractor claims that he is not obligated to change the work. What recourse do I have?

A - Misrepresenting the quality of workmanship of a construction job is considered a deceptive practice or act under the Consumer Protection Act. According to Massachusetts Law, consumers who own or lease personal real estate have the right to take legal action in cases where they feel a contractor has victimized them with false or deceptive claims.

Q - Recently I had no difficulty in borrowing money from a lender who had advertised "easy credit". However, a friend of mine had problems with the same lender—he was told that he was a high credit risk and the down payment price was raised so high that he was unable to accept terms. Is that legal?

A - Lending money under "easy credit" or lenient terms to one individual and denying it to another person who is considered a high credit risk is illegal. Any lender advertising under those conditions must guarantee credit to every consumer. In addition, raising the down payment price or shortening the repayment period for persons whose credit reputation indicates that they might have trouble meeting payments is against the law. A lender advertising "easy credit" must offer high risk customers the same terms that they offer regular customers.

Q - I would like to buy some furniture on lay-away—however, the last time I bought on lay-away I never received my merchandise. Are there any regulations regarding lay-away buying?

A - Yes. The problem that most consumers have with lay-away buying is that the terms of the agreement are often not made clear before the purchase is made. Under these regulations, it is now illegal to disclose or misrepresent any store policy involving a lay-away plan. In addition the seller must inform the customer about certain aspects of the plan. The Consumer Protection Division advises shoppers to avoid costly and regrettable purchases by acquainting themselves with the provisions of a reputable lay-away plan.

• Letter Box Who's Kidding Whom?

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I have read with considerable interest recent criticism relative to the eight ward re-districting plan. Who's kidding whom? The politicians want to see this plan defeated. It is certainly to their advantage to have at-large elections to further reinforce their death grip on this city's political structure.

We need some new faces on the city council to hopefully straighten out the mess that Quincy is in. Defeat of the eight ward plan would result in an at-large election in which only the old names and faces with considerable exposure and the ability to raise large sums of money could survive. I haven't heard or seen any of our local polls speaking out in favor of this plan. They are quietly hoping the plan will go down to defeat after going through the motions of creating a fair and equitable plan.

Most of the criticism is centered around the two additional salaries. Who's kidding whom? What is about two cents on our tax rate. Especially the way the local polls throw around money. Two cents is just a drop in the bucket. Another question I have is why did the Ward Six Republican Committee bring the suit that forced us to re-district. I think the answer is fairly obvious, the Republican party has traditionally been the party of the chamber of commerce and the money interests in Quincy. Naturally they do not want ward councillors. It is the ward councillor who is usually seen at the Zoning Board of Appeals and the Planning Board protecting our neighborhood from the real estate developers who want to construct high-rise apartments to make a fast buck and then leave the city.

I think it is about time areas like, Montclair, Houghs Neck, Merrymount, and other sections had their own councillors to protect their interests. If the eight ward plan is defeated the smaller sections of the city like South Quincy, Quincy Point and West Quincy will probably lose their representation. It would be tragic if these areas or any other areas lost their representation because of machine city politics. I sincerely hope the people fool the politicians and vote for the eight ward plan. Who's kidding whom?

A 'Thank You And Well Done' To Quincy Fire Department

Editor, Quincy Sun:

On behalf of the neighbors and residents living in the area of Suomi Road and Nelson Street I wish to take this opportunity to publicly say "thank you and well done" to the Quincy Fire Department for their magnificent efforts in extinguishing a three alarm fire on the morning of August 11, 1973 at the Finnish Temperance Hall, located at the intersection of Suomi Rd and Nelson St.

This was a fire of major proportion and the Firemen who successfully saved an abutting home on Nelson St. from being destroyed should be highly commended.

To the Officers and men of the Quincy Fire Department I wish to say once again, thank you.

'Special Thanks' For St. John's Outing Coverage

Editor, Quincy Sun:

In behalf of St. John's Parish I wish to extend a special thanks to the Quincy Sun for the extensive coverage given the parish family outing held last Sunday at the newly renovated Faxon Park recreation area. The outing which was attended by more than 600 persons was the first in a series of special events commemorating the Centennial of St. John's Church.

The Parks and Recreation Department should also be commended for the excellent job done in restoring Faxon Park and making it one of the beauty spots in our city. Faxon Park is one of the few remaining areas where large numbers of families can gather for a day's outing and relaxation.

Renegades In 'Thank You' To State Street South

Editor, Quincy Sun:

The Renegades Junior and Senior Drum and Bugle Corps would like to publicly thank the State Street Bank and especially, the officers and personnel of State Street South, for the use of their parking lot for the practices of these two corps.

It is not often that businesses lend the use of their facilities. This generosity on the part of the State Street Bank shows that even a large corporation can have a heart and be a good neighbor.

The Junior Renegades have been competing all season long and have, for a brand new Corps, acquitted themselves admirably.

The Senior Corps, The Lt. Norman Prince Renegades, appeared in exhibition in Amherst on August 18th at the Super Bowl of Drum Corps.

Burton Cooks Host 23 At Family Reunion

One by one the children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Max L. Cook of Portland, Me., grew up and left home.

Now they are scattered from Milwaukee, Wisc., to Miami, Fla., to Portland and points in between.

But each year since 1969, as many as are able, along with their children, get together in a family reunion.

This year, 23 children, grandchildren and one great grand child turned out at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton S. Cook of 87 Ames St., Quincy.

They gathered Friday [Aug. 18] for an outdoor buffet around the Cook swimming pool.

Saturday there was a visit to Plimoth Plantations and the Mayflower and, since the Cooks originated in Maine, the day was topped off with a shore dinner.

A noon wedding of Cook cousins in Sharon was the feature of Sunday with a barbeque Sunday night.

The visitors departed Monday with the invitation - next year in Milwaukee.

Members of the reunion were:

Mr. and Mrs. Burton S. Cook of Quincy and their children, Laurie, Susan and Marcia, and her husband, Joseph Hamilton of Randolph.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cook of South Miami, Fla., their son, Reed, their daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Mitchell Fruitstone, and their 9-month-old grandson, Adam.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Weber of Milwaukee and their daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Sherman of Pittsburgh, Pa., whose husband, Dr. Gene Sherman, was unable to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Schwartz of Freeport, N.Y., and their children, Susan, Jonathan and Andrea.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cinamon of Portland, Maine, and their daughters, Toby and Jane.

Also unable to attend the fifth annual reunion were Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Allen of South Miami and Dan Weber of Milwaukee, who is entering his junior year at the University of Wisconsin.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Want a wife — or cute trick?

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON

Dear Dorothy:

I'm a bachelor of 40 and hold an administrative position in an educational institution. I'm fairly happy, but have a lousy social life. I'd like to meet the right woman but good fortune constantly eludes me. Recently, I have been attracted to a lady, who seems to be fairly bright and personable, but with much less education and lower social standards. Am I fooling myself into thinking I must lower my sights in order to experience acceptance?

Unsigned

Dear Unsigned:

Marriage vs. Single life!
Are you sure you want yours "altar"-ed?

Mentally and emotionally, you are lightning fast, seen in the m's and n's and your far forward slant. Seldom do you analyze a situation thoroughly enough to get all the facts — especially where your heart's concerned. You depend a lot on first impressions, seen in the breaks in your words.

Since marriage is no leap in the dark, you'd better think before you plunge.

Remind yourself of your desire for the refinements of life, your interest in literature, music and art, all seen in the combination of your rhythmic writing, greek e's and breaks in your words.

Do you want a wife, then, who can establish a cultural rapport with you, and one with whom you can feel comfortable in your professional circles?

Or do you simply want a cute little trick who can turn you on when you come home at night?

Or, with your desire to be on the go and on your own, seen in the lack of lower loops, do you prefer to escape the everyday responsibilities of married life, and let well enough alone? These are your choices.

You must make the decision.

D.J.

Good fortune is constantly eluding me.

Outdoor dishes need top-of-stove variety

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Copley News Service

This is the season for informal foods — cooked in a mountain cabin, outdoors over a grill, or a primitive campfire.

Dishes for this type of living are traditionally top-of-stove variety. They call for ingredients which are easy to pack, easy to use and, for camp meals, require little or no refrigeration.

If the outdoor excursion is a fishing expedition, and if the fisherman's luck is good, the catch can go from water to frying pan, thereby taking care of the refrigeration problem.

The dishes given today fit into almost any outdoor dining situation.

FISH AND PANCAKES — A camp dinner which will reward the fisherman for his efforts includes fried fish, Brunch Pancakes and a cool drink.

Well-trained fishermen should clean and scale the catch before they take it to the cook. Keep head and tail intact, if you like. Cook the bacon until crisp, remove it to paper towels to drain. Dip the fish into cornmeal seasoned with salt and pepper. Brown quickly on both sides in hot bacon fat. Test with a fork; fish is done when the flesh is no longer translucent and flakes readily. Don't overcook.

Combine ingredients, stir until moistened. "Brush" hot griddle with bacon fat or butter, pour batter by ¼ cups onto griddle, cook until bubbly. Turn, brown other side. Serve with Buttered Rum Honey.

Tip: Sprinkle a spoonful of blueberries on the pancakes while they are still moist on top; or use grated apple or pear, thin-sliced peaches.

SKILLET

CORN CASSEROLE

One-third cup margarine
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
1 tablespoon dehydrated parsley flakes, if desired
17 oz. can whole kernel corn
17 oz. can cream style corn
2 packets Hungry Jack Complete Pancake Mix
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 eggs
1 cup shredded cheese or bacon bits

Melt margarine in 12-inch heavy fry pan or Dutch Oven. Add the remaining ingredients, except cheese or bacon and combine well. Cook over low heat uncovered for 15 minutes; as mixture thickens lift with spatula from bottom. Then sprinkle cheese or bacon bits on top. Cover and cook 15 minutes without stirring. Refrigerate leftovers. Eight servings.

CAMP MIX

2 cups dry milk, whole or skim
7½ cups flour
1½ tablespoons salt
3 tablespoons baking powder
1 cup shortening

Toss or sift dry milk, flour, salt and baking powder to mix. Cut in shortening until the mixture looks like cornmeal. Store in a closed canister in the refrigerator. Take to the camp grounds to make pancakes, biscuits without an oven; use at home for muffins, waffles, coffee cake, as you would the commercial product.

BRUNCH PANCAKES

2 cups CAMP MIX
1½ cups water
1 egg

Your Horoscope Guide

For The Week Of Sept. 9-15

By GINA
Copley News Service

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Give credit where credit is due to coworkers. Find time to be alone for inner reflection. End of the week begins an active period. Launch projects set aside in the past. Hesitant tendency to quarrel with mate.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Important decisions may be called for now. A "know it all" friend could exert influence on you. Strong conflicts between home environment and profession are likely. Nervous tension could cause health problems.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — This is a high activity week when you should put finishing touches on project to be launched soon. Avoid ruthlessness in career endeavors. Ambition is high, but charm and graciousness work wonders.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Don't waste today with wishful reminiscences of the past. Broaden interests into many fields. Good time to take your vacation. Be on top of things in business — prompt for meetings and appointments.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Be realistic in your thinking. Real estate matters occupy your attention. Intuition, dreams are important and reliable. Be wary of promotional idea that sounds too good to be true, as it may very well be.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Start important plans, projects after the 12th. Mate or partner is important now. A change of attitude regarding yourself and career is indicated. Bring order and balance to these areas. Don't let others depress you.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — This is a week for pleasure. Attraction to a new way of life can be confused with romantic feelings toward one who provides it. Energy may be depleted. Guard health. Consult a doctor if symptoms occur.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Time to relax. Take a vacation or get away from it all on a short trip or drive. Good time to start a study program. Upgrade job skills. Be outgoing and social at recreational gatherings. Add to wardrobe.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Get out with people — communicate and become involved. You can achieve a long-sought goal if you discard negative feelings. Romance or close friendship could begin now. Change of residence possible.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — A quiet and peaceful time when you accomplish routine matters easily. Writers could produce something noteworthy now. Subtly let bosses know of your talents which were unknown to them. Utilize opportunity.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Direct your energy and enthusiasm into creatively productive channels. Mentally invigorated, develop a pet project. Tie up loose ends on old commitments. Budget seems healthier but don't over-spend now.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Come out of your shell and get out and about. Exercise greater freedom of thought and action. Be open to new and unusual experiences, knowledge and pleasure. Analyze goals and opportunities regarding profession.

RIGHTS Pregnant kin to be at rites

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin: I live in California and will be married here in early September. My sister lives in North Carolina. I asked her to be my matron of honor and she accepted. Through another relative I have learned that she was pregnant when I wrote her. She will be bulging at my wedding. Should I ask her to withdraw? — Evelyn

Dear Evelyn: She should have told you of her condition when she accepted but since she didn't I wouldn't change your plans. However, I'd ask her if she'll feel up to standing in the receiving line for several hours. If she wants to serve in your wedding you can provide her with a bouquet of trailing flowers which will soften her lines. While the whole sticky problem may seem an earth-shattering crisis now, I'll bet it will become a favorite family anecdote.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: When my husband died I received a lovely floral offering from his office colleagues. Each one had inscribed his name on the card. Should the men be thanked individually? — Mrs. Farman

Dear Mrs. Farman: Yes, but just a line or two do.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: What is the proper way for me to sign the bride's guest book. I am a widow. How should couples sign it? — Frances B.

Dear Frances: You should sign Mrs. Arthur C. Bee. Couples sign Mr. and Mrs. John J. Doe.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: Do women ever wear family crest rings? — Alma

Dear Alma: No. The crest is passed down through the male line.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: Last year I bought an expensive jade pendant in Hong Kong. I wore it recently and a friend touched it to her lips and said, 'This isn't real jade. It isn't cold.' Could she be right? — Muriel in Illinois

Dear Muriel: First off I have to say that your friend was very rude. The "cold-to-the-touch" test for jade is an old wives' tale that has been around for a long time. Gemologists say there are many such amateur tests that have received wide circulation and are accepted as fact. If you have any doubt as to the true value of your stone, take it to a qualified jeweler.

Rupert Arronte Exhibit At North Quincy Library

Rupert Arronte of Quincy will exhibit his paintings at the North Quincy Branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library throughout September.

Arronte was born and brought up in the town of LaCavada on the northern coast of Spain. At the age of 11 he was admitted to the Art Institute in LaCavada. The four year course was very thorough, including geometry, and architectural rendering, besides life classes. He won many awards and at the completion of the four years, the school gave him a special one-man show.

He came to America at the age of 19, first living in Maine, but later moving to Quincy where he has been a resident the past 50 years, and where he raised his family. Though he spent his adult life in commercial art, he has always painted in his free time for his own pleasure, and he sells some of his paintings too.

His subject matter ranges from portraiture to landscape and floral painting. He works in both oil and acrylics.

At Foley's Chrysler, Plymouth It's 'People And Service You Can Trust'

By PAUL FELDMAN

"People you can trust and service you can trust" — the motto of Bill and Frank Foley's Chrysler-Plymouth Inc. at 330 Hancock St. — explains why it is one of the most talked about auto dealerships on the South Shore.

The brothers sell a complete line of Chrysler cars including the Valiant — the hottest compact on the market, rated number one in Consumer Report.

And they also have a large service department — in which they will service any make car you may care to bring in.

And what's more, they are located opposite the North Quincy MBTA Station — offering customers the convenience of leaving their car for service in the morning, and taking the MBTA to work.

Bill and Frank were born and raised in Dorchester, but now both live in Quincy. Bill, the president, was educated in the Boston school system and attended Boston College. He lives in Wollaston with his wife, Adele, a lifetime native of Quincy, and his son Bill, Jr.

Bill's main hobby is golf, and for an amateur, he's a real pro. A frequent participant in tournaments, he is the former Mass. State Amateur Champion and twice the Southeastern Amateur Champion.

Presently, he is a member of the Board of Directors of the Wollaston Golf Club.

Frank, the treasurer, also graduated from Boston College, where he won a Frances Quimet Golf Scholarship. Frank first joined the Chrysler Corporation as district manager for Dodge in Maine and New Hampshire. Later he spent six and a half years in Detroit as sales training specialist at the Chrysler Institute.

Married to the former Helen P. O'Connell of West Roxbury, the couple live in the Forbes Hill section of Quincy with their three children, Cathy, Joanne and Thomas.

As for their Chrysler's, Bill says, "Chrysler cars are the best because they are engineered the best. They get good mileage with gas and they cost less on maintenance than other brands of cars."

The 1974 cars will be in soon including Furies, Imperials, New Yorkers and Valiants. So if you're thinking of buying a new car or need servicing on your present car — try Foley Chrysler.

250 Enjoy Wollaston Hill Labor Day Block Party

Some 250 neighbors attended the fifth annual Wollaston Hill Labor Day Block Party Sunday afternoon and evening on Warren Ave., where the street was blocked off between Winthrop and Grandview Aves. Picnic tables, grills and coolers filled the area, colored pennants and gay lanterns filled the trees, and excitement and laughter filled the air as many participated in dancing and lawn games, such as Bocce, Darts and Horseshoes.

The Horribles Parade got underway at 4 p.m. with Mrs. John Dunlea as parade marshal. About 75 costumed children and several adults marched.

Best girl costume went to Julie Fredey, while best boy costume was won by Carl Litif. Honorable mention went to Francis "Bud" Williams, George Fandel, George Mathieson and Al Grazioso.

Special prize for outstanding willingness and hard work in delivering flyers for the past 5 years was awarded to Peter Sweeney. Honorable mention went to Carol Seagraber, Lori Seagraber and Liz Grazioso for their work in helping to design and deliver flyers.

Show time started at 8:30 p.m. with "Phyllis Diller" (Mary Jane Fandel) as Mistress of Ceremonies.

All the "Hams" were not on the picnic tables as indicated by Al and Helen Grazioso as Laugh-In's "Gladys and the Dirty Old Man", Rose Dunlea, Jocelyn Johnston and Helen Whitaker as "The Wollaston Hill Horribles", Bud Williams as "Tiny Tim", John and Rose Dunlea in "Watergate" and Al Grazioso as "Geraldine".

Musical selections were played by Mary Jane and George Fandel, Bud and Babs Williams, Peter Casey, Michael Sweeney and Bud Gilbert, who also entertained on the electric guitar.

Mrs. Alfred Grazioso was general chairman and Mrs. John Dunlea co-chairman with the following committees:

Organization and program - Mrs. Thomas Johnston, Mrs. Roy Whitaker, Mrs. George Fandel and Mrs. Francis Boudreau.

Lighting and decorating - Alfred Grazioso, Richard Hawkes, Edward DeMasi and George Fandel.

Flyers - Carol Seagraber, Lori Seagraber, Elizabeth Grazioso, Peter Sweeney, Jay Mahoney, Michael DeMasi, Steven DeMasi, Matthew Keenan and Joseph Mullen.

Construction Underway

New Quincy Savings Bank Downtown Headquarters Hailed

Construction is underway on the new Quincy Savings Bank headquarters hailed as a major step in the revitalization of the downtown area.

The new three-story building, located at 1200 Hancock St. just down the street from the present main office, is expected to be completed by next summer.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held last Thursday with some 150 persons, including city officials, business and civic leaders and Spaulding and Slye Corporation principals in attendance.

Charles B. Twigg, Senior Vice President, Commercial Sales, Spaulding and Slye Corporation, who was emcee commented:

"It has been over 20 years since the last major commercial building was erected in downtown Quincy and it is my feeling that the Quincy Savings Bank Building marks the beginning of a whole new development cycle for the city of Quincy.

"I believe the bank's commitment demonstrates their faith in the future of Quincy's downtown area and will encourage other members of the business community to move in a similar direction."

Mayor Walter J. Hannon noted, "I would like to congratulate the Quincy Savings Bank on their decision to go ahead with this vital project. In my mind the revitalization of our downtown area is one of the most important programs that our city is involved in, and the decision made by the Quincy Savings Bank is most important to the growth of the city as a whole."

Charles A. Pearce, President of Quincy Savings Bank remarked: "Quincy Savings Bank established in 1845 has constantly endeavored to promote the principles of thrift. Our recent growth has been terrific. In the past five years deposits have increased $58 million or a 72 percent gain. Our mortgage portfolio has doubled. This growth, while welcomed, has put a strain on our present banking facilities. In trying to come to "grips" we asked what can we do to make service more convenient? We feel that our new building, developed by Spaulding and Slye Corporation, has met this challenge. We also feel this new building is an indication that we are confident of the long-term economic health of downtown Quincy."

Michael A. Manzo, Project Manager, Spaulding and Slye Corporation, thanked both the city officials and Quincy Savings Bank for their cooperation on this project.

Quincy Savings Bank will occupy 26,000 square feet in the new building. Twigg is presently responsible for the marketing of the additional square feet in the new bank.

The new building will be just down the street from the bank's present headquarters at 1374 Hancock St.

The structure of exposed aggregate precast concrete and a combination of clear and dark solar bronze glass is designed by Architects Design Group, Cambridge. The new building will afford depositors attractive, as well as efficient, modern facilities. Landscaping has been designed to surround the entire 51,000 square foot building, offering an attractive park-like setting for the enjoyment of both customers and passers-by.

Drive-up teller's stations will be located at the rear customer parking area and a walk-up teller's window will be situated at the front entrance.

Spaulding and Slye Corporation developments include three office parks along Route 128; New England Executive Park in Burlington, The Travelers Building in Endicott Office Park in Danvers, and Wellesley Hills Executive Park in Wellesley.

Union Label Week

Mayor Urges Residents Patronize Union Labor Products And Services

Mayor Walter J. Hannon calls on the citizens of Quincy to patronize "the products and services of union labor" during Union Label Week, Sept. 3 to 9.

The official proclamation, reads as follows:

WHEREAS, The American Labor movement has, throughout its history, attempted to improve working conditions and wage standards that are far superior to those anywhere else in the world through the processes of collective bargaining with fair employers; and

WHEREAS, Organized Labor's distinctive emblems — the Union Label, the Shop Card, the Store Card, and the Service Button — are living symbols of highest quality, cooperative between workers and their employers and a fine example of the American way of life; and

WHEREAS, The American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations and its national Union Label and Service Trades Department, which sponsors and produces UNION LABEL WEEK, have unanimously designated the period September 3 - 9, 1973, as UNION LABEL WEEK:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Walter J. Hannon, Mayor of the City of Quincy, do hereby proclaim the week of September 3 - 9, as in the City of Quincy, and do call upon all citizens to observe this special period in honor of organized labor by displaying the Union Label, Shop Card, Store Card, and Service Button and by patronizing the products and services of union labor which are identified by these time-honored emblems. Given under my hand and the Seal of the Office of Mayor of Quincy, this 3rd day of September, 1973.

UNION LABEL WEEK

Leo Kelly Urges City Acquire Marsh Lands

Leo J. Kelly, candidate for Ward 1 Councillor, has asked Mayor Walter Hannon to initiate the appropriate steps to acquire all the remaining marshland within the city limits.

Speaking to a group of campaign workers at the Kelly for Councillor Headquarters, 1094 Sea St., Kelly said that in a recent letter to the mayor, he emphasized the urgent need to preserve these areas for future generations.

Citing a recent independent study by biology Professor Jahoda of Bridgewater State College, Kelly said that the acquisition of the marshes will protect the marine life cycles, aid the city's flood control program, and preserve the natural beauty of Quincy's coastal shoreline.

Kelly suggested that the Conservation Commission and the Capital Outlay Committee hearings begin as soon as possible to expedite the purchase of these marsh areas.

In his letter to Mayor Hannon, Kelly said:

"A recent study by biology

Professor Jahoda of Bridgewater State College urged that the City take the appropriate steps to purchase and protect the remaining undeveloped marsh areas within the City Limits.

"I firmly believe that these areas should be acquired by the City in order to: [1] assure that the marine life cycle remain unimpaired, [2] aid in the Quincy flood control program, and [3] assure our posterity the same natural beauty of our coastal areas that we have enjoyed.

"We must take action immediately to keep these precious areas out of the hands of developers who are not concerned with the adverse environmental effects of destroying marshland.

"I urge you to take the necessary steps as soon as possible to turn this proposal into reality. Immediate hearings by the Conservation Commission and the Capital Outlay Committee, I believe, will help expedite this marshland acquisition."

Harold Seeks Fence To Cut Oceanview Vandalism

Paul D. Harold, Ward 1 city council candidate has asked the housing authority to erect a fence at the Oceanview senior citizens complex to reduce vandalism in the parking lot there.

"There have been cars stolen, cars ransacked and one man even found tires taken right off his car," Harold said.

He said the problem came to his attention when he was attending a recent tea at the complex and that he promised to ask the housing authority to see whether a fence could be erected along the St. Germain Street side of the parking lot.

"A fence seems to be the most practical way of reducing the problems since we can't have patrols up there day and night. A suitable fence that would not detract from the neighborhood would be the easiest means of stopping the continual problem which has existed since the complex opened," said Harold.

Carter Supports Delahunt On Political Sign Ban

Bryant L. Carter Jr., a candidate for School Committee, says he "wholeheartedly supports" Rep. William D. Delahunt's stand on a total ban on all political signs in the city of Quincy.

The signs, Carter said, ruin the attractiveness of the city.

They also increase the costs of political campaigns.

"This amendment would force candidates to spend less by cutting out an area of advertisement," he said. "Increased spending in political campaigns has made it more and more improbable for an average citizen to run for even a municipal office."

Carter urged concerned residents to contact their ward councillors or one of the at-large-councillors and ask them to act swiftly and pass the ban on all political signs.

Brownell Calls For Tougher Sign Ordinance

Rep. Thomas Brownell has called for a more stringent ordinance against "the annual plague of political signs" than the ban suggested by Councillor William Delahunt in a letter to the Ward 5 Councillor.

Brownell suggests that Quincy adopt an ordinance similar to that passed in 1971 by the city of Peabody.

The Peabody bill restricts both political signs and other unsightly signs.

Brownell, a member of the State Judiciary Committee in the House of Representatives, wrote, "in my opinion your proposed ordinance, if enacted, would invite a court challenge to its constitutionality since it only regulates political signs without dealing with other unsightly signs."

He sent Delahunt a copy of the Peabody law adding, "I feel we should follow their lead and free our city of the political sign blight."

3 Certified As Candidates For County Retirement Board

Norfolk County Treasurer James M. Collins announces that three candidates have been certified by the Norfolk County Retirement Board as nominees for the office of the elected member to that board.

The nominees are: Sheriff

Charles W. Hedges, candidate for re-election; Joseph A. Mastandrea of Dedham, Assistant Superintendent of Norfolk County Buildings; and William F. Woloshyn, Foxboro Town Accountant.

Cimino Completes Marine Training

Marine Air Reserve Private First Class Matthew J. Cimino, 20, of 57 Lind St., Quincy, has completed two weeks of intensive training at El Toro.

Cimino, an employee of New England Telephone has been a Marine Air Reservist since January, 1971. He is a member of Marine Wing Facility Training Squadron-410 at the Naval Air Station, South Weymouth, Mass.

While at El Toro, Cimino worked on projects in preparation for this summer's training program for reservists.

'Arrogance Of Ego' Sermon Topic At First Parish Church Sunday

After the traditional summer recess, the United First Parish Church [Unitarian], 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Sq., opens the church year Sunday.

Long known as "The Church of the Presidents", the Quincy Center congregation offers a total program for children and adults on Sunday mornings.

Church school classes for youngsters of all ages are held at 10:45 a.m., the same hour as the church service. Because of an increased number of infants, the church nursery has been improved and expanded to care for more babies and young children.

At the 10:45 a.m. service Sunday, Rev. John R. Graham will begin a new series of sermons on "Truths That Transcend The Times." The first sermon in the series will be "The Arrogance Of Ego".

In commenting on the series, Rev. Mr. Graham said: "These sermons are based on the Beatitudes and the Noble Eightfold Path of Buddhism. These great teachings from quite different religions blend together to form a universal religious ethic. They offer sound ideas for our chaotic times."

Other titles in the series include "The High Cost of Caring", "Creating Our Own Inheritance", "Life Depends on What You Want", "The Miracle of Mercy", "It's All in Our Minds", "We Are What We Do", and "The Significance of Suffering".

Following each of the Sunday morning services, there will be a discussion period so members and friends of the congregation can have the opportunity to react to the minister's ideas.

Naval Reserve Officers School Opens Sept. 7

The Naval Reserve Officers School will begin its 15th academic year Sept. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the training spaces of Hangar Two at the South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

The school will offer Navy War College courses in international relations, national and international security organizations and command logistics, plus courses in financial management, oceanography, military justice and value engineering.

Enrollment is open to all reserve officers, including those of the Army, Air Force, Coast Guard and Marine Corps. Classes are held Friday nights at South Weymouth and one class meets Tuesday nights at the Naval Reserve Center in Quincy.

Additional information may be obtained by writing the Commanding Officer, NROS 1-7, N.A.S., South Weymouth, MA 02190 or by calling Lt. Cmdr. John Molloy at 479-2427.

HELPING HANDS -- Dr. Martin Rutberg, left, and Atty. Henry Levin, representing the Probus Club of Quincy, present Sister M. Johnnie, Superintendent of St. Coletta Day School, Braintree, a check to be used for the purchase of equipment. The Probus Club presents a major gift each year to selected area organizations. The Braintree St. Coletta Day School has served multiply handicapped children for 15 years and has just completed a new school facility. [Miller Studio]

St. John's Juniors Opens Season Sept. 10

St. John's Junior League will begin the new season on Monday, Sept. 10, at St. John's Rectory Hall, Gay St., with a Shoe - Show - and Sale by Ted Singer.

This will give the members a chance to meet the officers and board for they will be the models.

Officers for the year are Mrs. Anthony Aimola, president; Mrs. Frederick Walsh, vice president; Mrs. Theophilus McLeland, treasurer; Mrs. Albert Coletta, secretary; and Mrs. John Clodi, auditor.

Rev. William Carroll is the club chaplain and the advisory board includes: Mrs. Lawrence Forte, Mrs. Ferdinand DeNicola and Mrs. John Jolley.

The executive board members are: Mrs. Frank Lomano, program; Mrs. Riccardo P. Ricci, publicity; Mrs. Tonio Falco, scholarship; Mrs. Edward Simmons, raffie; Mrs. Domenic Lomanno, friendship; Mrs. Carl Bersani, building fund; Mrs. Richard Storella, club printer and newsletter editor; Mrs.

Frederick Walsh, membership chairman; Mrs. James Triglia, progressive dinner chairman; and Mrs. Ferdinand DeNicola, nominating chairman.

On Oct. 1 Santina Curran from the Norfolk County Extension Service will speak on "As Others See You", a talk to help you with poise and self-confidence.

On Nov. 5 cards and jewelry reading will be presented by Regina Russell.

The Christmas party and recipe exchange will be held Dec. 3.

There is no January meeting scheduled.

The Feb. 4 program will be Diet Workshop with Lea Allen.

On March 4 Jack Savits will present a travelogue on the Holy Land.

On April 1 Mariam Todd of The Patriot Ledger will speak on "Etiquette" with a question and answer period.

William Fettig from the Quincy Police Department will lecture and show films on home security at the May 6 meeting.

Roberts Child Center Orientation Day Sept. 12

Orientation Day for the Roberts Street Child Development Center will be held on September 12th at 10:00 A.M.

The Center is located in Trinity Lutheran Church 65 Roberts St., Quincy. There are a few openings still available, and parents interested in enrolling their three or four year olds may register their child at that time.

Four year olds will meet on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Three year olds will meet Tuesday and Thursday from 9:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

More information may be obtained from the church office or from Mrs. Weikko Luoma 51 Garfield St., Quincy.

Trinity Lutheran Resumes Regular Schedule

Trinity Lutheran Church, 65 Roberts St., Quincy, will resume its regular fall schedule of services Sunday.

Worship service will be at 10 a.m. with Holy Communion, Pastor James Kimmell officiating.

S.S. Conservatory Taking Registrations

The South Shore Conservatory of Music, 107 Main St., Hingham, announces its office is now open from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., to receive registrations for fall lessons and classes.

Individual private lessons taught by professional musicians are offered in piano, flute, oboe, clarinet, saxophone, trumpet, trombone, French horn, violin, cello, guitar, percussion, recorder, and voice.

Conroy Optimistic Despite Small Turnout

By TOM SULLIVAN

Despite a turnout of only 90, one of the smallest in years, Quincy High football coach Hank Conroy hopes to improve on last year's 4-4-1 record and this fall will put more emphasis on his running game.

"We may have a few more boys reporting when school starts, but this is one of my smallest turnouts," Conroy said. "But we have some fine boys back and a very promising group up from an undefeated sophomore team and I am hopeful for a good season."

A year ago with Paul Creedon at quarterback, Quincy's offense was geared to his passing with most of the offensive being through the air.

This year Robin Carrera, backup to Creedon last fall, looks as the starting quarterback and probably won't do as much passing as Creedon. A fine field general and runner, he is not the passer his predecessor was, according to Conroy.

"We just didn't have the running to go with our passing last year and that handicapped our attack," the veteran coach said. "This year we have a promising group of ball carriers and our running game should be much sharper."

Steve Burke, last year's sophomore quarterback, probably will back up Carrera and another sophomore graduate, Joe Tocchio, a hard running fullback, may see service at quarterback.

Among the top backfield prospects are Paul Riggs, who will see action at fullback and also at tight end; Wayne Ponder, Dan McDermott and Preston Carroll, all varsity returnees; Pete Ramponi and Steve Oriola who saw varsity action last year; Jim Forrester, a sophomore star last fall; Bond Doucette and Joe Cortez. Bill Joyce played regularly as a defensive back in 1972.

Two giant tackles, Mike Varraso and Dave Sten, are back for their third season and Sten will also see service as a tight end.

"Varraso, Sten and Riggs, all big boys, were only 14 when playing for the varsity as sophomores two years ago and they are still not fully matured," Conroy said. "If they were a year older they would be even better than they are now. They all are real fine players and I am depending heavily upon them."

Rick Follino, injured early in the season last year but who returned late in the season, is a fine end prospect, as is Mike Donovan, who saw service with the varsity, and Jeff Little, another soph stickout last fall. Mike MacKenzie and Jim Hebert, up from the sophs, are other good end hopefuls.

Bob Pettiti, a strong tackle, is back for his third year but missed most of last season with injuries. Jim French and Bob O'Neil are veteran guards, Bob Gilbody is a fine guard prospect up from the sophomores, Fred Donahue, a big transfer from Abp. Williams is sure to see a lot of action at tackle or guard, while Dave Goslin, John Columbus and Doug King are excellent line prospects up from the sophomores. Gary Moore, who has some varsity experience, will play at center or guard.

"I'd say our big job on offense is to build a running game," Conroy said. "Defensively, I hope the boys start where they left off last year. We were very weak at the start on defense but when Bud Mosher made a lot of changes and started several underclassmen, the defense perked up noticeably. We have nine boys who were playing regularly on defense at the end of the year but some of these will be playing on offense or both ways this fall."

Dave Burke, who has an amazing record as sophomore coach over the past several years, this season moves up as varsity backfield coach, replacing Gene Macomber, who resigned to devote full time to his administrative duties. A new sophomore coach has not yet been named, and he will have awfully big shoes to fill.

Quincy Softball League

Marcel, Well's, A&T Win Playoff Openers

The Quincy Softball League playoffs got underway last week with the first and second place teams in each of the four divisions competing.

Marcel Corp., champion of the American League East; Well's Grille, National League East winner, and A & T Movers, winner in the American League West, all won their opening series, while Dee Dee's and Barry's Ship Haven split their first two games and played the clincher this week.

In the series opener Marcel edged Beau's Place, runnerup in the American League West, 9-7, sparked by home runs by Ron Arria and Ray Connerty. Joe Pettiti played a strong defensive game for the winners. Bob Carroll homered for Beau's.

Each team tried to hand the second game away but Beau's escaped with a hectic 13-11 win. Dick Bareham went four for four including a home run. Joe Larkin also homered for Beau's, while Arria had three for three for Marcel.

In the series clincher Beau's led, 4-3, after four innings but Marcel's bats came alive with seven runs in the fifth. In the sixth Arria added the frosting with a two-run home run. The final was 13-4, putting Marcel into the semifinal round.

Well's Grille, winner in the National League East by a wide margin, eliminated Alumni Cafe, runnerup in the National League West, in straight games.

Well's took the opener, 7-4, as Bob Collier saw the day with a shoestring catch which prevented at least two runs. Bob Cleary pitched a good game in a losing cause and also went two for two himself.

Well's won the second game, 11-5, as Gary McGrath hit a three-run homer in the first inning.

During the regular season Alumni had handed Well's two of its three losses.

A & T Movers, easy winner of the American League West title, also won its series in straight games over B & B Health Spa, runnerup in the American League East.

After a sputtering start in the opener, A & T rallied for eight runs to tie the score and won in extra innings, 13-12.

A & T had little trouble in the second game, 8-1, as Eddie Miller had a homer and Buster Loud had 12 putouts in left field. George Berard starred at shortstop for the losers with several outstanding plays.

The only series not decided at this writing saw Dee Dee's and Barry's Ship Haven divide two games.

Dee Dee's, runnerup in the National League East, shocked Barry's, National League West champ, 8-1, in the opening game with John Lavery pitching well and supported by some timely hitting and defense.

The second game was far different as Barry's annihilated Dee Dee's, 20-4, rolling to a 19-0 lead in four innings. Bob Meehan pitched fine ball and all Barry's batters had a good night.

In semifinal action this week Marcel met Well's and A & T faced the Ship Haven-Dee Dee's winner.

Bantam Majors Finish With 7-3 Victory

John Cooney fired two goals and assisted on two others as the Quincy Bantam Majors wound up their Bay Colony Hockey Association summer league season with a 7-3 victory over the Scituate Whalers.

Rick Dannar also had two goals and Dave Previtte had a goal and two assists in the rout.

Brian Watts and Tommy Cahill each had a goal and an assist and Bill Doherty contributed an assist.

The Quincy Bantam Minors closed out their season, bowing to Abington, 4-2, with Don Perdios and Jim Moore scoring the goals and Mike Storer and Mark Neville getting the assists.

The Minors also lost to Columbia, 6-2, with 10 players from the Major team replacing 10 Minors who were attending Bobby Orr's hockey camp in Canada as members of last year's Pee Wee team.

Rick Dannar had a goal and an assist, Mark Paolucci had a goal and Dave Previtte had an assist.

Doherty In Hat Trick As Sqrirt Majors Win

Mike Doherty had a three-goal hat trick and Chuckie Marshall added a pair of scores as the Quincy Sqrirt Majors closed out their Bay Colony Hockey Association summer season with an 8-2 win over the Minors.

Bob Beniers, Mark Boussey and Tony Chiochio got the other goals as the Majors ran their season's record to 10 wins and one loss.

Robbie Zanardelli had two assists and Joey Rathgeb, Tom Doherty, John Carty and Beniers had one each.

Mike Marshall and Kevin Craig had the goals for the Minors with Kevin Chase drawing an assist.

The Minors also bowed to Scituate, 5-3, Tuesday [Aug. 28] with Mark Messina, Randy Parker and Scott Richardson getting the goals.

Robbie Craig had two assists and Mike Panico and Tommy Mullen had one each.

Bantam A's Win Exhibition

Dave Previtte, Tommy Cahill and Mike Smith each had two goals as the Quincy Bantam 'A' team opened its exhibition season with a 10-3 victory over Scituate Tuesday [Aug. 28] at the new Quincy rink.

Jim Shea, Jackie Cronin, Mark Kelly and Rick Carnali got the other goals with assists going to Jack Fitzgerald [two] Mark Paolucci, Rick Dannar, Richie Troy, Jack Cavanaugh, Shea, Cahill and Smith.

Sal's North All-Stars Sweep Doubleheader, 18-12, 5-4

Sal's All-Stars from Quincy and North Quincy finished a busy baseball season on the holiday as the two teams faced each other in a doubleheader, North sweeping the games, 18-12, and 5-4.

In the Marlboro tourney last week both teams were eliminated, Quincy bombing North in the quarter finals, 13-2, and Quincy bowing in the semifinals to Milford, a team it had previously beaten, 7-1.

In the Quincy-North game Andy Carrera pitched for the winners, giving up only three hits and striking out 10. Danny Santanato had a homer and single, Bill Murphy three singles and Billy Burt two singles for Quincy, while North's only hits were collected by Phil Caggiano, Dave King and Harry Donahue, all singles.

Quincy was held to two hits against Milford, a last inning home run by Lou Avitable and a single by losing pitcher Don Perdios.

Both teams were busy over the past two weeks. Scores were:

North Quincy 7, Hanover 5; North 4, Milton 2; Quincy 6, Medford 5; Medford 7, Quincy 2; Quincy 5, Milton 4; Hanover 6, Quincy 5; Quincy 6, Hanover 5; North 8, Hanover 6; Hanover 12, Quincy 6; Taunton 11, Quincy 10; North 17, Taunton 6.

Sal's combined Quincy and North 12-year olds bombed Taunton, 16-0, and later this same combined 12-year old team was nipped by Marlboro, 4-3. A combined 11-year old team defeated Hanover, 11-2.

North finished up with a 12-9 record and Quincy was 12-11.

The players will be guests at the Red Sox-Detroit game Friday night at Fenway Park and the season will officially end with a cookout at Faxon Park on Sept. 30.

Hugo Salvatore for seven years has formed these 11 and 12-year old all-star teams after the various junior leagues end their seasons.

During the season he awards prizes in various athletic contests between the players, gives every player a trophy and also awards trophies for the Most Valuable Player and the top batter.

"I do all this on my own and it costs me quite a bit each year, but I think it is worth it," Sal said. "It gives many boys a chance to play for several weeks after the junior leagues complete their seasons."

Frazier Needs Line To Go With Backs

Last fall Ralph Frazier enjoyed his best season as North Quincy's football coach with a 7-2 record and a share of second place in the Greater Boston League.

This year if Ralph can develop a line to front for an experienced and talented backfield, the Raiders could again be a GBL threat.

"We have a talented group of backs with good varsity experience," Frazier said. "Our big need is to develop a strong line and we are far more inexperienced there than in the backfield."

Frazier lost only quarterback Bob Morton and Paul Cunniff, an outstanding running back, from last year's backfield.

Carl Leone, backup to Morton last season, will be the starting quarterback and will be backed up by Bruce Stephansky, a defensive starter last year who also spelled Leone as junior varsity quarterback.

North has some outstanding backfield returnees including John Flynn, who was right up with Cunniff as a ground gainer; Rich Desmond, Terry Egan, Phil Robinson and Bob Boussey.

There are other veterans with less varsity experience who should give the Raiders some depth in the backfield.

The line picture is not as bright but Frazier does have some good returnees with varsity experience but he must develop several more to give the team some depth in the line.

Among the veterans are Joe Carroll at end, Tom Donovan at center, Joe Marinelli and Steve Paglierani, defensive standouts; Ron Frizzell, a fine linebacker; Doug Connors and George Hill.

North has a fine group of sophomore graduates and Frazier is especially high on Alf McHugh and Joe Hatfield. "They worked out with the varsity and they are outstanding prospects," Ralph pointed out. "Some of the other players from last year's sophomore team also should help us."

North spent last week at Camp Wono in Brewster together with the Milton squad and Frazier feels a lot was accomplished there.

"We learned a lot about many of the boys and I think it was worthwhile," he said. "We had a few injuries there but none was serious."

Last Saturday the Raiders scrimmaged Catholic Memorial and, although Frazier was not entirely pleased, he pointed out that, while North worked with 100 boys at the Cape camp, Memorial, also at a camp, worked with only its top players numbering about 33.

North has one of its biggest turnouts with more than 100 attending the camp and a few more expected out this week as school begins. Frazier expects the final count to be around 110.

Sox Need Hustlers Like Harper, Cepeda

By TOM SULLIVAN
Quincy Sun Writer

If the Red Sox had a team made up of hustlers like Tommy Harper and Orlando Cepeda, they probably would be leading the American League's Eastern Division instead of trying to catch up.

Never have we seen any players who hustle more than this pair and it is a shame that some of the other Sox players don't try to keep up with them.

It must make them, like most Sox fans, furious to see some of their high-paid teammates, especially Reggie Smith and on many occasions, Carl Yastrzemski, dogging it.

Harper, 32-year old in his 11th major league season, was obtained by the Sox following the 1971 season in the big trade with Milwaukee which brought Harper, Marty Pattin, Lew Krausse and Pat Skrabale to Boston for George Scott, Jim Lonborg, Ken Brett, Joe LaHoud, Billy Conigliaro and Don Pavletich.

This trade didn't set well with many Sox fans but Harper is making it look good this year.

A year ago Tommy batted .254, drove in 49 runs and had 25 stolen bases.

He proved last year he was a real hustler but is proving it more than ever this season. At this writing he was batting .273, had 14 home runs, his total for the entire 1972 season, had driven in 60 runs and stolen 35 bases. He is the first Sox player to steal 30 bases since Billy Werber swiped 40 in 1934 and he stands a good chance of breaking this mark. Incidentally, he led the league with 73 stolen bases in 1969 while playing with Seattle.

Although not the best outfielder in the world, he is adequate and has made a number of catches which should have been made by Smith in center field.

Tommy, one of the most likeable players on the team, always puts out 110 percent and it is not his fault Boston isn't out in front in the division.

And no matter what you say about Cepeda, it isn't enough. The 35-year old National League castoff is making the American League's new designated hitter rule the best innovation to come along in many a year.

Orlando, a Puerto Rican who had a .298 lifetime batting average in 15 National League seasons, was signed by the Sox with two extremely bad knees and there is little doubt this is the reason he is with the Sox this year. If the National League had the DH rule, he undoubtedly would still be there.

Despite his knees, he hustles at all times, scoring on short passed balls or wild pitches, even trying to steal bases and he has become the darling of the Sox fans.

In his 15 National League seasons he hit over .300 nine times, five times had more than 100 runs batted in, five times hit more than 30 home runs and six times had more than 30 doubles. He was a unanimous choice as Rookie of the Year in 1958 and was the first unanimous choice as Most Valuable Player in 1967 when he led the Cardinals to the world's title over the Red Sox.

This year Cepeda at this writing was batting .303, had hit 18 home runs, batted in 72 runs and was leading the team with 132 hits.

Yes, if the Sox had more hustlers like Tommy Harper and Orlando Cepeda, they would probably be the favorite to win the Eastern Division crown.

Power Squadron Boating Course Starts Sept. 10

The Quincy Bay Power Squadron announces its Fall Boating Course will get underway Monday Sept. 10, at 7 p.m. in the cafeteria at North Quincy High School.

This course is open to the general public at no charge. Children under 16 years of age must be accompanied by an adult. The only charge is for materials purchased, which cost a minimum of approximately $10. The course is taught by experienced, volunteer boatmen who are members of the Quincy Bay Power Squadron, a component squadron of the United States Power Squadrons. This same course will be given by over 400 squadrons coast to coast, to over 40,000 students.

Among subjects covered in the course are boat handling under both normal and adverse conditions, seamanship, rules of the road, aids to navigation, running lights and equipment, boat trailing, the mariners compass and piloting, and compass and chartwork. This is a basic course, extremely useful for the new and inexperienced boater, and valuable to all, even the most experienced.

More information may be obtained by calling either Lt. Gordon N. Carter, AP, Chairman of Boating at 698-7711, or Lt. Cdr. Lawrence P. Frazier Jr., JN, Squadron Education Officer, at 843-2664.

Registration For Fall Classes, Courses At YMCA Sept. 10-15

Registration for fall classes and special interest courses will be held at the Quincy YMCA Sept. 10-15, from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 9:30 a.m. - 5 p.m. on Saturday.

During Registration Week, professional staff from all departments will be available to assist in the selection of a program of activities for youth, adults and pre-school youngsters. Regularly scheduled activities begin the week of Sept. 17.

Once again, the scope of activities offered at the Quincy Y has been considerably broadened to better serve the interests and needs of its many members and friends, whether these interests be physical, social or creative.

Membership in the Y is for a 12-month period from the date of application. Each week, full privilege youth members of 8-17 years, may take a swimming lesson, as well as participate in gym, tumbling, gymnastics, instructional sports classes, crafts, special interest classes and recreation swims. Those who are eligible, may take junior life saving, or join the Boys or Girls Swim Teams or Girls Synchronized Swimming Club.

During Registration Week, all boys and girls taking swimming lessons must register for the class of their choice. All new youth members, and those members not previously enrolled in a swim class, must be tested before being placed in one of the progressive swimming classes. Hours for testing will be 3:30 - 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Pre-registration is required for Swim Team and Synchronized Swimming Tryouts, as well as Life Saving. High-lighted membership programs for boys include Floor Hockey League, Water Polo, Archery, Rifle, Tennis, Boxing, Wrestling and Judo. Classes of special interest to girls include Cooking, Tennis, Handicrafts, Team Sports, Gymnastics, Gym Team, Dance and Judo.

Testing for Girls Intermediate Gymnastics will be on Tuesday, Sept. 11 from 3 - 6 p.m. and on Friday, Sept. 14, from 4 - 6 p.m.

Rotary Club Seeking Young Men For Brazil Study

The Quincy Rotary Club is accepting applications from young business and professional men to be members of a Group Study Exchange Team that will visit Recife, Brazil, Feb. 1 to March 16, 1974.

The five man team chosen from Rotary District 795 is sponsored by the Rotary Foundation for the promotion of better understanding and friendly relations among the peoples of the world. The program provides travel grants between paired districts throughout the world, and the Quincy Rotary Club last May was host to the group who came from Recife, Brazil.

Members of the team in addition to receiving the grant for round-trip air transportation are hosted during their entire stay by members of Rotary Clubs of the receiving district.

The only expense to members of the team are for incidentals, souvenirs, and a group insurance policy for sickness and accident.

Applicants must be between the ages of 25 and 35 who have been employed in any business or profession on a full-time basis for at least two years. They cannot be a member of a Rotarian's family or a Rotarian. As the language of Brazil is Portuguese they must have a conversational knowledge of the language.

18 New Credit Courses At Q J C

Quincy Junior College announces its credit and non-credit evening courses to be offered during the fall semester.

Registration will be held at the college on Coddington St. from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6-9 p.m., Sept. 4, 5, and 6.

Dean Richard Mula reports that 18 new credit courses have been added to the evening college program this fall.

In the early childhood education program, new courses will include creative activities and observation and participation.

Introduction to Data Processing and Computer Programming will be taught as the first two courses in the new computer science degree program.

A course entitled children with learning disabilities has been added to the education program.

New courses in the humanities include the development of American film, introduction to philosophy, basic drawing, elementary Italian, and conversational Spanish.

In the sciences and social sciences anatomy and physiology, political geography, psychology of human adjustment, introduction to social psychology, psychology in politics and marriage and family courses will be offered for the first time.

New secretarial courses include medical terminology and office practice and secretarial machine transcription.

In addition to the above new courses, Dean Mula announces that a full range of credit courses will be offered in communications, humanities, sciences, social sciences, behavioral sciences, and business administration.

In addition, four new non-credit courses will be offered in the evening division. They are the consumer and his dollar, ceramic workshop, speed reading, and modern math for parents.

Other non-credit courses will include real estate-preparation for the Broker's Exam, appraising residential real estate, successful real estate practices, stocks and bonds, small business management, and preparation of Income Tax returns.

Also bookkeeping, shorthand, typing, conversational Italian, everyday English, creative writing, algebra, basic math review, career guidance, and dynamics in human behavior.

Non-credit courses will be open to anyone, regardless of educational background or place of residence.

Evening classes will begin Sept. 10.

Further information may be obtained through the Quincy Junior College office on Coddington Street.

Woodward School Students To Meet New Teachers

New full time and part time members of the Woodward School Faculty will be introduced to students and their parents at the annual pre-school cookout to be held tonight [Thursday] at 6 p.m. on the school grounds.

In case of inclement weather it will be held Friday evening.

The opening day of school will be Monday, Sept. 10. New members of the faculty are:

Mrs. Ruth Golden, Brookline. A graduate of Radcliffe College, Mrs. Golden received her M. Ed. in Science Education from Harvard University, and taught at the Buckingham School, Cambridge, Frankfurt International School, Frankfurt, Germany, and in public schools of Boston, Brookline and Newton. Mrs. Golden, the author of PSSC Physics text, D.C. Heath and Co., Boston, 1960, will teach Biology, Life Science, Earth Science, I.P.S., Environmental Science and Chemistry.

Pre-French and French I through French VI will be taught by Mrs. Patricia Duggan. A graduate of Emmanuel College, Mrs. Duggan received her M. Ed. from Boston State College and has taught in public schools in Long Island N.Y., in Quincy and in East Weymouth. Mrs. Duggan resides in Quincy with her husband, who is guidance counselor at Wellesley Senior High School, and their children, Cynthia, Theodore, and David.

Dr. Clifford L. Anderson Jr., Chairman of the Education Department and Instructor in Remedial Reading Methods, Eastern Nazarene College, will teach classes in remedial reading to seventh, eighth and ninth grade students on a part time basis. Dr. Anderson, who graduated from Mount Union College in Ohio, received his M. Ed. from Kent State University and his Ph. D. from Ohio University.

LOW VOLTAGE CAN KILL TOO

Everyone knows that a high-power line can strike you dead in an instant, but there's a dangerous misconception that low voltage [110-120 volt] house current isn't capable of causing electrocution. Actually, low voltages are sometimes more lethal than high ones. As little as 50 volts can fatally shock a man; while some persons have survived a jolt of 750 volts.

The key to electrocution is whether or not the victim is grounded. Electricity always seeks the easiest, quickest route to the ground, through the path of least resistance, which may be you.

It is also well to know that water is an excellent conductor of electricity. In fact, your chances of being shocked shoot up over a thousand times if you are wet and in contact with electrical current.

seeking donations have gone out under the direction of Mrs. Eleanor Woodward of West Quincy, who with County Commissioner George B. McDonald is coordinating the fund raising.

Included in the letters were notes to the governors of the 50 states, suggesting donations and get-well cards for young Heleotis.

Norfolk County Dist. Atty. George Burke donated space in his office at 339 Hancock St. as a headquarters for the fund.

Walter Austin of the Austin Insurance Co., Quincy Ave., Braintree, donated the liability insurance for the office space.

Meanwhile, plans were going full speed ahead for a dance to be held Sept. 21 at the Carlton House, North Quincy.

Paul O'Connell, comedian, singer and banjo artist, will entertain and Baron Hugo's orchestra will play for the dancing.

Tickets for the event, which will be topped by a midnight breakfast, are available at $10 per person.

Three persons have been added to the fund-raising committee. They are former Mayor and Senator James R. McIntyre, Patty O'Rourke and Delores Campanale.

Careers, Books Exhibit Planned

The Thomas Crane Public Library is having a special exhibit of books dealing with careers and employment, during the month of September, at its main branch, Quincy Center.

The books, which may all be charged out of the library, deal with a wide range of aspects of the current job market. Many of the books are aimed at people looking for a "second career", a brand new start in life in tune with today's economic trends.

There are books for someone just beginning to look for a first job, including resume preparation manuals, advice on starting small businesses and tips on developing power in dealing with other people.

Specific categories of employment are also dealt with: how to get a job overseas, employment opportunities in teaching, how to make money at home in your spare time, and so on.

NOW YOU SEE IT,

NOW YOU DON'T.

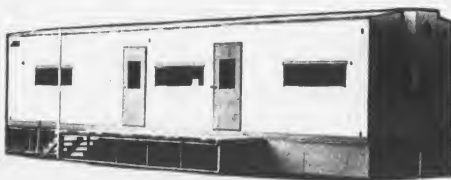

The building housing the Granite Co-operative Bank in North Quincy is coming down. This has nothing to do with our interest rates going up. What you'll see soon is a new beautiful building.

Temporarily our North Quincy office will be located just adjacent to our old building at 440 Hancock St. We'll be in a trailer for the time being...Quincy's only bank on wheels. You can still carry on regular bank business, make deposits or withdrawals, cash checks, secure a loan or negotiate a mortgage.

While we're making the transition from our old building we've established new convenient hours. In North Quincy we're open daily 9-3 and Fridays 9-5:30. Of course our office opposite Turnstyle on Granite Street is open daily 11-6 and Fridays 11-8. We also are open Saturdays 10-2 in Quincy Center. If you remember, this was the first bank in Quincy to be open Saturdays.

So, temporarily, you can bank in a trailer, bank Friday evenings and bank on Saturday because Granite is your co-operative bank.

6 Wards Or At-Large?

Election Hung Up 'Til Judge Returns

By TOM HENSHAW

"We're unique," said City Clerk John Gillis. "I was talking to Norman Gleason, the State supervisor of elections, and he said he never heard of anything like this in his life."

The thing that Norm Gleason never heard of anything like is the long-running, suspense-packed serial that may be entitled "The Making [or Unmaking] of the Quincy City Council, 1973."

Until last Thursday, it seemed like everything was under control.

Quincy voters would go to the polls on Sept. 6 and approve a new plan to divide the city into eight wards instead of six, the preliminary election would be Nov. 6, the final election Dec. 4 and the suit would rise Dec. 5.

Right now, about all you can bet on is the sun.

Quincy voters did the unexpected Thursday and defeated the eight-ward plan by better than a 2-1 margin. [3,769 "No", 1,622 "Yes"] thus throwing the city election picture into utter confusion.

Now it's up to Federal Judge Andrew Caffrey, who has under advisement a suit brought by former city solicitor Douglas A. Randall seeking to force the city to redistrict or hold council elections at large.

But the judge is currently vacationing in Ireland and won't be back until Sunday [Sept. 16].

Meanwhile, the City Council met Tuesday night to discuss what Council President Arthur Tobin called "all phases" of the redistricting dispute.

Indications were that the Council might make an effort to redistrict the city in six wards on a crash basis. It would not call for a referendum since six wards would not require a change in the city charter.

That would leave Judge Caffrey with three options:

● Approve a new six-ward plan.

Thanksgiving Epidemic Forecast

Free Flu Immunization Clinic For Quincy Residents Saturday

The Quincy Health Department will give free flu shots to resident adults and children over 5 years old Saturday between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. at the John F. Kennedy Health Center.

There will also be free flu clinics for senior citizens starting Sept. 18 and continuing through Oct. 15 at 16 different locations around the city.

Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney said he strongly urges annual immunization against influenza, particularly among people suffering from chronic conditions like asthma, bronchitis, emphysema, bronchiectasis and heart disease.

Two types of influenza are expected to strike Massachusetts, in epidemic proportions, around Thanksgiving this year and the State Department of Public Health urges that vaccine be administered as soon as possible after Sept. 1.

Influenza Type A, which appeared in Massachusetts for the first time last winter, is expected to make a return visit, striking particularly those communities that were spared last year.

Influenza Type B [Hong Kong Flu] has not been in Massachusetts in the past three years. In 1972, it underwent a change and two new strains were identified.

Says the State Department of Public Health:

"Patients complain of headache, lacrimation [eyes watering], nasal discharge [runny nose], sore throat and generalized aches and pains. Fever may be mild to severe. The whole illness usually lasts less than five days."

"Uncomplicated influenza practically never kills but the disease often paves the way for respiratory invasion by other

Sun 5 Years Old -- A Big Thanks To All Of You

The Quincy Sun marks its fifth anniversary today.

With next week's issue, we will begin our sixth year as "Quincy's Own Weekly Newspaper".

But it's your anniversary, too. You-our faithful readers and advertisers-are as much of The Sun as we, the staff.

Many of you were there right from the start, rooting for us. We had our ups and downs those first two or three years. But with you behind us, we made it.

The Sun was established in September, 1968 as a community oriented weekly newspaper concentrating on Quincy news.

We said back then we would let the dailies, TV and radio take care of the news of the rest of the world. Our purpose was to present to Quincy comprehensive coverage of Quincy News.

And that is still our purpose, today.

We now have Jack Anderson, and the Copley News Service with its women's features, horoscope, crossword puzzle, political cartoons, and a variety of others.

And we'll be adding some more soon.

But we will remain a Quincy oriented newspaper.

We have expanded local coverage considerably since we started. Now there is more local news, sports, photos, in The Sun than any other newspaper.

And there is going to be more and more in the months ahead.

The Quincy Sun is a paid circulation newspaper published Thursdays by The Quincy Sun Publishing Company, 1601 Hancock St., in downtown Quincy.

And, although the price of everything else seems to be skyrocketing, The Sun is still only 10 cents a copy at newsstands or by carrier boy or girl.

We think it's a great buy for a dime.

Yearly mail subscriptions are $3.50 inside

Massachusetts and $4.50 outside the state. They are delivered Thursday morning by second class mail-the best mailing permit any newspaper can have.

As we celebrate our fifth birthday, we want to sincerely thank you-our readers and advertisers-for your support and encouragement these past five years.

Without you, it just couldn't be done.

We know.

Election Hung Up Until Judge Returns

[Cont'd from Page 1]

* Order elections to be held at-large.
* Permit elections to be held under the old six-ward setup and mandate the new City Council to redistrict.

"As of now," said City Clerk Gillis, "the election dates remain the same until we see the judge. 'We're not allowing nomination papers to be taken out until we know where the ward lines are or if there are going to be ward lines."

"Then everyone will have to take out new papers - unless the present ward lines stand, and they are apparently against the law."

"Anyway, we have to allow five weeks between the time the papers are returned and the preliminary election.

"That means Oct. 2 is the filing deadline so we still have some time left."

"But who knows, we might have a Christmas election."

Meanwhile, City Councilor William Delahunt, analyzing the referendum upset, called it an indication that the people prefer a six ward plan over the eight-ward proposal.

"I hope the City Council can come up with a six-ward plan," he said.

"The trouble is that some of the smaller wards most likely will be submerged into the wards under the six-ward plan. This will make it difficult to retain neighborhood and community identification.

"Still, I feel that the people want their councillors elected by wards and not at-large."

Here is the ward-by-ward vote which defeated the eight ward redistricting plan in Quincy.

Fear And Confusion

Playboy Vanishes But Dirty Paperbacks Still Selling

By PAUL FELDMAN

One Quincy bookstore is still selling paperbacks with such come-on titles as "Baby Face Cycle Stud" and "Young Bitch In Heat" as well as photo magazines entitled "King-Size Boobs".

Yet a downtown newsstand has voluntarily removed Playboy magazine from its racks. You can't even buy a copy from under the counter.

Instances like this illustrate the confusion and fear-rising from the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision on pornography, a Quincy Sun survey shows.

The confusion and fear prevails in Quincy and across the nation.

What is obscene and what isn't for adults, nobody seems to know for sure.

The Quincy Police Department has taken no action under the new ruling which leaves the question of obscenity up to the local community.

And there hasn't been a single case in Quincy District Court from any of the other six communities under its jurisdiction.

But Quincy may soon move to use the Supreme Court ruling as a new weapon to keep smut out of the hands of minors.

That action will be spurred by City Clerk John M. Gillis, chairman of the City Licensing Board, who says he will ask the City Council for the power to restrict hard core pornography from minors.

The June ruling, setting local standards on what is obscene, was a 5-4 decision. Chief Justice Warren Burger, speaking for the majority, defined a pornographic work as one that "taken as a whole, lacks serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value."

This is in sharp contrast to the previous standard that defined pornography as something "utterly without redeeming social value."

Some legal experts have expressed fear the decision will "open up a can of worms", where almost anything can be declared obscene by local authorities. Already, the critically-acclaimed movie, "Paper Moon" has been banned in Dallas because the nine year-old heroine smokes cigarettes and utters a couple of four-letter words.

In Quincy, no guidelines have been set up as to what is officially obscene. Lt. Arthur Shea, assistant to Quincy Police Chief Francis Finn, told the Quincy Sun:

"I haven't read the new law and we haven't even discussed it yet at the chief's staff meetings."

City Clerk Gillis, says presently, only the police have jurisdiction over pornography matters. But, he says:

"When the City Council comes back in session, we'll try to get them to give the Licensing Board the power to restrict hard core pornography from minors."

The main problem expressed by local businessmen, is the point that Supreme Court Justice William Douglas made in his dissenting opinion on the decision, "To send men to jail for violating standards they cannot understand, construe and apply is a monstrous thing to do."

While magazines like Playboy, for example, have interviews with and articles written by many respected persons (including Justice Douglas), there is a fear that the pictures of naked girls that also embellish its pages, might be ruled by local authorities as obscene.

One Quincy businessman, who has removed Playboy, expressed his case as such:

"It's a form of censorship even if eventually the local authorities say that Playboy is OK to sell. The fact is that right now I don't know, so what can I do. I have a wife and four kids to support and although this hurts my business, the major part of my business is in selling newspapers, tobacco and books. What is bad is that they can come in and say anything is obscene and lock us up like common criminals. We don't want and we can't afford this kind of trouble."

Another businessman, who still stocks seamy publications says:

"I have what I had before the decision but I haven't bought anymore stuff. I have five kids to support so I'll continue to sell what, at least, was legal before. I just wish they'd warn us what is and isn't legal."

As Quincy businessmen run scared, the central fear seems to be a distrust for what local officials can potentially do with the new ruling. One merchant says, "Let the city government put in writing what is legal and illegal, not over the phone. Because if it is not in writing, they can harass us."

According to City Clerk Gillis, this fear is unfounded. Even if the City Council gives the Licensing Board authority, he says:

"If its pure smut we can control it for minors. But we have no choice about what people over 21 read." According to Lt. Shea, the police have not yet made any decisions either way in this regard.

Another fear voiced by local businessmen is the state police, who, in fact, litigated a case against two Quincy stores two years ago that is still under appeal.

However, according to Lt. Henry Bienkowski, commanding officer of the State Police special service unit, this fear is unwarranted. Says he:

"The Supreme Court threw the ball back to local communities so now it is up to the local people to decide what is pornographic. Laws in one part of the state will now be different than in other parts of the state. But if a local community asks for assistance we'll still collect evidence and help in their case."

Many moral questions arise from the 5-4 Supreme Court ruling. One Quincy bookseller argues: "Morals start in the home not at the corner bookstore. The government wants to make us all our brothers keepers but we can't be and it's not right."

Another Quincy merchant says, "It's not right when you go and fight a war for freedom and get wounded and then five guys can tell the country what's obscene."

But according to Chief Justice Burger, "What's good for New York City isn't necessarily good for the people of Maine or Mississippi."

City Clerk Gillis says, that "in the case of minors, five people should be able to tell 90,000 what they can read. The licensing board makes up a cross-section of opinion in Quincy and should make sure that minors don't see any smut."

On this regard, both city government and booksellers agree. In a number of stores checked by the Quincy Sun, questionable material was accompanied by signs reading that customers must be 21 years of age.

One clerk says, "We always check ages of customers. It's the same as checking ID's at a bar."

According to Dennis Ryan, clerk of Quincy District Court, no pornography or obscenity cases have come up at the Quincy Court since the new Supreme Court ruling took effect in June.

- Democrats Had Spies, Too
- Scoop's Their Man
- Oil And Wheat Shortage?

WASHINGTON — The Watergate investigation has exposed President Nixon's political espionage during the 1972 campaign. But lost in the headlines is the fact that the Democratic candidates had their political spies, too.

During the presidential primaries, the Democrats spied on one another. Senator Ed Muskie's staff, for example, prepared detailed smear sheets on his Democratic rivals. Muskie acknowledged this to us, but called their work "negative research."

Senator Hubert Humphrey's political intelligence was poor. The AFL-CIO, however, planted agents in the George McGovern camp and shared their reports with Humphrey.

McGovern had the best intelligence operation. His lieutenants have boasted that they had spies who told them everything Humphrey was doing. They also claimed that they had managed to sneak an undercover man inside President Nixon's campaign headquarters.

Sympathetic government employees, including a man at the Voice of America, also slipped McGovern information.

The Democrats may have been less professional, and perhaps less grim, than President Nixon in playing the game of political espionage. But they had their political spies.

Scoop's Their Man: The Democratic party's old professionals, who were pushed aside by Sen. George McGovern in 1972, are quietly maneuvering to regain control of the party in 1976. As their candidate, they are already lining up behind Sen. Henry ("Scoop") Jackson, D-Wash.

In fact, they began planning for 1976 before the smoke had cleared from the 1972 convention. They held secret strategy meetings in Miami Beach before they went home from the convention.

They agreed informally that Jackson should be the figure they would rally around. The Jackson Plan, as this strategy was called, was pushed by steel workers boss I. W. Abel. AFL-CIO President George Meany also agreed that Jackson was the best man in sight for 1976.

Jackson agreed to begin picking up the pieces for both the 1974 and 1976 elections. George Wallace's brother, Gerald, joined in the secret discussions. But the Wallace forces refused to support Jackson. They are strictly for Wallace.

The old curmudgeon George Meany, meanwhile, yearns to return to the old ways of choosing candidates in smoke-filled rooms. When he was asked about the 1972 convention, he took a deep puff on his cigar and grumbled: "Too many skirts and no cigars."

Oil Warning: Saudi Arabia has warned American oil company officials, according to news reports, that it will cut back its daily oil production a million barrels unless the United States changes its Middle East policy. This would leave the West critically short of oil this winter.

The Central Intelligence Agency, however, has reported that Saudi Arabia is bluffing. Intelligence reports from the Middle East claim that Saudi Arabia has secretly decided NOT to reduce its oil production at all.

The Saudis have sought to appease the Arab militants, who want to use oil as a political weapon, by offering to use oil income instead to finance a massive Arab arms build-up.

The Saudis have warned, according to the intelligence reports, that the United States could retaliate against an oil cutback by reducing its food shipments to hungry Arab countries.

The Saudis have argued, therefore, that an oil cutback would wind up hurting the Arab cause. By keeping the oil flowing, they have urged, they can raise the millions needed to buy guns and grain. The Egyptians, for example, are in desperate need. The intelligence reports claim Saudi Arabia has offered to subsidize both Egyptian military and wheat purchases.

Of course, the tough bargaining over oil isn't ended. But it looks less likely that the Saudis are going to withhold vital oil.

White House Wheat Watch:

The White House is watching the crop reports with an anxious eye. The world wheat shortage is beginning to look more critical. The Soviets planted a record crop and turned soldiers, students and factory workers into the fields to help bring in the harvest. But suddenly, rains flooded millions of acres in European Russia. Some of the crop has been washed out. Some has been harvested, but it is wet grain subject to rot.

Already, the Soviet Union has put in an order for 116 million bushels of American wheat. Communist China, which is also desperately short of grain, has ordered 133 million bushels. From around the world, foreign orders already are within a few thousand bushels of the total estimated 1973-74 wheat crop in this country.

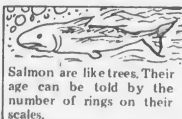

The experts have warned that the United States should keep at least a year's supply in reserve. This runs about 600 to 700 million bushels of wheat. Already, the U.S. reserves are down to half its amount.

The government has called upon farmers to reverse their past policy of keeping land out of production and to plant all the acres they possibly can. For the wheat shortage affects the price of meat, poultry, bread and other foods. With wheat stocks the lowest in two decades, food prices are sure to continue rising.

'Watergate' auction rakes in the money

Signatures of seven Washington politicians, several of them involved in Watergate, were auctioned off in New York recently for $180.

They included John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, Ronald Ziegler, Sen. Sam Ervin and Sen. George McGovern. Included in the sale was a "Nixon Knew" button.

Sunbeams

By HENRY BOSWORTH

The Speculation Corps thinks its beginning to look a lot like Christmas and an all-at-large election this year.

The defeat of the proposed eight-ward plan by referendum, last week has left the city election hanging like a movie without an ending.

If the eight-ward plan had gotten the nod, the primary would have been Nov. 6 and the final Dec. 4.

Now the matter has got to go back into federal court before Judge Andrew Caffrey. He's in Ireland and reportedly isn't due back until Sept. 16.

City Hall watchers figure that when His Honor gets the news on the referendum vote, he'll lean toward ordering an all-at-large election to speed things up. There may just not be enough time to ponder a new six-ward plan to properly get in an election, this calendar year.

Even if Judge Caffrey orders everyone to run at-large, the final election would be crowding Christmas. [And a Happy New Year to you, too].

INCIDENTALLY, if it is an all-at-large election, some observers think we'll see some big names tossing their hats into the City Council ring.

Names already being mentioned as possible contenders: former Mayor James McIntyre and former Councilor George McDonald.

OBSERVERS performing a post-mortem on the 2-1 murder of the eight-ward plan now feel opponents ran circles around proponents.

The opposition united and turned out to vote. The political wheels who wanted the plan to win [they did, didn't they?] sat back, ran a few ads and sent out a few flyers. But none of them got out to talk it up and set themselves on record. They didn't whip up any enthusiasm.

MYSTERY OF THE WEEK: The five voters who cast blanks in the referendum. A blank in a referendum! The explanation is that the five thought it was primary day, showed up to vote, discovered it was only a referendum and said the hell with it. And went home.

AND, if you think you've got problems, how about two or three candidates who already had Ward 7 and Ward 8 campaign cards and literature printed?

MERRYMOUNT'S Geraldine Pleshaw has been invited to take part in the fund-raising Democratic National Telethon being teamed from Los Angeles, Saturday. She, Senator Edward Kennedy and Boston Mayor Kevin White were invited to represent Massachusetts.

Mrs. Pleshaw, a resident of Shore Ave., is chairwoman of the Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus and heads the Department of Women's Affairs for White.

ANOTHER QUINCY gal, Kathy O'Donnell of Massachusetts Ave., has been listed in "Who's Who In American Politics".

And because of her, Paul Harold of Adams Shores gets listed twice. Under his own biography and under Kathy's. Paul is head of the Massachusetts Young Democrats and a Ward I council candidate. Kathy is his campaign manager.

IT'S TOUGH ENOUGH trying to read telephone numbers in the phone directory. Now it's even harder. In the new South Suburban book, 72 pages are upside down. [At least the one delivered here].

WILLIAM [SULLY] SULLIVAN of Quincy was named August's Outstanding Employee of the Month at The Colonnade Hotel, Boston.

Sullivan, who has been a bellman 35 years, gets a U.S. Savings Bond. During his career he has escorted to their rooms such celebrities as Presidents Truman and Nixon and The Beatles. A native of Ireland, Sully came to this country in 1929 and now lives with his family at 130 Turner St., Houghs Neck.

FREDSISTI has painted bigger signs in his day but the one he put out last week was like a Rembrandt to him. It said simply: "Vote No On Referendum. A New Tax Alibi". Sisti, who ran for the Ward 3 council seat a couple of times back in the 1950's and came very close to winning once, put the sign on his car and spent Thursday cruising the streets. May have been the only such sign in circulation.

TYPO TERROR DEPT: From the Augusta [Ga.] Chronicle: Burial will be at 4 p.m. Monday with a one-over-par 75.

SIGN OF THE TIMES: Auto bumper sticker seen in Quincy: Nixon 49 - America 1.

SMILE DEPT: "The Insider", published by inmates at the Norfolk County House of Correction, wonders if you have tried the Paul Revere cocktail?

Drink one and you start horsing around and waking the neighbors.

Consumer Corner

Attorney General

Q - How can I be sure that the used car I just bought has not had its odometer "kicked back"?

A - If you bought the auto after March 1 of this year, you should have received an Odometer Mileage Statement indicating the mileage, make, body type, year, model, vehicle identification number and last plate number of the car. A new Federal law requires this statement and also clarified odometer-tampering offenses. For example, the law forbids the sale or use of any device which causes an odometer to register any mileage driven. It also prohibits the disconnection or alteration of the odometer, and the operation of a car whose odometer has been disconnected or non-functional if there is the intent to defraud.

If a car buyer can prove in court that the seller was aware that the odometer was adjusted, he can recover up to three times the actual damages or $1,500, whichever is greater.

On the state level, the Consumer Protection Division of Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn's office has a special automobile Fraud Section whose duties include investigating odometer kickbacks. The investigative team periodically visits used car lots and automobile auctions to check odometers. Auto identification numbers are recorded, along with odometer readings, and the previous owners are later contacted to determine prior use of the car and its mileage. If tampering is suspected, legal action is brought against the seller. Last month, a bill filed by Atty. Gen. Quinn was enacted into law stiffening the penalty for odometer tampering to $500 for each offense.

Q - I received notice from my insurance company yesterday that my home insurance policy had been cancelled. No reason for the cancellation was stated in the notice. Isn't the company required to tell me why my insurance was cancelled?

A - Under a new law which became effective September 1, 1973, the insurance company must state the reason for cancelling a home insurance policy. The company must also furnish the facts on which the cancellation was based upon request of the insured person. There are six grounds for cancellation including non-payment of premium, discovery of fraud or material misrepresentation or physical changes in the property which result in the property becoming uninsurable.

Consumer questions should be sent to Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn, "Consumer Questions", Room 373, State House, Boston, Mass. 02133. Those questions with broadest interest will be answered in the column.

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'Why People Collide'

Are you involved with a partner with whom you seem to have daily collisions? ... "I just can't live with him/her" ... "I'm damned if I do and I'm damned if I don't" ... "I never know if I'm a foot or horseback with him/her."

These are the vague descriptions which some people use to tell what the relationship is like with their partner. What it really says is ... "our life scripts collide." The LIFE SCRIPTS of two people MUST RUN ON PARALLEL TRACKS much of the time ... or the marriage won't work.

Most people are unaware that they are living a life script. A life script is a design ... a pattern ... a continual repetition of ways of doing things ... thinking ... talking. The script begins unconsciously early in life. Temper tantrums don't usually begin at age 35. They begin at age two or three ... in the most innocent ways. They're even cute then ... not so cute at 22 ... but it's a life script for many people. In all of us there's a life script being followed ... with possessions ... clutter ... putting ... indecision ... money ... sex ... attitudes toward life.

No wonder Marie and Dan have collisions. Marie wants her way ... or she puts. But she doesn't know really what she wants. Her script therefore, often collides with Dan's script ... who is adult ... responsible. Said Dan ... "I never knew where I stood with Marie. In our courtship even it was the same way. She never seemed to know what she wanted ... never could make up her mind

... never able to resolve a matter with me ... always kept me dangling with ... maybe ... or we'll see. I really never knew if I had an agreement or not with her." Dan went on to say that the honeymoon was marked with the same indecision ... the planning for the family ... the raising of the children.

Of course Dan is also following his script ... one of giving in ... loving so much ... giving so much ... responsible ... not wanting to make waves. So ... now there's a great big collision ... because Dan is saying ... "I don't want to live this way anymore. I want our marriage to be equal ... a give and take ... let her carry her end of the responsibilities ... I'll carry mine. She's no little girl anymore."

Most people are willing to let byones be byones ... IF THE COLLISIONS DON'T CONTINUE. But we continue to follow the old script ... UNTIL WE DECIDE ON A NEW AND BETTER SCRIPT.

So, one of the first things to examine in marital conflict is the SCRIPT COLLISIONS. Foolish argument about who's at fault ... is fruitless. LOOK AT THE SCRIPTS YOU ARE EACH FOLLOWING. See how the scripts collide. Decide if you want the marriage ... or not. Then recognize that the scripts must be adjusted to avoid the continual collisions.

Sign Ban - With A But

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I have in my possession an invitation sent me by a present member of the City Council in which he invites me to support him in his effort to eliminate political signs that he claims are a visual plague visited upon our historic city of Quincy each fall.

I feel the same as he does in the matter of these offending signs, but he is a lawyer and in his chosen field of endeavor he works within the framework of legal rules established by his profession and in doing so he must know that the two most powerful men in the County and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts each had at least three hundred signs in Ward Two in which I reside in my most humble home.

One of these gentlemen now sits in his royal office in the State House and the other gentleman holds the highest elective post in Norfolk County.

I say that he is right in opposing lawn signs but I also think back and look at an established precedent that put the two highest vote getters in our city on their present lofty stools.

I shall not use lawn signs in my campaign to send me back to the city council, but I may ask my opponents how the numerous high rise apartments have lowered the tax rate, and as I do not work within the framework of the legal profession I may even ask why our tax-rate is $154.10 instead of thirty dollars when I was chairman of the finance committee.

THINK PRETTY

Women get smart in men's stores

By JANET ROHAN
Copley News Service

More and more women are finding it's smart to shop in the men or boy's clothing departments.

They are not necessarily shopping for their sons, brothers, fathers or boy-friends, but for themselves.

His'n Her and Unisex have been on the clothing scene for quite some time, but these trends seem to have little to do with the reasons why many women shop in men's areas.

One woman said she looked last winter for a burgundy colored blouse that would go with a hostess skirt. After searching through many women's stores, she found "just the color" blouse — boy's long-sleeved shirt in a discount department store. "The fit was fine," she noted. "It really didn't make any difference with the long skirt."

Another feature concerning the boy's shirt-turned-blouse is that it cost one-third to one-fifth the price of many of the women's blouses she was looking at.

What else are women buying for themselves in the men's clothing department?

Jeans and slacks, jackets, rib-knit tops and body suits are the biggest items.

Many of today's styles are similar for the male and female; the difference is found in the pricing, fit and quality of the garments.

A manager of a local clothing store says "for the last two and one-half years there has been a definite trend toward females purchasing clothes for themselves in the men's shop." He estimates that about 60 per cent of the jeans sold in his store are worn by women.

Although many of his female customers are under 25, women in their 30's purchase slacks from his shop.

Realizing how common it is for women to purchase men's clothing, one national department store chain includes a section in its fall and winter 1973-74 catalog of clothes for male and female.

Sizing given for slacks is as follows — female wearing a size 5 needs a 28 slacks. Size 7, 29 inches; size 9, 30 inches, size 11, 31 inches and size 12 and 13 requires a 32-33 inch slacks.

While such sections may be thought of as the His'n Her or Unisex too, style and fit are not the only reasons why women purchase some of the clothes in the men's area.

Price and quality were cited by several buyers or salesmen working in area clothing stores.

One buyer said "men's clothing is often more sturdy." Another called men's clothing "a bit more rugged."

He also said that in his store "on the whole, men's slacks run about $6 cheaper than women's slacks."

The fall and winter catalog showed differences in pricing for clothing for male and females. A ribbed knit turtle-neck shirt, made of the same material with similar styling was priced at $5.98 for men and $8 for women. There was some difference in the weight. According to the catalog, the woman's shirt weighs 0.5 pounds, the men's top was 0.7 pounds.

In the same catalog, a jacket with a lining for men cost $9.98. A woman's jacket, that included a belt but no lining, was priced at $24.

FAVORITE — All-cotton flannel is in for a big revival this fall. Here it makes the scene in a button-front shirt-dress that's printed in gold and black. By Seibel & Stern.

RAIN OR SHINE — Umbrella-printed cotton provides the right climate for school-day comfort in this dress with flip-pleated skirt. Contrasting checks give a two-piece look to the crisp Shutterbug design.

GOLDDLOCKS '73 — Floral-printed cotton gives rise to a storybook classic which today's young Goldilocks would describe as "just right." All-over smoking covers the bodice, while dainty rick-rack trims collar and skirt. It's by Little One, division of Johnson Manufacturing Co.

Daughter's affair needs no explanation

By PAT and
MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
I am going to visit in the city where my daughter lives. This daughter is well educated, has a good job, and is sharing an apartment with a young man. The affair has been going on for over a year.

Now, this is my problem. How am I going to introduce my daughter and the young man to my friends? Do not get the idea that I approve of this arrangement. However, I do not have control over the situation.

Mrs. J.D.

Dear Mrs. J.D.:

You do not owe your friends an explanation. Just introduce your daughter and the young man as you would anyone else.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My best friend's husband is having an affair with another woman we both know. I'll call her Sue. It is a well established fact that Sue has broken up two other marriages in our town. I'm quite certain that my friend, Angie, has no idea that her husband is carrying on with Sue.

Now that these facts have been established what should I do? Should I tell Sue to stop seeing Angie's husband or should I tell Angie about the affair myself?

Friend

Dear Friend:

Keep out of this triangle. Your friend's business is not your business.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I'm tired of the housework trip. I have two children and am confined to the house like a prisoner. I have tried to explain my feelings to my husband but all he says is, "You are lucky to be able to stay home all day and relax." How can I convince him that cooking, cleaning, and caring for two small children is hard work?

Tired

Dear Tired:

Take a week's vacation and allow your husband the privilege of cooking, cleaning, and caring for the children. He'll soon be convinced. On the other hand, do keep in mind that your husband works eight hours a day to support the family.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

Do you have a recipe for a refrigerator cake made with candy bars? I lost mine and it was simple and delicious.

Ruth

Dear Ruth:

Place 15 marshmallows (large size), four chocolate almond bars, and one-half cup milk in top of double boiler. Heat over hot water until marshmallows and candy melt. Cool. Whip 1 cup cream and fold into marshmallow mixture. Pour into a pan lined with crushed vanilla wafers. Delicious!

By GINA
Copley News Service

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19) — Also Aries Ascendant) — Differences of opinion may be encountered. Consider that your ends can be met by compromise rather than head-on confrontation. Good results in creative writing, communication projects. Curb bossiness.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20) — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Take a long, hard, practical look at people and things — be realistic. Give time to budget, paying bills, etc. Don't make a "federal case" out of a disagreement with a friend. Be philosophical, not over-sensitive.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20) — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Reactivate old projects now. Strong possibility of acceptance and success for them. Approach those in positions of authority — your charisma is high. Have an expert check legal aspects of property matters.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22) — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Evaluate career matters, home relationships. Adopt new attitudes if necessary. Resist moodiness — feelings of self-pity. Realize you are working on something long-lasting. A friendship may be slowly ending.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22) — Also Leo Ascendant) — Career matters are paramount. Don't be overly critical of associates. A long-term friendship may form. A real business coup is possible now, relating to salesmanship. Use charm and personality. Finances improve.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Be patient in chaotic situation. A friend is a tower of strength to you now. A long-term romance may blossom. Emotions run high — be discreet. Attend to legal matters, taxes, insurance to keep current.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Also Libra Ascendant) — Work on detail and routine matters out of the limelight. Get personal affairs in order — taxes, insurance, etc. Make career plans. Use intuition and heightened intellectual abilities in assessing personal ambitions.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Clear the decks for future action. The up all loose ends, finish projects hanging fire. Clean out drawers, files — check on insurance papers, certificates, etc. Don't take mate for granted. Be attentive.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Watch diet carefully. Get plenty of rest. Share leisure-time activities with mate or partner. Older people may supply beneficial ideas. Add finishing touches to a project for presentation at later date.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Stay on your toes now. Be available for consultations, prompt for appointments, project yourself in a positive way. Problems at work involving employees or associates require diplomacy to solve satisfactorily.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Tensions ease — spirits brighten. Relationships at home improve with appreciation shown to you. Good time to study, sharpen job skills. Cooperative work with others on projects really pay off now.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20) — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Suggest alternatives to relatives who want to borrow money. Resist impulse to hand out possessions or finances on a silver platter. Relegate authority to others for some detail work — take a break from routine.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Bridge gap with verse

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master
Graphoanalyst
Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I'm 18, and I'm having parent problems. I know you receive many letters from parents who are having trouble understanding their teenagers, but my letter is a real switch. My parents don't approve of anything I do, and we can't seem to discuss anything together. I attribute it to the generation gap, don't you? How can I improve relations between us?

Unhappy One

Dear Unhappy One:

I can't believe that the generation gap is so wide that it can't be bridged with some sturdy stepping stones of real understanding. Your parents can only know what they see. Your vertical writing mirrors you as cool, unconcerned and indifferent. Yet, if they could only insert a tool of human understanding beneath your seemingly calloused surface, they'd see the joys, the sorrows, and heartaches they didn't know existed, in the one they cherish the most.

Lack of verbal communication, too, always sets up a stiff barrier. You are overflowing with a need to talk, yet you keep your thoughts all to yourself, seen in the tightly closed tops on g, o, and a.

Try to openly share your feelings, your needs and your desires with your parents. This, automatically, breeds better relations. If you feel the strain is too great, write a verse or two, expressing your hope for better understanding between you. Your ability to write poetry is simply bursting ... through a combination of greek e's, figure 8-g's, breaks in your words, and other strokes in your writing.

Get to your parents in one way or another.

D.J.

I attribute it to the generation gap.

Shape up with right foundation garments

By JOYCE ROARK
Copley News Service

Foundation garments are as important to your appearance as make-up and your hairstyle. You should use foundation garments to enhance your best features and play down those that are not so good.

Foundation garments can't do everything; they can only help. A good diet, exercise, and clothing carefully selected for your figure type are also very important.

The teen figure is slender and evenly proportioned. It has a very small, high bust and a waist that is not strongly indented. The waistline will become more defined as the bust and hips develop. The teen figure needs only lightweight foundation garments.

The average figure is considered the ideal figure. It is well proportioned and well developed in all body areas. The hips and bust measure about the same and the waistline is about 10 inches less than the other two measurements.

The average figure like the teen figure needs only lightweight foundation garments.

The full hip figure has the hips 12 or more inches larger than the waist. Often the extra dimensions are in the upper thigh and abdomen as well.

A panty girdle with control on the sides will help smooth the hip and thigh line.

A bra with fiber fill lining will help to even out her figure.

The top-heavy figure has problems even though most women would love to have a larger bust.

This type of figure needs a longline bra to help smooth the midriff and waist.

Some girls are full figured all over. They need the long line bra to control the midriff and a firm girdle to enhance the lower torso.

Brett Seeks More Police Patrols, Refuse Barrels At Montclair School

Rep. Joseph E. Brett has asked for more frequent police patrols and the addition of refuse barrels in the Montclair School area to remedy its "slum-like appearance".

Brett, who made the request in a letter to Mayor Walter Hannon, said that he recently took a walk along Holbrook Rd and was "amazed and distressed at the amount of litter and refuse scattered along the roadway and abutting properties" in the area bounded by the Montclair School and the Bishop Playground.

While Brett said that he hoped the beeping up of police patrols and the institution of more frequent clean-up operations would impress upon the young people who congregate there the desirability of helping to "Keep Quincy Clean" by properly disposing of their refuse," he suggested, "to go further, perhaps an educational campaign could be initiated through the public schools to teach our young citizens the benefits of keeping the neighborhood clean."

He added in the letter that similar steps might be appropriate in several other sections of the City.

EMERGENCY CALL FOR HELP

What can you do to prepare for an emergency call? It could be fatally time-consuming to search through a phone book for a number during an emergency. Have emergency numbers posted in an obvious place near the telephone.

If it's night and the lights won't work or you've been blinded by smoke, dial "operator". Feel for the dial opening just beneath the finger stop and pull around. If you've got a push-button phone know where the "O" is located - now.

Here are major points to cover in an emergency call for help:

- 1 - Tell where it happened. Give your complete address. Repeat it. A brief description of the emergency is especially helpful.
- 2 - Tell what happened. Is your house on fire? Is someone bleeding badly? Has someone had a heart attack?
- 3 - Tell who you are. This is important where the emergency is not obvious from the outside, especially in an apartment house. Also a neighbor is more likely to know your name than your number.

It's Hussey Radio Shop But You Can Get TV's, Hi-Fi's, Vacuum Cleaners

By PAUL FELDMAN

In the market for a new Electrolux vacuum cleaner? Need some repairs or parts for your old vacuum or other appliances? If so, Jack Hussey at R. T. Hussey Radio Shop, 23 Billings Rd, North Quincy, can help you.

Jack and his father Bob have been selling and repairing vacuums for over a half century at the same location. They'll service all makes and models with their quality workmanship or help you select a new machine from their large selection of new and used models.

And vacuum cleaners are not their only business. Jack also sells and services a complete line of Olympic TV's and Hi-Fi's as well as used appliances from irons to toasters to fans.

Jack, who grew up in Braintree, learned all there is to know about appliance repairing while helping his father out as a youth. He added to his education at Don Bosco Technical High School, Northeast Institute of Technology and Fryeborg Academy.

Before joining his dad, Jack worked as an on-the-air personality at radio stations WKXL in Concord, WRSR in Worcester and WERI in Rhode Island. "I was mainly a middle-of-the-road DJ" he says.

He left radio to join his father at their 50-year-old business in North Quincy. "This is one of the original electric repair shops," he says proudly. "We've had our technician's license since licenses were first issued."

The business started originally as a radio shop but it expanded quickly as new-fangled inventions like the vacuum cleaner and the TV were introduced.

Jack now lives in Abington with his wife, Mary Lou, and their three children, Jack Jr., Bobby and Christina. He is a member of the South Shore Chapter of the Electronic Technicians Guild and the North Quincy Board of Trade.

Hancock Bank Votes Highest Dividend Yet

The Board of Directors of Hancock Bank has voted to increase its quarterly dividend on common stock to 40 cents per share an increase of 5 cents per share over previous dividends according to William E. Kelley, president.

The increased dividend, the highest in the bank's history, will be paid Sept. 29 to stockholders of record Sept. 17, 1973.

Mr. Kelley added that this increase is made possible by a recent revision in the dividend guidelines set forth by the President's Committee on Interest and Dividends and the continued strong earnings of Hancock Bank.

Sargent To Attend Chamber's Welcome To State Street South

Governor Francis W. Sargent will be on hand when the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Chamber's membership officially welcomes State Street South to the South Shore Wednesday, Sept. 19 at the new $32.8 million complex in North Quincy.

The meeting, a specially arranged sneak-preview for the Chamber's membership, will include breakfast at 7:44 a.m. and a tour of the facilities at the conclusion of the meeting.

The State Street South Complex, now employing 1,650 people, when working at full capacity will employ 4,000 and is one of the largest privately operated computer installations in the nation.

Governor Sargent, who will speak during the welcoming ceremonies, is expected to also discuss, among other things, some of the major economic issues confronting the business community, the nine percent unemployment rate in the South Shore and the Fore River Bridge.

The Governor will present the "Faith in Massachusetts Award" to John T. Nichols, Chairman of the Board of the State Street Boston Financial Corporation, parent company of the State Street Bank and Trust Company, as a highlight of the meeting.

Arrangements to attend the meeting at $4.47 per person may be made by contacting the Chamber.

Open Space Concept

Lincoln - Hancock School A 'New Look' In Education

Eight years after the need was first recognized, the new Lincoln-Hancock Community School opened Sept. 5 for more than 500 students from the Southwest Quincy community.

The school, which cost more than $5 million, is unusual in that it is composed almost entirely of open space and the first floor gym, art and music rooms are designed to be shared with the community.

The second and third floors each have six learning centers opening off an instructional media center, which will be open at all times to pupils and teachers.

The learning centers are set up for reading, language, mathematics, science, social studies and the humanities with children moving from area to area as their needs require.

The second floor houses pre-school through third grade while grades four through six are based on the third floor.

The first floor, shared with the community, includes a large technology room for science projects, art works and shop, and a suite of music rooms for vocal, band and orchestra practices and recording studios.

There is also a cafeteria, which, as the name implies, serves as both cafeteria and auditorium.

The gym and the swimming pool, both of which will also be used by adult members of the community after school hours, will not be ready until about mid-April. Currently the grounds are being landscaped.

The building has 103,000 square feet of open space over three floors and can house 650 pupils, 150 more than are now enrolled.

The Lincoln-Hancock Community School replaces the old Lincoln and Hancock Elementary Schools, which dated back to 1886.

Morrie Hibbard is the principal and Fatima Allie assistant principal.

General contractor was Franchi Brothers Construction Corporation of Auburndale.

The operable folding walls were installed by the Modernfold Company, Inc., Wellesley Hills.

The bronze acrylic safety glass in the exterior windows were supplied and glazed by Glass Services Co., Inc., of Hyde Park.

JOINING THE "CAST" — A "little" thing like a broken leg could not deter Robin Lytle, 7, of 159 Quaker Street from sharing the new Lincoln-Hancock Community School when it opened last week for classes. Profile Of A New School

Some of the novel features of the new Lincoln-Hancock Community School include:

- 103,000 square feet of open space on three floors.
- Able to house 650 students with room for a 100-student expansion on third floor.
- Swimming pool open to all Quincy residents after school hours.
- Open space that can be broken up into sections as needed by movable partitions.

- Site encompasses 7.5 acres at Granite and Water Streets.
- Can be used by members of the community during day and evening hours.
- Facilities shared with community are all on the first floor, permitting second and third floor instruction areas to be shut off.
- Gym, locker, art and music rooms and swimming pool shared with the community.
- Mens and womens lockers in gym for use by city residents.

$4.24 Returned Old Hancock School Cost Only $35,000

It took the City of Quincy more than eight years from concept to completion to build the new $5 million Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

It took the Town of Quincy little more than one year to lay out $35,000 to put up its predecessor, the John Hancock School, back in 1886.

And the School Committee of those thrifty days gave back $4.24 it had left out of the appropriation.

The John Hancock School was first suggested to the Town Meeting in the summer of '85 as a means of taking care of the overflow children from the Adams and Willard school districts.

The big hurdle was the expense.

Rather than get up $35,000 [gasp!], Henry H. Faxon suggested that the members of the School Committee, as astute businessmen, find necessary quarters around town for the excess kids.

Fortunately, they were held as well as astute businessmen on the committee and they decided that a new school was needed — unless, of course, parents of South and West Quincy wanted their children on double sessions.

Parents decidedly did not, so the Town Meeting, bypassing a proposal to erect a wooden school house, appropriated $35,000 to build the town's first brick school.

It was ready for occupancy within a year and the Town of Quincy was so proud of it that the town report for 1886-87 highlighted its striking new features:

- Large rooms, lighted only from the South, with a capacity of 50 seats facing the west so that every scholar could get the light over his left shoulder.

- Coat rooms, also lighted from the South, and so located that the teacher could watch what students were doing in the coat rooms and the school rooms at the same time.

- Steam heating by indirect radiation.

- Teachers' dressing rooms.

- Large playrooms in the basement, one for boys and one for girls.

÷ FLEXIBILITY ÷ IN THE LEARNING ENVIRONMENT

Flexibility to meet the fluid space requirements of Lincoln-Hancock School and the desire to meet specific educational criteria prompted the use of modernfold operable walls. . .

Modernfold "Divisiflex" and "Acoustiseal" folding walls divide many areas in the large group instruction area as well as in the art and science rooms.

These movable walls will meet the changing needs of students and teachers. The panels create smaller areas out of larger ones and move aside quickly so that equipment and furniture may be rolled from one area to another. Total versatility is provided on the panels with the application of chalkboard surfaces. . .

The gymnasium will be sub-divided by an electrically operated wall eight feet long and twenty feet high. This movable wall provides more and better use of expensive space by providing for flexibility and versatility in the gymnasium. It disappears from sight when stored through a 6" wide vertical opening in the masonry wall. . .

We are proud to have been a part of this program designed to bring teachers and students out of isolation. We compliment the citizens of Quincy on their exciting new school and wish the students and faculty many happy and productive hours in their beautiful new facility. . .

Everyone's Business

School Safety Responsibility Of Motorists, Pedestrians

By GUIDO PETTINELLI
School Safety Officer

Pedestrian safety means proper attitudes and actions by both walkers and drivers to make "getting around" easier and safer for everyone.

In the city of Quincy we have approximately 20,000 students attending schools from kindergarten to college and several day nurseries where children are transported. This means, of course, that during the school year many miles of pedestrian traffic will be traveled by Quincy pupils.

Many of them will be crossing main streets and busy intersections where the Quincy Police Department has forty-four Women Traffic Supervisors and eight policemen doing school traffic for their protection. We also have about 1,000 pupils, who, in the course of the year, serve on the School Safety Patrol in assisting the Traffic Supervisors and the policemen. Therefore, full co-operation by all concerned is very imperative so that we have an accident free school year in the City of Quincy.

Safety is everyone's responsibility, so that if the children, parents, School Department and Police Department do their part we should be very successful in preventing accidents. Following is a list of Safety Rules that will be of assistance in this program:

- Always walk on the sidewalk.
- Cross only at corners - look both ways before crossing and around corners.
- Use the crosswalks whenever possible.
- Do not cross from between parked cars.
- When crossing at a traffic light, wait for the light to change, then wait for traffic to stop before crossing.
- Obey your school traffic supervisor and patrol.
- Never dart out onto the TRAFFIC SUPERVISOR Virginia Moore crosses youngsters at the Squantum School, assisted by Joseph Feeney, safety patrolman, in background. She is one of 44 women traffic supervisors guarding school crosswalks in the city.

street.

- Walk defensively - be especially alert for careless drivers.

The following is a list of Bus Safety Rules for the benefit of the students who are bussed to school:

- When waiting for the bus - wait in an orderly way.
- When boarding or leaving the bus - walk, do not run.
- Stay quietly in your seats.
- Save snacks and homework for later.
- Place books and bundles where they cannot slide or fall.
- Keep arms and legs out of the aisles.
- Act as you would in the classroom.
- Your head, arms and bundles are safest inside the bus.
- Don't talk to the driver except in emergencies.
- Get permission to open windows.

Remember that Bus Safety is as important as any other phase

GUIDO PETTINELLI
Quincy School Safety Officer of safety in keeping accidents at a minimum.

Remember the old adage that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

SAFETY IS EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS.

Dogs Can Hurt Pupils So Keep Rover Home

School yards are for children-not dogs.

Stray dogs wandering around school yards or near schools can frighten, bite or hurt youngsters in other ways.

The number of stray dogs seems to be increasing despite the fact Quincy has a leash law.

The Police Department warns owners of dogs that violators have been prosecuted in the past and others will face court action in the future.

Keep your dog home. The only school a dog belongs in or around is a dog obedience school.

Parents' Obligation To Teach Youngsters Safety, Set Good Example

Parents should fulfill their obligations by understanding traffic regulations and have knowledge of safety rules that their children should know.

Poor parental example and lack of supervision can defeat the positive efforts of others to provide for a child's safety. The following are some tips that parents should adhere to so that they might contribute somewhat to the safety of the children.

- Set a good example in the presence of your child.
- When a pedestrian follow the safety rules.
- Teach your child the danger of talking or going with strangers.

● While operating a car be courteous and observant.

● Around school zones be very cautious.

● Remember to treat other children as you want others to treat your child.

Between the Covers

There Were These Three Fat Ladies . . .

"Three enormously fat ladies were under a tiny umbrella. It started thundering and lightning. Why didn't they get wet?" Jokes like this one, knock-knocks, poems and rhymes, riddles and puzzles, stories and tongue twisters on all kinds of subjects are in this almanac of American Folklore, THE HODGEPODGE BOOK by Duncan Emrich. It's a big book of fun for the whole family.

Duncan Emrich also collected the jokes, rhymes, and puzzles in THE NONSENSE BOOK, more humor from American Folklore. There are rhymes for hide-and-seek, ball-bouncing, skip rope, and autograph albums and puzzles like this one: "What three words did Adam use when he introduced himself to Eve which spell the same both backward and forward?"

If you can solve that puzzle easily, try SHARPEN YOUR WITS by Gerard Mosler. All kinds of puzzles are here to test your wits and your eyes. Match, coin, and mathematical puzzles will keep you guessing, and tests of observation and ingenuity will fool you again and again.

THE MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE OF LEON [I MEAN NOEL] by Ellen Raskin is another kind of puzzle. It's a mystery about a strange disappearance, and it's a game about names and a word puzzle. Clues are scattered throughout the book to help readers solve the mystery. The illustrations are made of words too. It's a book that invites you to play a fantastic and funny game as you read.

You don't have to be able to read at all to play the games in BRIAN WILDSMITH'S PUZZLES, LOOK AGAIN, and CHANGES CHANGES, three unique picture books. PUZZLES asks simple questions that test powers of observation. The answers are in the brilliantly colored pictures by Brian Wildsmith.

LOOK AGAIN, a clever puzzler by photographer Tana Hoban, invites you to look through a window in a page at "something". If you can't guess what it is, look again by turning the page. There are surprises in store for you as you look through the windows, turn the pages, and look again at some very familiar "somethings". Get out your building blocks, and build along with CHANGES CHANGES. This is a book without words whose pictures, made of blocks, tell the story of a man and woman whose newly built house catches fire. You'll have fun guessing what they change their burning house into, and building all the other changes in the book along with them. It's another successful picture book by Pat Hutchins, creator of ROSIE'S WALK.

For more fun, young magicians will want to try FUNNY MAGIC by Rose Wylar and Gerald Ames. The tricks in this easy-to-read book can be done by one child, sometimes two. The materials are inexpensive and are probably in your home right now. Invite your friends and family to your magic show and fool them by smelling a color, dropping a penny through a plate, and training an egg.

Riddles or magic, stories or picture books, all invite you to look again and sharpen your wits!

You're Invited To Recycling Plant

Recycled paper can save the nation's forests!

Or, if that doesn't faze you: The City of Chicago earns $100,000 a year by salvaging steel cans!

It's the Quincy Conservation Commission's way of calling attention to the city's recycling center on Rincuti Drive off Willard Street in West Quincy.

The commission last week urged residents to visit the center once a month with accumulations of newspapers, tin cans, aluminum and glass. Here's how to do it:

- Wash the cans and jars and bottles along with the supper dishes and keep them in a large grocery bag near the sink, separating the cans [with ends removed and flattened], the glass and the aluminum [TV dinner trays, etc.]

- Tie newspapers in bundles.
- Take them to the recycling center once a month - and you'll be surprised how little rubbish of other types is left to take to Quincy's shrinking dumping area.

North Opens Soccer Season At B.C. High

A year ago Lou Ioanilli, former Sharon High and U. of Massachusetts player, made his debut as North Quincy's soccer coach and led the Raiders to an 8-2-2 Norfolk Association season.

North opens its season today [Thursday] at B.C. High, a newcomer to the association, and Ioanilli, with a veteran squad, has hopes of improving upon the 1972 record and challenging for the championship won by rival Quincy last fall. Tuesday the Raiders host Franklin at Montclair field, site of all North home games.

"I have most of last year's squad back and we should do well, although I feel most of the other teams in the league will be stronger," Ioanilli said. "We had an excellent turnout of 50 boys and it appears we should have another good junior varsity team." [North jayvees were 7-1 last fall].

The Raiders will have a senior-studded team with seven of them returning starters as is one junior. Most of the other players were jayvees a season ago.

Heading the senior returnees are Co-Captains John McKinnon and Jim Mullaney. Other returning senior starters are Mike Devine, Mike O'Connell, Dave Sullivan, Steve Miller and Bob Brown.

Other seniors are former jayvees Neil McGilvary, Rick Colon, Dave Seagar and Fran McLaughlin, and three who saw a little varsity service, Kevin Roche, Bob Dolbec and Jerry Glynn.

Seniors Jed Phelan and Bob Shea did not play last year but Phelan will be a starter, according to his coach.

Kevin O'Sullivan, a junior, will again be the starting goalie with another junior, Gary Nankin, as his backup. O'Sullivan excelled in goal last year, although only a sophomore, and Ioanilli rates him highly.

"The thing about Kevin is that he always makes the saves he should make and he is very consistent and keeps his cool," the Raider coach said.

Other juniors are Walter Melton and Dave Nesti, while sophomore Peter Donovan from Atlantic-North Junior High is also set for a varsity spot.

Rich O'Brien is back for his second year as junior varsity coach and looks forward to another good season. Both North and Quincy jayvees lost one game last year, breaking even with each other.

B.C. High is the only new team in the association. Returning are North and Quincy, Foxboro, Franklin, Sharon, Norfolk Aggies and Avon.

Larry Courtney In Squantum Semi-Finals

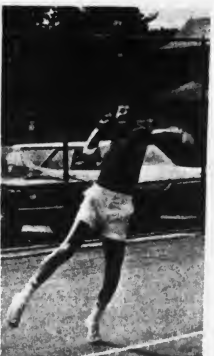

Top-seeded Larry Courtney scored an 11-0 victory over Paul Berrini to move into the semi-final round of the second annual Squantum Invitational Tennis Classic over the weekend.

In other singles action: Paul Ajemian defeated Ed Riley, 11-9; Mike Ryan defeated Dave Laiacona, 11-3; Bill McSweeney defeated Jackie Raymer, 11-9.

Courtney meets Ajemian and second seeded McSweeney plays Ryan in the semi-finals next Saturday [Sept. 15] with the finals on Sunday on the Squantum Public Courts.

The top-seeded doubles team of Doc Kramer and John Reznick whipped Bob Stirling and Ed Conley, 11-7, in the quarterfinals.

Other doubles scores: Mark McGuinness and Dave Laiacona defeated Phil Regganniani and Paul Berrini, 11-10 [5-4]; Larry Courtney

MacDonald, Cazeault Share Maloney Regatta Trophy

Sandy MacDonald of Town River Yacht Club and Chris Cazeault of Wessagusset Yacht Club shared the annual Maloney Sportsmanship Trophy during the Labor Day Turnabout Regatta at Town River.

The trophy was put up by junior members of the Town River YC in memory of David J. Maloney Jr., who died in an automobile accident in December, 1971, shortly after winning that year's regatta.

Regatta results for 1973 include:

Blue Fleet - 1. Chris Cazeault, Wessagusset; 2. Meg Mathisen, Wessagusset; 3. [tie] Susie Bouchard, Wessagusset and Billy Robertson, Town River.

White Fleet - 1. Billy Maloney, Town River; 2. Kathy Mulloy, Wessagusset; 3. John Blazo, Wessagusset.

DAVID MALONEY

Red Fleet - 1. John Gall, Wessagusset; 2. Kathy Given, Wessagusset; 3. Jane Lopes, Wessagusset.

Raiders' Green Line 'Coming Along Well'

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's football team, with a veteran backfield but a green line, is making satisfactory progress, according to Coach Ralph Frazier, and he expects the Raiders to be raring to go in their opener Sept. 22 at Revere.

"We lack experience in the line but we are coming along well," Frazier said. "We have had three scrimmages and I've noted improvement in each. However, we must continue to improve. We can't afford to reach a plateau and stay there. I am pleased with our progress."

As usual, North will be dominated by seniors and will have about 25, which has been the pattern since Frazier took over the reins.

"I honestly feel a team must have an abundance of seniors and our program at North is patterned that way," he said. "The only year we didn't have a senior club was my first and that was my only losing season."

North had a 7-2 mark [tied for second place in the Greater Boston League] last fall, Frazier's best as head coach and it was climaxed by an impressive win over Quincy on Thanksgiving.

With the season's opener only a week away, North's number one offensive club has Mark Reale and Phil Robinson at end, Paul Keeley and Joe Carroll at tackle, Mike White and Steve Constant at guard, Tom Donovan at center, Carl Leone quarterback, John Flynn and Bruce Stephanski halfbacks and Paul O'Donnell fullback.

Carroll has moved over from end and Robinson from halfback, but he will see action at halfback during the season.

Backing up this unit are Joe Wilkinson, Bob Pistorini and Ralph Crevier ends, Bill Driscoll, Chris Costello and Joe Marinelli tackles, Paul Doherty, Steve Pagliarini and Dave Molansky guards, Rich Joyce and Mark Jago center, Stephanski quarterback, Rich Marino and Terry Egan halfbacks and Rich Desmond fullback. Steve Durkin and Mike Meehan are others.

The front runners on defense are O'Donnell and Tom Callahan ends, Pagliarini and Marinelli tackles, Robinson and Ron Frizzell line backers, Donovan middle guard, Egan and George Hill cornermen, Steve Lathrop and Billy Shea halfback or safety and Jack Hatfield safety.

Backing them up are Carroll, White and Jago ends, Keeley and Doherty tackles, Steve Wentzell, Mike Nee, Brett McGrath and Pat Connolly linebackers, Al Kelleher, Mark Donaghue and Bob Boussey cornermen, Rich Marino and Wilkinson halfback or safety and Flynn safety.

"We have a small team and must rely a great deal on speed," Frazier continued. "But, although the boys are small they have a lot of desire and I think we will have a team the fans can be proud of."

Girls' Basketball At Junior Highs Oct. 2

Girls' basketball in the Quincy junior high schools will officially make its bow on Oct. 2.

All the junior high schools will have teams for the first time and they will be closely watched by the high school coaches, Barbara Webster of Quincy and Gale Palmer of North Quincy.

A year ago Quincy won the Greater Boston League championship with North second and both coaches are delighted with the advent of junior high girls' basketball.

"You need a good junior high program if you want to have strong high school teams," Miss Palmer said. "We have been fortunate in the past few years but to consistently have good teams, you must have the girls learning in junior high."

Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone, a strong believer in junior high sports and girls' sports, announced that coaches for each junior high team have been named.

"We decided to have basketball in the fall because there were no formal sports program for the girls and it also gives the high school coaches a chance to keep their eyes on the girls," Leone explained.

The opening games on Oct. 2 will have Central playing at Sterling and Atlantic-North at Broad Meadows. On Oct. 4 Broad Meadows will be at Sterling and Central at Point.

Junior Baseball League Schedules Tryouts

The Quincy Junior Baseball Leagues will hold tryouts for boys ages 9 through 15 years during the next two weekends [Sept. 15-16 and Sept. 22-23] at Artery Field and Merrymount Field.

Sessions will break down like this:

9-year-olds - Artery Field, Saturday [Sept. 15] at 9 a.m. and Sunday [Sept. 16] at 1:30 p.m.

10-year-olds - Artery Field, Saturday [Sept. 15] at 2 p.m., and Sunday [Sept. 16] at 4 p.m.

11-year-olds - Artery Field, Saturday [Sept. 22] at 9 a.m. and Sunday [Sept. 23] at 1:30 p.m.

12-year-olds - Artery Field, Saturday [Sept. 22] at 2 p.m. and Sunday [Sept. 23] at 4 p.m.

13-year-olds - Merrymount Field, Saturday [Sept. 15] at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

14-year-olds - Merrymount Field, Sunday [Sept. 16] at 1:30 p.m.

15-year-olds - Merrymount Field, Sunday [Sept. 16] at 3:30 p.m.

Cancellations due to heavy rain or very wet fields will be announced over Radio WIDA.

Commissioner Robert Woodman announced that any boys who missed the league registration will be allowed to register at the tryout sessions.

8-year-old boys will not try out but will be assigned to the Junior Farm League and will be notified by the team manager.

Bantams Belt Hingham 8-1

Jim Shea had two goals and Dave Previte collected a goal and two assists Tuesday, Sept. 4, as the Quincy Bantams overwhelmed Hingham, 8-1, in an exhibition hockey game at the new Quincy rink.

Tom Cahill, Jim McConville, Jack Cavanaugh, Brian Watts and Mark Paolucci had the other

Quincy goals.

John Cooney had two assists and Mike McGrath, Rick Dannar, Cavanaugh and Cahill had one each.

MINUTE MAN CLASSIC - Jim Wright, Inwood, N.Y. pro (far left); joins playing partners Raymond J. Foster of R. J. Foster & Associates, Centerville and John T. Rielly, Jr., of the Riley and Reilly Insurance Agency of Quincy on the first tee at the Nashawtuc Country Club in Concord. Wright walked off the course with the $10,000 first prize. The recently completed $50,000 tournament is the richest non-tour event in the nation.

Morton No. 2 At Holy Cross

Bobby Morton, last year's North Quincy quarterback, has moved into the number two quarterback spot on the Holy Cross football team which last week upset favored U. of Massachusetts, 30-28.

Morton, although only a freshman, was due to see a lot of action on defense for the Crusaders but made rapid strides on offense to move up behind the outstanding starter, Pete Vass, who threw for two touchdowns and passed for 235 yards last week.

At North, Morton was a defensive standout for three years. Last year he moved in as starting quarterback but did only a limited amount of passing until late in the season. When he did take to the air he did an excellent job.

Holy Cross Coach Eddie Doherty has expressed his pleasure at the former Raider's performance.

White Sox Call Varney

It is too bad the Red Sox don't play the Chicago White Sox again this year.

If they did, it is possible Quincy's Pete Varney would be catching against them.

When Chicago last week decided to take Dick Allen off the active list for the rest of the season due to an injury, it called the American League.

Varney up from its Triple A team in Iowa. The former North Quincy High and Harvard star had his troubles hitting a year ago but this year, when promoted to the top farm club, he began to hit well and White Sox officials predicted he would soon be catching for the parent team in the American League.

Well's 13-Run Splurge Evens Semi-Finals Playoffs Series

Well's Grille came up with 13 runs in the final two innings to clobber Marcel Corp., 17-7, and even their semi-final series at one game apiece in the Quincy Softball League playoffs last week.

Well's collected 11 extra base hits in the rout as Bob Swirbalus, Billy Towle and Bob Pettinelli each had three hits. Pettinelli's were two doubles and a triple.

Bill Jennings had two hits for Marcel, which jumped out to a five run lead in the first inning. In the first game of the series, Marcel's Bill Plante limited Well's to five scattered hits and blanked the opposition over the last five innings in chalking up a 6-4 win.

Bill Armstrong and Joe Pettiti showed the way with two hits each as Marcel rallied to overcome a 4-2 deficit with four runs in the third inning.

Ed Hutchins had two hits for Well's.

Barry's Ship Haven held off a late surge by A & T Movers to take an 11-10 victory in the opener of their semi-final series. Red Ferrand and Ted Stevenson went three-for-three for Ships Haven while Tony Camillo also had three hits, including a home run.

Ken McPhee smashed a home run for A & T and Buster Loud had three hits as a four-run A & T rally in the final inning fell one run short.

Ships Haven gained the semi-final with an 11-5 win over Dee Dee's as Ferrand went four-for-four and Willy Cunniff went three-for-three. Bob Kelley and John Babson both homered.

Jack Bryan, Bear Bryan and Mucker Graham each had three hits for Dee Dee's.

The contest was close for three innings when Ships Haven scored four runs in the fourth and four more in the fifth to break the game open.

Offense Clicking

Quincy Defense Strong

Quincy's football team apparently will be strong defensively this fall and Coach Hank Conroy is pleased with the way the offense has improved as the Presidents continue working hard for the Sept. 22 opener with Weymouth South.

"We started out much stronger on defense but we moved the ball much better in our second scrimmage against Boston Tech than in our opener at Dedham," Conroy said. "Nine of the boys who started on defense over the second half of last season are back, so we are experienced there. Last year, with Paul Creedon at quarterback, we were mainly a passing team but I am trying to get a much better running game going and the boys have been coming along well in this department."

and Bob O'Neil guards and Fred Donahue, big transfer from Abp. Williams, center.

Among those battling for jobs on offense are Joe Tocchio, Steve Burke and Jim Forrester at quarterback, Steve Oriola, Pete Ramponi, Joe Cortez and Rick Hennessy at halfback, Paul Coner at fullback, Paul Riggs and Terry O'Dea ends, Bob Pettiti, Bob Glibody, John Campbell, Doug King and Bob Ross tackles, Gary Moore, Gerry Durante and George Condos guards and Mike Donovan center.

"Although these are the top candidates for the offensive unit, several other boys are being given a shot at earning a spot and some of them may make it," the Quincy coach said.

Several of the offensive players will double up on defense including Sten at tackle, Varrasso, O'Neil and King at tackle, Pettiti and Glibody at middle guard, Riggs, Coner, Durante and McDermott at line backer and Follino, Benn, and O'Dea at defensive back.

Among other defensive hopefuls are Jeff Little, Arnold Vorrasso and Bob Oliver at end, John Columbus at middle guard, Rick Palumbo, Billy Joyce, Carl Awed, Ron Doucette, Mike McKenzie, Bob Ponder [Wayne's brother], Dave GoslinRick Hebert and Bob Laneau as defensive backs. Conroy will pick his safety men from among the defensive backs.

"We weren't able to accomplish all we hoped for because of the oppressive heat during the first week of practice, but I think we have made good progress," Conroy said. "We might have done better in our scrimmages if I had concentrated on the top boys as many coaches do. But, I've continued to use many boys both on offense and defense, trying to find some depth."

Conroy feels a big reason his team is making rapid strides is the fact the players returned in excellent condition. He said they reported in the best shape in years.

9 Return To Quincy Soccer

Last fall Quincy's soccer team had only three returnees from the 1971 undefeated [12-0] Norfolk Association champions but the Presidents went on to record their second unbeaten season in a row and another title.

This year Coach Ron Martin has reason to again be optimistic as he has nine regulars back from last year's club, including his outstanding goalie, Mike Cullen.

"We have a strong nucleus and we should have another good season, but most of the other teams in our association will be stronger and I expect plenty of trouble," Martin said.

Martin has three strong halfbacks from last year's club, Bob Boyle, Bob Sullivan and Marco DiCenzo.

Also returning are several veteran forwards, all of whom had excellent seasons a year ago. They are Tony Michaelangelo, the Ranalli twins, Steve and Massimo, Tom Tasney and John Sweeney.

The Ranalli twins are from Italy and have been in this country for five years while Tasney is a Vietnamese who also has been in the United States for five years.

Martin will also rely on Bob Gordon, Charlie Djerf, Mark Ramondi and Brian Mitchell to give the Presidents some depth.

"This just about makes up our varsity squad and most of our other 40 candidates will play on the junior varsity," Martin said.

The jayvees, incidentally, have had outstanding success the past two years under Charles McLaughlin. They were 10-0 two years ago and lost only one game last fall.

Quincy opens its season today [Thursday] with a home game against Foxboro. Tuesday it plays at Sharon. All home games again will be played at the soccer field behind Veterans Memorial Stadium.

B.C. High is a new addition to the league this year. Returning are Quincy, North Quincy, Foxboro, Franklin, Norfolk Aggies, Sharon and Avon.

First Beano Night Nets Philip Heleotis Fund $632

The first organized event, a beano night at St. Boniface Church in Germantown, netted the Philip Heleotis Fund $632.10 Monday night, it was announced today.

Mrs. Eleanor Woodward, one of the leaders of the fund-raising committee, called the evening "very successful".

The fund is to aid Philip Heleotis, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Heleotis of 35 Hilltop St., West Quincy, who suffered a paralyzing neck injury in a swimming pool accident July 6.

The next fund-raising event is a dance Sept. 21 at the Carlton House in North Quincy, featuring the music of Baron Hugo's orchestra and the entertainment of comedian, singer and banjo artist Paul O'Donnell.

Tickets are still available and there will be a meeting of the committee next Wednesday (Sept. 19) to wind up ticket sales.

Monday's beano night was so successful that at least three more are planned.

St. Boniface Church hall was donated for the beano by Rev. Gerald Osterman and equipment was loaned by Rev. John McMahon of St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

Prizes were donated by: Turnstyle, Star Market, Brigham's Ice Cream, Standard Brands of Westwood, John's Fruit Store, Mr. Donut of Weymouth, Braintree and Quincy, Ursula Ahern, Rita McDonald, Barker's Stationery, Jerry Coletta, Doris Perkins and Frances Taylor.

At a committee meeting last Thursday (Sept. 6) plans were set in motion by Rep. Thomas Brownell [D-Quincy] to obtain the Surf Ballroom at Nantasket for a rock dance for the benefit of the fund.

Also nine members of the committee agreed to serve as a corporation for the fund for tax, legal and ancillary purposes.

Mrs. Woodward said that replies to letters have been received from the governors of Maryland, Virginia and Florida, wishing Philip a speedy recovery.

She said the fund has received a $10 check from Rep. James A. Burke [D-Milton] and that Rep. Joseph Brett sent her a clipping from the Elks Magazine with a story about the fund.

It has been agreed to keep the fund headquarters at the home of Mrs. Woodward, 10 Mount Vernon St., West Quincy, to avoid the expense of placing a business phone in donated office space.

MONEY TALKS

A Wealthy Man's 5-P Formula for Success

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Holbrook
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

"The trouble with most people when it comes to money is that they want to make it all at once," said this well-to-do, retired gentleman. "They feel they have to make a 'killing'."

We recalled hearing more than one rich person say that their key to success was getting started. "Of course!" exclaimed our retired friend. "I wasn't ashamed to put away my first $5 and keep adding to it—a little at a time."

He said his formula for financial success could be summed up in what he called "The Five Ps."

The first is "Point of View." It takes an attitude toward life as a whole, he feels, to serve as a solid basis for gaining financial success. You have to be astute enough to realize that money worries are at the base of most ills. They can be tied up with poor health, family discord, reduced working efficiency and, ultimately, divorce and crime.

"Freedom from financial worry brings the sunshine into households," our friend said. "And this freedom depends not nearly so much on how much you earn as on how much you save."

We were reminded of a survey showing that savers can be found on all economic levels.

The second P of our friend is Purpose — the motivating factor that prompts a saver to get going. But—and here our friend became animated—"most people are so shortsighted in their Purpose for saving that they are better described as 'deferred spenders.'"

The first thing anyone should save for, said our friend, is a financial reserve substantial enough to get him or his family, if he has one, over emergency situations. This nest egg should be readily available whenever needed. It should not be subject to fluctuations in value.

"Practically any expert in investments or economics will tell you that before you start getting fancy with your savings you should accumulate a reserve approximating six months' earnings — just for emergency purposes."

"You will not get speculative with this money. It is a nest egg you will guard jealously against temptations to spend. Invasion of this reserve — aside from the emergency condition for which it has been set up — will be made only when the opportunity at hand is too good to resist and the means of restoring the amount taken can be foreseen."

"In a savings institution like yours, with ready availability and non-fluctuation in value, this six-month reserve will mean added earning power. It will produce, in dividends, the equivalent of a full week's salary."

Only at this point, our friend suggested, are you ready for special-purpose saving. Such purposes can range from the color TV to longer-range objectives like the down payment on a home, the children's education or retirement.

Over 25,000 Meals Served

Hot Lunch Programs Marks Second Anniversary Today

The Senior Citizen Hot Lunch Program, 95 Martensen St., serving meals five days a week, will mark its second anniversary today.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon will join the program patrons in extending congratulations to the staff for the job they have done during the past two years.

Since its beginning in September 1971, the Hot Lunch Program has served more than 25,000 meals to the city's senior population at 50 cents per meal.

Free bus service is available from the senior citizens housing facilities and from City Hall each day. Present estimates indicate that more than 16,000 meals will be served during 1973.

The program staff, Mrs. Marion Pearson, director, Mrs. Mary Fisher, assistant director, Mrs. Jennie Nigro and Mr. Mel Christian invite all senior citizens to join them for lunch.

Nite Out For Nursing Home Patients Sept. 20

Representatives from Quincy senior citizens clubs and nursing homes will meet with Mrs. Marion Andrews, Director, Senior Citizens Activities, for the Quincy Recreation Department, Friday at 1 p.m. at the Kennedy Health Center Auditorium to plan the sixth in a series of Nite Outs for nursing home patients.

The Nite Out will be held Sept. 20, at the George F. Bryan VFW Post Home. Refreshments will be provided and served by a committee of senior citizens club members. The city's 22 Senior Citizens Clubs and 10 Nursing Homes will participate in the event.

The last "Nite Out" last April was attended by more than 250 persons, 200 of them patients and the remainder committee members and nursing home personnel.

Entertainment will be provided. Patient transportation is arranged by the Nursing Homes.

The St. John's Women's Club will open its 1973-74 season with a covered dish supper at 6:30 p.m., Monday, Sept. 17 in the rectory social hall.

After the supper a business meeting will be held, the executive board will be introduced and the 1973-74 program will be presented.

New members will be welcomed by Mrs. James Buttomer, President.

Other programs for the season will include a Christmas Bazaar Nov. 17, and Jan. 28 a wine tasting party with Mrs. Maurice Randall as chairman.

The Investiture Ceremony for the new Brownies and Girl Scouts will be Feb. 3 at 3 p.m. March 10 is the Mother-Daughter Communion Supper with Mrs. James Buttomer as chairman.

On March 25 Regina Russell entertains the club at a regular meeting with her card readings. Mrs. Russell Fruzzetti will be chairman. On April 22 a Whist party is planned.

The annual Field Day will be held May 11 on the school and church grounds.

Purpose of the Women's Club is to promote the furtherance of the Girl Scout program within the parish and to provide financial support to the youth in various organizations such as the CYO, baseball and softball programs, the basketball program, pre-cana, hockey, Jr. Renegades Drum and Bugle Corps. It also makes contributions to the St. John's School and Parish.

Officers of the club are Mrs. James Buttomer, president; Mrs. Joseph Saltalamacchia, first vice president; Mrs. Joseph Connolly, second vice president; Mrs. Morgan O'Shea, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ray Hall, recording secretary; and Mrs. John Nee, treasurer. Spiritual director is Rev. Joseph Connolly.

Mrs. Putnam Borden is the Women's Club representative to the parish activities commission. The advisory board includes Mrs. Maurice Randall, Mrs. Russell Fruzzetti, Mrs. Paul Ricca and Mrs. Ben Williams.

Michael Garroway Director Of Music At St. John's

Michael L. Garroway, a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, with a Masters Degree in Music, has been appointed Director of Music for St. John's Parish.

This Centennial Year is a year of celebration for the community of St. John's Parish.

Garroway said he believes there are many ways in which the joy of the occasion can be augmented by the performance of music.

All those who would like to participate in a "Renaissance of Music" at St. John's are welcome to attend the meeting and rehearsal.

Brownell Urges Democrats Take Part In Telethon

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] has urged local Democrats to participate in Saturday's Democratic National Telethon as an answer to the Watergate scandal.

The telethon to raise money for the Democratic party will be seen on the NBC-TV network from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday. Said Brownell:

"I am strongly supporting this drive because I feel it is a real chance to reform political fund raising by offering Americans a real chance to take government out of the hands of the special interests that have traditionally financed campaigns.

"This is a golden opportunity to demonstrate the Democratic party's dedication to reforming the political fund raising process. The Watergate scandal is concrete evidence that this reform is sorely needed."

10,000 Ask Probe Of State Mental Hospitals

A petition bearing more than 10,000 signatures, several hundred of them from Quincy, has been presented to Gov. Francis W. Sargent calling for an investigation into alleged abuses of patients in the state's mental hospitals.

The petition was circulated by the Church of Scientology of Boston, which cited "numerous reports and media stories regarding psychosurgery, abuse of electric shock treatment and overuse of drugs in mental institutions".

Dr. Tardanico Heads Chiropactic Committee

'How Safe Is Our Food?'Topic For Emphysema Club

"How Safe Is Our Food?" will be the topic of the Sept. 18 meeting of the Emphysema Club for residents of Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, and nearby South Shore communities.

The meeting, sponsored by the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, will be at 7 p.m. in the Tufts Library, 46 Broad St., Weymouth.

Miss Yolana Harsanyi, Consumer Affairs Officer from the Food and Drug Administration, will discuss such topics as food labeling and food in relation to health.

The Emphysema Club, which meets monthly, was designed to provide those with chronic respiratory disease with pertinent information about their illness, as well as to encourage mutual assistance with others who have the same condition. Club members pay no dues, since the Club is supported by contributions to the Christmas Seal campaign. Family members and friends are also invited to the meetings.

Those interested in obtaining further information about the Emphysema Club or the upcoming meeting can contact the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association at 326-4081 or come directly to the meeting.

Diet Workshop To Hold Open Houses Next Week

The Quincy Diet Workshop has designated the week of Sept. 17 as Open House Week on the South Shore.

Free open houses will be held: Monday at 7:30 p.m. and Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. at Temple Adas Shalom, Adams St.; Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. at the YMCA, Coddington St.; and on Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m., at the Atlantic Memorial Church, North Quincy. The public is welcome to attend without obligation.

These Open Houses will provide an opportunity to see first hand this successful method of losing weight. The liberal diet [nutritionally balanced by Dr. Morton B. Glenn of New York, medical advisor to The Diet Workshop] has been combined with mild, optional exercises, good tasting recipes for the whole family, and the moral support of group participation.

Men, women and teenagers will be welcome to join at the conclusion of the Open House and at future meetings.

Brownell To Meet With Constituents

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy], will be at City Hall Sept. 17 to meet with constituents between the hours of 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

Brownell said he is making these evening hours available primarily for working people who may not be able to call or meet with him during normal business hours at either his State House or Quincy offices.

Brownell represents the First Norfolk District in the state legislature. It includes the areas of Hough's Neck, Germantown, Adams Shore, Merrymount, the downtown business area, and Hospital Hill.

Flooding Solutions To Be Aired At Point Hearing Sept. 19

The three most feasible alternatives for eliminating flooding in the Hayward Creek watershed will be discussed at a public meeting Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Pollard School, Quincy Point.

"These proposals respond to the request of officials and the citizenry for solutions to flooding problems," Colonel John H. Mason of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said.

"We have examined the views and suggestions offered by the public at the meeting held in June 1972 in developing these alternative plans for the Hayward Creek watershed.

"Again, we are cordially inviting all interested parties to the public meeting Sept. 19.

"We are seeking additional, new views and public approval of the most popular plan. The purpose of the meeting is to incorporate public desires in plan formulation and in the selection of the most desirable alternative."

The proposals to be offered for discussion are:

- Construction of outlet works at Hayward Pond; some channel improvement; installation of conduit to supplement the existing Hayward Creek drainage system from Quincy Avenue through the General Dynamics Shipyard to Fore River.

- Increase the flood storage capacity of Hayward Pond by raising the elevation of the pond 5.5 feet; augment the drainage system by increasing the capacity of Hayward Creek to carry discharge from the Pond to Fore River.

- Increase flood storage as described in Plan 2 by storing water in the wetlands upstream; construct a low dam to provide the required storage in the natural valley; discharge capacity of Hayward Creek would be increased to a lesser degree than under Plan 2.

The study is being conducted under congressional authority resulting from a resolution sponsored by Congressman James A. Burke and adopted Dec. 2, 1970 by the Congress. This is the first report of an estimated $500,000 study to consider improvement on Hayward Creek, Furnace Brook, and Town Brook. The Hayward Creek report is scheduled to be submitted to the Chief of Engineers late this year, Colonel Mason said.

The Furnace and Town Brook watersheds will be considered separately at future meetings. The Furnace Brook study is scheduled for completion in mid-1974 and the Town Brook study report is anticipated for completion in the spring of 1976, according to the Colonel.

Civic Affairs Forum For HN Council On Sept. 18

The Houghs Neck Community Council will hold a forum on civic affairs at the season's first open meeting on Sept. 18, at 8 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Legion Post Home, 1116 Sea St.

William Nugent, new president, will preside.

Tickets for the Oct. 16 "Good Neighbors" banquet will be available. Balloting for candidates will be continued through Sept. 22, a change in date.

Workshops For Secondary Schools

Tuesday afternoon teacher workshops in the Quincy secondary schools are planned for Sept. 18, and on the second Tuesday of each month, Oct. 9, through May 8, according to Arthur S. Woodward, Coordinator of Secondary Schools.

Emphasis is to be placed on the Student Centered Learning System in the junior and senior high schools and also on preparation for Variable Flexible Scheduling and Comprehensive-ness at the senior high level. The September meeting will deal with testing, for teachers of grades 4, 6, 8, and 10.

On the days of the workshops, junior high students are to be dismissed at noon, and at the senior high schools students are to be dismissed at 12:30 p.m.

Barilaro Plan Approved But - -

McLelland Vows Court Action In '74 For New Ward Plan

By TOM HENSHAW

There may be a court-ordered truce in Quincy's redistricting hassle but indications are that the battle is far from over.

Federal Judge Andrew Caffery accepted Monday the six-ward plan advanced by Councillor Albert R. Barilaro and approved by the City Council, and then the judge shut off all further debate on this issue that has plagued Quincy since June.

Thus, the preliminary municipal elections will be held as planned on Nov. 6 and the final balloting will take place on Dec. 4 - but after that it's every man for himself.

"The judge, in essence, overruled a state statute that would have barred us from redistricting again until 1980," said Councillor Theophilus McLelland III, whose political foothold in Ward 3 was wiped out under the Barilaro Plan.

"He set a precedent so that we can redistrict again before 1980, possibly as early as the first of the year when the new City Council meets for the first time."

Will McLelland take the lead in resuming the redistricting fight?

"If no one else starts it, I will," he promised.

A number of others were unhappy with the Barilaro Plan, which divided the old Ward 3 precincts among Councillor Clifford Marshall's Ward 2 and Barilaro's Ward 4 and hacked a brand new Ward 3 out of parts of old Wards 1, 5 and 6.

Pat DiStefano, a resident of old Ward 3 and a candidate for school committee, denounced it as a "ruthless, self-centered, infamous" plan that "ends a socio-cultural tradition which has endured for over 100 years."

DiStefano said he plans to form a Quincy Civic Association to insure "that the people of South Quincy shall vividly remember who it was that fractured their neighborhoods come election day."

Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia was unhappy with the Barilaro Plan, too. He said he voted for it in the Council because it "met political needs," that is, it avoided a situation in which all councillors would have to run at-large.

Atty. Douglas A. Randall, a former city solicitor under Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa whose suit on behalf of some members of the Ward 6 Republican Club in June started the whole hassle, was less than ecstatic over the plan, too.

He said he signed the agreement ending the suit only because it brought the city's wards into acceptable limits under the one-man, one vote principle enunciated by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Barilaro Plan was one of nine proposed at a meeting of the City Council last Friday, two weeks after the city's voters

Lions Club Establishing Capt. Brudno Scholarship

The Quincy Lions Club is establishing a scholarship fund in memory of the late Capt. Edward A. Brudno, former Vietnam POW who died last June.

A special committee, headed by former School Committee Vice-Chairman James F. McCormick has been meeting to set up the scholarship.

The club is inviting other service clubs to participate in the fund.

Capt. Brudno's father, Dr. James Brudno of Buckingham Rd., Wollaston is a charter member of the Quincy Lions Club.

Captain Brudno's Air Force Phantom jet was shot down in October, 1965. He was released with other POW's in February.

He was found dead in New York in June.

Serving on the scholarship committee with McCormick are George Riley, City Auditor Alexander Smith and James Sullivan of the South Shore National Bank.

The fund will be established at that bank.

5,300 Free Flu Shots

The Quincy Health Department administered about 5,300 free flu shots to Quincy resident adults and children over five years old Saturday afternoon at the John F. Kennedy Health Center.

Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney called it "a tremendous clinic."

He said he expects as many as 5,000 more will obtain the shots at free clinics for senior citizens which began Tuesday and will continue until Oct. 15 at different locations around the city.

Many more, said Dr.

Mahoney, will get shots privately from their family doctors.

Two strains of flu, similar to the London and Hong Kong strains of a few years ago, are expected to strike Massachusetts in epidemic proportions around Thanksgiving.

Brett Requests Montclair 'Officer On Beat'

Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] has appealed to Mayor Walter J. Hannon for an "officer on the beat" in the Montclair area where, he said, vandalism and burglary is getting steadily worse.

"The local drug store has been subjected to damage and attempted break-ins on several recent occasions," Brett wrote to the Mayor. "Other merchants and residents in the area are greatly concerned."

"For a while, through your assistance, Montclair had a full-time foot patrolman but there is none at the present time.

"As I see it, the only answer to these problems is the 'officer on the beat' who knows what is going on in the neighborhoods and who is doing what."

Many To Help At Phil Heleotis Fund Dance

Even if you don't want to dance it's worth the admission just to come and eat and be entertained for a good cause at the Philip Heleotis Fund Dance Friday night at the Carlton House in North Quincy.

provided by Baron Hugo and his orchestra, entertainment by banjo comedian Paul O'Donnell, and food for the midnight breakfast by so many people that it resembles a family picnic.

The dance is the second major event in the campaign to raise funds for Philip [Tiny] Heleotis, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Heleotis of 35 Hilltop St., West Quincy, who suffered a paralyzing neck injury in a swimming pool accident July 6.

TURNING THE TABLES -- Quincy Sun reporter Paul Feldman [left] interviews Steve Del Rosso of North Quincy High School and Ken Tutunjian and Bob Raser of Quincy High School who have spent the summer interviewing political and news media figures for a slide-audio tape documentary on the passage of a Quincy High School initiated voter registration bill.

Example For Adults

High School Students Spend Summer Making Voter Legislation Documentary

By PAUL FELDMAN

Some experts have suggested that horrors like Watergate and the Vietnam War would not have happened if the people knew more about the political system in America and were more involved in the political process.

So it's nice to know that this summer a group of high school students from Quincy are spending much of their time, with no compensation, getting together a presentation to explain to other students how the state legislative process works.

It started this year when a group of Quincy High School students led by Ron Iacobucci participated in drafting and passing a law to provide for voter registration sessions in high schools and vocational schools in Massachusetts. Senate Clerk Norman Pidgeon labelled it the first bill originated and lobbied for by high school students ever signed into law.

And this summer, Ken Tutunjian and Bob Raser of QHS, and Steve DelRosso of NQHS, with the help of Iacobucci who graduated in June, are making a slide-tape presentation to show how a bill is passed, based on the successful voter registration bill.

"So many kids are uninformed on how a bill is passed, we decided to show how the system works," says Tutunjian.

The four students are working on the project in conjunction with the Quincy High School Social Studies Department and the office of Senator Arthur Tobin [D-Quincy].

So far, they have interviewed over a dozen key, school, media and political figures involved with the passage of the voter registration bill and have worked with a professional photographer taking slides to illustrate how the bill was passed.

Among those interviewed have been Paul Harold, head of the Mass. Young Democrats who lobbied for the bill, Senator Arthur Tobin who introduced the bill on the Senate floor, City Clerk John Gillis who helped register almost 400 Quincy High School students in voter registration drives last year and Henry Bosworth of The Quincy Sun who gave extensive coverage to the bill in his paper's high school page.

Others interviewed include

Secretary of State Francis X. Davoren, Patriot Ledger reporter Ann Jacobs, Senate President Kevin Harrington, Speaker of the House David Bartley, Lobbyist Dick Koch of CPP PAX, Senate Clerk Norman Pidgeon and Senate Counsel James McIntyre, former Quincy Mayor and State Senator.

The documentary, which will take until at least the end of the year to complete, will be shown to Quincy High School Social Studies classes.

"And if it's good enough," says Bob Raser, "we hope it will be distributed across the state to other high schools."

The students are quick to extend credit to the Quincy High School Social Studies Department. "The teachers are interested in getting involved and this is how the new law and the slide-tape project got started," says Ron Iacobucci.

Steve DelRosso of North says that he is optimistic that his school will become involved in such worthwhile projects this year.

The registration bill, which was passed by the state legislature July 2, strengthens earlier registration laws according to Iacobucci. Previously, ten voters at a factory, office or school could petition for a registration session at their school or place of work.

But this law discriminated against high school students since most of them are under 18 and could not sign a petition for a registration session.

The Quincy High School sponsored law says that if 25 unregistered students petition the principal of their school, a registration session must be held.

The students have found their experience making the slide-tape extremely enlightening.

Bob Raser says, "I've learned a lot. It's especially interesting finding different people's views on the same subjects."

"It's better than textbook learning," says Steve DelRosso.

And Ken Tutunjian agrees, adding, "You're learning on the job this way."

McLelland Vows New Court Action

rejected a referendum that would have carved up the city into eight wards.

The Barilaro Plan, the first one brought up at the meeting, was accepted by a 6-3 vote [McLelland, Marshall and Councillor John Quinn opposing]. None of the other plans was even considered.

McLelland tried to present a 10th plan to Judge Caffrey Monday but the federal jurist declined to hear it.

"They say justice is blind," said McLelland bitterly. "Well, it was very blind and very cold that day in my opinion."

McLelland said he had not yet made up his mind if he was going to run for the council seat now held by Marshall.

"I will run for public office," he said. "By no means am I out of politics."

"I plan to run for State Representative next year."

"I feel that I can still contribute greatly to the city. I feel that I have contributed much in the two short years that I have been in office. So I will attempt to maintain my political position in the community."

Meanwhile, it was ruled that all candidates who have already taken out nomination papers, including those running for mayor, school committee and at-large council seats, will have to do it all over again.

The papers must be filed by Oct. 2, five weeks before the preliminary election.

In the first day that the papers were available from the Election Department, 11 would-be candidates picked them up. They were:

Mayor - George A. Trubiano, 123 Madison Ave.

Council - Ward 1 - Paul D. Harold, 31 Riverside Ave.;

Ward 2 - Patrick J. Faherty Jr., 47 Faxon Park Rd.

Ward 3 - John J. Lydon Jr., 468 Beale St.; James J. Vey, 11 Ruthven St.

Ward 5 - Warren A. Powers, 3 Grand View Terrace.

Ward 6 - Dennis E. Harrington, 211 Billings Rd.; J. Vincent Smyth, 184

Landsdowne St.

At Large - Helen M. McDonnell, 249 Newbury St.

School Committee - Sidney M. Ober, 465 Adams St.

All of them had taken out papers prior to Judge Caffrey's redistricting decision. Faherty had filed for council from Ward 3, Lydon from Ward 5, and Vey from Ward 6. Their wards were changed in the redistricting.

Also Ronald L. Halter of 119 Federal Ave., who originally took out papers for Ward 3, announced that he will run for the City Council from his new Ward 4.

In announcing his candidacy, Lydon noted that his home on Beale Street is now located in the center of the new Ward 3.

"Although the district does seem diverse," he said, "the plan is commendable in that it maintains the three neighborhood areas, Montclair, Upper Wollaston and Cranch Hill."

"Having once been a resident of Montclair and a present resident of Upper Wollaston, I feel that my perceptions of the problems which confront the areas are broad based and accurate."

It's nice to know that at least one person is happy with the new plan.

UNITED WAY AGENCIES participating in a luncheon meeting of South Shore agencies that are members of the United Way to outline plans for the coming campaign and to explain change in name from United Fund to United Way of Massachusetts Bay are [seated] left, Mr. Joseph T. Alves, executive director, Family Counselling Agency, and George Rockwell, president State Street Bank and campaign chairman and Atty. Stephen T. Keefe of Quincy, south area executive board chairman.

$239,295 New Wiring During August

The Quincy Department of Wire Inspection made 230 inspections, issued 122 permits and collected fees of $1,629.75 for wiring estimated to cost $239,295 during the month of August.

Wire Inspector William H. Pitts also reported 16 wiring defects noted, 21 reinspections, three fire calls and 83 certificates of approval from Mass Electric.

The major wiring projects for the month were a 20-unit condominium at 215 Upland Rd and a 56-unit apartment building at 33 Furnace Ave.

- Over The Oil Barrel
- Financial Crisis In Schools
- Lip Service To Reforms

WASHINGTON — For the sake of Middle East oil, President Nixon is prepared to show more sympathy for the Arab cause.

In the past, he has ignored warnings from the State Department that Saudi Arabia literally had the United States over a barrel — the oil barrel. Saudi Arabia alone has enough oil reserves to save the United States from a critical shortage of gasoline and fuel oil.

The State Department has pleaded that Saudi Arabia would like to be aligned with America, that Egypt has thrown out its Soviet military advisers and that the Saudi-Egyptian axis could keep the Arab world from turning against the West.

But the least the Saudis and Egyptians would expect, the State Department has warned, would be support in gaining concessions from Israel.

Last year was an election year, and President Nixon didn't want to antagonize Jewish voters. Therefore, he ignored the State Department's appeals. In return, The Israeli ambassador made a public statement about Nixon's friendship toward Israel. This helped to win Nixon more Jewish votes than any Republican has received in the past quarter-century.

But now, the President is more concerned with solving the oil crisis. He has told friends that his appointment of Henry Kissinger, a Jew, to be secretary of state should make it possible politically for him to shift closer to the Arab side.

One move he is considering is a tax on contributions, which go to support foreign countries. This would be aimed at the United Jewish Appeal, which raises tax-free donations to aid Israel.

President Nixon has suddenly become very oil-minded.

Crisis in Education: The nation's schools are facing a financial crisis. In many communities, racial integration and liberal teaching have raised parents' hackles. The public, therefore, has turned down property taxes, which are urgently needed to pay school bills.

As a result, many schools across the nation are opening without sufficient funds to keep them going through the school year. Other schools have been forced to make drastic cutbacks. Special teachers and guidance counselors have been dropped. This has left an oversupply of teachers.

Black teachers, who used to teach in all-black schools, are finding it difficult to get jobs in the newly integrated schools.

The average teacher's salary is still less than $10,000 a year, far less than the average carpenter, plumber, brick layer or truck driver is paid.

Student services have also been cut back. Classes have been enlarged. Less private counseling is available. Some schools have also been forced to close their cafeterias.

Congress is expected to come to the rescue with $900 million to aid elementary and secondary education. But President Nixon has already vetoed four previous education bills. He is not expected to accept this one.

Meanwhile, Americans continue to spend more on frivolity than education.

Feeding Inflation Fires: Commodity prices have just taken the biggest jump since price controls were removed after World War II. This has the public far more upset than the Watergate scandal ever did. An alarmed President Nixon, therefore, has tried to blame the price rise on Congress.

To give weight to his words, he vetoed a bill that would have increased the minimum wage. He argued that a higher minimum wage would feed the fires of inflation. He has shown more interest, however, in holding down the wages of the poor than the profits of the rich.

Soaring oil income, interest rates and other profits — which benefit the rich — also feed the fires of inflation.

The truth is that the President's economic advisers have been giving him poor advice. His top expert on inflation, Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz, told him that an open marketplace would keep inflation in check. The President's chief economic adviser, Herbert Stein, also argued against government controls.

Both advisers forecast that the inflation rate could be curbed. This led the President to pledge to reduce the 1973 inflation rate below three per cent. During the first six months, the inflation rate shot above an annual eight per cent almost three times what his advisers anticipated.

In desperation, the President slapped on an emergency price freeze during the summer. But the price pressures are now blowing the lid off the economy. The President is trying to lay the blame on Congress. But it's his own economic advisers who have been wrong.

Lip Service: The illegal use of campaign contributions for spying and burglary has politicians of every shade again paying lip service to reforms.

But while they mouth pieties to the people, many are working behind the scenes to cripple or kill meaningful reforms.

Neither the Democratic nor Republican leaders in Congress are enthusiastic enough about campaign spending reforms to lead the fight. For their campaigns are bankrolled by fat-cat businessmen or powerful unions.

So far, reformers in the House haven't even been able to get a hearing this year, because House administration chairman Wayne Hays is dragging his feet. Just last week, he called off hearings again.

In the Senate, hearings are scheduled later this month. But the showdown will be in the House.

Representatives John Anderson, an Illinois Republican, and Morris Udall, an Arizona Democrat, are leading the fight for financial reform. Their bill would provide for an independent elections commission, a limit on individual contributions and strict oversight of all the complicated financial dealings of campaign committees.

Despite the horrors of Watergate, a few lonely congressmen face an uphill battle to bring reform to our political system.

Spirit Lifter for the week

By RUTH STAFFORD
PEALE

Three great words can influence your everyday life. Faith, a power that overcomes obstacles; hope, an attitude of exciting expectancy that the best is yet to be; love, an understanding and compassionate force that lifts everything. When these three shine like stars in your life, your spirit will always be uplifted.

"So faith, hope, love abide, these three; but the greatest of these is love." I Corinthians 13:13

Sunbeams

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Guess we should all [well most of us, anyway] be grateful to Al Barilaro for coming up with an acceptable redistricting plan.

There were almost as many six-ward plans around town as parking meters. And God knows, we've got parking meters!

But things were really getting ridiculous. We thought for awhile it would get so bad somebody would start hi-jacking six-ward plans. Or we'd have guys standing on the sidewalk in front of City Hall stopping you and whispering, "wanna buy a hot six-ward plan?"

Meanwhile around political circles in other parts of the state, Quincy had become an example. A bad example. They were saying things like, "You know what happened in Quincy—don't let it happen here."

But Al Barilaro rescued us. Although Ted McLelland might see it a little differently.

AND BEFORE We get off the subject, we hope that some of our elected officials learned a lesson. City Clerk John Gillis warned months ago that if Quincy didn't redistrict, someone would bring a court suit to force the city to do so, on the one-man, one-vote principle.

And someone—former City Solicitor Douglas Randall - of course did.

Despite Gillis' warning, no officials really seemed to get very excited. It was as though, if they looked the other way the threat would go away.

It was like having Paul Revere ride into town to warn the British were coming and everyone turning over and going back to sleep.

PRETTY PATTY KELLEY, this year's Miss Quincy Bay Race Week, is spending the next two weeks travelling New England to help promote the new MGM movie, "Westworld"

The movie stars Yul Brynner with Richard Benjamin in a leading role. Benjamin is in the touring group with Patty.

Patty, now a Carol Nash model, was picked to portray a peasant girl in the promotion build-up.

And for a change of pace she has also been selected as an official greeter at the Boston Playboy Club.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "Remember the days when a trip to the moon taxed only your imagination?"

A TIP OF the hat to radio station WJDA which celebrated its 26th birthday last week [Sept. 13] the same day we marked our fifth. Sincere best wishes to Jay Asher and all the gang for a job well done.

WELL, IT WOULD appear that Rep-Councillor Clifford Marshall has the City Council in his corner in his bid for sheriff next year. At the council meeting the other night, the boys were sporting "Marshall For Sheriff" campaign pins shaped like a sheriff's badge.

QUINCY'S Geraldine Pleshaw was a smashing success during Saturday's Democratic National Telethon beamed from Los Angeles. A battery of telephones were set up in the Hynes Auditorium in Boston to receive local fund pledges.

Senator Edward Kennedy, Boston Mayor Kevin White and Mrs. Pleshaw, head of the Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus, represented Massachusetts at the telethon.

When Kennedy and White made their TV appearances and appeal, all the phones at Hynes Auditorium lighted up. And when Mrs. Pleshaw appeared on the screen-Bingo—the phone lighted up just as fast.

SUDDEN THOUGHT: WHDH's Alan Dary sure makes it a pleasure getting up early Sunday mornings. Nice easy-on-the-ears music with many nostalgic trips down memory lane with the big bands. Tune in if you haven't. You'll really enjoy it. Keep 'em spinning, Alan.

TYPO TERROR DEPT: From the South Bend [Ind.] Tribune: Prior to most Cincinnati games he can be found doing what he spent 22 seasons doing—itching.

SMILE DEPT: From "The Insider", published by inmates at the Norfolk County House of Correction:

Two women were chatting at the beauty parlor. One confided: "My niece is getting a formal education. She's wearing shoes and a bra to school."

Along The Campaign Trail

Barilaro Plan Shuffles 7 Candidates

At least seven of the 26 candidates who have announced or have taken out papers to run for ward seats on the City Council have been displaced from their old wards by the redistricting of the city.

One incumbent, Theophilus McLelland III, the councillor from Ward 3 who had not made his intentions known, also was tossed out of his old familiar running grounds.

The biggest upheaval was in the old Ward 3, where McLelland, Peter P. Gacicia [who lost narrowly to McLelland in 1971] and Patrick J. Faherty were moved into the new Ward 2.

Waiting for them in the new Ward 2 is Clifford H. Marshall, the councilman from the old Ward 2.

The shifting of the ward lines also puts John J. Lydon Jr., who was an announced candidate from Ward 5, into the newly created Ward 3, where his only previously announced opposition would be James J.

Vey, ex of Ward 6. Other shifts move:

John Lydon Candidate For New Ward 3

John J. Lydon Jr., Wollaston funeral director, was the first candidate to announce for City Council in 1973 under the old six-ward setup last March.

Lydon was also the first to announce for the Council under the new six-ward plan.

The first time he was running from Ward 5.

Now he's running from Ward 3. Lydon's home at 468 Beale

St., Wollaston, was moved [on paper only] from Ward 5 to Ward 3 by the redistricting.

Running from a new ward doesn't faze Lydon. "Having once been a resident of Montclair and a present resident of Upper Wollaston, I feel that my perceptions of the problems which confront the areas are broad based and accurate," he said.

The new Ward 3 combines Montclair, Upper Wollaston and Cranch Hill.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS She has right to her own life

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master
Graphoanalyst
Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I am a 24-year-old divorcee, living with an elderly aunt. I would like to move into an apartment of my own, but she says that no girl should live by herself in these unsettled days, especially when I am so emotionally immature. I get so mixed up. I want to leave and then, again, I think I shouldn't. Should I get an apartment or should I stay here? When do you think I will be mature enough to live my own life?

J.Z.

Dear J.Z.:

That word — "maturity." It's been tossed around so loosely for so long that it's frayed and warped.

You are mature when you can make the most of what life hands you, whether you are 25 or 52. You are your aunt's security. The longer you stay with her, the more secure she's going to get.

At 25, you have a right to live your own life. Yet, you have a set of personality traits which combine to confuse you. The word endings along the line of writing show your thoughtfulness, your desire to give her what she wants and what she says she needs. The upper loops showing a wedge shape at the top indicates your sense of duty and a search for an answer to your obligation.

You're a "maybe" kind of person, seen in the faded word endings (not easily seen in reproduction). So the thought of making a final decision throws you into a mental fog and you keep vacillating.

Since you have to be decided before you can do anything, let's close in on those loopholes of indecision by asking yourself one simple question:

Is what I want to do a PLUS or a MINUS?

Then go from there.

D.J.

Selected letters will be answered through this column. A free handwriting chart of some common basic personality traits may be obtained by writing to Dorothy St. John Jackson, in care of this newspaper. Enclose long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Today's Women

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

A mother's life ... work

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

The term "working mother" has always puzzled me.

What, do you suppose, one would call a mother who doesn't have a job outside the home? A nonworking mother?

Not if you counted the diapers she does daily, the squabbles she settles, the noses she wipes and the tears she dries.

Give me one station wagon, three kids under 10, a dog and eight bags of groceries, and I'll show you a so-called nonworking mother driving the whole collage home to sort, cook, bathe, feed and line up for daddy to kiss on his way in the door. That's work. IBM and PBX be damned, that's work.

And does our nonworking mother have lunch in a coffee shop like the poor slave who works outside the home — sipping hot coffee, nibbling fruit salad and glancing over the latest live-togethers in the National Inquirer? No.

No, our nonworking mother fixes herself a tuna sandwich which the dog eats when she puts it down on the coffee table because the baby just spit up the spinach she fed him 20 minutes ago. She doesn't get the baby quite clean when the phone rings and it's her husband reminding her to eat a decent lunch.

A nonworking mother?

"I just had a tuna sandwich, dear," she can say in all truthfulness as the dog, following the baby's example, has returned the sandwich over her foot. That's the kind of lunch hour our nonworking mother has.

Some days are better than others, though. She might beat the dog to her sandwich and get to watch 15 minutes of a noontime kiddie cartoon show featuring psychotic animals chasing each other up trees and across ravines in Model Ts.

Then, if luck is with her, the kids take 20-minute naps while she fritters away her time on such decadent pastimes as eyebrow plucking and toenail cutting.

After all, a girl has to have some time to herself. Because, when the fun's over it's back to work fixing dinner, doing dishes, and coming on like what Helen Gurley Brown tells her is waiting at the office for her husband if she doesn't mind her Ps and Qs.

It's enough to make a girl go out and get a job.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Accent is on home environment. Some possibility of change of residence. Get expert advice if buying or selling property. Put your best foot forward with clients and associates. Improve your public image.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Popularity still runs high. Now that some projects are finished, concentrate on personal creative interests. Involve yourself in community affairs. Look for bargains in household items. Redecorate economically.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Bring plans pursued in secret out in the open now. Opportunity to reap financial rewards for past work. Your efforts appear productive and judgment is sound. Where problems occur, delay decisions if possible.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Your entire personality is intensified now. Use care and judgment in all activities — call on the best in yourself. Popularity is high and social life stimulating. Promotion and/or raise in salary is possible.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Problems may appear knotty. Take time to do some careful thinking. Some Scorpions may receive a raise or bonus now. Be sure you are directing energies to areas where financial reward is promised. Conserve energy.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Social life improves. Emphasis is on friends and long-range goals. Be supportive to others who are struggling to reach their goals. The answer to a most perplexing problem could come to you now.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Emphasis is on career now. You can meet challenges, solve problems and in general shine professionally. Some hobby pursued for years could become income-producing. Good time to start a course of study too.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Make use of your mental abilities — display imaginative, acute perception. Present a positive image to competitors and the public. Curb critical attitudes toward associates. Create harmony at home.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Be patient, take a seat on the sidelines in relationships with mate, business partners and associates. Secret kinds of activities require a realistic approach. Resist tendency toward wishful thinking.

RIGHTS It's foolish to wait 25 years

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin: For 25 years I've been going with a married man. He was going to get a divorce in 1948 but I agreed to a postponement when his wife became pregnant. After their son was born my lover said he couldn't leave his family until the child was of age. In 1960 I agreed to a further delay because most of his securities were in his wife's name. A few months later he told me he'd taken care of that matter and he was planning a divorce when his company sent him to a foreign country on an important assignment. He said his job would be in jeopardy if he filed for a divorce at that time. In 1971 his son was married and I thought he would arrange things for us then. A year later his daughter-in-law became pregnant and now he says he wants to wait until his grandson is old enough to understand about having two grandmothers. Should I hang on? I love this man desperately and don't want to lose him.

I have given him a quarter century of my life and love. Do I have any legal resort? — Wanting and Waiting

Dear Wanting and Waiting: How come you've spent 25 years reading one chapter of a lousy book? I took a peek at the end and the girl DOESN'T get her man! In the fadeout the man and his wife are dancing at their golden wedding anniversary. Return the book to the rental library and pay your long overdue fine. No, you have no legal resort.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: Soon I will be writing many thank-you notes for wedding gifts. My mother says that each note should make specific mention of the gift. If this is so, why? — Dubious in Dallas

Dear Dubious: Your mother is right. First, it makes the thank-you note much more personal than if you simply said, "Thank you for the gift." Second, it lets the giver know that his particular gift reached you. Remember, the giver made his selection with you in mind. "The beautiful book of color plates of horses will make a lovely addition to our library," certainly sounds better than, "Thanks for the book."

Questions on etiquette may be mailed to Riv Tobin, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Women less likely to commit suicide

Statistics show that women are less likely to commit suicide than men, at least in industrial countries.

In the United States in 1966-67, 34.3 white women per 100,000 killed themselves compared to 103.6 per 100,000 white men. Black women are only one-fifth as likely to commit suicide as men.

Autumn Is Bright-Up Time for the Kitchen

Summer's over, children are back to school and you are sitting in the kitchen having a mid-morning cup of coffee. The kitchen decor looks uncharacteristically faded, worn and tired. You realize that the family has been living outdoors for the past few months, cooking's been done on the barbecue and the kitchen is something one ran through. You remember the Johnsons are giving the first autumn party next week and it will be your turn soon. Suddenly, nothing seems more important than getting the kitchen revived, whipped together and percolating for fall.

You'll clean first, of course — vacuuming, laundering curtains and waxing and polishing the cabinet fronts. It's time for that periodic cabinet overhaul, too. Empty them all, clean the shelves and then take a long, cold look at the contents. Is everything really stored where you want it? Now is the time to relocate those items which would slither out when you opened a cabinet, or those which were clumsy to get at. Reorganizing's a bother, but not as much of a bother as coping with daily inconvenience in the months ahead.

Under-sink storage is usually a hodge-podge, resulting in back-ache as you peer and grope in the dim recesses. We know several people who've solved that problem by buying two plastic basins which are dishpan-size or smaller, each fitting behind your pair of under-sink doors. Divide your cleaning supplies between them — waxes, wood and silver polishes on one side, every-day supplies such as scouring powder, detergent, window cleaner, etc., on the side you use the most. The big advantage of the bins is that spills happen inside them, leaving the cabinet interior neat and untacky. When the under-sink area has to be cleaned, the bins lift out, saving you the bother of collecting dozens of bottles, cans, sprays and jars — a classic housewife backbreaker.

Now is the time to ease all those drawers and appliances which have balked at things to consider before choosing a new freezer

Having a freezer in the home has many advantages for the busy homemaker. You can save cooking time by practicing "freezer living" — cook a double or triple recipe, one to eat now, the rest to go into the freezer. You also can buy extra quantities of fresh foods when they are on sale and, if you wish, shop less frequently.

Since buying a freezer is a major investment, Sears home economists recommend that you consider several factors before deciding which model is right for you.

How big is your family? If it is large, you will want a freezer with large storage capacity. But if there are only two or three of you, a compact may satisfy your needs.

Do you do a lot of entertaining? If so, you will find that a large freezer can be a handy "entertainment center." Many foods can be prepared in advance and frozen for easy entertaining.

Do you have access to a lot of fresh fruits and vegetables straight from the farm? Many of these foods can be frozen as well as preserved, so a large unit could be useful.

How often do you shop? If you like to shop two or three times a week, you probably won't need a very large freezer. But if you prefer to shop less frequently, you'll want a unit that will accommodate more food.

INSTANT REFRESHER. This refrigerator dispenses ice cubes, crushed ice and chilled water through the door. It helps cut down on the number of times the freezer door is opened, thus saving energy the appliance needs to maintain interior temperatures. GE's doorway to greater ease!

Your Silent 'Extra Hand'

When is a refrigerator more than a refrigerator? When it dispenses ice cubes, crushed ice and chilled water through the door. Then it becomes an assistant to the party host, an extra hand for Mother and a friend to perpetually thirsty children.

Families of all sizes have found that GE's unique through-the-door ice dispenser feature is not only handy, but helps cut down the number of times the freezer door is opened each day, so the appliance will not have to work so hard to maintain interior temperatures. To get ice, the members of the family or guests merely set the selector lever to "crushed ice" or "ice cubes" and press the cradle with their glasses. There is little need to worry about running out of ice, as an automatic icemaker continually replenishes the supply. A separate cradle activates the chilled water dispenser.

The manufacturer's refrigerator line includes two custom dispenser-equipped models. One offers through-the-door ice cubes and crushed ice while another provides ice as well as chilled water. Both models are available in white, harvest, and avocado.

turned moments — usually when the family is clamoring for food! Drawers or bins which operate on a slide or tracking device will glide easily when lubricated with a thin coating of Vaseline Petroleum Jelly. The same is true of your oven racks. Simply wipe the runners to make sure they are clean, then dry and coat lightly with the petroleum jelly. Racks will then glide easily.

Dampness and moisture, plus kitchen heat, also have a tendency to rust kitchen metals. When a wall-hung can-opener sticks, perhaps metal gears are not meshing with other metal gears. Lubricate the can-opener with Vaseline to speed the action. Your exhaust fan also needs lubrication to keep it working well. After cleaning, a light film of petroleum jelly will protect the metal and retard deterioration.

Polish your silver flatware and serving pieces and check your china and pottery casseroles and platters for chips and nicks. Perhaps a few of these should be replaced. Go through your recipes, weeding out those which are not often used or have given disappointing results. Some recipes actually go out of fashion. When everyone's dieting, your triple-tiered whipped-cream cake will earn not applause, but some pained, guilty looks. Make something which is easier on the calories.

Finally, consider adding some touches to your kitchen which will please and surprise your family. New, colorful placemats, for instance, or some plants to replace that moldering avocado pit you've been nursing. The new no-iron tablecloths are pretty, and there's something about sitting down to a cloth-draped table which shapes up youthful manners. Even new pepper-and-salt shakers, a new bread-basket or butter dish can perk up your everyday table. Since cooking for family or friends is basically an act of love, arranging your kitchen so that it's functional and attractive may be the most affectionate thing you can do today!

Whip Up A Budget Kitchen to Glories

With prices so high at the butcher, the baker and the supermarket, the kitchen is fast becoming the most expensive room in the home to maintain. But, fortunately, not the most expensive room when it comes to decorating. Thanks to today's technology, an attractive kitchen, or kitchen area, can be put together on a very limited budget.

When challenged not only with a small kitchen area, but by a low budget, it takes a bit of planning. However, the results are well worth the effort. Color, of course, is one of the cheapest and most effective tools to whip that area into shape. And color can be a plus when it comes to picking a table and chairs.

The plastic surface always wipes off clean as the day it was purchased.

And plastic works, too, in other handy kitchen accessories, as well, designed for serving and making life simpler.

Sometimes it's fun to poke around antique shops; they can be a gold mine of gems. One "huntress" found a "table for ladies" sign and hung it in the kitchen—a whimsical touch to the kitchen area of today's liberated woman. And to keep her liberated, everything in the kitchen should be crisp and simple, easy to keep clean, and as uncluttered as possible. Hang the placemats on a plate rack on the wall. Use a few pictures.

Choosing A Freezer

Where will the freezer be kept? If it will be housed in the basement, garage or enclosed porch, you may want a large capacity chest or upright. On the other hand, if the only available space is in a small kitchen or the den, a compact may be a better choice.

Do you want a frostless freezer or are you willing to defrost it manually? A frost-less model is a big worksaver because it completely eliminates defrosting. However, it will cost slightly more than a unit that is not frostless.

How tall are you? If you are very short, an upright freezer probably would be the better choice. You might find it awkward to reach the bottom of a large chest.

Hard Winter

Countrymen have ways of foreseeing a hard winter. Bees make thin wax caps on their honeycomb cells to allow for easy entry during a cold winter. In mild years, the caps are thick and firm. Cattails seem longer and corn husks tighter if the winter is to be excessively cold.

Pennies Do Count

A few cents, saved here and there at the grocery store, can cut your weekly food bill anywhere from 10 to 15 percent, USDA food economists find. Try it and see.

Voilà! New Old Kitchen

Proper lighting for creating culinary delights, as well as maintaining the rustic charm of the rest of the house, were definite wishes of the owners in modernizing a kitchen in an old house. The renovation consisted of replacing the old appliances with new ones, raising the ceiling and adding larger windows. A new lighting fixture is a wrought iron chandelier by Progress which is very much in step with the style of the house. Centered low over the kitchen table on a heavy chain, it dramatizes the table setting and adds a personal touch. The chandelier together with undercabinet lights, provide adequate lighting to prevent accidents and eye strain. Voilà, we have a spruced-up kitchen with modern conveniences, yet the old-world feeling remains.

'Bereavement' Adult Education Class Topic At First Parish

"Understanding the Meaning of Bereavement" is the subject of a new Adult Education Class at the United First Parish Church [Unitarian], Quincy Square.

The six-week course, led by the minister of the "Church of The Presidents", Rev. John R. Graham, will be held on Monday evenings at 8 p.m. from Sept. 24 through Oct. 29 in the Parish Hall.

The two-hour seminar sessions are designed to give people an opportunity to discuss human reactions and responses to various types of loss including death.

"By talking together about experiences of bereavement, we can learn to become prepared to deal better with loss when it occurs," said Rev. Mr. Graham. "Death, of course, isn't the only loss in our lives. Moving to a new city, having a child leave home, or even leaving a place of longtime employment are difficult changes for all of us."

To enroll in the class, open to anyone interested, call the church office at 773-1290.

Molly Goldberg: Nostalgia Warm And Matronly

By WILLIAM JEROME
Quincy Sun Writer

That girl, that woman has come to town. You know, "Molly Goldberg", [Kay Ballard] everybody's friend.

She is there on stage, creamy complexion, warm and matronly in her size 18 or is it 20? She is fashion and grace. A doer, a schemer, a contriver. One who nurtures in her breast her own private dreams. And we come to meet her family and her neighbors, also. Who could imagine the "Yoo hoo!" lady without her cliff dwellers within earshot.

It's debatable whether she comes to us or we go there. I

'Bells' For Past Presidents' Club

Mrs. Warren A. Hubley will present a program entitled "Bells Are Personality" at the fall meeting of the Second District Past Presidents' Club Friday at the First Church of Squantum.

The board meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m. followed by a business meeting at 11:30 a.m., at which three members for the nominating committee will be elected.

The program by Mrs. Hubley, who is president of the Second District Past Presidents' Club, will follow the luncheon at 12:30 p.m.

Honored guests at the meeting will be Mrs. Anthony Losordo, second district director of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Renee Johnson, president of the host Squantum Women's Club.

Hostesses are Mrs. Harry L. Ellsworth, Mrs. Walter Perry Jr., Mrs. Vincent H. Sherman and Mrs. Charles Wilkins.

Mrs. Renee Johnson is ticket chairman, Mrs. Richard Schiavo hospitality chairman, and Mrs. Harry Ellsworth and Mrs. Henry J. Lupien publicity chairman.

mean the Bronx. I believe we go there. Seated in the Shubert Theatre we see through the scrim curtain, made up like a flowing dining room appointment curtain. There is the Bronx. High rise and low rise. Apartments, apartments. Rooftops, the Grand Concourse, the Oriental Mandarin Restaurant, the Speak-Easy - it's all there. But we are going to nestle in a five room flat. The cocoa sofa and chairs, the varnished wood, the dark, flowery paper and there with hubby Jake [Lee Wallace], son Sammy [Daniel Fortus], daughter Rosalie [Lisa Rochelle], and the inimitable Uncle David [Eli Mintz], we work out a family's destiny. We see the clash of dreams that arises when destiny spells -

UNEMPLOYMENT and hence disaster for Jake, the family bread winner. Jake is a cutter. And a good one, the best if you listen to Molly. And that's the beginning of the 2 1/2 hour Musical cityscape.

The story therein of how magic Molly transforms her man and his stylish co-worker, nimble footed Michael Stone [Sven Swenson] into G and S Co.

Yes we come to love this lady. We know we are going to. Whether we can enjoy her for herself in the opening minutes is doubtful. She is serenaded in by a bevy of matrons at windows.

Molly comes on sweetly. Entranced first by her window neighbors. Regrettably we don't have her to ourselves. We aren't given that time alone to catch her charisma.

We could imagine curtain rising and us being with her. No mugging. Just an intimate understanding. Ourselves and Molly. After-all we have been invited to her "house" - we are going to be "family" for all practicality in a matter of minutes.

S.S. Caucus To Present 'Women In Transition'

The South Shore Women's Caucus continues its programs of public information for women by sponsoring a program entitled "Women In Transition", Tuesday, Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m., at the Quincy YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy.
